Chick Starting, Growing Ration

Mermash 16% is a mash to be fed from the first feed the baby chick receives until the time that the hen is culled from the flock and sent to market.

Chicks raised on Mermash are quick, thrifty growers. They're healthy and strong. They feather better. Chick losses are lower and the cost per mature bird is lower.

Mermash does so well with chicks, pullets and laying hens because it contains Manamur, which is kelp and ocean fish meal. These products are rich in digestible iodine and other minerals essential for growth and health. Iodine is lacking in grain and animal products grown in the Great Lakes region.

Mermash 16% is available WITH cod liver oil. Really essential in any ration for early baby chicks as source of Vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin. Helps keep hens in peak egg production, too.

The seeds of the common sunflower are extensively used for poultry feed and are often fed to farm animals to improve their physical condition. The seeds are rich in fat and protein. The poorer grades are used for soap, wood dressing, paint manufacture and in certain kinds of varnish.

Our Government
—How It Operates

By William Bruckart

FACTS FOR THE FARMER

ONE of the senators created quite a furor in the recent session of congress by his criticism of the Department of Agriculture for what he called a "wasteful waste of money in printing pamphlets and documents for the information of agriculture. The senator, suddenly seized by a desire for economy, selected a pamphlet which he described as "The Love Life of a Bullfrog," on which to make his own play for publicity.

It was true that the Department of Agriculture had issued a pamphlet concerning bullfrogs, although I failed to find in it any reference to his love life. On the other hand, that document contained the results of a study of that little friend of man in order to show how greatly he helped by his insatiable appetite for certain kinds of insects, protecting the health of the nation and the crops the farmers grow.

Obviously, it seems like a waste of money until you know how far-reaching the investigations of the department prove to be. It is, however, proper to point out that without all these scientific studies, farming would not be what it has proved to be, a gigantic resource of a great nation. That statement is made, notwithstanding the recognized fact that farmers, as everyone else, have suffered in the worst depression of modern history. It is my deliberate conclusion that farmers would have been worse off except for the help of their government in this connection.

There are not thousands, but millions of these pamphlets, documents, books, leaflets and printed material for newspaper publication sent out each year by the department. If its work is to be of aid to those for whom it is intended, they must be made acquainted with it. So, it does seem that government expenditures of this kind are justifiable up to a certain point; just as valuable, indeed, as are other funds spent by the department in the thousands of studies, researches, experiments and administrative direction of its work.

It is readily understandable how agriculture gains from scientific work that results in prevention of cholera among hogs, hoof and mouth disease among cattle, rust in wheat, and others of that character. Likewise, the experiment station in your state, if you have happened to visit it, gives you a clear idea of results to be gained from doing things a certain way, but it is not so easy for the person who has not traced each operation through to its ultimate conclusion to see where some expenditures are justified.

All the while and in countless ways, the scientists of the department are seeking to find facts, facts of value to the farmer, and when they have helped the farmer they have likewise performed a service for the man in the city, since agriculture is fundamental in our economic life.

Thus, we find in the Department of Agriculture, bureaus of animal industry and dairy industry, of agricultural economics and home economics, one relating to plants, and another relating to control of foods and drugs in interest of people's health, to mention a few of them. Each has its place and purpose. Each has been created by a congress that saw a need for the work that it was to do.

It may seem strange, at first thought, that the weather bureau and the bureau of public roads should have been housed in the Department of Agriculture, but the functions they performed at the time they were organized were more intimately related to agriculture than to any other economic effort.

The vast annual expenditures of the federal government, in co-operation with the states, for construction of public roads had their inception from a desire to enable farmers to reach markets, right on top of this came the desire to enable farmers to receive their mail through the building system of rural mail routes, and so that agency has gone along, year after year, in development of the greatest system of public highways existing in any nation on earth.

It was the same with the weather bureau. Farmers, with perishable crops, needed information as far in advance as possible and the government tried to arrange it for them. Of course, in later years, the "weather man" has come to be a vital factor in the life of the air pilot and in commercial and industrial effort as well, but it remains in the Department of Agriculture for the good and sufficient reason that it can be administered better there than in any other branch of the government and the purpose of its inception remains as its fundamental basis of operation.

What Will You Do?

God gives us a place to work, energy to work with, and capacity to do the job. We also have something to work with—some of us play the piano, others have good voices, another has a talent for leadership. Whatever the gift may be, the important thing is: "What are you going to do with it?" Do you intend to use your tools to build and strengthen the highway of life over which your brothers must pass, or are you going to use them to make the rats and holes deeper? Our talent should be used to make the world a better one.—Grit.

One Murderous Owl

Among the hawks and owls there are two general groups in so far as the farmer and sportsman are concerned; these are the beneficial or detrimental in so far as game in general is concerned. One sees little of the owl. These one sees more frequently. These are the little fellows who, it is said, ask only the privilege of snooping in the fields and hedgerows for small rodents, snakes, etc. They do very little if any damage to game. The one owl of the whole family which is generally regarded as being an out-and-out murderer of game species is the great horned owl. He should be the subject of control in this group on game areas.—Missouri Farmer.

Microphone Tricky in Effect on the Voice

If your friends say your voice ought to be on the air, don't cough, or then good judges. The microphone plays a lot of tricks—some dirty—even on the best voices, says the Red Book:

"Contrary to the general impression, a microphone is not just a little gadget shoved in front of a speaker so he'll have something to talk or sing to.

"Put a silver-tongued orator before a mike, and he's just as apt as not to sound like a bronzelike lilly-goat; and a stellar soprano may give us perfect an imitation of the European tanking into midstream as you ever heard.

"Some people forget that that little mechanical box in front of them picks up every sound, however slight. A short-winded person taking a sudden deep breath may send the Kansas farmers into their cyclone cellars; while speakers who are strong on the sibilants give the impression of a dance orchestra warring up for 'The Peanut Vendor.' The best way to handle an 's' (in case you have radio ambitions) is to keep the tongue as far from the roof of the mouth as possible."

Not much talk about jobs these days. But there is plenty of talk about banking, taxes and economy.

While state officials and department heads are figuring out cuts that must be made, as the result of the mandate of these two committees, banking legislation that will in some measure protect at least a portion of the savings of Michigan people is under consideration.

The bank calamity brought upon Michigan over night has apparently put a stop to all talk of chain or branch banking in Michigan. The fact that it was the Guardian group of banks spreading across the state

A bill prepared by the old legislative commission of inquiry is passed, the functions of the state library as now existing will be terminated.

Senator Ben Carpenter of Clare, believes that farmers plastered with mortgages and contracts are just as much entitled to consideration as the bankers. He is therefore asking the state Legislature for a moratorium on all mortgage and contract payments. His proposal would relieve faulting interest payers from immediate loss of their equities.

Potatoes sufficient to absorb thousands of gallons of gravy will be grown in the United States this year according to agricultural department predictions of a large "spud" crop.

The potato crop this year, the department said, may be as large as last year's. The potato acreage harvested, however, it added, probably will be about three per cent less than that of 1932, or approximately 2,270,000 acres.

The department concluded, however, that despite decreased acreage increased yield would result in a potato supply equal to or greater than that of 1932.

LICENSE LIMIT AGAIN EXTENDED

MARCH 15TH IS NEW DEADLINE FOR LICENSE PLATES

Action Taken to Give Legislature
Time to Pass Installment Pay-

Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state, Monday extended the deadline for the purchase of 1933 automobile license plates to March 15.

His action came after the House had passed a resolution authorizing him to extend the date 15 days so that he might be able to set up machinery in various branch offices of his department to care for the installment payment of the plates as provided in the Orr bill, now awaiting action in the lower chamber.

An identical resolution, presented in the Senate, was not officially acted upon because a quorum was not present. Senators attending this Monday's session, however, unanimously supported the measure in a "test" vote.

Fitzgerald said that it would take him probably two weeks to perfect systems in branch offices to handle the proposed installment payment of the licenses if passed by the House. Under the provisions of the bill motorists would pay one-half of their fee March 1st and the remainder August 1st.

The House's vote in approving the resolution does not give Fitzgerald legal power, however, to grant the extension but merely is an expression of moral support.

"The extension will also allow many motorists additional time to run their automobiles who otherwise would be unable to do so until Michigan's banking situation clears up," Fitzgerald said.

Final action upon the Orr bill which will permit Michigan motorists to purchase their 1933 auto license plates in two installments was scheduled to be taken up by the House soon.

The measure already has been passed by the Senate and if it is approved in the lower chamber it probably will receive the immediate signature of Gov. Crampton, who has given it his sanction. The bill calls for half payment March 1st and the final payment will be due August 1st.

when the secretary of state will issue the 1933 plates. Until that time those who take advantage of the legislation will use their 1932 plates and display special windshield stickers.

The bill was sponsored by Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state, but it will be supported by the administration majority in the House as it was in the Senate.

Under present statutes, March 1 is the final date upon which the 1932 plates may be legally used, but Fitzgerald will ignore this provision if the Orr bill is passed. He has said that it will take him at least a week to set up an organization to handle the half-rate plan.

The House is also scheduled to continue consideration of the administration's bill which creates county tax commissions empowered to divide the 15 mill tax limit, set by the voters last fall, among the local units of government.

The chamber tackled the measure twice last week but made little progress. Membership on the commission has proved a stumbling block.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellemcamp

Farm Account Cooperators Finish 1932 Records

Charlevoix county has 13 farmers who have kept an accurate account of their farming operations for the year 1932. There is only one other county in the state that has a larger number carrying on this activity than Charlevoix. In the state there are approximately 1,000 farmers who have closed or are closing their 1932 records.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week two representatives from the farm management department will personally meet each one of the cooperators to help him in closing his records. In this way, the books will be as accurate as possible and will permit a more detailed summary of its various phases. This work differs from the average system being carried on on many farms as not alone an account of all receipts and expenditures is kept but in addition the depreciation on the farm equipment and livestock is considered as well as the interest on the investment and family labor. These last named items reflect themselves upon the income as much as receipts and expenditures, and as a rule, are not considered by most farmers.

A schedule has been made up whereby each cooperator will have an appointment for a certain hour to have his book checked in. Our farm account year starts the 1st of March. This means that anyone desiring to keep farm account records for the year 1933 is cordially invited and urged to send in his name to the county agent who will be only too glad to show him the system and start him in properly. No matter what the results of the year show it is as important as it is an unobtainable year as it is during a profitable year to find out what the true situation is for your particular year. As anyone who is keeping records will be able to see if you are thinking of an emulating in this project.

EPWORTH LEAGUE PLAY SUCCESSFUL

"Detour Ahead" Drew Much Praise
—Other Numbers Well Presented

The Epworth League program given Tuesday evening at the Methodist Episcopal church was successful. The attendance was large, with both the main floor and the gallery being filled, and a number had to remain standing. The program itself was even better than had been expected and it drew much praise. The audience gave generously into the free will offering.

The play "Via Air," consisting of a dialogue on the stage and a radio program broadcasted from the side room over Ty Kirby's outfit, was much appreciated by many.

The speakers were Eva Howe, Marian Tully, Roy Bussler and Harold Newman. Ty Kirby handled the technical end of the broadcasting. Alma Hartwell and Dorothy Pederson, on the stage, did their parts well.

The vocal music by Bernice Meggison, Charlotte Hicklen and Grace Belding was much liked and an encore was demanded, but not given. They were accompanied by Miss Atkinson. Ernestine Chew's piano solo was also greatly appreciated.

But, in the opinion of the majority, of folks there, the best number was the play "Detour Ahead," which was reserved for the last. All the members of the cast played their parts well, but Virginia Nickerson, Clarence Arnold and Bill Brown drew most of the sympathy of the audience, as they were in danger of losing their property through the trickery of the scheming neighbor, played by Harold Newman. Virginia Taylor and Dorothy Staley each had difficult roles to fill, and Howard Davenport, as the gasoline station magnate, furnished the money, to save the property.

Mrs. Hurl directed this play. Mrs. David also gave a few worthwhile suggestions when she was asked to criticize one of the rehearsals.

The committee in charge of the program wish to take this opportunity to publicly acknowledge its debt to those who, although not connected with the Epworth League, so graciously consented to help when requested.

COUNTY NORMAL NEWS

Congratulations! Miss Supernaw, Miss Burdick, Miss L. Reidel and Miss Gornell have completed their final examination in penmanship.

Miss Gornell was officially initiated into a rural school P. T. A. Tuesday evening when she attended the meeting at Barnard, with Miss Bigge, who addressed the association.

Longfellow Day! Whoever knew that he wrote so many poems to warren so many mixed-up titles as confronted the class during a little program worked out by Miss Bigge. The "Old Clock on the Stairs" came to life. "Paul Revere" once more sped along on his momentous trip; and everyone was quite ready to recline in "My Old Arm Chair."

Interesting studies in lettering adorn the bulletin boards.

Are you worrying about the possibility of a child of yours being born with a "hair lip" because one of your great grandmothers was? Can you account for the wonderful musical ability of your little girl? Do diseases run in families? Is it true that "royal blood" has a tendency to be inferior as a result of intermarriages? Should the state of Michigan have a law requiring the presentation of a health certificate as a requisite for a marriage license? Such weighty problems as these are responsible for the rather somber and serious faces of members of the psychology class. Wouldn't you like to come and join us? You are welcome.

SETH PARKER GROUP HELD FINE MEETING

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Williams Entertained at Last Session

The Seth Parker club last Tuesday evening had as its guests Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Williams, who favored the program with several musical numbers.

Mrs. Williams, who is 88 years of age, played the harmonica and Mr. Williams, who is 82, played the accordion. Among other pleasing numbers, they played a two-step of Mr. Williams' own composition. This aged couple are surprisingly young for their years, seeming to have found the "Fountain of Youth" in their lovely music.

A short talk was given on "What Would Washington Do Today?", comparing conditions as they existed when Washington took over the reins of government in 1789, with those confronting President-elect Roosevelt, today.

An effort is being made to have the Seth Parker hour one of light-hearted diversion from everyday cares. The club extends a hearty invitation to everyone to join. They meet every second Tuesday in Miss Atkinson's room in the grade school building, from 7:30 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. The next meeting will be March 7th.

DON'T PLANT UNKNOWN SOY BEANS IN STATE

Many Varieties Will Be Crop Loss During Average Season

Michigan farmers who are planning to cut the expense of buying concentrates by the use of soy beans should check with the farm crops department at Michigan State college before planting any varieties whose worth is not known to the grower.

Many varieties of the soy will not mature a profitable grain crop in this state. Plantings in previous years have been almost entirely limited to Manchou or its San varieties. The value of these two has been proved by many tests at the college and by general use by farmers in Michigan.

The college has made one year's tests on a new variety, Mukden. The original seed of this variety was obtained from Mukden, Manchuria, and the station at Iowa was used to increase the seed supply.

SPRING PRIMARY ELECTION MONDAY

*Present office holder. Name of Democratic candidate, unopposed at the primary, will appear on the ballot for April election, along with those of candidates for state office.

Next week will also see the various townships holding caucuses to nominate officers for the coming year. In many there are indications of a division in politics which will result in two tickets in the field. The political unrest which swept the nation and state last November is apparent in the townships and plenty of action is in prospect in nearly every township meeting.

METHODIST CHURCH

March 5. "Our High Calling." The Time will be given for a consideration of the Oxford group movement, and the question, do we want it? The Club meets this week, Thursday for a one o'clock luncheon at the church. Special program—the higher system of certain various countries—arranged by Mrs. Macdon. The Aid society will have a very important meeting next week Tuesday. Place announced Sunday. The March official board meeting will be Monday evening at 7:30 to permit of early closing—again held at personal age.

This first Sunday in Lent we ask for an "every member attendance," as far as possible. Make it a real "church rally." Something of the Lenten program will be announced.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
Charlevoix and Ironton
* * * * *
"The weaker the argument; the stronger the words."

Next Sunday will be known as "Primitiv Circle Sunday." This Circle is one of the oldest organizations of the church. The ladies who compose it are scattered through the city. The Circle derived its name, of course, from that group of "Freedom of Worship" seekers who arrived via the "Mayflower" over 200 years ago. For a Congregational church not to have at least one group of people within its organization that did not bear one of the names so popular among Congregationalists it would almost appear to be false to its progenitors.

Last Sunday the Mary Brewster Circle turned out in splendid numbers. With walking so difficult there was apprehension upon our part. There were about 53 husbands and wives; together with those who came upon invitation by the Circle brought our guest number to between 65 and 70. If one is "fussy" where he sits we are still urging, come early.

Next Sunday our subject will be "The Redemptive Process." — The Church. You should not miss this very interesting sermon. It will be filled with information and inspiration. Bear in mind that Jesus had a passion for the establishing of the Kingdom of God. One process, as we learned last Sunday, was the Cross. We will learn about another, the Church, next Sunday. The girls forged ahead last Sunday and the boys will have to work to overcome the lead.

ICE BREAK ENDANGERED OVER FIFTY

FOUR MEN RESCUED SUNDAY BY COAST GUARDS

Many Local Men on Lake Michigan As Ice Fields Drifted Out at Superior and Bay Shore

Over fifty men were endangered Sunday when ice fields they were fishing upon in Lake Michigan off Superior and Bay Shore, broke away and drifted lakeward.

Four local men, J. C. Marshall, Murley Plum, Oscar Ward and Glen Williams were rescued by Capt. Oscar Smith and George Keldershouse of the Charlevoix coast guard station when their escape was blocked by the rapidly widening open water, "Pat" Holland, fifth member of this party fishing off Superior, notified the coast guard station here by telephone from Bay Shore, and a surf boat towed to the scene was used in the rescue.

Holland, returning from a trip off Bay Shore, where he delivered bait to fishermen at that point, discovered the break upon his return to go onto the ice himself. It was then too late for the men to reach safety and his warning was useless.

The same break in the ice fields, extending from south of Charlevoix north to a point beyond Harbor Springs, endangered nearly fifty fishermen, among them many from Charlevoix, off Bay Shore, Henry Marshall of this city, rescued quite a number with a small boat equipped with runners which he takes each day to the fishing grounds as a precaution against such emergencies. Another angler, stranded on a small ice field surrounded by water, threw their lines to those on the shore side and were towed to safety. Boats at Bay Shore were pressed into use. Another angler, becoming excited, pushed his shanty into the water, took off his clothes and started an attempt to float across the open water upon it.

The break in the ice was caused by off-land wind shoving the field out into the lake. This danger is an ever-present one to Lake Michigan winter fishermen. Many were forced to abandon valuable equipment in their dash to safety. It is thought, however, the ice will close in again when the wind changes, so those who lost tackle will probably be able to recover it later.

ODD FELLOWS ADD TO CRIBBAGE ADVANTAGE

Are Leading by Margin of 692 With Two More Contests to Play

The Odd Fellows advanced another notch toward ultimate victory in the series of cribbage contests with the Masons by winning Monday night's session at the Masonic temple.

The combined Odd Fellow score was 21,400 points, 88 more than the Masonic total of 21,312. This advantage added to their previous lead of 604 points, put them 692 to the good for the series so far. Robert Stafford led the Odd Fellows with a score of 955 points, while Bert Beaudoin was high for the Masons with 932.

Two more contests remain in the series which started shortly after the holiday season. The next session will be at the I. O. O. F. hall next Monday night, and the final on March 27.

STATE TREE PLANTING PLAN APPROVED

Comstock O.K.'s $1,900,000 Project for Michigan

Reforestation of state-owned open-land to provide work for Michigan's unemployed under a five-year program has the approval of Governor Comstock.

The proposal was presented to him late Friday in detail by the Michigan Trade Recovery commission, the state department of conservation and experts from Michigan State college and the University of Michigan. Under the plan approximately $1,900,000 would be expended within the next year for its operation.

The project would be financed solely by a federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan amounting to $2,400,000 which would cover the money outlay for the first two years. Approximately 21,500 men would be employed for an eight-month period during the first year.

Governor Comstock said the plan would be self-liquidating, since trees planted now could be sold 40 years hence at prices which would more than pay for their cultivation.

"I heartily endorse any plan which will provide work for the state's unemployed and thereby eliminate the idle system," Governor Comstock said.

ATWOOD PIONEER TAKEN BY DEATH

ETHAN JOLLIFFE VICTIM OF HEART TROUBLE

Was Prominent in Business and Church Affairs—Funeral Services Conducted Sunday

Ethan Jolliffe, a well known resident of Antrim county, died at his farm home near Atwood last Thursday evening, March 2nd, following a lingering illness.

Mr. Jolliffe was born August 29, 1859, near Palmira, Wisconsin. He came with his parents to Michigan at the age of five years and settled on the farm that was his home until the time of his death.

On March 23, 1892, he was married to Ida Parsons, and to this union were born five children, viz: Mrs. Charles Edson of Ellsworth, Mrs. E. Stafford of Norwood, William, who operates the home farm, Eber of Grand Rapids and Wesley, a local school teacher. There are thirteen grandchildren. Besides the immediate family Mr. Jolliffe is survived by three brothers, Cyrus of Painesville, Ohio; Sidney and John of Portland, Oregon. Two sisters, Laura Jolliffe and Mrs. R. B. Stafford of Charlevoix, are deceased.

Besides being a successful farmer, Mr. Jolliffe had for many years been affiliated with the Leonard Seed Co. of Chicago, as local agent. His sterling qualities as a man of business and a Christian gentleman had won him a host of friends who deeply regret his passing.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon from the Atwood Methodist church. Rev. Kendall of Ellsworth, officiating.

The Courier especially regrets the passing of Mr. Jolliffe, a close friend for twenty-five years. He was one of the original correspondents joining the news staff when the present owners took the newspaper over. His writings for the Atwood district were typical of his personal characteristics—blunt and humorous—told in a manner indicating more than ordinary understanding of human psychology. His column will be missed by Courier readers everywhere.

CHARLEVOIX VOTERS CHOOSE NEW MAYOR

LOU S. SEE CARRIED THREE CITY WARDS TO WIN NOMINATION BY A MAJORITY OF 231 VOTES

Ray S. Hamilton, Victor in Three-Way Race for Clerk—Leo Carey and Wm. Higman Defeat Incumbents for Alderman in Third—Parmelee Nominated from Field of Four

Following a state and national trend resulting in a general turnover in politics last November, Charlevoix voters chose new city officials at the spring primary election Monday.

The regime of Arthur Bergeon, mayor for the past twelve years, was broken after a prolonged battle, L. S. See, prominent local business man and former city official, carried every city ward to win the nomination by a majority of 231 votes.

Ray S. Hamilton, city clerk, was re-nominated in a three-way race. He received a majority of 140 votes over E. A. Tyler, his nearest opponent, who had a slight margin over Charles H. Lamphair, the third candidate.

Robert E. Rife, deputy city treasurer, was unopposed for nomination. He will succeed his mother, Mrs. Mary Rife.

Third Ward Battle Ground

The battle for political honors was fought the hardest in the third ward. William E. Parmelee, incumbent, out-distanced a field of four candidates for renomination as supervisor. He had a majority of 52 votes over Archie Alecock, whom he succeeded a year ago. William E. Byers and Geik C. Geiken were the other candidates.

Two new-comers in city politics were successful in their conquests for berths on the council. Thomas Leo Carey defeated Jesse Smith, incumbent, as full term alderman by a margin of 80 votes, while William Higman needed only Harry Hooker by 28 votes in a close race for alderman to fill vacancy.

Candidates receiving nominations for other ward offices were:

ISAAC MILLS, MARION PIONEER, DIED TUESDAY

Was Former Warden of the Chicago Club of Charlevoix

Charlevoix county lost another from its rapidly thinning ranks of early pioneers by the death Tuesday of Isaac Mills, Marion township settler. He died at 11:30 a. m. at the Hayes township home of his daughter, Mrs. Amanda Evers, following a long period of ill health.

Mr. Mills was born at Stratford, Ont., January 7, 1851. He spent his early years there and in 1877 was married to Susan Reid of Sheffield, England. The couple came to Charlevoix county in 1881, settling on a farm in Marion township. They resided there until coming to Charlevoix for a 12-year period, during which Mr. Mills was warden at the Chicago Club of Charlevoix. He later took up a homestead in the Canadian Northwest, residing there four years before returning to the Marion township farm, where he lived until the death of his wife five years ago. Since that time he had lived with his daughter.

Surviving in addition to Mrs. Evers and three grandchildren are three sisters, Mrs. Clara Randolph and Mrs. Kate Blakeman, Winnipeg; Mrs. Demma Gifford, Stratford, Ont.; also two brothers, Lou and Abner of Seattle, Washington.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon from Brookside chapel, Rev. Weaver of Petokey, officiating. Interment at Brookside cemetery.

DELAY REPAIRS FOR BEAVER ISLAND PLANE

Return of Milt Wings Abandoned Until Navigation Opens

Pilot Clarence Schneider, returning from the island trip Saturday, reported that William Gibson and Leroy Allers, who were enroute from St. James with a pair of airplane wings that could not be fitted to the disabled plane there, have abandoned the trip as too hazardous.

The men who were out the second day were sighted several miles north of White Shoal lighthouse. Schneider landed on the ice and was told the party had stayed at Hog island the first night and that they were returning on account of the increasing thinness of the ice.

Repairs probably will be postponed until the opening of navigation.

BOYNE CITY AND ALBA ARE DISTRICT CHAMPS

Won Titles at Boyne City District Cage Tournament

Boyne City and Alba won the class C and class D championships at the northern Michigan district basketball tournament which closed Saturday evening at Boyne City. They won from Harbor Springs and Pellston, respectively, and these four teams will take part in the regional tournament at Petokey this week.

Boyne City succeeds Charlevoix, 1932 district and also regional champion, while Alba won the honor a year ago went to Ellsworth, winner of the district class D title here.

The powerful Boyne City quintet, which went through an undefeated season in class C competition, won their last two games by narrow margins after burying East Jordan under a lopsided score in the opening class C contest. Boyne conquered Charlevoix's Kipmen by a 19 to 17 score Friday night, knocking up their third victory over the local squad. It was a close and intense battle, with the score tied at 17-all just a minute before the final whistle.

Their victory Saturday night over Harbor was by a one-point margin, 17 to 16. Harbor led 9 and 8 at the half, and only by a determined drive in the final two periods were the Brotherton tossers able to win.

HALF MILLION CAR OWNERS ARE AIDED

NEW LAW PROVIDED HALF PAY ON MARCH 15TH

Stickers Good Until August 1 Will Be Issued to Car Owners Under New Plan

It is estimated that at least 500,000 automobiles that otherwise would have been barred from the highways, will continue to operate as a result of the recent law adopted by the Legislature, that permits the secretary of state to accept one-half the 1933 weight tax now and the remainder by August 1.

As a result of this plan which was introduced in the Legislature by Sen. Herbert P. Orr at the request of the department, the state will receive gasoline tax revenues which otherwise would have been lost, while automobile owners will not be deprived of the use of their property.

Under the Orr bill and a resolution adopted by the Legislature, 1932 license plates can be used until March 15. After that date, all vehicles must be equipped either with 1933 license plates or with 1932 plates and a wind-shield sticker, showing that one-half the 1933 weight tax has been paid.

The stickers are 6 by 3 inches and are printed in light orange and blue. They are to be placed in the lower right-hand corner of the wind-shield and will be placed as follows:

"State of Michigan, Department of State, Serial No." "This permit, issued by statutory authority, extends the legal use of 1932 plates No. to August 1, 1933."

"(Make of Car) (Engine No.) (Title No.)"

The permit also will bear the great seal of Michigan in the lower left-hand corner. The stickers are being printed and will be in the hands of all department of state branch offices by March 10. They may be purchased at any time after that date.

"RURAL" MEETING A GREAT SUCCESS

ATTENDANCE THURSDAY EVENING NEARLY TWO HUNDRED

All Business Was Dispensed With and Evening Devoted to Entertainment of Visitors

The "merchant-farmer" meeting of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce, held last Thursday evening at the I. O. O. F. hall, has been marked down on the records as one of the most successful and enthusiastic ever held.

Attendance and interest far exceeded that of any previous gathering of like nature. The attendance, practically divided even as to city and rural citizens, was estimated at nearly two hundred.

Despite the fact that accommodations were taxed to the limit, the banquet dinner served by members of the Rebekah lodge was everything that could be asked for.

Owing to lateness of starting the meeting and the large attendance, all business of the association was dispensed with and the evening devoted to entertainment. Following a greeting to the visitors, President C. J. Winder turned the meeting over to George Hanson, well known Iron-ton farmer, who acted as toastmaster in a very capable manner.

Opening the entertainment program, Mrs. Mildred McArthur of Flint, favored with two beautiful vocal numbers. She later responded with two more. Accompanying her at the piano was Mrs. A. J. Stelter. Others contributing musical selections, both vocal and instrumental, were Barker, Kirby, A. C. Belding, Lawrence Straw, Miss Bernice Meggison and a group of Legionnaires who gave several numbers unannounced as samples of a minstrel program to be given in the near future by the Legion. Ty Kirby furnished piano accompaniment.

Charles Shepherd, well known East Jordan farmer, provided several minutes of mirthful entertainment with one of his typical "Rube" dialogues. It was a regular Shepherd performance and enthusiastically received as usual.

Following the entertainment program, the balance of the evening was spent playing "keno." Practically every Charlevoix merchant had donated some useful article as prizes for the game, and this diversion ended a fine meeting.

HOWELL TRADE DOLLAR IS BOOMING BUSINESS

Big Increase Seen Since New Plan Became Operative

Trade dollars, which lose their value if hoarded boomed business in Howell, a town of 3,600 inhabitants. The trade money was issued in 120 business and professional men by the chamber of commerce a few days ago. Since then 2,800 "dollars" have been placed in circulation.

Sponsors of the plan believe it will develop $250,000 worth of cash business before March 4. They expect 3,000 certificates will be in circulation by that time.

Merchants are pledged to give one trade dollar with each $5 purchase. The certificate is good for $1 at any firm in town, if the person accepting it buys a two-cent stamp issued by the chamber.

Persons holding trade dollars more than three days must affix two stamps when they pass them on. The chamber will redeem the certificates with cash dollars when they have been spent 52 times, thus collecting $1.01 in stamps.

As a direct result of the extra "money" in circulation, merchants report they are collecting accounts two and three years old. Automobile dealers have recorded a 50 per cent increase in sales.

The trip has stimulated business more than 100 per cent, despite the bank holiday, according to Clinton E. Steinhoff, secretary of the chamber. He reports the trade dollars turning over faster than once every three days.

and son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Richardson, and Miss Julia Antonissen motored to Traverse City Friday afternoon, where they were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dye. Nineteen guests were in attendance, honoring Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Richardson's recent marriage. A delightful evening was enjoyed and delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. The Richardson party returned home Saturday, while Mrs. Antonissen left Saturday morning for her home in Chicago.

Many citizens of Norwood and vicinity attended the funeral services of Ethan Jolliffe, which were held at the Methodist church in Norwood Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mr. Jolliffe's death came "as to one who falls asleep after a weary day." Although he had been in failing health for the past few months, his passing was unexpected. He leaves many relatives and friends to mourn their loss. He was a man of calm judgment and a trusted friend and will be greatly missed by all who knew him. Norwood friends extend sympathy to Mr. Jolliffe and family.

Quite a large crowd attended the community meeting held at the town hall in Norwood, Friday, February 24th. Rev. Kendall gave a very interesting talk, followed by a short program conducted by Mrs. Robert Hildebeck. One of the favorite numbers on the program was a duet, "Sing by Fred Hall and son, Buddy, entitled "In the Garden." Encore was "Ninety-Nine Years." Delightful refreshments are always served at these gatherings, following games of various kinds. For the next meeting, March 21st, the Misses Bessie and Mary Baumbach will arrange for the program, while Mr. Fred Hall will attend to the refreshments.

CENTRAL LAKE

The mail carrier uses a car again. Only 15 above zero Sunday morning.

Rev. G. A. Weaver writes that he was retired (March 1st) as Sunday school missionary for the counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, Osego and Cheboygan.

Francis Hardy of Detroit, has been visiting old relatives and friends in the village the past week. He formerly resided in town and also worked a farm here.

Andy Dunsmore was able to walk out a little the last few days. He is walking a little more each day and trying to regain his strength. He has been afflicted with heart trouble.

Mrs. Jennie Hadecek has been at Ann Arbor hospital and is getting along nicely. Her place at the telephone board is filled by Mrs. Benner. The Parker boy is reported as improving.

Mrs. Carney and Mrs. Briggs, who suffered broken limbs, are recovering nicely under the care of Dr. Duffie. The doctor called on O. R. Morse again Monday and reports hopes of his recovery if he "takes it easy."

A few cases of scarlet fever have developed in Central Lake, Bellaire and Elk Rapids, according to reports, but they appear to be light. Miss Frances Dawson, attending Central Lake high school, had what she thought was German measles last week. Don't know what Adolph Hitler would call it. He probably would not allow an American citizen to have anything like that.

The Torch office is being moved to the Roman building, almost directly across the street from the present location. It was on that side of the street during the disastrous fire of 1903, when nearly the whole block of buildings were destroyed. The writer went down to the county seat to attend teachers' institute that day. Everything was apparently O. K. when he left, but upon returning the smouldering embers were all that was left. The village "wag" said the fire caught from the Central Lake Torch. Mr. Muthers, cashier at the Stevens bank, attended the bankers' convention last week. Mrs. Stevens was personally in charge Saturday. The bank has been paying 50 per cent. Mancelona is reported as paying 100 per cent. Now everybody has a five-day rest, and maybe more. The Democratic good times are now on. We have found what was around the corner. Hoover is "standing by" if they should need to call him back.

Chairman Albert Smiteler called the citizens' caucus together promptly at 2 o'clock last Saturday. The following ticket was nominated: supervisor, Evert Vandenberg (now clerk); clerk, Elmer Neuman; treasurer, Milan Greenman; highway commissioner, Joe Devlin (now incumbent); board of review, Henry Syers; justice for full term, Jesse Mancel; pound masters, Jim Somerville and Herman Telgenhoff; overseer, Wm. James Somerville; township committee, Albert Smiteler, Henry Syers and Otto Morse. The Democratic caucus, called at the same place an hour later, endorsed Vandenberg and Devlin, and in addition nominated for clerk, W. L. Watkins (the hardware man); treasurer, Alva James; justice, Edd Yettaw.

Many relatives, old friends and neighbors will deeply regret the passing last Friday of Brother Ethan Jolliffe of Atwood. Many from this place attended the funeral Sunday.

It was the largest funeral that we have seen since the death of Dr. Bailey of Elk Rapids. Atwood has lost an earnest helper in the church, a Christian worker. Antrim county has lost a respected citizen. It does not seem so hard when one knows that he was a fervent Christian and prepared to go. Like Mrs. Mary Sias of Antrim, a worker in the church there; Mrs. Mary Russell of Elk Rapids; Mrs. Mary Murphy of Pleasant Valley, and Mrs. Mary Craspey of Green River, all had prepared to go. The chapter or verse of scripture to be read, the singers and the songs and all connected with the funeral services, were planned before death. This should prove to the world that there is truly something in the Bible and the Christian religion. The last visit to the Jolliffe home by the writer, was when we attended the wedding anniversary last year of Mr. and Mrs. Jolliffe. The occasion was a pleasant one and many were the reminiscences that Brother Jolliffe gave of pioneer days. Sunday, I said to someone, "Who will carry on the work that Brother Jolliffe has done here?" He said, "I don't know. Perhaps the church will be locked up soon." A new basement had just been completed, with much of Mr. Jolliffe's aid. Everywhere you look you think of him. No more will his place be filled at the piano. It is hoped that someone will be found who will be able to carry on the work that Mr. Jolliffe has so long assisted in.

STATE HOLDS APPLICATION FOR FINGERLINGS

Must Determine Department Policy Before Allowing Requests

All applications by organizations and individuals for fish to be planted during 1933 in specific waters, are being held by the fish division of the department of conservation until it is determined how many fish and of what species will be available for distribution.

Because of its present financial condition the division is uncertain whether all of its field stations will be in operation during the coming spring and summer and whether it will be able to hold and feed the fish until they have reached the size that have been planted in the past few years.

When the year's program has been definitely determined, it was said, an equitable distribution as possible of the supply of fry and fingerlings on hand will be made.

Taking the "CHASE" Out of PURCHASE

ADVERTISING benefits the man who buys as well as the man who sells. It is part of the Golden Rule of Business and it works both ways.

Don't miss the advertisements in this newspaper. Many of them are interesting just because of their news and educational value alone.

But more than that: Advertisements take the "chase" out of purchase and make every penny do its full duty.

This last statement is one particularly to be remembered when common-sense economy is not only a national duty, but an individual necessity.

LEARNING'S REAL VALUE

A sluggish appetite means a sluggish colon. Correct this condition called stasis, and see how quickly a listless, drooping boy or girl begins to eat—and gain! The only "medicine" such children need is pure, unadulterated fig syrup.

California syrup of figs is doing wonderful things for illing, sickly children all over the United States.

If your baby, boy or girl, is bilious—pale faced and dull-eyed from constipation—breath bad mornings, tongue coated all the time—don't give cathartics that weaken twenty feet of bowels! Instead, a little syrup of figs that doesn't disturb either stomach or bowels, but does act on the lower colon—where the trouble lies.

Nature never has made a finer laxative for children; they all love the wholesome, fruity flavor of the real California syrup of figs. It's purely vegetable, but every druggist has it all bottled, with directions. Begin with it at once. Your child will soon be eating better and feeling better. Keep on with the syrup of figs a few days and see amazing improvement in appetite, color, weight, and spirits.

Children who get syrup of figs, now and then, keep well and avoid colds.

Brims and Eyes Play Hide and SeekBy CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHAT fun brims and eyes will be having this season playing hide-and-seek with each other! You see, it is this way, fashion-bustlers that brims take a most thrilling dip-over-one-eye slant, and what happens?—see for yourself in the picture where most of the brims pose at such a perilous angle they almost, if not quite, differentiate the right eye. Which is exactly the way the new hats are supposed to be worn. So get before your mirror and practice, for much of the success of the new hats depends on the "tricks" wearing thereof.

Not that the new hats are in any way lacking in comeliness within themselves. No, indeed! On the contrary the bewitching chapaneux which are looking in by the thousands just now are about as fascinating a lot of millinery as ever joined in a midseason and spring style parade. It is not only the fatuousness of their pose that enraptures but there is that appeal of the truly feminine in their ribbons, their flowers (yes, flower trims are "in"), their airy straws and their dainty fabrics which make them irresistible. There's no mistake about it, intensely interesting things are now going on in the realm of millinery. One of them is the revival of tulle as a medium for hats to wear now and hats to wear when springtime gladdens the earth. One of the dramatic plays which milliners are making with tulle is to stitch it intricately and beautifully. The "daisy" of pale blue stitched pen d'ange tulle shown at the top to the left in this group is a striking example of this. It is pulled down over one eye rakishly, as they say even the youngest deb could desire. The next hat (centered at the top) is also of tulle—may be blue and tulle.

tulle, with melon crown and daring brim which laps over at the front in a most fluttering manner. The three-tone cluster of velvet flowers placed to the fore is its only decoration. One eye, you will observe, is entirely obscured.

The new crowns for the most part are flat and low. The model to the right at the top is a representative type. Small wreaths of velvet flowers encircle the crown. Velvet flowers either in multi-color or in solid tone adorn fabric and straw hats alike this season.

Again, in the instance of the hat worn by the print-frocked lady, the brim quite conceals the right eye. The interesting thing about the charming outfit is its trimming touches of velvet as expressed in the wreath of flowers which enhance the hat and as they appear in the belt and buckle. Designers are keen about adding a dash of velvet to the new costumes, so much so, they are beautifying the new spring prints and crepes and matelasse weaves with most intriguing accessories including velvet scarfs, girdles, bows and all sorts of enhancing details.

Three outstanding trends are presented in the smaller sketches below. The high built, turban reflecting co-sack influence as shown to the left is a favorite in Paris. The plaid tulle bow at the neck also conveys an important message. The felt Fedora in the center is being worn by swaggers tailored folks. With toques and small brims were crisp vells, as illustrated to the right, are inevitable.

CAPES AND CHECKS
By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Here's two important hints in regard to the new spring coats—capes and checks. Most every coat has its cape, for capes have gone on parade for spring. Capes that come off and capes that don't, capes that are furless and capes that are fur trimmed, they each and all grace the season's smartest coats. Then as to the popularity of checks, it matters not whether the cloaking material be of fine sheer woolen of sturdiest weave or of gray and white silk, as is the material which fashions the model pictured, it is almost sure to be checked, for checked fabrics are the rage for spring. Would love the material in this coat. It is a sort of soft-heavy cling-silk mixture which you are sure to like better every time you wear it. The gray fox bordering satisfies the eye with a delicate color blend.

WOMEN NOW PREFER DOUBLE-DUTY DRESS

Two dresses have always been better than one, but now women prefer, above all, the single dress that is really two. Transformable clothes—originally an experiment to test out the possibility of thrifty fashions—have become big successes.

The true feature of the transformable clothes is the fact that there is hardly an evidence of their double-duty background.

Time was when a transformation dress showed its taking-apart qualities at first glance; nowadays hardly a dress goes by in any fashion parade that doesn't look as if it might be taken apart and transformed—hence the dress which has this as its purpose is not set apart from others in any way.

Designers Making Much of All-Beige Costumes

Designers are making much of the all-beige costume as an advance spring fashion. Introduced in mid-winter, the first beiges planned for 1933 were of a darker tinge than usual. Many of them had a greenish cast, or were crosses between beiges and grays.

The current popularity in beiges leans toward lighter, paler shades. Many of the beige costumes shown in the better dressmakers are actually a deep, cream color, or lean toward pale yellow. One of the favorites is a very light beige that approximates the most delicate tones in baby lynx furs.

Black Chiffon Is Being Revived for Evening Wear

Black chiffon, an old favorite evening fashion, is being revived. Many smart women, tired of bright red crepe and black satins, are taking up a fashion that has always had big seasons of success, and are adapting it to 1933 silhouettes.

Many of the newest evening dresses appearing at fashionable theater openings are either entirely of black chiffon, or are of chiffon combined with lace or with satin.

READING OF TODAY AND THE LONG AGO

It is curious how long-forgotten things come floating into the mind from nowhere. Once there was a story in a popular magazine written on the installment plan. The same story was given each month, as it might have been told by some well-known writer such as Howells or James, but the name of the author was withheld until after the tenth number when the list of authors was given, and you could compare it with your own guesses. I believe that I was not absolutely sure of many of them except the one by Henry James, whose long, precise and sometimes involved sentences were not to be disguised. As an exercise in the recognition of differing styles among story writers, it was interesting.

Few children of today have ever heard of the "Prudy Parlin" and "Dottie Dimple" series by Sophie May.

But we knew them all by heart and could tell you how they put Prudy in a great hogstoad when she was naughty; how she scared them all by climbing to the top of the house on a painter's ladder, in search of heaven; how she followed sister Susie to school, and amused herself by trying to see if her knitting needle would come out the other side if pushed through her seatmate's ear. There were many stories about these little folk of Portland, Maine, and we read them over and over. I have heard many objections to stories in series, probably because they go beyond the period of childhood and approach courtship and marriage, but the Prudy books committed no such indiscretion.

Of course we read "The Wide, Wide World" and "Queechy," after we had finished weeping over the Elsie Phynore books (which were long). "An Old-Fashioned Girl" was quite as pleasing to me as "Little Women," though not so often read. In the Sunday school library we found the Pansy books, "The Five Little Peppers," "Sara Crewe" and "Little Lord Fauntleroy."

One of the enthusiasms of my youth was "The Princess of Thule," by William Black, who wrote many other novels, among them "The Strange Adventures of a Phacton" (some one asked the other day, what was a phacton). I have lately renewed my acquaintance with his "Julith Shakespeare," which is a good portrayal of the environment of the poet. Akin to the "Princess of Thule" was "Thelma," by Marie Corelli.

"Teg Wollington," by Charles Reade, was the story of an Eighteenth century actress, a friend of David Garrick. I do not recall the story, but admit ask a certain relative who makes a point of reading once a year the novels of Charles Reade and Anthony Trollope. I think he regards the Berkshire people as personal friends, especially those of the little house at Arlington.

In my youth detective stories were associated in my unsophisticated mind with small boys behind barns gleaning over yellow-backed paper books, my own harmless favorites requiring no such secrecy. At school, we were obliged to read the "Godd Bug" and the "Murders of the Little Morgue," as being the pioneers of the current detective novels. Not being detectively inclined, I did not like them, though it was heresy to say so, and later I could not see why anyone should want to hallow up her soul, and freeze her young blood by poring over the "Moonstone," by Wilkie Collins. We domestic ones were out the "Last Days of Pompeii," "Lorna Doone," "John Halifax, Gentleman," "Jane Eyre" and many others, including "Moby Bawn," "Red as a Rose Is She," "St. Elmo," and the like. Frivolous they might have been, but harmless compared to some of the stories read by girls of today.—M. O. W., in the Indianapolis News.

New Love

New love is brightest, and long love is greatest; but revived love is the tenderest thing upon earth.—Thomas Hardy.

Stronger than He Was at Twenty

FIFTY-FIVE years old, and still going strong!

Do you want the secret of such vitality? It isn't what you eat, or any tonic you take. It's something anyone can do—something you can start today and see results in a week! All you do is give your vital organs the right stimulant.

A famous doctor discovered the way to stimulate a sluggish system to new energy. It brings fresh vigor to every organ. Being a physician's prescription, it's quite harmless. Tell your druggist you want a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Get the benefit of its fresh laxative herbs, active serum, and that pure pepsin. Get that lazy liver to work, those stagnant bowels into action. Get rid of waste matter that is slow poison so long as it is permitted to remain in the system.

The new energy men and women feel before one bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin has been used up its proof of how much the system needs this help.

Get a bottle of this delicious syrup and let it end that constant worry about the condition of the bowels. Spare the children those billions of dollars that make them miserable. Save your household from the use of cathartics which lead to chronic constipation. And guard against auto-intoxication as you grow older.

Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin is such a well known preparation you can get it wherever drugs are sold and it isn't expensive.

MEN AT WORK

From Lansing comes the interesting information that at the present time more than 20,000 men are being given whole or part time employment by the state highway department. Nearly one-third of this number are employed on Reconstruction Finance Corporation improvement and road betterment work. This particular activity during the winter months was first proposed by Commissioner Grover C. Dillman and has the hearty endorsement of Governor Comstock.

The real economic value of the state highway program is seen in the employment of men, who otherwise would be objects of charity. They are recruited from the ranks of the unemployed all over the state and are being given an opportunity to earn a livelihood for themselves and families. No politics is allowed to creep into the department—men are selected because of their pressing needs—every dollar available for relief work is being made to function one hundred per cent. On the whole it is a most refreshing spectacle of state aid at its greatest efficiency.

FOR WORLD PEACE

Constantly we hear about wars and rumors of wars. This in spite of the fact that since the close of the World war the leading nations of the earth have been engaged in holding peace conferences in hopes of finding a way to end all war.

At these conferences major discussions have had to do with reduction of armaments. Reductions of armaments tend to world peace. Already some progress has been made with the United States leading the way.

But the strange thing is, no nation has advanced the theory of government ownership of all war making munitions and armament plants. If all the nations of the earth were to do this the constant agitation for war would cease. Privately owned armament and munitions industries prosper only when nations are at each other's throats; when men and treasure are being destroyed.

Why don't our government take over the war making machinery of this nation, as part of a national movement for world peace. It is now engaged in many other enterprises, of a nature once thought private, so this could not be deemed of a too radical departure.

Let Uncle Sam say: "I own all these plants. I am going to build ships, and guns, and bombing planes, just as rapidly as I believe the peace and safety of this nation demands. I am going to set an example for all other nations to follow. In the meantime I will consider it a breach of the Monroe Doctrine for any European nation to clear shipments of war materials from their ports designed for sale in any part of the Western hemisphere. We, of the West, are for peace. It will be well if you follow after us."

The day is coming when the common people of the earth are going to insist that this be done. Over population of the future will be handled through scientific selection of the race, not by wholesale murder on national and international battle grounds. Let America be first to point the way.

TEST THE CHILDREN TOO!

Although the tuberculin test long has been a device of recognized value in eliminating tuberculosis from cattle, it is only within recent years that advances in another field of science have made it a potent factor in dealing directly with tuberculosis in human beings. While in cows a reaction to the tuberculin test was all that was necessary—since reactors were summarily slaughtered—such a simple procedure was obviously not in order in mankind.

More intimate knowledge of the meaning of a positive reaction to the tuberculin test was necessary. The pathway to this knowledge has been furnished by the X-ray. Careful scientists, studying thousands of films, have developed a technique by which the significance of this infection can be accurately catalogued. As a result, the tuberculin test backed by the X-ray carries today a wonderful pledge of future accomplishment in eradicating tuberculosis.

The wise parent of today, according to the Michigan Tuberculosis association, sees that his children are tested annually with tuberculin. If they react, he has chest X-ray pictures taken every year until adulthood is reached. Then, and only then can he be reasonably certain—as far as modern science allows—that this leading cause of death among children and adolescents will not touch his youngsters.

Indirect benefits certainly have come to the human race from the use of this invaluable test among cattle, through the guarantee that tuberculosis germs are not present in milk and meat. Direct benefits, we may hope, will come increasingly as the tuberculin test, together with the X-ray, is used to protect children from this insidious disease.

THE IDEA IS NOT NEW

We hear much these days about the "Buy American" plan. The movement was founded on the principle that if we buy only American made goods a market will be created here at home that will benefit all industries.

Because this is our first serious attempt at nationalism we have a feeling that it is something new in the world of economics. But that is not true. Back in biblical times they had depressions, much the same as we are having today. There were no technocrats in those days, so the people turned to the prophets for advice. In one place in the Bible we have the prophet Isaiah saying:

"They helped every one his neighbor; and every one said to his brother, 'Be of good courage.'"

"So the carpenter encouraged the goldsmith, and he that smootheneth with the hammer him that smitheth the anvil saying of the soldering, 'It is good'; and he fastened it with nails, that it should not be moved."

In spite of the quaintness of the language used, one finds in that an idea that is as fitting to present day conditions as when the old leader uttered it ages ago.

In a few words, Isaiah, who could not have visualized an industrial age as highly complicated as our own, suggests a remedy. He knew nothing of mass production, business cycles, agricultural over production, or sales resistance. But he did know that each man was dependent upon his neighbor, and that in times of stress there is no substitute for courage, or work, or mutual understanding one with another.

The "Buy American" movement of our generation is nothing more than Isaiah's plan on a nation-wide scale. When we start to unravel the tangled web confronting this country we will do well to remember what this prophet of old had to say regarding human values and human equation. He knew human nature and how much success is measured by the extent with which we pool our resources and ability. United we move forward to success. Therefore it is sensible to "Buy American."

THE FIVE GRACES

Many people are wondering what new industries are going to pull us out of this depression, as new industries have put an end to depressions of the past.

The industries which promise the greatest help, in the opinion of the Administration and Research Corporation, are these:

1. Air-conditioning — bringing to every home, office, and shop the most healthful temperature and humidity of cleansed air.
2. Modern home construction — mass production of scientifically designed homes for America's inadequately housed majority.
3. Television—a duplication of the growth of radio broadcasting.
4. Transoceanic aviation—making a week end in Paris possible, or a trip to London, via the stratosphere, in a few hours eventually.
5. Farming for industry—producing materials for automobile tires, artificial leather, new plastic construction, and many other things, with the aid of laboratory research.

FITZGERALD RULING REVERSED BY COURT

Frank D. Fitzgerald has joined Auditor General Stack as a state official whose interpretation of state laws has been defective.

The state supreme court held that chain stores need to purchase only one retail or wholesale malt license for all their stores. The suit was brought by the Kroger Grocery and Baking company which had refused Fitzgerald's demand that it buy a $25 annual license for each store.

PLAN AIRPLANE EXCURSIONS TO BEAVER ISLAND

Transport Visitors to St. Patrick's Party March 17th

Mid-winter airplane excursions, something quite unusual for this region, at least, are being planned to accommodate visitors to Beaver Island for a St. Patrick's party planned for March 17th.

Clarence Schneider, brother of Earl Schneider, Charlevoix-Beaver Island airmail pilot, is preparing two planes for excursion trips prior to and after the event. The program for the St. Patrick's party, an annual event at St. James, includes a fish supper, dancing and entertainment program.

The route for the excursion trips will be over 25 miles of ice fields in Lake Michigan.

Charlevoix and Ironton
"God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." — Ps. 46:1.

A splendid delegation from the Pilgrim Circle and their friends were present Sunday morning. There comes to us a deep sense of gratitude to this Circle because the attitude of its members is to "stand by" when help is needed. Sickness among the members and in their homes kept several away. Next Sunday we will be hosts to the South Side Circle. Whether the name represents something of special significance we cannot say. But it certainly does not mean that all its members are in the south part of the city. All sections of the town are graced by the presence of one or more of these ladies.

A final note will be struck Sunday morning with reference to the processes by which Jesus saw the establishment of the Kingdom of God. And this is "Conflict." Considering the opposition to the Kingdom on every hand must necessarily produce conflict. This truth has been proven by the experience of the Hebrew people, nearly two thousand years of experience of the Christian church, especially by the life of Jesus and the fact of His cross. Because the Church of God is today the instrument for proclamation and propaganda, she cannot side-step this conflict. Don't miss this number.

For our musical program we have been promised the presence of the male minstrel chorus. This group of local musicians will present in the very near future a colored minstrel program in the interests of the American Legion. As some of the men are connected with other churches than ours, they will attend their services first, so as not to inconvenience any other religious service.

BALMY WEATHER SIGN OF EARLY SPRING—CLAIM

With several days of balmy weather already chalked up on the records, prophets are predicting an early spring in Charlevoix county. There was some debate whether March was ushered in as a lamb or a lion. Snow is melting fast and there are many patches of brown earth showing in the country.

Charlevoix county road commission went into session Wednesday afternoon in an attempt to solve difficulties confronting them on the continuance of R. F. C. financed relief highway projects started a week ago. Due to the tie-up in the banking situation, no funds have been forthcoming as yet, and the question of meeting payrolls has become an important one. Charlevoix county, one of the few still carrying on with the relief project, cut the crews from each section considerably starting Monday with the view of prolonging the work as long as possible on the allotment allowed for February. When March funds will be released no one knows any more than they do when funds will be released to pay for work already done.

One Sure Way to End Coughs and Colds

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

Learned Man Derides Groundhog as Prophet

The groundhog or woodchuck, like many another legendary figure has been debunked.

After years of experiments with woodchucks and other hibernating animals the sum of conclusions of Dr. George E. Johnson of the zoology department of the Kansas State college, is that these animals are likely to wake up, yawn and perhaps step out for a breath of fresh air any time before or after February 2, known as groundhog day.

If a warm spell has driven the frost from the ground he is likely to go out for a little while. If not, he shakes himself, curls up again and goes back to sleep without probably bothering even to look for his shadow.

All of which, says Doctor Johnson, makes him hardly a dependable weather prophet.

Results are among the most extraordinary in medical science. On doctors' advice, millions are following this way... discarding old-time "washes" and "antiseptics." For it has been found that only medicine can help a sore throat.

Simple To Do. All you do is crush and dissolve three BAYER Aspirin Tablets in half a glass of water. Gargle with it twice—as pictured above. If you have any indication of a cold—before gargling take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets with a full glass of water. This is to combat any signs of cold that have gone into your system. Keep on taking if cold has a "hold." For Genuine Bayer Aspirin will not harm you. Your doctor will tell you, it does not depress the heart. Get a box of 12 or a bottle of 24 or 100 at any drug store.

Reduces Infection, Eases Pain Instantly. Gargling with Bayer Aspirin will do three things: Relieve soreness at once. Allay inflammation. AND—reduce infection; which is the important thing in fighting a sore throat.

It requires medicine—like BAYER ASPIRIN—to do these things. That is why throat specialists throughout America are prescribing this BAYER gargle in place of old-time ways. Results are quick and amazing.

Be careful, however, that you get real BAYER Aspirin Tablets for this purpose. For they dissolve completely enough to gargle without leaving irritating particles. Watch this when you buy.

Ask your druggist about the recent price reduction on the 100 tablet size Bayer Aspirin.

CHARLEVOIX ON NEW AIR ROUTE

COMPANY ORGANIZED TO SERVE
NORTHERN RESORTS

Daily Service Between Soo and Grand Rapids Will Be Started
April 1st

Final plans are being completed for an airline to be operated between Sault Ste. Marie and Grand Rapids by way of St. Ignace, Mackinaw City, Emmet county airport (Harbor Springs and Petoskey), Traverse City and Cadillac. Round-trip service, daily except on Sunday, is to be started by April 1. Charlevoix may be included on the itinerary.

Backed by Clark Travis of Petoskey and Howard D. Armstrong and Leo Cassidy of Harbor Springs, the company will be known as Michigan Air Transport, Inc. Plans are made to divide the sale of 2,000 shares of stock among the cities. The airline services. The board of directors is to be chosen from Harbor Springs, Petoskey, Traverse City and Sault Ste. Marie.

Equipment will include two Stinson six-place cabin planes powered with Wright Whirlwind engines. The planes will be equipped for night flying and heated for winter travel. A plane will be available for charter service in any city on the route.

The new company proposes to give Northern Michigan cities dependable, fast and economical air express and passenger service. Passengers will be carried at railroad rates and express rates will be low.

The three hunkers have had wide experience in aviation. Mr. Travis is a transport pilot. He received training at the Parks Air college in St. Louis, Mo., and was flying instructor at Jefferson Air college at Jefferson City, Mo. Mr. Armstrong is well known in aviation circles. He served in the Army Air corps during the World War. Mr. Cassidy received his degree in aeronautical engineering at the University of Michigan in 1931. Last winter he was employed in the traffic department of Century Air Lines in Detroit. Mr. Cassidy will have charge of the traffic department and Mr. Travis will be in charge of pilots, ships and an air school.

Major Floyd E. Evans, director of the Michigan state department of aeronautics has given his strong endorsement of the new company and has volunteered "every possible assistance" to the enterprise.

The office and service base of the company will be at the Emmet county airport located on M-131 midway between Harbor Springs and Petoskey. Construction of a hangar and repair depot is to be started soon. An open cockpit plane is to be added early in the summer and a pilot training school will be started at the Emmet airport.

The tentative schedule calls for a plane to leave Sault Ste. Marie at 8 a. m., stop at all cities on the route and arrive in Grand Rapids at 11 a. m. The morning plane will connect with both airlines and trains out of Grand Rapids for Detroit and Chicago. After connecting with north-bound planes and trains in Grand Rapids in the afternoon the return plane will leave Grand Rapids at 3:45 p. m., make all stops on the itinerary and arrive in Sault Ste. Marie at 6:45 p. m.

Definite schedule announcements for each city will be made before April 1.

Throughout the summer it is proposed to operate excursion flights from the Emmet county airport to the Soo and return. Passengers will be given nearly a full day at the Soo for sight-seeing. In addition to the special Sunday flights a plane will be available at all times for charter flights. Shorter excursion flights requiring not more than an hour or two will be made from the Emmet airport from time to time.

At the formal opening mayors of cities on the itinerary are to be flown over the route. The party also is expected to include other public officials and newspapermen.

EARLY SPRAYS HELP QUALITY OF APPLES

Control Measures Used During Dormant Period to Combat Scale

Apple growers who desire to produce high quality fruit are advised by the department of entomology and horticulture at Michigan State college to make full use of the dormant sprays which must be applied to control mites, leaf-rollers, and the scale insects which attack Michigan fruit.

Oil sprays are recommended for use in control of the mites and the leaf-roller but lime sulphur can be used for San Jose and oyster shell scale. The spray for scale can be applied in the delayed dormant period but the other two types of insects must be fought earlier as the sprays used may injure opened buds.

AT THE MOVIES

Sayre's "Rackety Rax" Is Brought to Screen

Joel Sayre's hilarious book, "Rackety Rax," has been transferred to the motion picture screen by the Fox studios. Described as a comedy-satire of sporting racketeers who muscle in on big college football, the film comes to the Palace theatre Saturday and Sunday.

Victor McLaglen, heading the cast of comedians and comedienne, is said to have a far funnier role than those he had in "What Price Glory?" and "The Cock-Eyed World." Greta Nissen, platinum blonde beauty, is cast as the tenderloin sweetie of a sporting world racketeer who is bothered by a battling wife, a role played by Marjorie Beebe. Nell O'Day, musical comedy stage favorite, has a sprightly role as a newspaper girl with both beauty and brains.

Others in the cast are Allan Dinehart, Allen Jenkins, Vince Barnett, Stanley Fields, Marjorie Beebe and Esther Howard.

The action of the picture takes place in Broadway night clubs, on the campuses and in the stadium of many colleges from the Yale Bowl to Soldiers' Field and thence out to the gridirons of the Pacific coast.

Ben Mankson and Lou Breslow are credited with the adaptation, screen play and comedy dialogue of "Rackety Rax" which was directed by Al Werker with Jack White as associate producer.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room. "Maa" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, March 5.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (11 Cor. 3:5, 6): "Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think anything as of ourselves; but our sufficiency is of God, who hath also made us able ministers of the new testament; not of the letter, but of the spirit; for the letter killeth but the spirit giveth life."

FORMER RESIDENT DIED AT BELLAIRE

BYRON P. WILKINSON WAS AT-WOOD PIONEER

Was First Postmaster of Village—Active Church and Temperance Worker—Funeral Today

Byron P. Wilkinson, one of the early pioneers of this section, passed away at his home in Bellaire Monday morning, March 6, 1933.

He was born in Erie county, Pennsylvania, April 4, 1849. At an early age his father died, leaving him the sole support of his mother and younger brothers and sisters. When he was sixteen he began teaching school, and followed this occupation for twenty-five years. He was also considerably in demand as a teacher of the old-fashioned singing school, so much in vogue in the earlier days.

In 1873 he was married to Sarah Marshall at Painesville, Ohio. About a year later they came to Michigan and he worked on a farm home at Atwood, Antrim county, Michigan, in the midst of an almost trackless forest. He was the first postmaster at Atwood, at a time when the one-armed Indian carried the mail from Traverse City to Cross Village, making one round trip a week. In 1901 he came to Charlevoix, where he lived until about five years ago, when he moved to Bellaire. His wife passed away in 1923 and about a year and a half later he married Mrs. Mary Utter of Bellaire. Beside his widow, he leaves one daughter, Mrs. Roxana Morrow of Bellaire, and four sons: Dr. A. M. Wilkinson, Hollywood, California; Dr. F. H. Wilkinson, Charlevoix; James B. Wilkinson, Detroit; Charles E. Wilkinson, Lansing. There are also ten grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be held from the residence in Bellaire Wednesday at 10 o'clock a. m. Interment in Brookside cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Wilkinson was active in church and Sunday school work, and an ardent worker for the cause of temperance and prohibition. He was a good citizen, a kind husband and father, and did his full share in helping to build up and develop this section of the country.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY NORMAL IN 30TH YEAR

Organization One of First Five
Founded in Michigan

Charlevoix county normal, one of the first five in the history of education in Michigan, was established in 1903, was located in the city of Charlevoix where it was gradually worked up to an enviable position among the normals of the state.

These thirty years have seen many changes. Boards of education have changed, a number of different committees have sat as members on the normal board, local superintendents have come and gone, the faculty has changed with years, and students from all sections of the county have been graduated within its walls, but the school still stands, offering its best to the young people of the city.

Records show that the principalship has changed hands ten times, and the position of training teacher even more often. Miss Isabelle Himes, principal from 1904-1916, has the honor of having served the longest. Mrs. Gertrude Dick, the present training teacher, comes next with nine years. The present faculty, Miss Bigge and Mrs. Dick, have worked together longer than any other staff, seven years.

Some of the achievements and activities of the last few years are: Participation in rural P. T. A. and township day programs.

Organization of the county normal alumni association, consisting of 75 active members.

Securing and filing valuable information, including present positions and addresses concerning former graduates.

Classification of all professional magazines received in the department.

Securing, cataloguing and filing of fifty studies of masterpieces of art.

Organization, cataloguing and operating of the county normal extension circulating library of 235 volumes, which serves the rural schools of the county.

Cataloguing, numbering and enrolling of county normal library of about one thousand volumes.

Of the 354 graduates from the normal, Charlevoix and direct vicinity contributed the largest number, 183, other cities ranking as follows: Charlevoix 183, East Jordan 58, Central Lake 23, Boyne City 16, Petoskey 16, Ellsworth 9, Harbor Springs 8, Boyne Falls 7, Ironton 6, St. Ignace 5, Bellaire, Alanson, Phelps, Empire, Good Hart, Eastport, Grant, Utica, Lawrence, Grand Lodge, Portland, DeWard, Alba, Rosecommon, Gaylord, each have been represented by from one to three graduates.

The normal is proud of the fact that two of the most esteemed local teachers at present are numbered among the alumnae, Miss Florence Milner and Miss Sophia Manson, the latter having been one of the earliest graduates.

CHICK PROFITS FADE IN UNCLEAN HOUSES

Dirt Is Greatest Helper to Disease
Germs On Baby Chicks

Cleanliness is next to profits in chick raising; in fact, the poultry department at Michigan State college says that cleanliness must be given precedence over profits because failure to clean up the brooder house will clean up the chances for profit.

The poultry expert's idea of a clean-up campaign differs radically from that of the small boy who moistens his face so the dirt will come off easily on the towel. Chick quarters must be thoroughly scrubbed by using plenty of soap and water and then be disinfected with a good disinfectant. The scrubbing is more important than the disinfecting because the dirt must be removed before the disinfectant can kill bacteria hidden in cracks and crevices.

Commercial disinfectants should be used according to the directions given by the factory. Iodine suspension, which was perfected at Michigan State college, is recommended as a killer of bacteria.

REGION MOURNS DEATH OF DANA H. HINCKLEY

Death Tuesday at Petoskey Severe Shock—Funeral Thursday

Petoskey and Northern Michigan are today mourning the death of Dana Harrison Hinckley, widely known Petoskey business man and representative in the state Legislature from the Emmet-Mackinaw district.

The body was found at 6:30 Tuesday evening in the garage at his home. He had been dead, it was thought, since 10:30 from a bullet wound from a small revolver. Born at Hartford, May 17, 1878, Mr. Hinckley came to Northern Michigan as a young man with an uncle engaged in the lumbering business at Brutus. He carried on the business following the death of the uncle and in later years built a saw mill at Alanson.

With the close of lumbering operations about 17 years ago, Mr. Hinckley's business interests shifted to Petoskey. He was one of four organizers of the Petoskey News Publishing Co., was a stockholder in the Petoskey State and other northern Michigan banking institutions, and had many other business interests.

Mr. Hinckley served three terms in the state Legislature back in 1912 and was on his second term following election in more recent years. He was a loyal and staunch booster for Northern Michigan and active in civic affairs of his home city. His charities to the needy and help to young men striving for an education were widely known. In fraternal circles he was a member of the Masons, Knights Templar, Shrine and Elks. He was a member of the Congregational church at Benton Harbor.

He is survived by his widow and two sons, Arthur, on the city desk of the Detroit Times, and Jack, at home. Others besides the immediate family include two sisters, Mrs. Emma Cole, Benton Harbor, and Mrs. Schuyler Haas, Indianapolis, Ind., also three brothers, Milton of Benton Harbor, Fred of Berrien Springs, and C. L. Hinckley of Petoskey.

Private funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the home. Burial at Greenwood cemetery.

LIQUOR COMMISSION OUTLINES ITS VIEWS

Recommendations for Sweeping Changes Up to Legislature

If the state Legislature enacts the tentative recommendations of the law drafting committee of Gov. C. L. Stock's advisory liquor control commission, Michigan will return to local option and beer will be sold in open taverns.

The committee has agreed to the following provisions: 1. That beer is a food and should be available for public consumption in hotels and restaurants with meals. 2. That it should be available to the masses in public taverns under proper supervision and license. 3. Mail must be controlled at its original source if bootleg beer is to be eliminated. 4. The private citizen's right to brew beer in his own home for his own consumption cannot be abridged.

5. Local option should be vouchsafed in the counties, permitting them to use any and all privileges of the liquor act or to bar sale entirely according to the majority sentiment. 6. Counties which chose to remain "bone dry" should not be permitted to interfere with the transportation of beer, saving the thirsty citizens of such counties the right to import beer to their own homes, etc.

The whole commission of seventeen members is made up largely of leaders of the Crusaders (a wet organization), but some of the members are known to oppose anything that resembles the old saloon. Needless to say the various dry organizations are watching with rare each new move.

U. S. SAYS INCOME TAX MUST COME IN

Banking Holidays Will Not Be Allowed to Interfere With Payment

The government will make every effort to collect income taxes promptly on March 15, even though taxpayers' funds may be tied up by banking "holidays" or limitations on withdrawals of deposits.

The bureau of internal revenue in a formal ruling said "no extension of time for filing income tax returns would be granted merely on the ground that a holiday had been declared for banks in the taxpayers' community." The payments due March 15 are on income received in 1932.

The taxpayer, however, has the right to pay only one-fourth of the tax on March 15, thus easing his immediate burden and spreading the balance of the payments out over the year. In addition, the government may grant a six-month extension if it is convinced adequate reason is shown, for such relief.

Failure to file a return by March 15 incurs a penalty of 25 per cent of the amount of the tax, plus interest of one-half of one per cent a month on delinquent payments.

TOWNSHIPS NOM- INATE OFFICERS

MANY PLACE TWO TICKETS IN THE FIELD

Many Veteran Supervisors Fail to Get Nomination, Others Are Facing Opposition

Proof that all the political interest is not centered around city and state nominees for office at the April election is apparent by the results of various township caucuses held late last week.

As reports keep filtering in of nominations held in the rural precincts throughout the county, it appears that the same unrest which resulted in a widespread political upheaval last November will bring about a change in township officers this spring. Some supervisors of long standing failed to receive nomination, and those who did come through are opposed by candidates on a second ticket.

Townships adjacent to Charlevoix are no exception to the general rule. Charlevoix, Hayes, Norwood, Marion and Eveline townships have all placed two tickets in nomination. In Norwood township, Orton VanDusen, veteran supervisor, has opposition for the first time in several years. In Charlevoix township another veteran, Wm. H. Cook, is opposed by Vern M. Norton, clerk for several years. Out in Marion township George McGarrison, the incumbent for supervisor, failed to receive the nomination. A. J. Bolhuis and W. H. Henley, both well known farmers of that township, head the two tickets. In Hayes township A. G. Tillotson is opposed by Howard C. Stephens, former supervisor.

Following is the result of the various caucuses:

Charlevoix Township
Ticket No. 1—Supervisor, Wm. H. Cook; clerk, Alvin Durance; treasurer, Keith Reynolds; highway commissioner, Joseph Shore; member board of review, Sadie Prevost; justice of the peace, 4 years, George W. Dennis. Hayes Township Ticket No. 1—Supervisor, A. G. Tillotson; clerk, Hazel Evers; treasurer, David Smith; highway commissioner, Grant Ferguson; overseer of highways, John Sreley; board of review, F. C. Burnett; justice, full term, Fred Willis.

Marion Township

LOCAL HOARDERS RE- TURN GOLD COIN AND NOTES TO THE BANK

Apparently the cities are not the only places where the hoarding of gold has become unpopular.

Robert Bridge, cashier of the Charlevoix County bank, reports that Monday's transactions included the receipt of $700 in gold coins and notes.

Fear of exposure, it is believed, was the reason for return of the gold. Also, it was the growing belief that penalties might be enacted by congress against those known to have gold in their possession.

Instructions from the federal reserve board at Washington to member banks ordering the reporting of gold withdrawals since Feb. 1 were extended to include the names of those who have taken out gold during the past two years, and March 13, the original date of the report, has been extended to March 17.

treasurer, Charles Wells; highway commissioner, Plenny Genett; justice, full term, Harry Webster; board of review, Ed. Gregory; constables, Mamie Gregory, Ruby Alward, Hazel Murray, Anna Gornell.

COUNCIL GIVES OK TO DOCK REPAIR PROJECT

Work Started Tuesday Rebuilding
Mason Street Wharf

The city council Monday night voted approval on a project which will give Charlevoix better docking facilities on Round lake.

Following consideration for some time, it was decided to re-build the city-owned wharf at the foot of Mason street, and Tuesday morning a crew of workmen started the project. Old, rotten timbers are being removed and replaced by new material. The top will be re-surfaced with new plank and necessary work done to strengthen the dock where needed.

Cost of the project has been estimated to be in the neighborhood of two hundred dollars.

PHYSICIAN FACES SERIOUS CHARGES

DR. RUSSELL PALMER WAS AR-RESTED SATURDAY

Denies Charges Brought by Husband of Wife's Niece, Claiming Frame-Up—Case Bound Over

Dr. Russell Palmer, state-employed physician at St. James, Beaver Island, was arrested Saturday by Deputy Joe Moore and brought by plane to Charlevoix on a warrant charging him with administering drugs to perform an illegal operation.

The complainant is Mrs. Lenore Fraser, 18-year-old niece of Palmer's wife. Charges were preferred by her husband, Harold D. Fraser of Sturgeon Falls, Ont., who claims to be an electrical engineer for the Kootenai Gold Mines, Ltd.

In a statement made Saturday, Fraser said his wife was detained at Palmer's home three months against her wishes after going there for a visit November 15th. He alleges communication between himself and wife was obstructed repeatedly, and that when he went to the Palmer home to take his wife away, the physician threatened both of them with a revolver. Fraser stated Palmer attempted to entice his wife away with promises of money, clothing and trips to Australia and to the World's Fair at Chicago.

Palmer Denies Charges

Dr. Palmer emphatically denied all charges Sunday, claiming he was the victim of a frame-up. He said Fraser's wife was befriended in his home after her husband had failed for some time to provide support for herself and infant child. He denied any attempt to hinder communication between the couple or that he had threatened their lives when Fraser came to the island for what he thought was merely a visit to his wife and child.

Palmer waived examination at a hearing before Justice Horace Fowler, Saturday, and was bound over to circuit court for trial. He furnished bond for his release.

The news that Dr. Palmer had been arrested on such a serious charge came as a distinct surprise to many who have known him intimately since he took over his position as island physician.

REDUCE INCOMES BANK RECEIVERS

BANK BILL NOW BEFORE THE STATE LEGISLATURE

Senators Taking Steps to Cut Cost of Liquidating Closed Banks —Save Deposits

(By Elton R. Eaton.)
Incorporated in the banking bill that is on the way through the Legislature is an amendment placed there in the Senate that will bring good news to the depositors of state banks that must be conducted under a receivership. The amendment takes out the "easy pickings" that closed banks have provided for receivers and attorneys appointed to liquidate the affairs of a closed bank.

Fabulous salaries and expenses paid receivers and fees amounting to hundreds and thousands of dollars charged by lawyers for their legal services given closed banks will no longer be possible, providing the amendment is not changed or dropped out.

The amendment provides that receivers and lawyers cannot take more than one per cent of the total assets of the bank for liquidating expenses. When the amendment was introduced by Senator Francis Kulp of Battle Creek, who is a well known lawyer of the Food City, it provided that the expense should not be more than two per cent but the Senate committee thought even that was too much and it was cut to one per cent. Senator Kulp declares expenses in winding up the affairs of some banks under receivership has been nothing less than outrageous. The new banking bill gives the governor, attorney general and banking commissioner practically the same control over state banks as has been invested in the president over national banks.

Governor Comstock did not stir up much legislative activity by his appeal for action on pending legislation a few days ago. Members of the House and Senate insist that they are getting legislation through as fast as is consistent with conditions and there is just as much danger in rushing through legislation that they know little about as there is in slower action.

The Brown-Hartman economy program has saved the taxpayers of Michigan another million of dollars. The bills that they introduced at the beginning of the legislative session to knock out the construction of armories at Alma, Grand Rapids and Detroit that former Governor Brucker put through at the last regular session of the state Legislature, have passed the House. The legislative mill keeps grinding out the economy measures that either Rep. Vernon Brown of Mason or Rep. Hartman of the upper peninsula introduced. When all of them have been passed, which is likely, the taxpayers of Michigan will have been saved something like $10,000,000.

Now that the banking bill can be regarded as practically out of the way, members of the Legislature are turning their attention to one of the first administration bills presented to the Legislature by Rep. Southworth (Continued on page 8.)

Cast of Fifty Members of High School Glee Club Will Appear in Production

The music department of Charlevoix high school will present the popular light opera, "Joan of the Nancy Lee," on Friday evening, March 24th, at the gymnasium.

The story is one of pirates, the Spanish Main, gold and pretty girls. The action is rapid, the plot dramatic, and the dialog is chock-full of humorous lines and clever speeches. The music of the opera is recognized as the most stirring and colorful of the many compositions suitable for high school presentation. A cast of over fifty, all members of the Glee club of the senior high school, will appear and something unique in the way of lighting and staging is promised.

Those in charge wish to emphasize the fact that the opera will be the most ambitious musical presentation ever attempted by a high school group in Charlevoix. Extremely earnest effort on the part of the cast has gone into the preparation of the opera. Rehearsals and performances are under the direction of Miss Esther Mary Atkinson, supervisor of music, and she has been assisted in the staging and interpretation of the libretto by Mrs. Gerald Bash, Mr. Weisenburger, instructor of manual arts, is directing the building of the set which will represent the deck of a pirate ship in the gay hucceaneing days of gallant gentlemen and blustering desperadoes.

WORLD FAIR VISITORS LEARN OF MICHIGAN

Dioramas to Show State Parks and Winter Sports Views at Chicago

The wide diversity of attractions of Michigan's state parks will be advertised to the world through a diorama to be exhibited at the Century of Progress Exhibition at Chicago during the coming summer.

The diorama, now practically completed, will display a typical state park with its waterfront on one of the Great Lakes and its long sand beach. It will depict picnic and camping grounds, some of Michigan's beautiful wood areas cut by foot and bridle paths and in the background is one of the state's thousands of inland lakes.

The state parks diorama is built in a section that might be easily transported and used as an exhibit after the close of the Century of Progress Exhibition. It is but one of several to be shown in Michigan's section of the exhibition grounds. Other dioramas will depict winter sports in Michigan, some of its streams and other spots of outstanding beauty, designed to attract visitors to the state.

WILL SELECT TWO FOR REPEAL VOTE

CHARLEVOIX-LEELANAU COM-MITTEE MEET THURSDAY

Delegates Chosen Must Pledge Selves to Carry Out Decision Made in April 3rd Election

Six county officials representing Charlevoix and Leelanau counties met Thursday at the court house in Traverse City to select candidates for the coming Michigan convention for ratification of the repeal of prohibition.

Those serving on the committee will be the prosecuting attorney, county clerk and judge of probate of each of the two counties. Traverse City was chosen as site for the meeting due to its location at a half-way point between the two counties.

One wet and one dry candidate will be nominated for the election and the voters will decide which of the two they will send to the ratification convention. Each candidate must pledge himself to represent the will of the voters as expressed in the election to be held April 3rd.

Under this plan the April 3rd election will constitute a legal decision on prohibition. Michigan will know at the close of the vote just how she is to act on ratification. The two counties constitute the Charlevoix-Leelanau district in the Michigan House of Representatives.

County Clerk Fenton R. Bidow of the Charlevoix county group sent out the official call Tuesday and designated Traverse City as the meeting place.

The expenses of the county committee meeting will be paid by the counties from which the two groups come. Expenses of the delegates to the state ratification convention will be paid by the state on a mileage basis.

Drys Make Plans
Michigan drys convened at Lansing, Tuesday, determined to exert every influence to prevent ratification of the repeal of the 18th amendment.

OBSERVED GOLDEN WEDDING TUESDAY

MR. AND MRS. HARRISON BED-FORD HONORED

Forty-Six Guests Were Present at Enjoyable Affair—Couple From Real Pioneer Stock

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Bedford, well known pioneer Charlevoix residents, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home on Park avenue Tuesday evening.

Forty-six friends and relatives were present to enjoy a pleasant time at games and hearing reminiscences of earlier days. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Bedford, who were married at Charlevoix on March 14, 1883, descend from parents identified with the earliest history of Charlevoix and Northern Michigan. Mr. Bedford's father and mother were residents of Beaver Island during the colorful and historic reign of "King" James J. Strang, the Mormon leader.

Richard Cooper, father of Mrs. Bedford, was Charlevoix county's first sheriff. Her parents came from Little Traverse (now Harbor Springs) by sailboat when she was a child. The boat was wrecked on the beach north of this city, and the couple barely escaped death and were forced to walk the remaining distance. An Indian woman carried Mrs. Bedford, then a child, on her back, in the same manner as she would her own pappoose.

Mr. Cooper bought the Fountain City House in 1869. It was Charlevoix's first hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Bedford were married there. Attending them were Mrs. Hattie Cooper and her late husband, Henry Cooper. The Bedfords have operated the hotel for many years, and, although modernized to a great extent, the structure stands as Charlevoix's oldest building. The Bedfords also operated hotels in Grand Rapids.

They have two children, Harold Bedford and Mrs. W. R. Barney, both of Grand Rapids, who were present for the celebration. One of six grandchildren was present also.

The meeting will be free and open to the public. The Club has extended a special invitation to members of the recently organized Junior Sportsman's Club.

Cheboygan, Boyne City and Kaleva, by virtue of their victories at the regional basketball tournament in Petoskey last week, will represent Northern Michigan in the state finals.

Cheboygan walked off with the class B crown, scoring an easy 30 to 15 victory over Traverse City. Boyne City succeeded Charlevoix as the class C champion, winning 23 to 12 from Grayling, the only class C team boasting a victory over the Brotherhood outfit this year. The class D championship went to Kaleva, victor over Johannesburg in the finals. Both of these teams were newcomers in tournament competition.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

Boyer Falls Agricultural Day Held Last Thursday

In spite of the adverse weather conditions, the annual Boyer Falls agricultural day was carried out as planned. A splendid dinner was served at noon, which as an occasion, is always looked forward to by Boyer Falls citizens. The program in the forenoon started with several numbers by the students of the high school. Dr. Moffett, health director, was the main speaker and gave his audience a very clear insight into what the health program has accomplished and the outlook for the future. This health program is very nicely covering the four counties of Antrim, Otsego, Emmet, and Charlevoix.

The discussion in the afternoon session touched upon two problems that are receiving considerable attention at the present time, namely, taxation and transportation. B. C. Mellencamp, county agent, gave a most interesting discussion on our local tax problem, especially, our county tax levy. A very careful analysis was made showing the amount of money allotted to the various departments of government within the county, as well as appropriations and various bonds. To make the picture clearer, everything was based on a percentage basis so that anyone knowing the amount of his county tax could tell exactly what percent of it was used for any specific purpose.

Following this appeared Mr. Hulin, of the Pennsylvania Railway system, of Cadillac, who presented some striking illustrations concerning the transportation problems of the farmer. He showed the inequality of the present system and made a plea that the control of all transportation agencies be handled by a commission in order that each system should be allotted to handle their proper portion of it.

It is to be regretted that the storm prevented so many who had planned on it from being present as the program was one that was very favorably received and one that created much thought on the part of its listeners.

March a Good Time to Prune Trees

One job about the farm that is too easily postponed is that of pruning fruit trees. Any time during this month will be an excellent time to get this important task completed. Especially with young cherry trees it is probably somewhat better than early winter, but with mature trees it does not matter so much.

However, a person must remember that over-pruning is probably more detrimental than no pruning at all. An one's good judgment is very essential. A large number of small cuts is much better than a few number of large cuts on the average tree. The object of pruning is to more or less open up the tree to allow a better distribution of fruit and still not cut down the carrying capacity of the tree. On young cherry trees, ordinarily four or five cuts will be sufficient. This will eliminate the possibility of two limbs trying to use the same space and it will do away with those limbs that are of no capacity. Another object is to prevent two limbs from being of equal importance that are too close together which usually causes the breaking down of the crotch.

There is a large percent of our trees in the county that are not yet bearing and these are the trees that should be well taken care of. Two or three years of neglect will almost put a man out of the business and these young orchards in the county represent too great an investment to neglect the amount. There is no direct expense to pruning, so why not use two or three days at a time to do it?

Taking the "CHASE"
Out of PURCHASE

ADVERTISING benefits the man who buys as well as the man who sells. It is part of the Golden Rule of Business and it works both ways.

Don't miss the advertisements in this newspaper. Many of them are interesting just because of their news and educational value alone.

But more than that: Advertisements take the "chase" out of purchase and make every penny do its full duty.

This last statement is one particularly to be remembered when common-sense economy is not only a national duty, but an individual necessity.

The little Girl who wouldn't EAT

Nature knows best! Never coax a child to eat! Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite—get rid of stasis. Children who don't eat are sluggish. It is so easy to do. If you will only use the "California treatment," feed what it is doing for listless children in every part of the country!

When appetite fails, tongue is coated white, eyes are a bluish yellow, don't give small children any constipating cathartics that drain the system and weaken twenty feet of tender bowels! California syrup of figs is the only "medicine" they need!

That girl or boy with a furry tongue and a bad breath should not be dosed with salts! California syrup of figs will gently stimulate the color muscles—and the child you used to coax to eat will fairly devour his food, digest it, gain weight.

Try the California treatment! Tonight, with enough of the pure syrup of figs to cleanse the colon thoroughly. Give less tomorrow, then every other day, or twice a week until the child's appetite, digestion, weight, complexion, tell you the stasis is gone.

Be sure to get the real California syrup of figs. Any druggist has it, all bottled with directions. It's a natural, vegetable laxative. Just as good for babies of two years as boys of ten. They all love its taste!

There are imitations of California Syrup of Figs and those who would sell you some substitute even when a child's health is concerned. Don't ever take any bottle that is not plainly labeled CALIFORNIA.

Season of Daring Color Schemes

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHATEVER you do, be colorful. Evidently this is the message which fashion aims to convey for the coming months. It's like seeing things through tinted colored glasses to look at the way spring clothes which are out on style parade. No landscape could be better than designers of this day and age are doing in this matter of producing unexpected yet without startlingly beautiful color effects.

You get the idea first of all from the new tailored suits, so many of which combine plaids, checks or stripes with bright monochromes. For instance, an ensemble is up to be worked out with a Tartan plaid wool in green, vivid blue and orange combining with a plain blue diagonal weave, rather equally as intriguing contrasts could be created by the same dreads.

The new doddily striped and plaided taffetas, likewise scarf-prints, are working wonders in the way of contributing vital color to street clothes. If it isn't a giant-sized bow of plaid taffeta tied at the throat then, perchance, the blouse is of gay taffeta with the coat lining saying ditto or possibly all three will flaunt their colorful scheme before your eyes. Then there are the new smart tweed travel suits of the swagger variety which take on a refreshing this season's aspect because of their alliance with fancy checks. Sometimes it is the skirt which is of the check. Then again it is the jacket or cape which pose checks over the tweed skirt.

As to skirt and sweater schemes, they fairly hit the eye with their riot of color.

When it comes to simple daytime frocks of wearable type, most every costume is worked out in multi-color or bi-color ways. The illustration tells the story in part as to how some of the color problems are solved. At most every turn the eye is greeted with a blouse of plaid or a bow or a giraffe of some such. The model to the left conveys the idea. Navy with white is almost unvaryingly black with white for spring. The costume centered is done in navy and white. Black with turquoise is the color combination for the model pictured to the right.

Formal modes likewise yield to the mania of color which is taking possession of the fashionable world. At Paris restaurants and night clubs a great deal of white is being worn with bright-colored velvet jackets or perhaps a white gown will have vivid red velvet straps which develop into a huge bow at the back. Fashion creates an enchanting formal which involves a tri-color of pale lime green, dark olive and a touch of ripe raspberry.

Even the newest lace gowns are worked with the idea that two colors are better than one.

As to millinery, in its realm bi-color and tri-color schemes are running rampant. Not only are colors worked together in the making of the hat, but plaided and striped ribbons are among the season's snidest trimmings.

JACKET OF FELT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

It seems that Alpine playgrounds are lending inspiration for present-day fashions. You can detect in the smart about-town costume here pictured the influence of the brief little double-breasted waist-length jackets which Tyrolean men wear when mountain climbing. Then too the jaunty beret with its perky tuft of colorful felt at its top crown looks as if the original of its kind may have been worn by some gay mountaineer. In the picturesque Alps, this beret and sleeveless jacket are of pastel blue felt, worn with a tailor-finished knitted frock.

Wide Shoulders

Frocks, coats and suits launched by Muggle Bouff show widened accented shoulders tapering to a slender normal waist with such broadening effects as tiny pockets at the hip line.

Hats Low in Back

Coming down are hats in the back says Orry Kelly, Hollywood designer, who also looks for deeper crowns in the near future.

RETURN OF FRINGE AND CAPES HAILED

When fringe is "out," it is very, very much out, but when it is in, we are once more reminded of that little girl with the curl. At the moment, fringe is just different enough to set one a-flutter over the idea of wearing it, particularly if it happens to be one's first fringed frock.

They do say that shawls are on their way back, and while there is no law that says shawls must be fringed, so many of them are that, when one gets to dreaming about those castles in Spain, one is bound to conjure up fringed shawls as well as fringed dresses. Yet the arrangement of the little shawl—or would you call it a cape?—could hardly be described as dashing, an adjective one usually associates with anything of Spanish inspiration. These shoulder shawls are for a Spanish woman when she is not carrying a rose in her teeth or being fascinating according to the old Spanish custom. But when she takes off that cape, she gets right back into character!

Stripes and Checks Due for Run of Popularity

It'll be pretty difficult for you to dodge the responsibility of getting checks this spring (any but rubber) and also stripes as the season goes along. While we could give you hushes of statistics covering the names of ultra-chic women who are buying checks and stripes, we won't, in humanity's name, burden you. Let it suffice that Lucille Parry in her mid-season collection in Paris enthusiastically showed her approval, and that Jupiter in heaven is going through Virgo, which means stripes and checks will be good until September of next year, at least.

Fabrics With Cire Finish

Have Brightest Prospects
Fabrics are still dull, so that the occasional appearance of lustrous materials for spring wear attract more attention than in other seasons. Just now it is fabrics with cire finish which appear to have bright prospects for the immediate future.

The cire idea is not altogether new, of course. Cire satins were used in considerable quantity last summer for dress trimmings and little jackets and reappeared in evening gowns and formal afternoon wear last fall.

ERA THAT MARKED "WINNING OF WEST"

One of Most Glorious Pages of American History.

When we think of the great western trails and the march of the covered wagon our minds naturally turn to the feats of the heroic Whittman, the tragedy of the Donners and other occasions which called for the name of human bravery and sacrifice. And yet, Franklin F. Krell, writing in the New Republic, reminds us, we ought not to forget that the real achievement of the trail and the settling of the great western empire were the result not of a few heroic deeds, but of the steady advance of a great body of earnest and determined men and women who were anxious to find a new home in the wilderness, for it was of such as these that the great western empire was built.

The sweep of emigration to the western country came in successive waves. At the beginning of 1811 the Oregon country had a white population of perhaps 100 men, women and children, nearly half of whom were attached to the missions. It was in the same year that the tide of immigration really set in and the men to organize the first real emigrant party, known as the Western Emigration society, was John Bidwell, an adventurous New Yorker, whose name is not unknown in the building of his adopted state of California.

Early in the year the Bidwell party, consisting of 60 men, women and children, organized by electing John Bidwell captain. The majority of the party were determined to go to California, although it finally divided and went in three different directions. Later successes raised the number of the party to 81.

After a long journey the party reached Soda Springs where a band of Catholic missionaries who had joined the emigrants set out for the Flathead country in Montana. The original Bidwell party, now 64 in number, divided, half setting out for Oregon, the other half being determined to go to California.

The year 1812 brought a real wave of emigration to the Oregon country. The prime mover was Dr. Elijah White, a former missionary to the region, who early in 1812 was appointed an Indian agent for the Oregon territory by President Tyler. Like most emigrant movements of the day the assembly point was near Independence, Mo., where the party organized on May 14, electing White captain, and James G. Smith pilot. One of the leaders was Amos Lovejoy, who, a few years later, was to accompany Mayens Whittman on his historic winter ride across the back.

The first large emigration came in 1813 and for this reason the period is called the year of the great migration. It was inspired by "Whit-man's efforts in the East. There were over 200 families, 120 wagons and a big supply of live stock. Efforts of the Hudson's bay officers at Fort Hall to turn back the emigrants proved unavailing, because of Whitman's encouragement, and they finally arrived in Oregon.

In the succeeding five years, train after train of emigrants set out for the western country, some to California, but most during this period to Oregon. Four trains, one including 800 persons, went in 1811. And in 1813, the number increased, more than 3,000 persons covering the Oregon trail, while a much smaller number went to California. Emigration to the following territory picked up somewhat, however, in 1816. Then came 1817, with an even greater boom, nearly 5,000 going to Oregon, and the Normans covering much of the same route on their way to Utah. The Mermon movement continued in 1818, but with this year, the first phase of emigration closed. The new Pacific era was commencing.

Special emergency legislation is being urged at Lansing for the relief of the tuberculosis sanitariums in various counties of the State which have run out of funds, on account of the collapse of the malt tax law. Blocking the use of the malt tax money to keep these hospitals open and their patients properly cared for is the 1931 law which makes mandatory the use of the first $400,000 of malt tax money for a proposed new Cheboygan county hospital which has not been built, and for which no site has yet been selected. Bootleggers and mail order houses are voiding the malt tax by out-state shipments, and the tax returns this winter are just about enough to pay the State for collecting them.

TREATED SEED HELPS GRAIN CROP PROFITS

Common Diseases of Oats and Barley Can Be Prevented at Little Cost

One farm practice which always pays and which involves little expense and but a small amount of labor is the treatment of seeds to prevent the occurrence of common diseases, according to the farm crops department at Michigan State college.

Spring grains such as oats and barley can be readily protected from the losses caused by smut and by barley stripe. These two grain crops are always attacked by these diseases and, during some years, the toll taken is so great that the crop is unprofitable.

One pint of formaldehyde will make enough smut preventative to treat 80 bushels of oats or barley. The formaldehyde is mixed with water in the proportion of one pint to 40 gallons. Dusts made of formaldehyde or of mercury compounds also successfully protect grains from smut and are better than formaldehyde for barley stripe. Dusts usually cost more than a proportionate amount of formaldehyde and should be used as directed by the manufacturer.

Oats are treated as they are shoveled over on a clean floor which has been sprinkled with the formaldehyde solution. Use the solution at the rate of two quarts of the mixture to one bushel of seed.

Subject, "Matter."

Wednesday evening at 7:45, first Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

"Substance" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, March 12.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (Matt. 6:33): "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

CHRIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Regular service the 2nd and 4th Sunday of each month will be held at Christ Episcopal church at 5 o'clock p. m., instead of 7 o'clock as formerly. Rev. Edward S. Doan of Petoskey, will be in charge of the service.

Card of Thanks

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to the pastor, pall bearers, boys in Recreation, Ladies' Aid, those who sang, and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown us during our recent bereavement. Mrs. Josephine Hendrickson and children, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hendrickson Sr.—Adv. 1111.

GIVE BROODER STOVE PROPER EARLY CARE

Overheating or Chilling Chicks Can Not Be Corrected Later

Close attention to the regulation of the brooder stove to secure proper temperatures in the brooder house during the first few days of the chick's life pays good dividends, according to poultry experts at Michigan State college, who say that it is impossible to repair the damage done by overheating chicks or of permitting them to become chilled.

Coal burning stoves are the most common type and can be easily operated if they are attended at regular intervals and are in proper operating condition. The stove should be tried out before the chicks are placed in the house, and the house should be warmed to the correct temperature before the chicks are placed in it.

Stoves in the ordinary 12 by 12 foot brooder house will require a 50 or 52 inch canopy, and about 350 chicks are all that should be placed in this size house. The temperature near the floor at the edge of the house should be 85 to 90 degrees F. and the rest of the house should be about 70 degrees. These temperatures

MICHIGAN WILL GET MARCH RELIEF LOAN

Local Officials Hope for Speedy Release of Needed Funds

Charlevoix county highway officials are anxiously awaiting confirmation of a Washington newspaper dispatch stating the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had Monday granted emergency relief loans of $413,398 to Michigan for the month of March. Charlevoix county has not yet received funds to meet the payroll for February, amounting to approximately $600. No answer had been received from the application made for an appropriation for March, although work on relief projects was carried on nine days during the early part of the month.

Local officials are hopeful for an immediate release of funds to meet indebtedness already incurred, also so that whatever is left of the March allotment may be worked out before next month. Because of the delay in funds, relief work which had given employment to many throughout the county was discontinued early last week.

PROGRAM AT IRONTON WAS ENJOYED

Plans Are Under Way to Repeat Performance in Near Future

A delightful three-act farce, entitled "Aunt Jerusha On the Warpath," with minstrels and ballet dancers between the acts, was given by the Ironton grange to a capacity house last Saturday night at the Grange hall.

From start to finish there was not a dull moment. The hearty applause throughout the play testified to the appreciation of the audience.

The success of the play was not only due to the individual performers, but also to the able leadership of Mrs. Hilda Alexander, who directed.

Because of numerous requests, plans are being made for another performance. The time and place will be announced later. A goodly number of Charlevoix people attended the play.

Annual St. Patrick's Dinner

LEGION ACTIVITIES

Edited by F. V. Tyler.

All set, folks, for the great and only "Repression" Minstrels, coming Friday evening, March 17, 1933, at 8:00 o'clock, at the Charlevoix high school gymnasium, with dancing to follow.

Don't miss this show if you don't see another all the rest of the spring, for it's going to be good. See the incomparable "Tambo" and his funny antics and hear him and "Samba," "Alexander," "Rustus," "Uncle Ned," "Brother Andy," "Snowball White," "Mr. Johnsing," "Bones" and the chorus in their variety of plantation songs and negro spirituals.

Watch the parade, led by the re-splendent "Major of the Corps"—the finest in the land and feel your feet wriggle to the rattle of the jaw-hones and tambos and the plunk of banjos. You will see the dusky belles and plug-lugged hucks prance through the mazes of the cakewalk to the strains of old-time toe-ticklers. You will be able to hear everything perfectly, as the stage has been rigged with a "mike" and a loud speaker that works like a charm. And last, but by no means least, "Cap" Sanford has been induced to give his famous lame-chicken dance. When approached on the subject, the captain said he would do anything on the 17th of Ireland. George Hanson of our Ironton way, is going to do his stuff, too. It will be a regular galaxy of believe that's the words of star performers.

After the show, the ushers will clear the gym floor and those who care to watch the fun may go into the balcony while the dancers enjoy themselves. Spectators will be admitted free to the balcony, or may dance, as they wish, for a nominal sum. Don't forget the date, Friday evening, March 17th.

It is said to be the largest fish taken at Mackinaw City in many years. Charles Sammers speared a trout weighing 31 pounds four years ago.

Several parties from Charlevoix went smelt fishing at East Jordan, Sunday night. Catches were generally reported as being light. The "run" started there last Tuesday, but cold weather the latter part of the week had slowed up the fun. An ice blockade at the river mouth was removed by the use of dynamite Sunday, and with warmer weather now prevailing, it is thought the "run" will get under way in full force again.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Munyon and Mrs. Henry Johnston, returned Tuesday afternoon following a sojourn of several months at Long Beach, Calif. Due to a curtailment in the activities of the district health unit brought about by unsettled conditions, services of the rural sanitary officer have been dispensed with for a limited time. Ray G. Nebelung, who has served this district as sanitary officer for the past two years, left Wednesday for Ann Arbor to resume his studies in the field of mental hygiene. It is expected Mr. Nebelung will be recalled to serve this district in his former position by late summer and possibly sooner.

Paralyzed in both legs as a result of a gunshot wound he sustained three years ago, Dr. John H. R. Gervers, Bellaire physician, carries on his practice there despite his physical incapacity—but in a wheelchair. Dr. Gervers, wounded in the man hunt for the four bandits who held up the Antrim County Savings Bank at Mancelona on June 2, 1930, was confined to Lockwood hospital, Petoskey, for nearly a year before he recovered sufficiently to permit his discharge. He is also active in Bellaire social affairs.

Recently a story was printed to the effect that all life insurance companies had suspended the granting of loans on policies. Life companies have suspended the payment of claims. There was no use for an insurance company to write checks because reserve banks in the country were not opened until Monday. After Monday, March 13, the life companies in the United States will write checks for their accumulated loans. They could not do business without the Federal Reserve System and when that system remains open they will go on and do business.

East Jordan is making plans for a big smelt run the latter part of this week, depending on the warm rain of Monday to start the fish running up Jordan river again. Dipping is expected to be at its best by Saturday night and at that time there will be a big smelt celebration in the city on the south arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Everybody is invited over for the dipping. There is to be a banquet for sportsmen, followed by a parade and other features and the crowning of the smelt king. Jordan river affords the first smelt dipping of the spring season in Northern Michigan. Other streams usually open about a week or so later.

The city of Howell, which was fortunate in starting its stamped-script plan so that it came into operation the first day the banks opened after the holiday is well pleased with its workings. A number of other cities, including Cadillac, have sent committees to Howell to get the renetion of the merchants after the first few days under the plan. The Cadillac committee found most of the business interests loud in its praise, and no one condemning it, although some were reserving their judgment until the script had been in circulation longer. In three days about $75 had been redeemed, the necessary stamps having been affixed. There is no question that the plan had stimulated trade there.

Four recommendations for the re-vamping of Michigan's school system in the interests of economy have been made by the economics department at Michigan State college. Consolidation of districts was the major suggestion made by the department, which also listed the formation of county units, township units and the modification of the present district system as changes which make education less expensive. The recommendations were made following close examination of conditions which existed in Ingham, Cass, Saginaw, Roscommon, Antrim and Marquette counties. The study, officials of the department asserted, was made in both the upper and lower peninsulas in order that it might list virtually state-wide conditions.

Our Government
—How It Operates

By William Bruckart

TREATY NEGOTIATIONS

THE United States and Canada have just lately concluded a treaty that represents an agreement between our government and that of our neighbor on the north whereby a deep waterway will be constructed connecting the Great Lakes and the Atlantic ocean. It is a gigantic engineering project that is contemplated; it has vast potentialities for our people and their commerce, and it will stand through the years as a monument to the genius of two peoples who desire to see opportunities utilized for the good of all.

But behind the formal signing of that treaty which took place in the Department of State here in the Capital city lies many ramifications and unenvisaged. They are called "negotiations" at the end, and they represent as well as any in history the processes through which nations must go in reaching agreement on the terms of a contract, for a treaty, after all, is only a contract. Treaty negotiations, however, are not unlike swapping of horses in the old days. It is a matter of give and take, and each looks out for himself.

It seldom takes as much time to accomplish an understanding respecting treaty terms as has elapsed since the deep waterway proposal first was advanced more than fifty years ago. Commercial interests saw the need of it long before our government could be interested in the project. This same was true among the Canadians, except that they did not regard development of the waterway as important until recent years because their commerce began expanding later than ours.

Yet through all of those years, two peoples were slowly but surely moving to the point where their governments could agree as to what was necessary in a treaty under which the channel could be constructed. There had to be a treaty, of course, because the rights of each nation were involved and each nation had to give up some of those rights when the contract was made.

Active movements by our government, looking to the treaty and the waterway project to be built under its terms, were instituted almost ten years ago. At that time, however, some of the statesmen at the head of the Dominion government were not friendly to the idea. There was opposition as well among certain interests in this country. For example, many of the railroads serving the northern half of the United States and drawing traffic from the regions around and west of the Great Lakes are opposed to the waterway for the very obvious reason that they fear it will take away some of their traffic. And so it goes. Opposition and support for the plan may be found everywhere in areas affected by it.

From this it is easily deduced that a considerable amount of preliminary work had to be done to acquaint the peoples of the merit of the project. It has now been formally signed because the ruling political group in Canada believe it is practicable and valuable, and the administration of our government has endorsed the idea throughout.

But the treaty is not yet operative. It has another stage to pass here and another at Ottawa. While its acceptance by the Dominion government is little more than a formality, ratification of the agreement by the senate of the United States is another matter. The Constitution provides for negotiation of the treaty by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the senate. So it has to take a hurdle of some consequence before it becomes a binding agreement and one that is fully operative.

When the President transmits the St. Lawrence waterway treaty to the senate for its consideration, he will send with it a letter from the secretary of state explaining the benefits hoped to be derived. But the senate will not be content with that. It will turn the treaty over to its committee on foreign relations, and that group will hold hearings to which it will invite spokesmen for the various groups interested in its ratification or rejection. It will listen to both sides.

In addition, it will invite the secretary of state and the American minister to Ottawa and experts who participated in the actual writing of the document to come before it and tell what the treaty does. These men probably will testify in private, however, for it must be remembered that all international negotiations are carried on largely in secrecy. That is necessary because it is frequently inadvisable to make public the basis of horse swapping. Some people will think their government gave too much and they will complain.

If a majority of the committee favor ratification, they will vote to submit it to the senate with that recommendation, and eventually action is had there, leaving then only the net of notifying the other government, to be performed.

In outlining the course of the waterway treaty, I have attempted to picture the usual processes. They are much the same in all treaties, excepting those ending a war. With that kind of a treaty, it is unnecessary to deal for the victor dictates the terms and the loser signs.

TURK SEES WORLD
TURN UPSIDE DOWN

Term 'Unchanging' No Longer Applies to Him.

At midnight in his unguarded kitchenette the Turk lies dreaming—his dreams shifting to nightmares in which he sees himself now covering his head with the ugly black derby of the western glaur, now twisting his tongue as he outlines the silhouette of the infidel dogs, again tangled up in his intricate web of modern plumbing. Nor does the morning sun bring him to his senses. Only a few days ago he opened his door to find an irate postman on the wall telling him that he must take another step in imitation of the detested foreigner; he must assume a family name. "Hussien the Turk," "Abdullah the Crookshank," "Fatima the Star-Eyed," names which have been adequate in a country of small self-contained communities, must give way to patronymics.

What is a poor Turk to do? Shall the children of Hussien be known as Johnnie and Susie Forester? Shall the straight-lined offspring of Abdullah carry forever the name of Crookshank? Shall Fatima's name be lost in that of her husband? Or will the restless Kemal scatter old American telephone directories among the populace and leave them to pick out the names there that suit their fancy? If that should come to pass the unspookable Turk will become unspookable in a new sense—unable to pronounce his own name.

Surely the old way was best—the way that once prevailed among our own ancestors, when trades and qualities gave a man his name, when, behind the line of battle at Sedan and Agincourt, the field for acres upon acres glowed with the forges of the Smiths, sharpening battle-axes, thickening at cross bows, hammering at morion and chainmail and greave and cuirass to fit William Knight and George Squire and Jack Bowman and a thousand war horses for their girth business. What would the Arabian Nights tales be if they were done over after Kemal's idea? Who wants to read about Sinbad Smith the Sailor or Noureddin-Slave-of-Love Perkins? And how about Kemal himself? Does he come under the law? Will he be known to posterity perhaps as Kemal Throttlebottom Pasha?—Hudson Trauerkopf.

NOT A POLITICIAN

State Highway Commissioner Grover C. Dillman is not a politician. That was clearly demonstrated at the recent Grand Rapids convention when he declined to enter any secret trades or behind-closed-doors agreements with certain factions to insure his re-nomination. He wants it known that he is an engineer, concerned with conducting the affairs of his office in the interests of the people of Michigan and not of any special class.

Economy is not something new in the highway department. It was there before and since the day he assumed office. It will remain as long as he continues at its head. That is what he has to say concerning this phase of his work: "In the coming campaign, voters should not expect a lot of rash promises regarding ways in which I plan to economize. I shall make no such promises but on the other hand, I shall point with gratification to the record of economy that has been established in the past. Actual accomplishments stand the test of time much better than promises that are frequently made before election and then forgotten."

ECONOMY NEEDED

Schools, like all other instrumentalities of public activity, must face the fact that a period is before them demanding the most rigid kind of economy. Only within the last two years has there been an alarming decrease in school revenue, but with tax delinquency, limitation of the general property tax, ad valorem receipts dwindling, many schools are reaching the point where the school year will have to be shortened, if the school is not closed entirely.

Nobody wants to see anything serious happen to our Michigan school system, rated as among the highest in the country, no matter how serious our financial situation becomes. Everybody is agreed that a "hands off" policy should be maintained until school officials themselves have decided the lowest minimum amount needed to keep them in operation without destroying their usefulness.

Some plan must be devised that will allocate State relief from a sales and gross income tax that will be fair to all educational units. A rough estimate of the yearly cost of educating a child has been placed at $68. Through strict economy some schools have reduced this as low as $48 per capita. Extravagance has raised others beyond the $200 mark. It will be several months before there will be any general idea of what the schools may expect in the way of direct State assistance. And when that relief is finally apportioned it should be on the basis of encouraging economy and penalizing extravagance.

INSIST ON PAYMENT

Don't let all this propaganda about Europe being unable to pay her war debts, frighten you to the extent of writing your Senator or Congressman to vote for debt cancellation. Only Europe and the international bankers are in favor of transferring this load to the backs of the American taxpayers. Never lose sight of that fact. There is not a country in Europe that could not pay its debts to America if it was so disposed. Payments of principal and interest as agreed would only amount to about four percent of what they are now spending for armaments to get ready for another war. That is something else to remember.

This country poured billions of dollars and millions of men along the Western front to save the Allies from defeat. When the war ended we forgave them their debts and took ourselves out of Europe. Have they ever thanked us for that international gesture of friendship, for our enormous sacrifice of men and money? If they did, our historians have not got around to write it down in their records.

After the war we foolishly loaned them additional billions for the work of reconstruction, to help them with our money to build up their industries, the same industries that are now engaged in attempting to destroy American industry. What a laugh would go up all over Europe if the situation were reversed and we had asked them to forgive us our debts. We wouldn't even get the famous one-half of one per cent reduction. We would be compelled to jinx on the line in full.

There is no reason why Uncle Sam should play Santa Claus to Europe any longer. During the World war, and after, they came over here pleading for us to save them from disaster. Now they are contemplating sending over new emissaries to ask us to finance the cost of their next war by cancellation of the cost of this. Let them repudiate their debts if they will—but cancel, never!

If our government at Washington is honest with the American people it will firmly insist on payment of these debts in full. And when these yearly installments are being paid, which they will be if we remain firm in our demands, let the government take this money and loan it to American industry at the same low rate of interest Europe was asked to pay. With this help we might be able to get back some of the world markets we lost when we helped to build up old world opposition at the expense of our own industrial fabric.

THE BOAT IS LOADED

The fellow who has been yelling so long and loud about his income having reached the vanishing point, should get some consolation from the fact that there are plenty of other folks to keep him company. If he will but look around him he will find that even the governor of Michigan has a seat alongside him in the boat.

A few days ago Governor Comstock laughingly admitted he was not only broke, but in debt. He made the statement when informed his salary as governor had been attached to satisfy a claim. But he didn't set down and fall to weeping when he heard the news. Instead he straightened a bit straighter and said he was only one of the great majority who are in debt, but if left alone he intended working his way out like a man.

Here we have the homely philosophy, the honest ruggedness of a Lincoln, refusing to admit defeat in the face of almost overwhelming odds. No attempt at evasion, no thought of escape through self-destruction, but the clear, far-flung viewpoint that somehow, some way, he will eventually find himself emerging from his financial difficulties. His splendid courage should be the signal for thousands of his fellow citizens to quit whining and get up and fight.

KNOW THE COST FIRST

Although President Roosevelt's attitude on public utilities has been well known, the enthusiasm with which he has publicly joined Senator George W. Norris in reviving the much-agitated plan for governmental operation of Muscle Shoals and for a vast expansion of that power and nitrate project can scarcely fail to arouse certain misgivings. In the light of practical experience, the intelligent citizen has scant reason to pin much faith in governmental ventures of this kind. Since they are so directly and permanently bound up with our essentially clumsy system of politics, his skepticism is well founded. What private investor, observing Congress, would trust it with the direction of a vast industrial enterprise? With the Federal budget seriously out of balance and the national debt steadily increasing, how much longer will our politicians consider gambling huge sums of public money on what cannot be characterized as other than hazardous investments? It is one thing to produce power, but another to distribute it profitably. Let us know more of the Muscle Shoals plan before we leap into it. How much will it cost? Where will a profitable number of consumers be found?

Trucking is recognized as a legitimate enterprise and it would not be sound policy to handicap or stifle it. But to take the position that trucks serving as common carriers should not be regulated while railroads must be, is absurd upon the face of it and can hardly be maintained.

A short girl gets around it by making the stripes on her skirt run in the opposite direction.

NON-RESIDENT FISH LICENSES ARE ISSUED

Supply Distributed to Agencies Throughout the State

Non-resident fishing licenses for the calendar year 1933 have been issued to a large number of conservation department license agents throughout the state.

The department is also issuing from its Lansing office commercial minnow dealers' licenses for the current year. A list of the waters from which minnows may be taken for commercial purposes is furnished with each license. No license is required for re-selling minnows taken by a person holding a license or imported from outside the state when satisfactory proof is furnished.

OBITUARY

Bolton

Mary Rebecca Bolton, daughter of Jason and Mary Ann Bolton, was born September 10, 1854, in La Crosse, Wisconsin. After moving to Missouri, the family came to Michigan in 1866 and settled on the land which has been the family homestead ever since, and where the deceased passed away Sunday evening, March 5, 1933. There were five in the family, Sarah Ann, Hannah Elizabeth and Frances Jane, all deceased, and one brother, William J. Bolton, still living on the homestead. Rebecca Bolton was converted to Christianity at an early age and joined the Epworth Methodist church and was very faithful and always in church work all her life, until failing health kept her at home. She died in the faith, leaving the highest respect in her neighborhood and among all her acquaintances. She always expressed great concern for the religious life of her neighbors, greatly desiring their well being and salvation in Jesus Christ.

The funeral was held in the Charlevoix Methodist church, Wednesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. W. W. Hurd, and was largely attended by her many friends in her neighborhood, where she had resided so long.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Advocates of the repeal of national prohibition and "a return to true temperance" have all agreed that the saloon must not be permitted to do business again, but there is nothing in the amendment which Congress finally voted to submit to the states which would prevent the establishment of saloons.

According to a statement issued by the American Business Men's Prohibition Foundation, the ratification of the repeal amendment by three-fourths of the states will: (1) cancel the gains of the people in a hundred years' struggle with the legalized liquor traffic; (2) set back the progress of this form at least a quarter of a century; (3) give unlimited opportunity for liquor dealers to regain ascendancy in politics and corrupt government; through the intensive use of the radio, movies and press; (4) afford opportunity to promote sales through subtle advertising appeal; and, (5) divert millions of dollars annually from legitimate industry to the coffers of the brewers and distillers.

STATE OF MICHIGAN.

To the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix in Chancery:

The petition of John K. Stack, Jr., Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, respectfully shows that the list of lands hereinafter set forth and marked "Schedule A," contains a description of all lands in said County of Charlevoix upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein, and which were returned delinquent for non-payment of taxes, and which taxes have not been paid; together with the total amount of such taxes, with interest computed thereon to the time fixed for sale, and collection fee and expenses, as provided by law, extended against each of said parcels of land.

Your petitioner further shows to the Court that said lands were returned to the Auditor General under the provisions of Act 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as amended for non-payment of said taxes for said years, respectively, and that said taxes remain unpaid; except that lands included in said "Schedule A" for taxes of 1890 or prior years were returned to the Auditor General as delinquent for said taxes under the provisions of the general tax laws in force prior to the passage of Act 200 of the Public Acts of 1891, and which taxes remain unpaid.

Your petitioner further shows that in all cases where lands are included in "Schedule A" as aforesaid for taxes of 1890 or of any prior year, said lands have not been sold for said taxes or have been heretofore sold for said delinquent taxes and the sale or sales so made have been set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction, or have been cancelled as provided by law.

Your petitioner further shows and avers that the taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses as set forth in said "Schedule A," are a valid lien on the several parcels of lands described in said schedule.

Your petitioner further shows that the said taxes on the said described lands have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent; and the said taxes not having been paid, and the same being now due and remaining unpaid as above set forth, your petitioner prays a decree in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands, for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land contained therein, and in default of payment of the said several taxes, interest and expenses against said lands, that each of said parcels of land may be sold for the amounts due thereon, as provided by law, to pay the lien aforesaid.

And your petitioner will ever pray,

Dated January 18, 1933.

dealing with the taxation problem. The bill designed to meet the requirements of the 15 mill tax limit clause made a constitutional provision by the people last fall must meet hurried action or else the local governmental units will find it practically impossible to function during the next fiscal year. Some members of the Senate explain that they are anxious to know what the supreme court is going to say about one or two questions that have been raised as the result of the adoption of the constitutional amendment. One of these questions is whether home rule cities were intended to be included in the amendment. They say it is going to be difficult to enact needed legislation until this point has been decided.

As indicated weeks ago in this letter, it has now been definitely decided that there will be no state fair this year. It is expected many counties that have received state aid will also be closed down this year.

It was Senator Leon Case of Watervliet that provided the depositors of the banks of Michigan with a right to have their day in court during consideration of the new banking bill. Over 2,000 people crowded the Senate chamber during the public hearing that Senator Case arranged for the depositors on the bill. He declared that the bankers had been given plenty of opportunity to express their views and he demanded that the depositors receive the same consideration.

The efforts of a few senators to head off the bill that provides for a reduction of salaries for supreme judges as well as circuit judges has been temporarily successful. The bill has gone back to the senate judiciary committee, but it will not be there for long, say a number of senators who favor the cut.

PERMIT NECESSARY TO SET FIRES IN WOODS

Will Be Issued Without Cost by Conservation Officers

With the arrival of the annual "burning season," woodsmen, farmers and all others in the fire zone of the state who build grass fires, clear land, burn over brush or start any other open fire than a domestic fire are being warned by the department of conservation of the necessity of securing a "burning permit."

While there is no charge involved for the permit, it is legally necessary and its violation may involve arrest. Rigid enforcement of the law involves economy, the department said, since it isn't necessary to summon a fire crew when the fireman has information that a certain fire is being burned under a permit and is being watched.

NORTH SANATOR- IUM BADLY NEEDED

FUNDS FOR CONSTRUCTION ARE NOW AVAILABLE

Southern Counties Well Equipped for TB Care While North Is Entirely Isolated

Facts show that the southern and northwestern counties of Michigan are fortunately supplied with sanatorium beds for the care of tuberculosis patients, while the remaining 38 counties, with an average of 235 annual deaths from tuberculosis, do not have within their borders a single approved bed for treatment of the disease.

This extensive area is to be served by the Northern State Tuberculosis sanatorium, authorized by the 1931 Legislature and financed by the mill tax. Sufficient funds have now accumulated to construct a 100 bed sanatorium, providing at least a partial solution to the perplexing problem of hospitalizing tuberculosis patients in these 38 counties.

How perplexing this problem is has been convincingly shown by the Michigan Tuberculosis association in a cross-section survey of 100 deaths recently occurring in the district.

The survey showed that 67 of these 100 representative cases, two out of every three died without a day's care in an approved sanatorium. In typical counties in southern Michigan, by comparison, only one out of every three or one out of every four patients dying of tuberculosis fail to receive sanatorium care. People in these counties therefore are given two to three times the protection against tuberculosis received by residents of the Northern Michigan counties.

In addition, the survey showed the widespread danger of infection caused by failure to isolate open cases of disease. The 67 patients who died without sanatorium treatment were found to have lived and died surrounded by 186 children, an average of nearly three per family. Massive infection with tuberculosis can be taken for granted in many of these children.

Construction of the Northern State sanatorium at this time will be in thorough accord with the "work-relief" plan proposed at Washington by Governor William A. C. Comstock. Using funds already available, the building project would relieve unemployment, much as work on the roads is doing, at the same time that it relieves the dangerously sick.

The following four conditions are cited as principal reasons for immediate construction of the Northern State sanatorium:

1. Michigan State sanatorium is too distant to promptly serve the area. The sanatorium is 200, 300, and even 400 miles away from major cities of the district.

2. A continuous waiting list at Michigan State sanatorium prevents acceptance of all patients. More beds are required. These beds should be provided near the area of greatest need—Northern Michigan.

3. A sanatorium of only 100 beds is asked for this area. All other areas of Michigan are already supplied with beds in a ratio which, if applied to these counties, would call for an institution of 294 beds.

4. Not to provide needed beds is to condemn to almost certain death those patients who require surgery of the chest to bring about recovery. Unknown lives will therefore be saved if this institution is built properly.

ODD FELLOWS RETAIN CRIBBAGE LEADERSHIP

Were Victors Over Masons Monday Night by 16-Point Margin

In the closest contest of a winter series between the Odd Fellows and Masons which closes March 27th, the Odd Fellows added 16 points to their advantage Monday night.

The victors turned in a team score of 21,662 points to 21,646 for the Masons, giving them a lead of 967 for the series which started just after the Christmas holidays. High score of the evening, 967 points, went to Harrison Bedford of the Masons, while Gordon Kirby, with 952 points, was high for the Odd Fellows.

The final contest of the series will be played Monday evening, March 27th, at the Masonic temple. The losing side will later put on a "feed" for the winners. Prizes for individual high point winners will be awarded at that time.

AT THE MOVIES

Department Store Life Revealed on Screen in "Employees' Entrance"

The intimate details of the lives of the people behind the sales counters and in the offices of a big department store form the basis of the First National picture, "Employees' Entrance," showing Saturday and Sunday at the Palace theatre, with a great all star cast.

The importance of the story and the heavy requirements of the principal role caused First National to hand this choice assignment to Warren William, who scored so highly in such successes as "The Mouthpiece," "The Dark Horse" and "The Match King."

Particularly does he dominate the love situation in this story which is supplied by Loretta Young and Wallace Ford, providing a new twist in the love element in motion picture story writing.

A large supporting cast of well known names supplies additional interest. "Employees' Entrance" particularly marks the return of Alice White to motion pictures. This blonde and blithe young actress comes back to the screen after a two years' absence, in an amusing and important role. During her absence from the screen Alice White spent ten months in a triumphant tour of personal appearances throughout the United States.

Others prominent in the cast are Allen Jenkins and Ruth Donnelly, who scored so highly in "Blessed Event." Choice roles are also played by Helen Mann, Berton Churchill, Frank Reicher, Hale Hamilton, Zita Moulton, Albert Gran and Marjorie Gateson.

MICHIGAN DEPT. OF STATE WEEKLY NEWS

In caring for indigents, Michigan spent $1,823,707 more for the year ending Sept. 30, 1932, than for the year ending Sept. 30, 1931, according to the compilation of the department of state of annual reports of superintendents of the poor of Michigan's 83 counties. While the department has no duties in connection with welfare work, it is required by law to make an annual compilation of welfare expenses of the state to the governor.

The compilation discloses the fact that welfare dependents are losing their ability to partially support themselves as the number of public charges decreased 109,000 while costs showed an increase of $1,823,000. In 1930, a total of 273,763 persons were given aid; in 1931, 668,963 were given while for the year ending Sept. 30, 1932, the number given aid was 559,496.

Welfare costs for the last period were $23,477,700 as compared with $21,651,963 for the year ending June 30, 1931.

The greater part of the state's welfare cost was expended in giving temporary aid to unemployed as records show that only 19,763 were cared for in infirmaries at a cost of $4,306,923; and 10,226 persons were being given permanent aid outside institutions at a cost of $268,438.

The compilation shows that the value of poor farms and welfare equipment in Michigan is $14,187,405.

Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald called the attention of motor vehicle owners recently to the fact that while the new Orr act allows motorists to operate their cars upon half-payment of the weight tax, the new law contains no section which prohibits the payment of the entire weight tax at one time.

Those who avail themselves of the new law, require windshield stickers and continue to use their 1932 plates until August 1. Motorists who wish

WHAT IS WRONG AT THE CAPITOL

NINE THOUSAND DOOR KICKERS FOR JOB SEEKERS

Pres. Roosevelt Accomplishes More in Ten Days Than State Administration in Ten Weeks

(By S. L. Marshall.)
What is wrong in Lansing?

The new state administration has been on the job for more than TEN WEEKS.

A new national administration at Washington, D. C., took office just a bit over TEN DAYS ago.

In Lansing everything is chaos, bickering and leaderless confusion.
At Washington, starting the first day of President Roosevelt's administration, came bold action striking at the very heart of the country's trouble.

As this is written such relief as Michigan's 500 banks have had has come from President Roosevelt. From their own state administration has come nothing but a succession of conflicting reports. Michigan depositors and Michigan bankers are dizzy trying to follow the gyrations of an impotent banking bill which has been tossed, torn, tangled and wrangled over because . . . because of what?

PATRONAGE!
It has not been a question of how soon or how much of Michigan's hundreds of thousands of state bank depositors shall be relieved. Little consideration is given the business interests of the state. "Who will get the job?"—that's the thing they are fighting over; the spoils of office.

Parenthetically, let the writer make it clear right here that he has confidence in the honesty and sincerity of Gov. William A. Comstock.
The Governor is trying. He wants action. He was drawn into declaring a bank holiday with minutes to consider his action, where he should have had days. If that was a mistake, he made it upon the frantic advice of a group of federal banking officials and Detroit bankers in the few hours of the morning of February 14th. He was called from his bed and rushed to Detroit to make a decision of unprecedented importance to Michigan depositors and Michigan bankers—and he had to make this decision AT ONCE. No wonder he is discouraged. No wonder he is bewildered. What has happened since is too fresh in the minds of Michigan people to need recounting. Nor is it necessary to explain why the Governor's efforts have been futile to get action.

Things are in a mess at Lansing.
There is no leadership.

The Senate is aimlessly arguing and bickering about meaningless trifles. Its presiding officer, Lieut.
Gov. Stebbins has not yet learned how to follow the simplest parliamentary procedure. Its clerk, according to veteran newspaper men, has not yet learned the routine rules.
The Senate is a joke.

The writer has spent two days in the capitol city talking with veteran observers, experienced state house newspaper men and some of the older members of the Legislature. Without exception they say, "Never has there been such disorganization and lack of purpose in Michigan's government as exists today."

"What about the House?" we asked.

"Better," they say, "but not functioning as it should." In years past the House was more unwieldy. One hundred members were more difficult to get action from than the 32 members of the Senate. Today it is different. The House with 41 veteran members are waiting for the Senate, and waiting for a clear cut program to come from the executive office. It has not been forthcoming. They are wondering when it will come and when they can get down to actual work and accomplish some of the many things which Michigan's citizens are waiting for . . . and voted for last November.

Perhaps the crux of the situation lies in the fact that Governor William A. Comstock inherited an inexperienced official family. Several of these state officials are fine gentlemen but wholly untrained and unacquainted with their duties. They should not be censured too much for this. The people of Michigan elected them.

In at least one office there is a man in whom the Legislature has little confidence. We refer to Attorney General Patrick O'Brien. It was around O'Brien that the recent deadlock on the banking bill developed in the Senate. The Attorney General wanted to have a finger in the patronage pie when it came to appointing receivers for many anticipated bank reorganizations. It is a well known fact that Gov. Comstock is not playing "political ball" with O'Brien.

That being true it is small wonder that a group of Senators blocked O'Brien's ambitions.

We are told that the Attorney General has four more employees in his department than there are desks. The personnel has increased from 28 under Paul Voorheis in December to 42 at present. Economy and a new deal!

In the meanwhile Michigan writs.
State funds are overdrawn and an empty treasury faces unusual demands. Unemployed thousands who voted for a new deal and prompt decisive legislation are wistfully waiting.

Hundreds of job-hunters roam up and down the capitol corridors day after day. They peek in this office door and that, wondering if there is a desk, a swivel chair and a pay check in store for them. But their quest is in vain. No more jobs until after the spring election is the edict.
"We'll wait and see how many votes you boys can hustle out to the polls," is the thought back of the delay.

WHITEFISH PLANT NOW IN PROGRESS

MILLIONS GO OUT FROM THE LOCAL HATCHERY

Shipments by Truck Taken to Mackinaw City for Transfer to Upper Peninsula Points

Local federal hatchery men, working under the direction of E. R. Wil-myer, superintendent, have been engaged the past week planting whitefish fry hatched from spawn gathered by commercial fishermen last fall.

Before the task is completed between thirty-five and forty thousand fry will have been distributed. The tiny fish are being taken from the local hatchery by truck in five gallon cans containing about 5,000 each.
One large consignment was planted in West Traverse Bay, but a larger portion of the hatch is going to points on the north shore of Lake Michigan. The cans are being taken to Mackinaw City, from which point they are loaded into baggage cars for shipment to Manistique and other points on the south shore of the upper peninsula.

Some of the fish have been released in Burt and other lakes of the Inland Route. The "Wolverine" familiar state fish car, is not being used in the operation this year.

Sometime early in April the trout hatch of the local hatchery will be planted. It is expected that the lake will be free for navigation by the time these fish are ready, and in that case the plant will be made by boat out of this port. Ice conditions prevented the whitefish hatch from being planted in the same manner. Unofficial estimates place the trout hatch at something over twenty million.

PNEUMONIA FATAL TO YOUNG MOTHER

Mrs. George Shearer Died Saturday at Garfield Avenue Home

Pneumonia, which developed following an attack of scarlet fever, caused the death Saturday morning of Mrs. George Shearer at the family home on East Garfield avenue.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon from the home, Rev. G. R. Parker officiating.
Interment was at Brookside.

Agnes Armstrong was born October 30, 1903, at Bay Shore, the daughter of the late Wightford Armstrong and wife. She resided in Hayes township until her marriage to George Shearer of this city, whom together with a small son, survive in addition to her mother and other relatives.

Mrs. Shearer was an active member of the Rebekah lodge, whose members conducted rites at the grave.

CANDIDATES ON REPEAL CHOSEN

SELECTED LAST THURSDAY AT TRAVERSE CITY

Henry Steimel, Boyne City, Dry Candidate; Thomas Kroupa, Sut-tons Bay, Wet Choice

Deputy Henry Steimel of Boyne City, former Charlevoix county sheriff, was selected the dry candidate and Thomas Kroupa, Suttons Bay funeral director, was elected wet candidate at a meeting of the Charlevoix-Leelanau district committee at Traverse City last Thursday afternoon.

Eight candidates were available, four dry and four wet. The committee drew names from a box, the third selected being designated as the candidate.

The names of these two men will appear on a separate ballot for the election of April 3rd as candidates for delegates to the state prohibition repeal ratification convention in Lansing.

Each candidate has pledged himself to represent the will of the people as expressed in the April election.
If the wet candidate is chosen, he will vote for repeal. The dry candidate, if elected, will vote against repeal. Thus the April election will constitute a legal decision on prohibition in Michigan, Michigan will know at the close of the vote just how she is to act on ratification.

Whether the same sentiment which influenced Michigan electors to vote wet by a two to one majority last November still remains is yet to be seen. Charlevoix county, with the majority coming largely from this city, was one of those turning prohibition down last November. Many have pointed out that Michigan's status as a leading tourist center would be seriously threatened if, for instance, Wisconsin, a competitor, was to go wet and this state remain dry.
It takes only a casual study of the whims of our summer visitors to discover the truth in such a conception.

The Michigan supreme court Tuesday refused a request of the allied dry forces of the state for a writ of mandamus to restrain Frank D. Fitzgerald from placing the issue on the spring ballot.

The court conceded that the bill was technically irregular in some particulars, but asserted that it provided a practical, expeditious and economical method by which the electors of this state might express themselves in passing upon the ratification or rejection of the proposed amendment to the Constitution.

TWO TOWNSHIPS MERGE IN GOGEBIC COUNTY

Board of Supervisors Voted With Power to Order Consolidation

That a legal way for the consolidation of townships is possible, is shown by records of the department of state. Under old laws giving boards of supervisors power to order annexation of territory, Watersmeet township in Gogebic county has just absorbed Carlson township in the same county, thus eliminating one complete set of township officers. Carlson township had a population of 167 persons of which 25 were resident freeholders.

CIRCUIT COURT TERM UNDER WAY

OTTO VAN DYKE TRIAL CON-TINUED TO MAY TERM

Jury Finds Roland Wilton and Warren Baker Guilty of Assault—Sentence Deferred

The March term of circuit court for Charlevoix county opened Monday with Judge Farn C. Gilbert of Traverse City, presiding.

Monday's session was devoted to disposition of probationers. Ten cases of long standing were dismissed by the court and others were continued to future terms.

Arraignment of the criminal calendar resulted in pleas of not guilty by four defendants, two of whom have since been found guilty at jury trial, and the other two bound over to the May court term.

Otto (Duke) VanDyke, Cheboygan and Grand Rapids, charged with larceny in connection with the Walloon Lake postoffice robbery January 20, stood mute on arraignment. The case was brought into court Wednesday morning, but after the jury had been drawn a discrepancy was discovered in the dates in papers filed, and Judge Gilbert ordered the case continued to the May term.

Dr. Russell Palmer, Beaver Island physician, entered a similar plea to a charge of malpractice. The case was bound over to the May term of court.

Roland Wilton and Warren Baker, charged with assault with intent to do great bodily harm following the shooting of Orson Cook, Hayes township farmer, stood mute upon arraignment. The jury receiving the case at a night session Tuesday evening, found them guilty as charged after deliberation of eight minutes.
Sentence was deferred until later in the present term.

Indications are that the present court term will continue throughout the balance of this week. In addition to the remaining criminal actions, several civil cases remain to be disposed of.

GET REQUESTS FOR PHEASANT HATCHES

Eggs Will Be Released by Department About May 10th

by individuals and organizations in hatching and rearing ringneck pheasants will not be available for shipment from the Mason game farm until about May 10, a number of applications for eggs have been received by the game division of the department of conservation.

The approved requests for eggs from individuals and organizations in proven pheasant areas will be filled in the order in which the formal applications are received in Lansing.
The game division has announced.

mittee, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington.

gress, is exerting influence in behalf

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO RESPECTED WOMAN

Mrs. Charles Jefferies Died Suddenly
Sunday Night

Mrs. Charles Jefferies, wife of Charlevoix's police chief, died of heart attack at her home on East Upright avenue shortly after 9 o'clock Sunday evening. Her sudden death was a shock to the family and her many friends.

Hattie Alcock was born February 10, 1875, at Uphridge, Ontario. She came here as a child with her parents and had since resided in this city.

She was married July 15, 1896, to Charles Jefferies. Surviving besides the husband are two children, Mrs.
Roy D. France, Charlevoix, and George W. Jefferies, Leavenworth,
Kan.; a granddaughter, Elva Leah Jefferies; two brothers, Archie Alcock, Charlevoix, and Lafayette Alcock, Pontiac, and a sister, Mrs.
Charles Carey, now of Washington,
D. C.

Mrs. Jefferies was a Past Worthy Matron of Charlevoix chapter No.
72, O. E. S., of which she had been an active member for years.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon from the home, with Rev. G. R. Parker officiating.

The pall bearers were Leo, Archie and Bert Carey; Charles, Dwight and Forest McGeagh, all nephews of the deceased.

FLORISTS GATHER HERE ON THURSDAY

MANY DELEGATES EXPECTED FOR CONVENTION

Business Meeting and Banquet at Hotel Noble for Members of Cheboygan Association

Charlevoix tomorrow night will play host to Northern Michigan florists, members of the International Florists' Telegraph Delivery association, who will assemble here to discuss the latest styles in floral arrangements suitable for various occasions.

The meeting, which will be sponsored by the Cheboygan unit of the association, with representation in 21 northern Michigan counties, will be held at the Hotel Noble at 2:30 p.
m. A dinner will follow the business sessions.

Harry Hibbard, well known funeral director of Traverse City, will address the meeting on mutual problems of interest to both undertaker and florist. Following his address there will be an open forum discussion in connection with a display of floral designs submitted by various members of the unit. Arthur Edwards, Charlevoix, is in charge of the program.

The F. T. D., as the Florists' Telegraph Delivery association is popularly known, is the representative organization of the floral industry and as such creates and introduces the new flower styles each year. It has a membership of more than 6,000 leading florists, scattered throughout the world.

DO NOT USE SPRAYS MADE WITH FLUORINE

This Element Injures the Teeth of Fruit Consumers

Research work done at Michigan State college and at other experiment stations has established the fact that an apple a day may keep the doctor away, but if fluorine sprays are used, the apple ration will be the biggest boost for dentists' profits that the tooth drillers have ever encountered.

The spray schedules for protecting apples from codling moth require the use of arsenical sprays which, in some instances where fruit was sprayed late in the season and was not washed by the rains, leave undesirable residues on the fruit.
Apples shipped from the United States to England were condemned for this reason and agents of the United States who enforce the pure food laws seized carloads in this country.

CREW OF SIXTY BACK ON JOBS
WEDNESDAY

Continuance of Projects Is Dependent Upon Release of R. F. C.
Loan Requests

Sixty men, divided in several crews and recruited from welfare lists of the unemployment units of the county, resumed work on Charlevoix county trunk line highways
Wednesday morning under the R. F.
C. relief plan.

Following out the plan of alternating the men so that the relief employment will be as general as possible in its benefit, committees met Tuesday throughout the county to select those to be given work. Roadside development projects which were abandoned temporarily by a tie-up in funds, are being continued.

Saturday was pay-day for workmen who had been employed on the projects the last two days in February and first nine days in March.
Cash to meet the payrolls was received Thursday afternoon and the next two days were busy ones for county officials preparing vouchers to pay off the men. The money received was the February allotment, amounting to something over $5,000.

Just how long the men starting Wednesday morning will be kept at work depends upon finances. The county highway department has a balance left over after paying for work already done. It is only sufficient for several days, and, unless the appropriation which has been requested for March is granted and released, work will only be continued until these funds are exhausted.

The unemployment relief granted to Charlevoix county through road work financed by the R. F. C. funds may cease shortly, as the R. F. C. has notified Governor Comstock that no further welfare loans will be made for Michigan until the state participated directly in welfare relief itself. The governor says the state is financially unable to do so. State officials are attempting to bring about a modification of the R. F. C. ultimatum issued by Charles C. McGuire, secretary of the Michigan committee.

WOULD STOP RURAL EXTENSION PROGRAM

Bill Introduced in Legislature to Discontinue Support

Discontinuance of the extension division of Michigan State college was proposed in a bill introduced in the Legislature last week by Senator
William Palmer, Flint, D.

Senator Palmer said that the division has received between $150,000 and $200,000 annually for its operation in the past few years and that $180,000 has been recommended for its continuance in the fiscal years of 1933-34 and 1934-35.

A similar proposal will probably be submitted by Senator Palmer, he said, affecting the University of Michigan along with two resolutions asking the auditor general to close Central State and Western State Teachers' college for a period of two to four years.

Senator Palmer said that his measure to discontinue Michigan State's extension department was an economy move.

George Green's daughter, Ruth, is here from Baltimore, Maryland, for a short visit. Her husband, who is a cook, expects to get a position there soon. Miss Green was a teacher here for a number of years.

There were 37 present at the Barnard Sunday school last Sunday; 78 at M. E. church Sunday school at this place, and 33 at the Eastport Sunday school. The attendance was shortened somewhat by the scarlet fever epidemic.

Probate Judge Sherwood of Kalkaska, with his wife, spent the week end with her parents, the Washburns, here. They were accompanied here with Mrs. Mobry of Kalkaska, step-mother of Mrs. E. S. Carroll. They returned home in the afternoon.

Philip Hooper and the baby are afflicted with scarlet fever. It is thought that was probably the malady the rest of the children had a short time ago. County nurse, Miss McCoy, is expected to do some inoculation out at the Bay View school this week.

Miss Minerva McGuire finishes a seven months' term of school at Grand View, east of town, this week. The contracted nine months could not be finished on account of insufficient funds. They will not hire until fall this year. If they do not have an eight months' term they will not participate in the division of the primary school fund.

Doyle Morse has recently purchased a yoke of steers of Mr. Malpas of East Jordan. He now has a team for farming with next summer.

Lambert DeVries also has an ox team. Jack Hilliard, east of town, also has a fine yoke of oxen. O. N. Sage, in town, has an ox team. It is becoming quite the fashion to use ox teams again. Many have discarded their autos for horse teams.

Everybody should get out and vote dry next election day, April 3rd. It will be our last chance to retain the Constitution intact and not secede or lower the flag. Lack of enforcement is no excuse for repealing. Get the soldiers as busy as they were after the German sympathizers, and the law will be enforced. Illicit whiskey stills could be closed up in 24 hours. The tobacco law, or the money tax law isn't enforced either, but who says anything? Why, just pick on the prohibition law? All know what the conditions were under the saloon. In a small town, the writer at that time saw drunken naked women from the house of ill-fame and from the hotel. Two dead-drunk women were brought from a nearby town in the baggage car and thrown onto the station floor, in all their filth, and left there until a dray came down and took them to a saloon. Drunken men lay on the manure heap at the livery barn and in the gutters. Three of my pupils in school near the town, went into the saloon and got drunk. Small boys, eight years of age, carried beer in pails by the livery barn. One naked woman was taken five miles down the railroad track by the work train and compelled to walk three miles to town, where the livery men wrapped a blanket around her and took her back to the house of ill-fame. These things, and a lot more, the writer himself saw. His school director came home drunk and drank half a bottle of carbolio acid and was unable to make out the school order. He afterwards recovered. And yet they say that times are as bad now as under the saloon. In that town, the writer has not seen a drunken man since the saloons went out. Just think back, you voters, and make up your minds as to whether you would like to see some of your boys and girls in this condition. Then go to the polls and vote like a loyal American citizen that wants to see the United States' constitution kept intact. You are of age, yet your think tank to working and figure out how a booze-filled driver is going to run a car when he can't walk straight. You say they drive cars in Canada and Europe. Yes, and their accidents are three times what ours is as compared with cars run. You say they have prosperity there. You know they don't. The liquor selling nations are worse off than any other nation on the globe. Walter Bush, formerly of this place, now in Canada for 15 years, writes that the farmers are shooting their old cows and selling the young ones for $5 each. Vote 'n dry!

Taking the "CHASE" Out of PURCHASE

ADVERTISING benefits the man who buys as well as the man who sells. It is part of the Golden Rule of Business and it works both ways.

Don't miss the advertisements in this newspaper. Many of them are interesting just because of their news and educational value alone.

But more than that: Advertisements take the "chase" out of purchase and make every penny do its full duty.

This last statement is one particularly to be remembered when common-sense economy is not only a national duty, but an individual necessity.

BANK RELIEF OR—

The people of Michigan should thank the 11 Republican senators who possessed stamina enough to vote against any banking bill which would allow the attorney general to start an employment agency so that some Democratic henchmen would be given a job every time a bank receiver, custodian or conservator was appointed.

It is easy to visualize custodians being appointed for perfectly sound banks, simply to "take care" of the throng of Democrats who are demanding jobs. And by the way, the attorney general has established some sort of a record in the number of relatives which he has already placed on the payroll during his short tenure of office.

The 11 Republican senators were not voting against the provisions of a bill which would allow Michigan bank depositors. They did not oppose a plan to allow the governor, instead of circuit judges, to name bank receivers. But they did oppose the giving of any power to the attorney general to enable him to establish an employment agency for his own personal benefit.

One senator announced on the floor of the Senate "that the attorney general had promised to consult him on matters of patronage in his district, if he would allow the attorney general to be included in the bill."

Yet attempts have been made to censure these Republican stalwarts. Instead of censure they deserve praise for their efforts toward rejecting the employment agency feature of the measure. They were more interested in Michigan's future welfare than they were in the Democratic party which attempted to foist another job "grab bag" on the people of Michigan.

COUNTY HOME RULE

We do not agree with Professor Reed and Brumage, of the University of Michigan, who have just submitted a report to the Legislature advocating home rule for counties. It is only fair to these gentlemen, however, to say that they also recommend that this form of local government be made optional with each county.

It is true that abuses have crept into township government—but that is equally true of all government. Township government is close to the people and because of that, some form of it should be retained; at least in part if not in its entirety as we know it today. Perhaps one-half of our township units might be eliminated in the interest of lower costs of government, but for rural districts to surrender all their rights would be a mistake—we know too well what happens when government becomes too much centralized.

Professor Sutherland, also of the University, urges in a companion report the abolition of justice courts. He would substitute a county court for local justice courts, which he declares are unsuitable for the performance of judicial duties. We fail to see where that is sufficient reason for the elimination of these officials. Township justices perform many duties from which they receive no remuneration whatever. They are a part of every community and act as friendly arbiters in countless disputes which they are able to settle without recourse to the higher courts. In this alone they save more to the taxpayer than is ever received in fees. They may not be legal-minded, but their decisions are based on a knowledge of the circumstances, combined with common sense and mercy. They should be retained.

SENSIBLE BUYING

President Roosevelt was able to launch his national banking and government economy programs because he had the support of the American people. From new banking legislation will come faith in our financial structure; balancing the national budget will protect Uncle Sam's credit and prevent uncontrolled inflation of the currency—two things necessary in the march towards prosperity. Now we need to put men to work. When factory whistles chime a new anthem our economic problems will practically solve themselves. The American public can bring this about through sensible buying. When you purchase a new car, a piece of furniture or a new heating plant or other household equipment, paint or remodel the home, go into the markets of trade and buy other things you have put off buying because of fear; when you do these things you create a market for our factories and producers, the laboring man gets a job, transportation revives and we near completion of the economic circle. Sensible buying by millions of Americans who have money to spend is the practical answer to our prayers for prosperity. BUY TODAY AND BE SURE TO BUY MICHIGAN AND AMERICAN.

THE POOR DEBTOR

Special privilege is likely to lose the comfortable seat it has occupied for so many years just outside the throne room. There is a growing sentiment that the time has arrived when the under dog should be given additional protection before the law. Depression has brought about a new conception of human rights and yesterday's poor man now finds himself surrounded by many new sympathizers.

Two important measures looking to the relief of the poor have been introduced in the Legislature and their enactment into law is being predicted. One would reduce the maximum amount which can be charged on small loans to one per cent a month. The legal rate is now 3 1/2 per cent a month, or 42 per cent a year. Such a measure is confiscatory and thousands of small wage earners in Michigan are living in bondage and terror. Our banking laws should be broadened to compel banks to make small loans at the new rate on chattel mortgage security.

The other measure has to do with our present garnishment law—it would abolish garnishment before judgment. This bill has already passed the lower House at Lansing and is awaiting action in the state Senate. The right to garnishment and tie up the wages or other income of a debtor, before judgment has been obtained to establish the legality of the claim, was a brutal piece of legislation and should have been abolished long ago. It may not be as apparent now as it will appear later, but there is a new conception of fair play being shown in the present Legislature that hedges evil days for those who have for so long preyed upon the helpless. There is a social awakening in this nation today that presages a moral regeneration unparalleled in the history of all mankind.

SCIENCE WINS

While the rest of the world is bemoaning its fate, science goes quietly forward seeking out new things upon which future prosperity can be built. It has now been demonstrated that alcohol mixed with gasoline makes a better motor fuel than gasoline alone. Manufacture of this motor fuel means a new market for corn, wheat and other farm crops. With this new demand the farmer will realize better prices for what he has to sell—better prices without the necessity of false and uneconomical stimulation. Gradually through each generation, science unlocks the door to hidden mysteries that will benefit the human race, and until science ceases its endless search, mankind need not despair. Right now we are upon the eve of new and greater discoveries—the romance of science is the light that never fails—from the scientist the world should take new hope.

BILL CANCELLING TAX PENALTY PASSED SENATE

The Priest-Stout bill which cancels penalties and interest on 1932 taxes if they are paid by next May 1st has been passed by the Senate and sent to the House for concurrence in amendments. If this House action is granted, it will go immediately to the governor for signature.

As originally passed by the lower chamber the bill extended the deadline to April 1st.

Correcting An Error

Due to erroneous information, it was stated last week that George Dickerhoof had been nominated on the second ticket as highway commissioner of Hayes township. The name should have been Earl Dickerhoof.

NEW EXTENSION ON AUTO PLATES MADE

Deadline for Purchase Now Set for First of April

An additional 16-day extension for the purchase of 1933 automobile licenses has been accorded Michigan motorists.

Following the passage of a concurrent resolution in both houses of the Legislature last Wednesday afternoon giving him moral authority to take such action, Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald issued an order permitting the use of 1932 plates until April 1. He emphatically stated, however, that the deadline would not be extended beyond that date.

Fitzgerald, prior to the passage of the resolution by the House and Senate, had declared that he would grant no extension for the purchase of licenses for pleasure cars, but said he would be inclined to give commercial operators additional time if authorized to do so by the Legislature.

Before adoption of the measure in the House, arguments were presented contending that if the deadline was allowed to remain at March 15 more than 200,000 automobiles would have been forced to remain off the highways.

The score was 23 to 22.

INCOME TAX TIME EXTENDED 15 DAYS

Extension Granted as Relief in Present Bank Difficulty

The deadline on income tax payments has been advanced to midnight March 31st.

The 16-day respite was granted by the treasury at the last minute to aid hard-pressed taxpayers whose funds still are tied up by banking difficulties.

Persons taking advantage of the extensions will be required to pay one-half month's interest, at the rate of six per cent a year, on a quarter of the total tax.

The normal class is making a detailed study of the history of Michigan. Book reports, which will broaden their knowledge of Michigan in its infancy will be given during the next few weeks by members of the class.

Anyone interested in a rather unique method of class procedure is invited to visit the history class this week or the civics class the following week.

The bulletin board has been a source of much interest these two weeks, thanks to Miss L. Reidel and Mr. Thomas.

If you have a few thousand to invest in a farm and want a little advice, ask one of the normal students. The normal library books in sociology have been supplemented for the term by a number of volumes from Mr. Bush's personal library.

The radio music class, which the Misses Gornell, Somerville, M. Reidel and Mr. Chow have been listening in on every Monday afternoon, is to be continued from the Detroit studio of WJR instead of from the University of Michigan studio at Ann Arbor.

Songs are being taught by the students to the other members of their class during the music periods with Miss Atkinson on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

An enjoyable time was reported by all who attended the St. Patrick's party given by the Misses Gornell and Somerville last Thursday evening.

Edited by F. V. Tyler

At the regular meeting of Leslie T. Shapton post No. 226, American Legion, held Tuesday evening, the adjutant was instructed to draw up the following resolution of thanks to those who participated in the recent Legion minstrel show, which proved a signal success:

"We, the officers and members of Leslie T. Shapton post No. 226, American Legion, department of Michigan, desire to thank most heartily the Legionnaires and those of our good friends outside of the Legion who gave their services and time so freely to make the recent Legion minstrel show a success—particularly to Messrs. Barker W. Kirby and Harker "Ty" Kirby, on whom the responsibility of direction and organization chiefly fell. The post appreciates their good work but, most of all, the spirit of friendly co-operation that was displayed by all who participated.

Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, By: Shirley B. Henry, Commander; Fred V. Tyler, Adjutant."

The show was a great success and over $60 was cleared for welfare work.

Plans were made at the meeting for a get-together of the bugle and drum corps on the regular meeting night of Tuesday, April 4th, at which time re-organization of the corps will be discussed and a short practice held, if possible. Refreshments will be served.

Among other coming events of the spring season are the stag card party on Thursday evening, March 23, and the jigsaw puzzle contest, in which the post will collaborate with the Auxiliary, on Thursday, March 30—a week later.

Thursday, April 6th, will be Army Day, and the merchants along Bridge street are asked to recognize this commemorative date by displaying the flag in front of their respective places of business.

The post has a chance to secure enough baseball equipment for two junior teams in Charlevoix at a nominal expense, but more will be said about this later.

FOUR SEEKING EMMET LEGISLATIVE BERTH

Lake and VanEvery for G. O. P.—Dean and Brown Democrats

Although the procedure for selecting candidates to run for the Emmet-Mackinac legislative post, succeeding the late Dana H. Hinkley, has not been determined, two Republicans and two Democrats have announced their intention to enter the race.

Republicans are John A. Lake, chairman of the county committee and prominent figure in the Republican party, and A. E. Van Every, former representative from that district, both of Petoskey. Eugene Brown, Conway, defeated candidate in the November election, and Clare Dean of Petoskey expect to run for the Democratic nomination.

A measure is now before the House of Representatives to allow the county committees to name their candidates but no provision has been made for two counties.

Army Day

Governor Comstock Saturday issued the following Army Day proclamation:

"Whereas, Thursday, April 6th, has been designated as Army Day, a day sponsored by military organizations and endorsed by the Secretary of War for National observance.

"Whereas, It is fitting that on this day a grateful people should pause in the activities in which they are engaged and pay tribute to the brave men of the United States Army who stand ready at all times to respond to the call to arms and likewise to the call to aid in times of disaster and distress.

"Now, therefore, I, William A. Comstock, Governor of the State of Michigan, do hereby proclaim Thursday, April 6, 1933, as Army Day and urge the citizens of Michigan to observe the day and appropriately display the National Flag on all State buildings, places of business and homes."

"But the Lord is faithful who will establish you and keep you from evil."

—Paul.

Next Sunday we will deliver the last of the series of sermons on "The Teachings of Christ." This series has been long but very instructive, and judging from the large attendances they have been interesting and beneficial. This final sermon will be a definite challenge to every serious thinking person. With the spiritual forces, God, Jesus Christ, the Holy Spirit, the Angels, and Satan; the facts of sin and salvation, and the Kingdom of God, what will we do about the invitation to enter the kingdom? This is a day of wide-spread admiration for the Kingdom of God and it is equally a day of wide-spread refusal to enter.

Come Sunday morning and hear this final message with its challenge to your will. The subject is "A Personal Application."

Beginning the first week in April a pre-Easter Mission will be conducted in our church continuing for two weeks. The pastor will do the preaching.

In the Sunday school the contest is getting quite lively. One new class has been organized and there seems to be a need of dividing at least two others. Last Sunday there was an increase over last year of 38 per cent. So far as we can learn the increase comes from former pupils of our school that dropped out just "because."

At the Charlevoix county Sunday school convention held at Boyne City last fall, it was decided to continue the plan of the county Good Friday services. Two years ago the first union Good Friday service was held in Charlevoix. It was so well spoken of that requests came from Boyne City and East Jordan to make it a county affair. This was done with splendid success. This year practically the same plan will be carried out. Rev. G. R. Parker was appointed to arrange a program that would take in the three cities. This has been done and the program will be published as soon as available.

Dyed-in-the-wool Michigan folk sometimes cast envious eyes toward balmy Florida and sunny California, especially when the snowdrifts are piling up outside the windows. But when hurricanes strike the Florida "winter paradise" the Michigan resident can sit back and congratulate himself that he lives in a state where his property is pretty apt to stay put. And when an earthquake causes havoc in California the Michiganian may reflect that he lives in a state in which his house will probably stand until it rots away, unless removed by human hands. It's true, of course, that an occasional windstorm crumples a few buildings in this state, but the damage is local and offers simply a little spice to our existence.—Grand Rapids Press.

Extras That Add Variety to Menu

Tempting Ways of Preparing Dainties Rich in Vitamins.

I wonder if you use in your meal plans many of what are known as "meat extras." Almost every one, of course, uses liver, especially since it has become so well known as a source of vitamins and of iron. Opinion has certainly turned over in a generation in regard to this meat as a constituent to a child's diet.

It used to be considered no food for children, and consequently many people never learned to like it. One point about its increased popularity is deplored by its older devotees, and that is the fact that increased demand for it has made it increase in price.

Kidneys, although they deserve at least part of the consideration given to liver, from the food value angle, have not become as popular and they can still be obtained at a comparatively low price. If you like kidney you usually like it very much indeed, and consequently kidney en brochette and kidney stew are among the real delicacies. Just writing about them makes me want to go to the telephone to order some immediately, a household expert writes.

We find sweetbreads are more popular generally than the other meats of this type. They are, of course, more delicate in flavor and are usually among the most expensive meats. Brains, either of calves or of lambs, may be used in any recipe which calls for sweetbreads, and also sweetbreads can be used in any recipe that calls for calves' or lambs' brains. You will find any number of persons who have never tasted brains who would like them very much if they were introduced to them under the guise of sweetbreads.

Tripes, especially honeycombed tripe, has its devotees, but it is not as well known in general as some of the other "meat extras."

While calves' hearts are considered the choicest, the hearts of beef and lamb are also used. They need comparatively long cooking and should be well seasoned. Stuffed hearts are particularly popular.

It is hardly necessary to mention tongue in connection with this group of meats, because it is more generally used and more popular than any of the others. Fresh, corned, smoked and pickled tongues are all available and you can take your choice.

Tongue is usually served with some sort of a sour sauce.

Household Furnishing Leaders to Receive Fourth Lesson

The household furnishing project activity will again be continued this spring with the fourth lesson being scheduled for March 29th. This will be held in the Boyne City public library beginning promptly at 10 o'clock. Miss Gertrude Reis, specialist in home furnishing from Michigan State college, will again be in charge.

One more lesson will be given on May 3rd, and soon after this particular project ends with a big county-wide achievement day. Of the five lessons in this project the first three were held last fall with the remaining two held over until weather conditions would be more suitable for the leaders to attend.

The subject for discussion on March 29th is on window treatment. The selection and making of curtains to suit every type of window and room will be discussed in detail.

It is hoped that all of the groups in the county that started last fall in this program will again be represented by their two leaders.

Production of Radish Seed to Be Discussed

The production of radish seed has been very popular in this county during the last few years and is a crop that merits considerable attention. For the first time plans have been made for a series of four meetings to be held in the county to discuss radish seed production and many other allied topics. As a result of many rejections this year there is an increasing demand to know what causes poor germination and whether there is anything within the control of the producer to eliminate the possibility of being rejected because of too low germination. The following four meetings will be conducted by C. H. Mahoney of the Michigan State college:

Thursday, March 30, 10:00 a. m., at Barnard grange hall.

Thursday, March 30, 1:30 p. m., at Marion Center grange hall.

Friday, March 31, 10:00 a. m., at county agent's office.

Friday, March 31, 1:30 p. m., at East Jordan library basement.

We are hopeful that as a result of these meetings our farmers will have better success in the production of radish seed than we have had in the past. Apparently about one-half of the seed raised last year was turned down. Possibly a change in cultural methods, a different system of harvesting, or some other practices recommended, might help solve our difficulties.

It is with these intentions in mind that Mr. Mahoney has been secured to give us his recommendations on radish seed production.

Government Seed Loan Machinery Set Up

The supplies and materials necessary for a government crop production loan has now been received by county agent, B. C. Mellencamp. This loan is available for seed, fertilizer, tractor oil and gas, and for all other purposes. Applicants must be bona fide farmers or tenants having a fixed acreage and these loans can not be made for family garden purposes. These loans will bear 5 1/2 per cent interest and fall due on or before October 31, 1933.

A first lien on all crops grown or to be planted, grown, or harvested during the year 1933, or on livestock, shall be required as security for such loan.

It may be required that the borrower must cut his acreage 30 per cent if his past acreages exceed certain limitations.

No loans for crop production in 1933 will be made to any applicant in excess of $300 nor less than $25.

Applicants must agree to plant a garden for home use and a sufficient acreage of feed crop to supply sufficient feed for their live stock.

No loan will be made to any applicant who has a means of livelihood other than farming.

No loan will be made to a minor. No loan in excess of $100 will be made to any applicant who is in arrears on as many as two previous loans.

Loans won't be made for the purchase of machinery or livestock or for the payment of taxes, debts, or interest on debts.

It will facilitate matters if those desiring to make applications will have listed their crop acreage for 1932 and yields, the correct legal description of their property, which can be secured from your tax assessment, a statement of your present indebtedness and obligations and statement of livestock and equipment owned, and inventory statement of seed, grain and feed now on hand. In case you have received previous loans you will have to have the loan number, amount received, balance now due, collateral now held and where held.

To accommodate all applicants, a day each will be spent at the following four locations in the county: hours, 9 to 4 o'clock.

Monday, March 27, Boyne Falls State bank.

Tuesday, March 28, East Jordan library basement.

Wednesday, March 29, Boyne City, county agent's office.

Thursday, March 30, Charlevoix court house, upstairs.

Miss Helen Simon of Boyne City, has been appointed by Mr. Dahl, government district seed loan inspector, to assist Mr. Mellencamp in making out these applications, and will be at the above named points on the dates mentioned to assist you.

Two Fruit Growers Meetings to Be Held March 24th

All fruit and berry growers in the county will be interested in the announcement that H. D. Hootman, specialist, Michigan State college, will be with us on March 24th. Two meetings have been scheduled, the first to be held at 10 o'clock a. m. in the county agent's office, 2nd floor, new post office building, and the second will be at 1:30 at East Jordan in the library basement.

This may be the only opportunity you fruit men will have this winter to get together and discuss your business. The meetings will be very informal and the subjects discussed will be, the future of the fruit business, the outlook for this year, cultural methods, spraying, pruning, etc.

All interested are cordially invited to attend the nearest meeting.

BAD WEATHER BUSINESS

The complaint that in spite of all the talk about the weather no one does anything about it may be, true enough. Yet the weather does plenty to our health, and we are obliged to notice that had weather and bad health go hand in hand. Weather that is blustering and blowing, or that soaks us with rain, sleet, or snow, steals away our body heat and energy. It is the dangerous type of weather for this time of year and for the months ahead.

The Michigan Tuberculosis association points out that this particular angle of the weather problem is something we can do a lot about. We must dress for the weather; especially, must we protect children and the aged, for those at the extremities of life have not the resistance of persons in the middle years. Shoes should have stout soles and should be roomy enough to allow woolen hose to be worn on stormy days. If children must walk through snow or mud to school, let them wear rubbers or carry an old pair of shoes to permit a change when they reach the classroom. The child with warm clothes, stout shoes, a good bed, and plenty of plain food need suffer from bad weather.

GNAT VS. CAMEL

Opposing the plan of giving the president power to consolidate or abolish bureaus and departments is the interest of lower government costs for fear such delegation and exercise of authority would offend the constitution seems like "straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel."

Nothing could be more violently offensive to the constitution than these governmental exercises themselves and the spirit that actuates them. If it is usurpation of power that is feared here it is in these tax-devouring, paternalistic agencies and functions. Friends of the constitution—and there are few enough of them, heaven knows—who can stand for these socialistic activities need have no fear that their destruction could possibly harm the constitution.—Public Service Magazine.

The depression has evidently had its effect on much of the radio talent.

EDITORIALS

MUSCLE SHOALS AGAIN

Newspapers a few days ago carried pictures of President-elect Roosevelt and Senator George Norris, of Nebraska, at Muscle Shoals.

The president-elect is quoted as saying: "This ought to be a happy day for you, George!" With tear-dimmed eyes the western sub replied: "It is a happy day. I can see my dreams coming true."

The above incident is taken to mean the long deadlock in Congress is about to be broken, and that one more government-in-business project will be dug from out of the past and set in motion. Despite the Democratic party pledge to economy, more government millions will be poured into an enterprise that was a monstrosity of folly from the very beginning.

Why not the truth about Muscle Shoals? To begin with, all the power possible of generation on the Tennessee river would not be more than sufficient to supply a city the size of Columbus, Ohio. One hundred and fifty million dollars, or more than five and one-half times the amount necessary, was spent by the government in building this gigantic power plant. Now it is proposed to turn it into competition with private enterprise for the manufacture of commercial fertilizers.

Muscle Shoals is but the entering wedge in governmental activity that eventually, if not halted, is destined to cover a wide area of the Southland. The rest of the nation will be called upon to supply most of the funds needed. The "new deal" promises many things never dreamed of last November.

A NEW RACKET

Beware of the "home improvement" racket now being worked in various parts of the country. Under the stimulus of the "Provide a Job" movement many home owners are preparing to undertake home improvements this spring, most of which will be financed on borrowed capital.

The home owner having such improvements in mind is warned not to do business with strangers, who are going about under the guise of making contracts to do the work contemplated by the householder, but who have no intention of fulfilling their part of the contract.

Their plan is to get the home owner to sign what he believes is an improvement contract, the work to be done at a stated price, payments to begin within 30 or 60 days. In reality what he signs is a lien on his property which the crooks immediately transfer to a third party, who forces the home owner to pay regardless of the service rendered.

In no case is the work ever finished as agreed. Sometimes when threatened with criminal prosecution a pretense of carrying out their part of the contract is made, but immediately abandoned as quick as the danger line has been passed. Paint jobs are left after just a small portion of the building has been covered; plumbing and rebuilding jobs are treated in a like manner. The home owner always loses.

Moral: Don't do business with strangers. Your local painters, carpenters, plumbers, supply houses, will deal honestly with you. Give them a chance to figure on your job.

LIMITED SALES TAX

If there was absolute certainty that a limited gross sales tax, wisely levied and distributed and economical to collect, would be used for the sole purpose of doing away with the state property tax and assisting our public schools and institutions over a bad spot, perhaps much of the opposition to this form of taxation would disappear. If it is designed to be just another tax, with an effort made to exercise every possible economy in state government, then it should not be adopted as part of our taxation system.

The public has already been taxed in certain directions to the point of diminishing returns. Therefore it is easy to understand why any new tax is bound to be met with more or less resentment. However, a gross sales tax, limited in its period of operation to its actual needs as a relief measure, may after all be the most sensible way of meeting our present tax situation. Mississippi has had such a tax since May 1 of last year and the results are said to be satisfactory. It may be worth a trial here in Michigan, provided that the national government does not decide to enter this fertile field.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

"It would be fine," observed His Excellency, the Governor of Michigan, "if the legislators who are permitting politics of either party to prevent action on relief legislation sorely needed by all of Michigan, would take a vacation at the Thousand Islands and remain a month on each island." The news-hawks, those eagle-eyed and hard-boiled watchers in the tower, were unanimous in believing in the sincerity of purpose of Governor Comstock, and equally unanimous in the opinion that his eye and mind are on the immediate present, rather than on the second Tuesday in November, 1934. He is not being crowded or jostled in this position, however, for most of the men in power and a large majority of the members of the Legislature are playing for the gallery instead of the goal. It may be necessary, added the Governor, to adjourn the Legislature and go direct to the people with a program for the forgotten taxpayer.

Oscar G. Olander, Michigan Director of Public Safety and Commissioner of the State Police, heartily endorses the comment of the Florida judge, U. O. Thompson, who sentenced the assassin Zangari to the electric chair after Mayor Cermak's death and the attempt to kill President-elect Roosevelt. Said Judge Thompson: "There should be immediate legislation by Congress for the confiscation of all fire arms illegally owned. Three times assassins roaming at large and permitted to carry pistols have assassinated a president of the United States." In this view, Commissioner Olander thoroughly concurs. He would like to see immediate prosecution of every dealer or pawnbroker selling fire arms in Michigan without the written permit of chiefs of police or sheriffs, as provided in the present lightly enforced Michigan law. Rep. Perry, of Newberry, is reported to be framing a rigid enforcement and penalty bill to strengthen the existing statute.

Lieut. Governor Allen Stehbins is said to be planning for a joint legislative committee in charge of the celebration of the 60th anniversary of the building of the present state capitol at Lansing, which birthday runs through most of 1933. On April 24th, 1873, the Michigan Legislature appointed a committee, long in advance, to arrange for the laying of the corner stone of the million and a half dollar capitol building which Michigan had ordered built. The corner stone was laid on October 2nd, 1873, by Governor John J. Bagley, of Detroit. It required five years to finish the building, which cost $1,510,130.59. In these days of overdrafts and plus expenditures, it is interesting to observe that the builders of a state institution completed in 1878 returned an unexpected refund of $15,110.46, unused from the amount appropriated.

Congressman Prentiss M. Brown, of St. Ignace, a newly elected Democrat to the House of Representatives, has been assigned a membership on the important Committee Banking. Mr. Brown is the president of the First National bank in his home town, and his legal work has been largely devoted to the practice of civil and business law. He was one of the Democrats who voted to give President Roosevelt broad authority to cut down appropriations, including congressional salaries, and the saving of several hundred million dollars a year now being paid to pensioners who were not actually injured or stricken with disease in military or naval service between April 6th, 1917, and November 11th, 1918. The gentleman from St. Ignace favors the immediate payment of the bonus and the payment of all claims for genuine war service disability, but is opposed to maintaining athletes and veterans enjoying good health on either part or full time pensions. The new Congress is considering the wisdom of publishing the names and pensions of all veterans who are and have been engaged in paying civic occupations in spite of their "disabilities."

Senator Joe C. Foster, of Lansing, is a "fish and deer" resident of the upper peninsula, and reputed to be a powerful hunter. He is one of the youngest members of the state Senate and of the "bear cat" variety of fighters, regardless of party lines, when he believes he is right. His speech in the Senate on March 11th will likely mark the high point of direct shooting for this session. Describing the "receivership racket," as he calls it, the Senator read a list of pall bearers for defunct Michigan banks, trust companies and other institutions, giving their names and pay in a voice which could be heard all over the lot. According to Senator Foster, one Detroit lawyer received $25,000 for "initial fees," another $18,000 in "temporary fees," another $10,000 for 30 days work, (2), still another "advance fees" of $60,000. In one case the attorney drew $750 a month and his associate, a dentist, got $500 a month. These fees, bitingly observed Senator Foster, were paid ahead of any returns whatever to stock or bondholders, and added, for good measure: "This racket in Michigan is a colossal steal from a trusting and unsuspecting public, already badly plundered." Further, the Senator said not.

The ashes of that historic Democrat, Thomas Jefferson, should rest in extra repose, now that his faithful servant Rush Culver, of Marquette, has caught up with the party. This distinguished and life long Democrat has received an appointment as special deputy attorney general of Michigan, assigned by Attorney General Patrick H. O'Brien to clear up some important and long drawn out upper peninsula litigation. Rush Culver arrived in Marquette in 1888 and at once stepped into the spot light as attorney for the victorious homesteaders in their case against the old Keweenaw Land association, a frequently quoted Michigan decision. Later he was mayor of Marquette and appointed by President Wilson as receiver of the U. S. Land Office. Mr. Culver built the town of Birch, a one time lumber activity, and was in the midst of many peninsula development activities. When Judge O'Brien lived in the peninsula he and his new assistant became close friends.

BRAYTON WIGHTMAN WAS BURIED MONDAY

Hayes Township Farmer Died Friday at Petoskey

Funeral services were conducted from the home Monday afternoon for Brayton Wightman, well known Hayes township resident, who died Friday at Lockwood hospital, Petoskey, from cancer.

Rev. Edward S. Doan officiated at the services and burial was at Brookside cemetery.

Deceased was born March 17, 1857, in Syracuse, N. Y. In 1879 he went to Kankakee, Ill., where he was later married to Miss Ella Malloy. Three children were born to this union, viz: Mrs. Sadie Keough of Chicago, Sterritt E. Wightman of Bentonville, Ark., and Fred Wightman, deceased. Mrs. Wightman died in 1898.

On July 4, 1901, he was married to Miss Ross Domin of Chicago. In October of the same year they came to Charlevoix county, settling on a farm in Hayes township, where he resided until four months ago when he entered the hospital.

Surviving besides the widow and two children are six grandchildren and one great-grandchild, also one brother, Eaton Wightman of Cutler, Calif.

Relatives attending the funeral were Mrs. Sadie Keough, Miss Grace Keough, Charles, Frank and William Keough, Joe F. Domin, Miss Theresa Wirtel, Mrs. Andrew Wirtel and Miss Mallie Martin, all of Chicago.

Smart politics. Sure, but the most deserving democrat in Clinton county is still waiting, wondering if he is going to get what has been promised, or if the smart boys from Detroit are going to sidetrack him after the spring election.

Door kickers for job seekers.

What is a door kicker? It's a long thin sheet metal plate fastened to the bottom of a door to keep people going in and out from kicking dents in the door.

The hundreds of doors in the state office building have remained in good condition for many years without these "door kickers." Burnett J. Abbott, new secretary of the administrative board, has purchased 9,000 door kickers and ordered them placed on all the doors.

The newspaper boys are wondering if the door kickers were installed because of the influx of job seekers. They have been unable to find out from what friend Abbott purchased the door kickers or what they cost. But they will.

Irked at the inaction of the Legislature, Gov. Comstock appeared recently and took the lawmakers to task. He demanded action on the banking bill. Also there were other important pieces of legislation, among these a bill to increase the cost of a notary public license fee from $1 to $3. The bill has been amended to make the term two years instead of four. This means 7,000 Michigan notaries public will have to buy a $4 bond every two years instead of four. Result: bonding companies get $28,000 every two years instead of every four. The people pay it. To whom is this notary bill important?

What about party lines? Are they drawn sharply? They are not. Sincere legislators of both parties are trying to work out a semblance of order. You will find such men as Democratic Rep. George H. Schoenhals of St. Johns and Republican Rep. Vern J. Brown of Ingham county, conferring and earnestly working together. Lack of a definite program, political jealousy, inexperience and unwillingness to conform to any constructive plan are all contributing factors. More concern over the political patronage than the welfare of the state is undermining any progress.

These are the reasons why the new Michigan administration has not made a start in ten weeks.

COMMUNICATION

"Save the Schools for Our Children"

Many of our people do not realize that our free public school system is actually in danger of being severely crippled or even abolished. There is a nation-wide campaign against free public education being carried on under the guise of economy of saving taxes.

For the suffering that we are now enduring, we can blame only ourselves. Even the financiers and industrialists, upon whom a nation in rising fury is apt to direct its blame, are only themselves part of the scheme of things for which basically the people themselves are solely responsible.

The people could unite and at any time change the order under which they are now suffering and institute in its place a social order which would free them forever from the sheer elemental worries of how to keep alive.

The children must not be victimized. They must not be made to suffer under the design of profiteering interests, nor must they be made to pay for the blunders of their elders. They have as yet had no voice in the choice of the system under which they are governed. Their opportunities and privileges must in no way be abridged because of what we have permitted to happen all about us.

Our children and their future are our greatest stake in this civilization. For the errors we have made, we must not make them pay. Our schools must be maintained at their utmost point of efficiency in the cause of our children.

(Two billion and a half for education. Two billion and a half for smoking.)—Frank Novotny.

AT THE MOVIES

Joan Bennett Couldn't Help Becoming a Star

Though before she was nine years old, Joan Bennett wrote and directed a playlet in which she and her sisters, Constance and Barbara, played the characters, she had no ambition to follow in the footsteps of her distinguished father, Richard Bennett, and her noted mother, Adrienne Morrison, and seek a career on the stage. She was determined to become a business woman and open an interior decorating shop. In fact, she attempted to induce her mother to leave the stage and take a partnership.

The enterprise never materialized and heredity got the chance to assert itself. Miss Bennett went on the stage. Her forbears were all famous stage people, her grandmother, Rose Wood, and her grandfather, Lewis Morrison, being stage favorites for many years. Ability was in her blood. Since then she has played leading roles in "The Trial of Vivienne Ware," "She Wanted a Millionaire," "Week Ends Only" and her recent success, "Wild Girl," in addition to "Me and My Gal" in which she will appear on the Palace theatre screen Saturday and Sunday.

Wednesday evening at 7:45, first Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

"Matter" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, March 19.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (Ps. 14:1,2): "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea."

Correlative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p.96): "This material world is even now becoming the arena for conflicting forces. On one side there will be discord and dismay; on the other side there will be Science and peace. The breaking up of material beliefs may seem to be famine and pestilence, want and woe, sin, sickness, and death, which assume new phases until their nothingness appears."

THREE BALLOTS WILL CON-FRONT VOTERS

Choice of City and State Officers and 18th Amendment Repeal to Be Decided

Choice of city, ward and state officers, and the matter of ratification or rejection of the 18th amendment will confront Charlevoix voters when they go to the polls on Monday, April 3rd.

In regard to city politics, the voters will have a choice between republican and democratic candidates for ward offices for the first time in a good many years.

L. S. See, Ray S. Hamilton and Robert E. Rife, republican nominees at the March primary for the offices of mayor, clerk and treasurer, respectively, are unopposed. In the first ward, Harry A. Craig, republican incumbent for supervisor, is opposed by Joseph M. Foster, democrat. In the second ward, Frank Partridge and E. J. Kibbe, republican incumbents for supervisor and alderman, are opposed by Benjamin Yettaw and Edward Heise. One contest exists in the third precinct, where Thomas Leo Carey, republican nominee, has as his democratic opponent Alonzo Powers.

The state ballot has four parties represented—republican, democratic, socialist and prohibition—each with full tickets. The major contests will undoubtedly be between the first two named parties. For the republicans, victory means retention of practically the last vestige of party control in Michigan. Victory for the democrats means successful completion of a campaign which carried its party candidates into every major state office with exception of secretary of state.

The third, a small special ballot, deals with the liquor proposition. The voters will have a choice between two candidates—one pledged to vote against ratification and the other pledged to vote for ratification—in other words, one wet and one dry. If Michigan chooses a majority of wet candidates, the state stands in favor of repealing the 18th amendment. If the majority chosen are dry, Michigan is against repeal.

Due to the liquor issue and contests for city and state offices, a record spring vote is anticipated Monday.

Official notice of Wisconsin's assent to the plan has not been received as yet, although department executives declare they are confident that they do not expect the neighboring state to have their cars held up.

At noon Wednesday, Mr. Craig had received no official notification of the appointment, nor would state whether or not he would accept the position.

ODD FELLOWS WINNERS IN CRIBBAGE SERIES

Won Monday Night Contest to Complete Victory Over Masons

The winter series of cribbage contests between the Masons and Odd Fellows came to a close Monday evening. The Odd Fellows carried off the series by a good margin, thus avenging a Masonic victory last winter.

The Odd Fellows, who have been in the lead since the series started early in January, completed the conquest Monday night by turning in a team score of 21,784 points as compared to 21,523 for the Masons. This margin of 261 points, added to their previous lead of 708, gives them a total advantage of 967 points for the series.

Monday night's high scorers were Floyd Bartholomew with 958 for the Odd Fellows, and Milton Block with 954 for the Masons.

The losers will put on a "feed" for the winners. A meeting of the Masonic committee will be held this afternoon to decide the date, also to tabulate results to determine individual prize winners.

TEACHING STAFF GET PAY FRIDAY

COUNTY BANK MAKES LOAN TO PROVIDE FUNDS

Teachers Volunteer 30% Salary Reduction for Balance of Year—
Full Term Assured

Voluntary acceptance of a salary reduction by the teaching staff of Charlevoix public schools, coupled with success of the board of education in procuring a loan to provide funds for operation, has guaranteed a pay day for teachers Friday and completion of the 1932-33 school term.

Thus a condition brought about by a tie-up in funds through the banking holiday and delinquency in tax payments has been clarified. Teachers will have their first pay checks issued during the month of March and the schools will continue operation for the remaining weeks of the term without curtailment in departments and curriculum.

The Charlevoix County bank made the loan which provided necessary funds. The teaching staff has volunteered a 30% reduction in salaries, a savings aggregating approximately $4,500.00. The board of education, with an anticipated revenue of $42,000 from various sources prior to July 1, is borrowing only such funds as are absolutely necessary for operation, putting up as collateral anticipated revenue. Loans will be paid as soon as funds come in to save interest charges and, if tax payments are sufficient during the remaining months of school, further loans will not be necessary. In this respect, however, assurance of additional loans, if necessary, has been made by officers of the County bank.

With their more immediate difficulties solved, the board of education is working out a plan for operation of schools during the 1933-34 term. Judging from the present outlook, considerable curtailment in departments and wholesale reduction in expenses will be necessary to keep within the limited funds which will be available.

JUNIOR-SENIOR PLAY SET FOR NEXT FRIDAY

Cast Will Present Geo. M. Cohan's
"A Prince There Was."

"A Prince There Was," one of George M. Cohan's most clever and delightful plays, will be presented at the high school gymnasium the evening of Friday, April 7.

An excellent cast has been chosen from the membership of the junior and senior classes. All but one are members of the drama club and thus have had considerable experience during this year and last in the production of one-act plays.

Among those who will appear in the cast are John Winder, Albert McMillan, Bernard Foster, Miss Luella Hendrickson, Byrnee Lamphear, Ruth Krueger, Jerine Smith, Virginia Taylor, Lloyd Arnold, Marquis Roen, Doris Chvatil, Harry Goldstick and Crawford Norton, Dorothy Partridge and Mary Helen Fochtman are the stage managers.

Prices have been lowered substantially for adult and student admissions.

Don't Be Fooled Again

What the change in state administration has brought to Michigan is clearly outlined in the following letter to the Courier from Douglas D. Tibbitts, Charlevoix-Lecanau district representative in the Legislature. His letter follows:

"You have no doubt read in the Detroit papers how, in spite of Democratic promises of an economy program, that the state payroll is now just about the same as it was two years ago. Upon reading these statements Bill Vought and I started out to get available figures to prove or disprove them. We find that on the whole these statements are based on facts, but we also find that in Fitzgerald's office, the only Republican returned to office last fall, that the payroll is averaging from 25 to 30% less than two years ago, with the same activities, and in Dillman's administrative department the payroll cost is 26% less than last year and 49% less than two years ago. However, some of his activities have been curtailed.

"The answer to all this is obvious. The savings that have been effected in the offices of the Secretary of State and Highway Commissioner are being offset by extravagance in the Democratic offices, which simply means that these offices are being operated at a much higher cost than heretofore. One instance is in the office of Attorney General where there are now 42 on the payroll as against 28 last year under Republican administration.

"All of this just goes to show that the mess of wild promises made to us last fall don't mean a thing, when it comes to providing jobs for good political friends and relatives. We, both of us, trust that the Republican voters of Charlevoix county will not again be deceived by empty promises made on the eve of election. A lot of them were fooled last fall, let's hope it won't happen again."

COUNTY-WIDE GOOD FRIDAY IS PLANNED

These services will have the cooperation of all evangelistic churches in the county except the local Methodist church.

Services will be held in the Boyne City Presbyterian church between 1:15 and 3:00 p. m. At East Jordan the services will be between 2:00 and 3:45 in the Presbyterian church. In Charlevoix the services will be held in the Congregational church between 1:15 and 3:00 o'clock.

The speakers in Charlevoix will be James Leich, Methodist, and C. W. Sidobotham, Presbyterian pastors of East Jordan, also the local pastors, L. T. Mark, W. H. Rauch and G. R. Parker. A program will appear on two or three windows in the business district. No doubt, according to a custom of the past two years, business houses will close during the hours 12 to 3 p. m.

MAY MAKE STATE PARK OF ONE OF THE "SNOWS"

U. S. Department of Commerce
Offers Property to State

Possibility that some time in the future a Michigan state park will be located on one of the nationally famous Les Cheneaux Islands in Mackinac county has resulted from action taken by the conservation commission at its March meeting.

The commission, in reply to an inquiry from the United States department of commerce relative to disposal of an island it owns in the group, said that it would accept the property were it tendered to the state.

RATIFICATION ISSUE DECIDED NEXT MONDAY

Decision of Voters Will Show Michigan Stand On Repeal

Next Monday the voters of the state will decide at the polls whether Michigan is to ratify or reject the repeal amendment to the United States Constitution.

The state convention to meet in Lansing April 10th is a mere formality, as the voters will already have decided the matter in making a choice between delegates pledged to vote for or against repeal.

Ratification by conventions in three-fourths of the states is necessary to repeal. The legislatures are vying with each other to have their states first to ratify the repeal amendment, reversing the picture of fifteen years ago when they were hurrying to ratify the eighteenth.

Many still believe prohibition is the best method of dealing with the liquor traffic. They also believe if the states ratify in haste it will mean "repent at leisure."

The large cities are hopelessly wet. The country districts are the only hope of the dries. There is hardly time to apprise all the voters that the question of ratification or rejection so far as Michigan is concerned, will be settled at the polls April 3rd.

But the die is cast. The issue is clear cut. Everyone should work to get out the vote so that the decision will represent the desire of the majority of the people.—By Press Director, W. C. T. U.

REPUBLICANS HELD RALLY MONDAY NIGHT

A. L. Burridge and C. C. Barnes
Speakers on Program

A small gathering attended the Republican mass meeting held Monday evening at the high school gymnasium.

Herman C. Meyer of Boyne Falls, county Republican chairman, presided over the meeting, which was called to order following several selections by the school band.

L. A. Burridge, Cadillac, northern division engineer of the state highway department, outlined the department's policies and conduct under the regime of Grover C. Dillman, Republican incumbent. He urged Mr. Dillman's re-election on the basis of his past record.

C. C. Barnes, registrar and dean of men of Central State Teachers' college, Mt. Pleasant, spoke convincingly on the qualifications of Webster H. Pearce, Republican candidate for superintendent of public instruction.

The urge was made to voters to support the entire Republican ticket at the election April 3rd.

CREW OF 120 MEN EMPLOYED ON COUNTY ROADS

March Appropriation of $6,000 Has Been Used—Present Work Financed by Expense Funds

Unemployment relief highway projects are being continued this week in Charlevoix county under supervision of R. T. Davis, county maintenance superintendent.

Several crews, comprising altogether about 120 men, are being employed on this week's "shift." The operations have been transferred from state trunk line to county highways under what is officially known as the "exchange plan" of operation outlined by the state highway department.

This plan will likely be better understood when it is explained that the various counties carrying out R. F. C. financed emergency projects were required to furnish equipment, compensation for workmen, materials, overhead, etc., in order to obtain the loans. In return for such expenditure, they are reimbursed to an amount similar to the expense incurred for county highway work.

Charlevoix county is now working on its "exchange" allotment, amounting to approximately $1,500. It is expected the work will continue until Friday before this sum is expended. Unfortunately it is necessary under the plan of procedure which the counties must follow, that the amount be expended within the period for which the allotment was made. Charlevoix county has been using its March allotment of $6,000, thus they must spend the "exchange" funds in March when weather and road conditions are not at all favorable for such work. A week or so later, when the frost has left the ground and the roads dried up, a good deal more could have been accomplished than under present conditions.

Last week the peak employment on relief highway projects reached about 175 men. The work carried on was roadside development which was started late in February when this county received its first loan.

The meeting, the last legal one for outgoing council members, was adjourned until April 6th for canvass of the vote cast April 3rd and to complete any unfinished business.

DD STATE'S NEEDY NEED A 'HOLIDAY?'

INSTITUTIONS SAVE, BUT ATT'Y O'BRIEN SPENDS

State Senate Is Leading Candidate for Job in the "Slow Motion" Movies

(By S. L. Marshall.)

"Cut $50,000 from your budget." That was the import of a letter received by the board of trustees of Howell sanatorium. It came from Senator Henry Glasner of Charlotte, chairman of the Senate finance committee. It came after the board had spent hours trimming here, cutting there, and eliminating this and that.

It was a discouraging prospect for men who serve the state without a cent of pay. Three of these men are outstanding specialists in tubercular work. We refer to Dr. E. J. O'Brien, famous Detroit surgeon; Dr. Chadwick, brought from the East to head Detroit's Herman Keifer sanatorium, and Dr. Vanderslice of Lansing. It was a discouraging outlook for 480 tubercular patients.

Already the costs at the Howell institution are among the lowest in the whole United States. The average salary of the 211 people employed is exactly $661.37 a year (about $55 a month)—that includes doctors, nurses and on down to the scrub women.

There seemed to be but one solution to Senator Glasner's demand. That was to close the children's wing; send 80 tubercular children away. The board debated it. Finally they decided that the Legislature itself must decide the matter.

The board wanted economy, but they didn't have the heart to turn out the children. Also there are 400 adults lying in beds at Howell. Some of them are mothers and fathers.

Economy!

Economy at any price! Let's see how some of the new departments at Lansing are saving the taxpayers' money. Let's take a peek into the Attorney General's department and examine the pay roll.

Here are some figures:

Pay roll for first 16 days of March, 1933 (Dem.).....$5,280.04

Pay roll for last 16 days of Dec., 1932 (Rep.).....$3,809.96

Increase under Attorney General O'Brien.....$1,470.08

That isn't much. No, not for 16 days; but multiply it by 24 pay days in a year and you have an increase in this department of $35,281.92.

Add to it the $4,000 salary that

Gov. Comstock feels it necessary to pay his Special Attorney Ferris, and add to it the $4,000 salary for Atty.

Young on the Public Debt commission and you have a total increased cost of the State of Michigan's legal advice of $43,281.92 for a year.

Is this economy?

Is this why $50,000 must be lopped off the care of 480 tubercular patients at the Howell sanatorium?

Grover C. Dillman, state highway commissioner, suggested to the administrative board that a surplus of army clothes be taken to needy people in the upper peninsula in state highway trucks. The suggestion was made at the meeting Tuesday, March 14.

That sounds sensible. There were underclothes, overcoats, suits and shoes—old to be sure, but warm.

Why not give them to poor people who needed them? Fine. Everything was set. Senator William Doyle, of Menominee, and Senator Derham, of Marquette, were interested in this.

The show is melting swiftly. The birds will soon be here. The buds are bursting quickly. For Spring will soon be here.

—Steve Pavlik.

Mary Savara is a frequent visitor at our school.

We think, we learn by doing? Is there any better way?

Visitors are always welcome. Come and see us a work or play. Geraldine VerSnyder visited us for a while last Tuesday afternoon.

The second graders finished their reader this week and are going to begin a new one.

Elsie Hilton has finished all her club work, except the finishing touches to her dress.

Steve Faculak says he has a truck almost completed, ready to demonstrate for us someday.

The boys have nearly finished their club work. Most of us are ready to paint our articles now.

Jim Bunk made a "windmill" from cedar, spools, etc. A very good looking home-made invention.

Our teacher reads us a chapter from "Uncle Tom's Cabin" every morning. We all enjoy it very much.

Steve Pavlik brought a woodchuck to school to be examined. Monday. First hand information is the best, we think.

Steve Pavlik says he has some riddles we can't guess next Friday, so we are sharpening up our wits to fool Steve.

Our sixth grader had his monthly exams Friday and judging by them, he has shown much improvement in the past month.

The third graders have been laboring with the multiplication tables most of the year and are trying to master division now.

The fifth graders have finished their hygiene books and are beginning a new book we borrowed from Charlevoix county normal.

Our attendance for the month ending March 24th was 98.6 per cent. The highest we have had this year. Our average for the year is 93 plus per cent.

The following pupils had a few hours vacation Friday afternoon because they had a perfect attendance: Eleanor Bunk, Edward Bunk, James Bunk, Steve Pavlik, Edward Pavlik, Robert Vratnina, Elsie Hilton.

CENTRAL LAKE

Vote day Monday.

Ed. Hobden is back home again.

Sheriff Carl Rushton was in town on business last week.

They say spring is here, but still it was but 15 above Tuesday morning.

The M. E. parsonage is occupied again after standing idle since the Kendall family left last fall.

There were 47 present at Barnard church at Sunday school last Sunday, and 83 at Central Lake M. E. church Sunday school.

C. H. Morse, son of Doyle, Ebon and Edward Dawson and Arthur Russell were looking for land in the Jordan river neighborhood last week.

Alva Burch of Kewadin, was over this way the first of the week looking up the proposition of bringing his shingle mill over in the Essex neighborhood.

Attorney T. D. Meggison of Traverse City, was at the Exchange bank on business last Saturday. This bank opened up with "business as usual" last week.

Ebon Dawson will move off from the Vern Burch farm on the Torch lake shore to Bay View store building, opposite the Bay View school house, this week.

Guy White, cashier of the First National bank, and W. S. Richardson of Charlevoix, were in Grand Rapids Saturday on business connected with the banking situation.

The M. E. ladies had a good crowd out to their play Friday evening. The receipts go to the support of the church. The basement is now about all completed, thanks to the help of Harold Acnis and other young people.

Lloyd Morse was in the Bay View neighborhood Monday getting help to build his new barn on his farm that he has lately erected for his driving horses. He uses these horses at Mrs. Mattison's Crystal Lake Girls' camp.

The Milan Greenman families came down with the measles this week and are kept out of school. The S. S. Arnold children are out on account of chickenpox. Some in town have been kept out on account of scarlet fever.

Mrs. Vera Smith tells us that her relatives in California got a severe shaking up during the recent earthquake shock, as they live only about twenty miles east of Los Angeles. She says about three hundred different shocks were felt. California is one place in the United States where the children get a shaking up.

We noticed Sunday the fine pulpit that has been presented to the Barnard church by Mrs. William Burns in memory of her husband, who passed away last summer. It is a fine pulpit of hardwood with William T.

Burns' name on the front. The M. E. circuit certainly are very grateful to Mrs. Burns for this fine memorial.

The Norwood M. E. Sunday school have their social hour at the church there next Friday evening, in charge of Misses Bessie and Mary Baumbach. These young ladies have taken a very active part in the Sunday school and it is needless to say that this will be an enjoyable affair. Barnard church has its social hour Saturday evening, April 1st, and you should be on your guard if you don't want to be "April fooled."

Barney Mitchell came over from Mancelona last week Wednesday and called off the road work on M-88. A meeting was held at the court house at Bellaire and survey commissioners appointed to determine who were the most needy. It had been reported that farmers who had cows and chickens for support were working, and one fellow as soon as he had received his week's pay spent three dollars for a jug of whiskey, and many dollars went for tobacco. This helps out the great tobacco companies and the breweries, but what kind of help charity gets from the breweries and tobacco companies is a question unanswered.

A series of slippery walk accidents took place here again last Saturday. Fred Hodges started off by falling and breaking his arm just below the shoulder. Mrs. A. M. Smith, east side, fell and fractured her hip. Dr. Don Duffie has been caring for them. Mrs. Cornell, wife of the auctioneer, fell and was slightly bruised, as was Mr. Ballard of the Darling store. By a coincidence most of the accidents have happened Saturday, and many of them near the barber shop on State street. We told Mr. Ballard that he would have to get some of them things with corks in them. He says, "They don't have them out until April 7th."

Many relatives and friends were saddened Saturday to hear of the sudden death Friday of Mrs. Maud Youngs at Traverse City. Death was caused by black cypripas. As it was a dangerous communicable disease no funeral was held, just services at the Southern cemetery here. She leaves a father, Mr. Slocum, who has been stopping at the Hiler Whitney home, and an adopted daughter, Miss Justine Sage. Mrs. Youngs had been the proprietress of the Maud's Cafe here. She had but recently moved to Traverse City. Her husband committed suicide here about a year ago.

Buffalo Meat on Sale in Canadian Markets

The Canadian meat markets have handled more than 500,000 pounds of buffalo meat during recent weeks—not because they were short on beef, pork and mutton, but because the government herd of buffalo in the Watkins National park had increased beyond the capacity of the park ranges to sustain them. Consequently one year's increase—about 1,200—have been slaughtered.

This may look like a big killing, but it is hardly enough to satisfy the Canadians on that kind of food. To be specific, 500,000 pounds would not supply one ounce each to Canada's 10,000,000 people. The buffalo of Canada were about to go the way of those of our own western plains, when the conservationists idea got sufficient hold to conceive and carry out a big national park devoted to their preservation.

The venture has proven so successful that there is no longer any danger whatever of the extermination of this noble American animal in Canada, and two herds are maintained in the United States, one in Yellowstone park and the other in the Montana Indian range. These herds, like the one at Watkins, increase so rapidly that it is necessary, occasionally, to reduce them in the food capacity of the range by slaughtering a portion for the market.

Our Government—How It Operates

By William Bruckart

OUR POSTAL SERVICE

IT IS possible that you felt you had some complaint to make last July when you had to place a three-cent stamp on your letters instead of the red two-center that sufficed prior to that time, but I will wager you did not make much noise about it after all. I think that I can tell you the reasons why you complained so little about that increase of one-third in the postal rates; there is nothing that gives you so much for so little as does the postal service.

Had the hundred increased your rent by a third, you would have moved right out; had the grocer raised any price that much, you would have gone immediately to his competitor, and had you been told by your bank that the interest rate you were paying was to be raised 25 per cent, you would have sworn vengeance.

I have wondered since that rate increase went into effect whether possibly it was not a good thing from the standpoint of patrons of the postal service as well as assuring to the federal government something near the amount of funds it has to have to pay operating expenses. The fact that there was an increase in rates, especially on letters, brought to the attention of all of us the benefits we had been enjoying through years and years of that service, which we are used to as a matter of course.

It costs between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000 to operate that far-flung system known as the postal service each 12 months. The principle was inaugurated in our governmental structure when the nation was formed that this service should be self-sustaining, though it is run by the federal government. It never has been quite able to pay its own way, but at the same time it never has been much of a charge on the government itself.

The reason postal rates never have quite succeeded in producing sufficient revenue to pay all expenses of the great organization that serves, is that fundamental belief that it should not be an agency for profit. In other words, congress always has clung to the idea of having the postal service do its job just as cheaply (for the people) as it can and that it is better for it to fall just a little short of making expenses than to take from those who use that service more than is needed. If there is a deficit at the end of the year, as there nearly always has been, congress has been willing to take care of it with an appropriation from funds received by general taxation.

But in the last several years when the volume of letters fell off as it always does when there is not much business, the amount of the deficit grew to a size which congress decided was a little too large. So it turned to the increase in the postage rate on letters to make up part of the loss. That one-cent increase probably will not be enough to offset the undistributed deficit completely, but it will reduce the difference between the income and the expenses to a comparatively small sum. If there had been no rate increase, I am told that the deficit from last July to the end of next June would have approached $200,000,000.

And that brings another thought. As a people, Americans have always stood against the government engaging in business. Of course, there are exceptions, yet that has been our general conception. We have always said as a people that government was not created for any other purpose than to govern. It was not a business institution as we know business. Yet, there are in many greater businesses than the postal service, and it is not an agency that governs our conduct or our relations with our neighbors except indirectly. Why, then, should not private capital and private industry perform the service and enjoy the profits therefrom?

The answer is simple. The reason is that those who conceived our form of government and envisioned the magnitude of our nation, at the same time, saw the necessity for a uniform system of handling its written communications.

Those men recognized more than a century and a half ago that the individual states must not be allowed to control the means of communication; that when a letter was once started on its way, it must go on, and that only one agency could be made responsible if success were to be attained.

The post master general occupies the post of head of the post office department. Embedded in it are dozens of supervisory agencies, filled for the most part by men and women who have moved up through the ranks of workers who gained appointment in the service only after meeting civil service tests. They were promoted on merit.

What I have said relative to the machinery of the postal service does not apply, however, to several thousand post misters who gain jobs by appointment from the President, not after an examination of their qualifications but after they have qualified with the politicians. Fortunately for patrons of the mails, however, the machine runs on without squeaks because it was organized on a sound basis, as we later shall see.

Lavish Use of Shirring and Tucking

By CHIERIE NICHOLAS

THERE is a vast amount of shirring, tucking, and we might add, braiding going on in the realm of costume design today. Every once in a while creator of our styles—beautiful do just that—delves into the past for inspiration.

This time research among fashions of yore has caused creators of our styles—beautiful to feel a strong urge to shirr or tuck or braid not only in a trimming way, but according to news from Paris some of the most successful frocks in late collections are either shirred or tucked or braided from head to foot.

The heavy shirrs and chiffons which are so enthusiastically exploited for general daytime wear, respond beautifully to these treatments. The effectiveness of all-over shirring is convincingly illustrated in the model shown to the left in the picture. In gray, in the new spring shade, in black, navy or any of the fashionable colors, for that matter, this costume would be as successfully outstanding. Not only does it carry all the feminine graces but it is thoroughly practical and wearable.

It makes quite a difference as to what sort of a blouse is worn with this jacket suit of shirred heavy shirrs. For instance the blouse shown gives it a tailored look thus tending the costume to the practical hours of the day. Substitute for this tailored satin blouse a feilly affair of lace, or match ing chiffon, or a net in some intriguing pastel tint and this lovely ensemble takes on the air of a most beguiling afternoon costume which is on its way to a bridge party, perhaps, or tea at some fashionable rendezvous or a musicale, a matinee or any of the smart gatherings where guests are expected to dress pictorially to the occasion.

You'll love the other frock here pictured. Every one does at very first glimpse. It is of tuck black chiffon. Its apparent simplicity is positively baffling for it is really ultra sophisticated so far as high style is concerned. The white organdie accents at neckline and sleeves are to be expected, for organdie furnishings have become a passion. The net is in midland. This lace straw is outstanding in latest millinery showings.

Used in a trimming way shirring and tucking are also immensely popular. Particularly do the smartest designers show gorgeous and decorative groups of shirrings. Then, too, the fanciful little wraps mostly of tulle or velvet, which are more in evidence than ever, are largely a matter of intricate and novel shirrings. As has been mentioned before, this revival of quaint trimmings treatments has also brought braiding into fashion again. So much so, that many charming net evening dresses are designed with braided with soutache in self color, if not the entire frock then at least the sleeves and yoke and probably a cape effect of some sort.

IT'S FINE BRIMS OR SWELL TOQUES

If you like brims, fine. If you prefer toppers, swell. If you lean to tailored sailors, that's all right. If you yearn for floppy and romantic hats, wear them.

Because the millinery mode of the moment is so flexible that you may appear in practically any style that your conscience dictates, and still be in style.

You may wear shallow crowns, or deep ones. You may wear beards or wide capeline hats. You may wear severe snailors or Turkish fezettes.

It's all agreeable to the style dictators. For they're presenting models in every one of these groups. And each one is now, they say, and correct.

The new high back tricornie toques are smart—especially one of black felt with a stitched cut of black silk shantung, a self-bow and a scroll-patterned veil.

For your sports things, you'll want one of the new casual brimmed hats of ballmunt.

Women Now Have Yen for Fancy Striped Suitings

Men's wear houses are surprised to see how many of their fancy striped men's suitings are ordered for women's suits. Tailored flannels and pin-point checks with plain companions are best sellers for the tailored spring suit. In these, mannish exotics and other grays are strong.

Worsted twill is another mannish wooden type that is being sponsored. Crisp, springy and ideal for tailoring, worsted twill reaches its heights in that old-fashioned tan tone most closely associated with twills of the past.

Milliners Are Stressing Colored Ribbon Trimming

Milliners are emphasizing multi-colored ribbon trimmings, often in criss-cross combination, such as yellow, violet, green and black, or else a combination like orange, green and navy.

Tulle combines pale gray with turquoise (both of which colors are high style favorites), using this combination for one of her high-crowned all-rectoire sailors.

Tiny crin horsehair veils and tortoise shell motifs are among the smart millinery trimmings.

ULTRA CHIC "LINES"

By CHIERIE NICHOLAS

To the untutored this evening wrap made of cherry colored matelasse velvet may seem a bit quaint but to those who know, it is an ultra modern fashion. It qualifies as such in that firstly it is the new finger tip length. Secondly its full sleeves are ermine-lined so as to give the broad short-sleeved look which style leaders say we must have. Thirdly its collarless neck-line buttons close up about the throat which obeys the latest edict of fashion. Lastly but of outstanding significance is the fact that the velvet of which it is made is the very new matelasse type which is sort of crinkly surface. The handsome leveled satin mesh, also convey an important style message. With the younger set particularly this type of wrap is meeting with high favor.

MONEY MERELY ONE FORM OF EXCHANGE

Barter Found Too Crude for the Purpose.

When a schoolboy swaps his galuses and an apple for some choice nibbles or butts of a cigarette he is engaging in a trade practice which goes back pretty far in history, according to D. C. Linn, writing in the Chicago Tribune. Direct exchange of commodities known as barter was the means by which the earliest exchanges were effected.

But barter makes difficult the division of labor; that is, that scheme of having some folks do some things and other folks other things. The bartering shoemaker who is in need of some feed for his horse must not only find the farmer who has feed, but one who also wants a pair of shoes. But it isn't that simple. The farmer with a stock of feed, while in need of footwear, may have a still greater need or desire for some article other than shoes which he expects to procure in trade for his horse feed. And there is also the question of the relationship of feed to shoes; how much oats equals a pair of kicks?

Barter is a waste of time in that it introduces the necessity not only of finding an individual who has what you want and wants what you have, but one that you can strike a bargain with.

Man wasn't long out of the tree before ways were found for surmounting these difficulties. In every tribe some commodities came to be generally prized and acceptable to nearly all persons. These came to be used as the means for expressing the value of other things and for effecting trades. Those who had articles to dispose of would accept the commonly prized shoes to the weaver for some of the medium of exchange and at his own convenience he could use his receipts to buy from the farmer and from others. Such was the origin of money.

A great variety of articles have served as money. When white men came to America they found the Indians using strings of wampum as a medium of exchange. These strings of beads had value and were acceptable to every Indian, because every Indian desired to be decorated.

Among other trading tribes, skins of animals were the medium of exchange.

Among pastoral peoples, cattle and sheep were generally recognized as valuable, and were used in making exchanges. In Africa, cubes of salt have been used. Tea has been employed for the purpose in parts of Asia. In Virginia, tobacco long served as the standard of value. Other commodities which have constituted money, include rice, dates, coconuts, cowry shells and many metals.

The most common misconception of money arises from a failure to recognize that money did not originate with the government. It was an article of such generally recognized worth that it would be effectively used for a medium of exchange. Its use as such developed from the customs of individuals.

Money was and is a commodity which circulates by weight, as do other commodities. It has value because of its intrinsic worth, not because of what a government may call it. The very name of coins can be traced back to units of measurement, in the case of metals, units of weight. The shekel of the Hebrews was a weight. The as of the Romans was originally an ingot of copper, supposed to weigh an as. The livre of the French, the Spanish peso, the English pound, the German mark, were all originally names of weights.

If in their later years the monetary units did not weigh as much as origin of their names suggests, the fault lies with the kings who debased the coins below their original weights.

LET'S BE FAIR

Republicans in office with long records of faithful public service are just as much entitled to the support of all the people as the national Democratic administration is deserving of nonpartisan assistance while attempting to find a solution of our problems on a nation-wide scale. There is a general belief at the present time that only through universal cooperation can we hope to emerge safely from the difficulties confronting us. The same spirit of helpful support given President Roosevelt should be applied here in this state where time-tried public servants are seeking reelection on platforms of efficient, economical and learned administration of public affairs. If the people wish to be fair and impartial in their decision they will hear this truth in mind when casting their votes. Fairness in matters of this kind will be a mutual pledge for continued progress in good government.

THE DILLMAN POLICY

It must be adequately clear to the people of Michigan, that even during the stress of a political campaign it has not been necessary for Grover C. Dillman to trim any of his sails to meet the storms of political strife. His administration of the highway department remains just as it has always been—honest and efficient. He has no nostrums to trade an unaccepting public in return for votes. He has repeatedly stated that he prefers defeat to making his office a stamping ground for hungry job hunters and the special privilege boys.

Nor should the public be deceived by the promises of the opposition. To stop all highway construction at this time means the money now going into new roads would be used to feather the nest of a horde of welfare workers in Detroit and Wayne county at the expense of the rest of the state. The present weight tax returns to the counties more than they pay back in state tax. If it is deemed wise to make any change in this tax the agricultural sections of Michigan should see to it that their interests are protected. Mr. Dillman can be safely trusted to suggest such changes as will benefit the people of the state as a whole. His constant and continued fidelity to public trust should find its reward at the April election.

LITTLE RED SCHOOL

While his Democratic opponent is engaged in proposing drastic and ruinous elimination of certain portions of our higher educational units for the purpose of attracting votes, Webster H. Pearce, superintendent of public instruction, with far-seeing courage and vision, has ruled that school districts will not be compelled to observe the strict letter of the law regarding certain educational requirements in order to receive their portion of the primary school monies.

Because of this sensible decision hundreds of rural schools will be helped over a rough spot and the education of our young people in the agricultural districts, which have experienced almost tragic difficulties in keeping their schools open, will be continued without interruption. When we speak of economy in connection with our educational structure it has never been intended to include serious impairment of that portion coming in direct contact with our young people. Webster H. Pearce believes in common sense application of economy in connection with our schools, not a visionary attempt to mislead the public. Voters will do well to remember this at the polls on April 3.

HE IS HUMANE

The Legislature has extended the zero hour for procuring automobile license plates until April 1. It has also provided for the payment of one-half of the tax now and the balance when the plates are secured on August 1. This will permit thousands of motor car owners to continue use of their cars, who otherwise would have found it impossible to have paid the entire tax on March 1 as in former years.

We suspect that behind this humane treatment of the distressed motorist can be found the sympathetic support of Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald. If there is one official in Michigan who can incorporate human equation into the affairs of government it is Frank Fitzgerald. He is himself of the plain people. His early struggles in life have given him a sympathetic understanding of the severe strain through which we are passing; it is not surprising to find him cast in the role of official relief during a time of stress. Such a type of man in the governor's chair would promise much for the public weal.

NOT NEEDED HERE

Michigan, so we are told, is to have a third party, a farm labor organization. It is to be organized by the agricultural and labor elements or rather the political farmers and laborers. How much the movement will amount to remains to be seen. It's our opinion that a party built upon a material interest such as the benefit of one class of the community has never attained much prestige. If the Democrats fail, there is the possibility of a coalition of forward looking members of both parties that will spell the possibility of a realignment of forces something like that which happened in England when parties shifted to a conservative and liberal basis. The chances are that the Michigan movement has the leaves and fishes as its objective. Tom Conlin in the Crystal Falls Diamond Drill.

GROSS INCOME TAX

Tax reduction without tax revision, is not going to give us the relief we are all hoping for. Let the Legislature pass every tax reduction bill it has before it and not a single farm will be saved as a result.

Reduce salaries, discharge working men and women, cut to the bone and the result will be reduced purchasing power with a consequent stiffening of the depression. Men and women now who have jobs are so fearful of losing them that they won't spend their money. Farm prices are down; merchants are suffering for business because the purchasing power of the people has been destroyed. We talk about a program of public works to put them to work and in the same breath we clamor for tax reduction. Well, we can't have both.

Over 60 per cent of the people of Michigan are escaping taxation under the present method. That's why tax revision is necessary. We can make every man and woman responsible to the government by the payment of taxes. And this tax under whatever guise you make it MUST BE PAID OUT OF GROSS INCOME. The only question is: What per cent are they to pay and pay all the people to pay it?

Of course we want to abolish government waste and government expenditures. More important — we want to put all governments on a cash basis, but unless we have tax revision, as well as tax reduction, we can't hope for much real relief.

It is proposed to publish the names of the principal gold holders. Fair enough. The threat may serve to bring some of the gold out of hiding. But how about the panicky and selfish individuals who have also contributed to the weakening of banks and our financial structure by withdrawing their deposits and concealing currency in safety deposit boxes, tin cans and what not? They too deserve some publicity.

This point is raised merely to indicate that while the suggestion about publicity will meet with general approval it is not very practical. Why not include folks who don't pay their bills in the publicity exposure? That might have a salutary effect also!

The public interest will not permit continuance of the present chaotic condition, in which the railroad is strictly regulated and the truck is free to compete in any way it pleases. The law, both federal and state, should establish just competitive relations between the two systems without delay.

STATE FORCES READY TO PROTECT FORESTS

Thousand Men Go on Duty April 15th Throughout State

A crew of approximately 1,000 men, all of them trained and all of them properly equipped will go on duty April 15, prepared to battle the season's forest fires.

The forest fire crew is made up of about 800 "key men," who are called out only when needed; towermen who man approximately 130 fire towers; and regular fire wardens who work for a period of from six to seven months.

The "key men" are selected by local regular fire wardens, and practically the same crew is retained every season because of the training these men have received in forest fire suppression work. The "key men" are summoned only when needed to fight fire, and because of their experience are considered invaluable in directing small fire fighting crews.

PUT WHITEFISH FRY IN LAKE CHARLEVOIX

Million Planted Last Week By Members of Sportsman's Club

Following out a plan inaugurated last year of planting species of commercial fish in Lake Charlevoix, members of the Charlevoix Sportsman's club last Wednesday put a million whitefish fry in that body of water.

Working under the direction of Chester M. Bonny, local conservation officer, transfer of the fry was made from the federal hatchery by truck. The tiny fish were released through holes cut in the ice.

Last year the club members planted a million lake trout fry in Lake Charlevoix. An equal, if not larger number, will be planted again this year when the fry is available early in April.

A Correction!

In last week's issue of the Courier it was stated that between 35 and 40 thousand whitefish fry were planted from the local federal hatchery. The amount instead, should have read between 35 and 40 million.

If there's anybody who didn't have a hand in bringing on the depression, we'd like to meet him.

NORTH'S HOPES ARE IN TWO INDUSTRIES

Timber Production and Recreation Pay Best Says Authority

Timber production and recreation in its broadest sense are the two most promising industries in the waste land districts of Northern Michigan, according to Willett F. Ramsdell, professor of Forest Land Management at the University of Michigan.

In a report to the Michigan commission of inquiry into county, township and school district government, recently released, Professor Ramsdell said that the two industries are independent to a very large degree.

Both timber production and recreation properties are largely held by non-resident owners, using the township as the unit of residence," he said.

The professor, who has completed a survey of twenty-one townships and six counties, urged Northern Michigan government agencies to take full advantage of all recreational opportunities to encourage the tourist business.

"They should plan timber cutting and reforestation on a long time basis," he said. "The cut out and get out timber policy must be discontinued or population will decline and the local governments will find themselves in sore financial straits."

Michigan is over-crowded with justices of the peace and as a result the majority of them do not hear a case once a year, according to Prof. Edson R. Many Ways of Serving Mushrooms to Bring Out Delicious Flavor

One Favored Method Is to Saute Them in Butter, but Almost Everything Depends on Proper Preparation and Cooking.

"Please give mushroom recipes," writes a reader. "I have been looking for some recipes but have not found them."

In response, an authority on the subject has this to say:

It is a treat to go to market and find mushrooms, tender and white in their baskets and to find them at bargain prices. Of course we have become used to good quality and low prices for this delectable vegetable, which used to be a luxury in which only the woman with an enlarged pocketbook could indulge except for special occasions, perhaps.

Fresh mushrooms used to be available only in the late summer and then only when it had been a rainy season. We went out to the country on mushroom hunts after a rain in August or September. I found them as late as November when fall weather had been propitious. They must be picked as early in the morning as possible, as the sun "cooks" their delicate "faintness" and "parisons" after they have picked their way out of the ground. Of course I never miss a chance to go mushroom hunting now, although they are not such a treat when we can go to the market any day from early fall to summer and buy the cultivated mushrooms at such a low price.

Recipes in old cookbooks tell you to skin but not wash mushrooms. The very tender mushrooms of today do not need to be skinned if they are really fresh, so we wash them instead. By the way, a white creamy color is usually the test of fresh mushrooms but there is a variety which has a light brown shade and it will be as tender as the others if fresh.

Mushrooms need the shortest possible time of cooking, whether they are to be sauteed in butter or cooked in a very little water to combine with other foods. My favorite way of cooking them is to saute them on both sides in butter, turning them just as soon as they are brown. By that time, four or five minutes, they are tender. More butter may be added if they are to be served plain on toast. If they are to be served whole and creamed, remove the browned mushrooms and add to the butter in the pan the sliced tender portions of the stem, cook these a moment, and add flour and stir until this mixture is smooth. Then add milk and stock made by cooking the tough portions of the stems and stirring over the fire until this sauce is smooth and thick. If the mushrooms are sliced I do not remove them from the pan.

When mushrooms are broiled I dip the caps in melted butter or salad oil before I put them under the broiler. I really prefer sauteing or frying to broiling. For stuffing, choose large mushrooms of even size, plunge in boiling water for a moment before filling with a stuffing made of well-seasoned crumbs or of a creamed minced chicken or crab or other meat or fish. The sauce must be very thick. Sometimes I combine lightly flavored food with soft buttered crumbs and moisten the mixture with a little ketchup.

Mushrooms combine so well with other foods that they will piece out leftovers of all sorts for creaming. Nothing is better than a combination of this sort on toast or in pastry shells or poured over small rich biscuits which have been split and buttered. Cream of mushroom soup grows more and more popular. The clear stock also makes a good soup whether served alone or combined with chicken stock.

Mushrooms are seldom used raw, but I have had a delicious salad in Paris when minced raw mushrooms were combined with a few sliced cooked potatoes and cucumbers in a French dressing to serve over a green salad. I sometimes use them raw, minced with plantains in a French dressing for a salad.

FARMERS NEED HELP TO IMPROVE MARKETS

Business Conditions Which Farmer Can't Control Keep Prices Down

The agricultural outlook report now being printed by Michigan State college for distribution to Michigan farmers says that present business conditions have so affected prices for farm products that the cure for the situation is not under the farmers' control, but that farmers can obtain some relief by individual adjustments on their own farms.

No immediate material rise in prices can be predicted for any important crop on the basis of the best present information, but an increase in farm incomes can be secured by such practices as concentrating labor upon intensive lines like dairying and the production of poultry.

Success with the intensive lines will depend upon such practices as rigid culling out of low producers, use of home grown feeds, and use of all possible home products for the family table to replace food that would otherwise be bought.

The value of getting high yields from crop acres is emphasized in the report. This means that only land adapted to producing good crop yields should be worked, and that good seed and proper cultural practices should be used on the acres tilled.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellenkamp.

School of Co-operation Meeting a Decided Success

One of the most successful meetings in this series was attended by 30 managers, members of boards and others interested in co-operative activities, in the Boyne City postoffice building. A feature of the discussion was the transportation problem led by C. L. Nash of the Economics department, M. S. C. Considerable attention was devoted to the truck as a transportation system. It was generally decided that regulation and supervision should be initiated, which would protect those using trucks and those whose products are handled by trucks. This is one of the most vital problems facing agriculture today and an early solution should be presented.

Another interesting feature was a discussion of the crop reporting system now being used. This is one service on which very few people have been accurately informed. It was felt that the service was well worthwhile and inasmuch as it would be done anyway, it should be more valuable when carried out by the federal government than to be handled by private business concerns that would get this information anyway.

This is the second winter that this series of meetings has been conducted and judging from the comments expressed, it is hoped that another series may be conducted next year. Representatives from four counties were present, which proves the general interest that has been created.

All Sheep Men Urged to Attend Sheep School

For the first time sheep raisers will have the opportunity of seeing an expert shear sheep and also grade wool, as it has to be graded at the big markets. E. S. Bartlett of Chicago, will conduct these demonstrations in conjunction with Delmer H. LaVoi, of the M. S. C. Mr. Bartlett will give personal instructions on shearing to those present at the meeting to be held at the farm of Wm. Stolt, near Petoskey, on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, April 4. Mr. Stolt's farm is located just off the Petoskey-Charlevoix road near the Petoskey fair grounds. Take the first road going south, west of the fair grounds about one mile, and you are there.

In addition, a posting demonstration will be conducted on parasitic sheep, the object being to show the location of internal parasites in sheep and to explain their life cycles and methods of control. This part of the meeting will start about 11:00 o'clock.

Following the noon hour the program will start with a discussion on profitable sheep, improvement practices as shown by the results of the Wolverine Lamb Production project. The latest recommendations on feeding, cure and management and the control of parasites will be given at that time.

At the completion of this discussion, demonstrations will be conducted on drenching, docking and castrating.

This meeting is scheduled near Petoskey so as to be convenient for sheep men of both Charlevoix and Emmet counties to attend. Bring your lunch at noon, as this will be an all-day meeting and will be a regular short course. It is expected that coffee will be furnished free at noon.

Farmers to Discuss Radish Seed Production

Just a reminder that four meetings have been arranged for this week to discuss radish seed production. It is hoped that the many phases of seed production can be discussed and possibly some new precautions taken that will maintain a higher germination test than has been the case formerly.

The following four meetings will be conducted by C. H. Mahoney of the M. S. C.:

Thursday, March 30, at 10 a. m., Barnard Grange Hall.

Thursday, March 30, at 1:30 p. m., Marion Center Grange Hall.

Friday, March 31, at 10 a. m., County Agent's office.

Friday, March 31, at 1:30 p. m., East Jordan Library.

With radish seed occupying a high position amongst cash crops in the county, it is very important that all farmers who are interested in their problems and enter into the discussion, which should help us in securing better success.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Wednesday evening at 7:45, first Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room. "Reality" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, March 26.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (Isa. 37:16): "O Lord of hosts, God of Israel, that dwellest between the cherubims, thou art the God, even thou alone, of all kingdoms of the earth; thou hast made heaven and earth."

DO STATE'S NEEDY NEED A 'HOLIDAY'?

But was the clothing sent up promptly? It was not.

Why? Bill Carpenter, state welfare director, suggested that he was the proper person to transport that clothing. It might reflect some political credit on Mr. Dillman's candidacy if state highway trucks carried the clothing.

Result? Delay! Needy people suffering in cold weather. Reason? Politics.

No state officer, be he republican or democrat, was ever more strictly honest or more uncompromisingly square than Graver C. Dillman. No engineer, draftsman or other employee of this department was asked if he were a democrat or republican when he applied for a job.

If he could do the work he was hired to do, fine. If he failed, or if he was guilty of unbecoming conduct, he was fired. If he showed outstanding ability, he was promoted. That's Dillman's way of doing things.

During 1931-32 the state highway department under Mr. Dillman paid $12,000,000 to Michigan workmen and relieved counties of welfare relief and saved poor funds from bankruptcy.

This year, 1932-33, the highway department is distributing $18,000,000 highway and R. F. C. funds throughout Michigan — the only source of income that thousands of needy Michigan families have.

Yet, in the face of these facts Mr. Dillman's opponent is accusing him of extravagance. His opponent says he would declare a "road holiday." That word holiday is getting to be too darn popular, it seems to us.

We have had a bank "holiday." This proposed "road holiday" by the democratic candidate would mean about the same thing to thousands of Michigan's poor that the bank holiday meant to most of us.

We mentioned the state Senate last week.

It is still there. It reminds us of a fat first baseman who used to play on the St. Johns baseball team. One of the little kids at a game with Belding one day yelled, "Hey, you run too long in one place."

Lieut. Gov. Stebbins discovered that a bill had not been in the Senate the required five days after the roll was half called the other day. Just a little oversight. "Just strike out all reference to the vote from the record," he instructed the clerk.

One member of the House says that he heard the employees in the stock room at the state garage have been increased from one to nine. This will be investigated. The facts will come out.

The state garage is a sort of "quarantine" for job-seekers who must be hired for political reasons, we are told. Later more congenial and lucrative environment will be provided, it is claimed.

Gov. Comstock came to Howell sanatorium last Wednesday evening, March 22. He looked over the institution, visited a number of patients. When confronted with the problem the board had considered of cutting $50,000 from the budget he shook his head. "We can't send these people back home to endanger the lives of others," he said. "That isn't economy."

The governor took dinner with the board that evening.

Dr. O'Brien, the famous Detroit surgeon, and the writer had seals directly across the table from the governor. For an hour we talked about everything—banks, banking, conservators, welfare, deficits, and what-have-you.

The governor is easy to visit with. He talks interestingly and listens carefully. He has a world of everyday common sense. We believe he is entirely honest.

One thing he said that particularly interested us. "We must get rid of this present Constitution of Michigan," he said, and then added: "You know today, Michigan cannot borrow money unless we go to the people and they vote on it."

We wondered how Clinton county taxpayers would like to give the Legislature power to borrow money and bond the state without first having a chance to vote.

Nat on your tinfole, Governor! Lurking in the background is that "reapportionment" skeleton, too. Change the Constitution so that Wayne, Oakland, Genesee would have a majority vote in the Legislature? Not in a thousand years.

How long would it be before the entire State of Michigan would be bankrupt as are some of these counties today?

LEGION BACKING ISSUE OF SCRIP

PLAN WILL BE INAUGURATED
NEXT WEEK

Discount of 5c Per Week on Issue of $100 Goes to Legion Welfare Fund—Plan on Trial

Under present plans, the local Legion post will issue during the week of April 2 to 8 what will be known as American Legion Welfare scrip.

The scrip certificates will be similar in size to the old-style U. S. currency. Discount dates and the signatures of the Legion commander and finance officer will appear on the front, and on the back an explanation as to the purpose of the issue.

The scrip will be issued in the denomination of $1 and will be backed by lawful money held in trust for the purpose at the Charlevoix County bank in the amount of their current face value.

Purpose of the plan is to encourage the rapid circulation of otherwise idle money through the weekly discount plan. Each certificate will be discounted at the rate of 5c per week. That is, during the week of April 2 to 8 inclusive, they will be worth one dollar each, but after midnight, Saturday, April 8 and until midnight, Saturday, April 15, each certificate will be worth 95c, and so on until they become void. This discount feature, it is hoped, will cause a rapid turn-over of each $100 issue from one to six times the first week, doing from $100 to $600 worth of business at the cost by discount to the community of only 5c.

By placing the amount of this discount in the American Legion welfare fund, it will relieve both the burden caused by property taxation and the less fortunate of our community. This fund, in turn, will be spent with the local merchants for food, fuel and clothing used in welfare work.

By inducing citizens to trade with local merchants through a medium of exchange not recognized by other communities, the "Buy Charlevoix" movement will be strengthened.

The plan will be submitted for the approval of the citizens of Charlevoix. The merchants, insofar as they have been interviewed, are one hundred per cent for giving it a trial and will accept the certificates for merchandise or payment of debts. The people may show their approval by accepting the scrip, keeping it in rapid circulation and not presenting it to the bank for redemption except in case of necessity. If they do not wish to cooperate, they can so express their disapproval by taking the scrip to the bank and retiring it from circulation.

Monday night the "run" was placed under regulation of members of the Charlevoix Sportsman's club. A gate was installed a short distance upstream from the mouth and dipping is being allowed after the gate is dropped at 10 o'clock. Other improvements to aid the "run" included freeing the mouth of the stream from ice a considerable distance out into the lake.

While catches have not been large, many fish have been taken and the run is being enjoyed nightly by many sportsmen.

PRODUCTION OF MAPLE SIRUP BEGINNING HERE

Charlevoix farms with sugar bushes are opening this spring's maple sirup production. A superior grade of maple sirup is usually manufactured in Charlevoix county. Many gallons of it find its way to market, much of it being consumed by summer visitors.

Farmers are becoming more interested in some production of sirup and it is expected that more trees than ever before will flow sap into the evaporators that will be steaming soon in many sugar camps here. Many farmers who will not open regular sugar camps in the woods, nevertheless, will make some maple sirup by gathering sugar water from a few handy maple trees, boiling it down at home on the kitchen stove.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Last Sunday evening the largest number were present of any service during the "March to Church in March" campaign. Owing to the fact that no announcement was made and no records kept of the attendance during the first week of March we are continuing next Sunday yet that we may give the young people an opportunity to see how many they can get to the service. Of course, it is hoped that the attendance will be even larger than last Sunday. Do not stay away for fear there will be no place to sit. There is room in the balcony and extra chairs can be brought in.

Fifteen men of the church enjoyed a fine evening at the men's meeting in Traverse City Friday evening. We are planning a meeting for men here next week. More definite announcement will be made Sunday.

Morning service, 10:30. Communion service will be observed during this hour.

Sunday school, 11:45.

We are hoping every teacher and pupil are working that our attendance may reach the highest mark by Easter.

There will be one more special day before Easter. Next Sunday will be dedicated to our schools and our honored guests will be the faculty and school board of the Charlevoix Public Schools. It has been the policy of the pastor of this church to recognize in a special manner some department of the schools during the year. We hesitated at first to attempt to invite the faculty and board feeling that it might smack of presumption. But when our suggestion was received with approaching enthusiasm we extended the invitation.

Our subject for Sunday morning will be very appropriate, "Jesus, the Teacher."

Beginning Tuesday night, April 4, we will begin a series of meetings in our church that will culminate in the Easter morning service. We have called the series a Mission. Some will prefer "special," "revival," or "evangelistic" services. The pastor will do all of the preaching and such subjects will be used that will stir our hearts to the acceptance of or rededication of our lives to Christ. Our regular communion service will be held on the night of Good Friday.

The choir will render a sacred cantata the afternoon of Easter. The cantata is a production of Alfred Wooler entitled "Hail the Victor." The exact hour will be announced later.

IRONTON PIONEER DIED MARCH 25TH

FUNERAL FOR GEO. McMULKIN HELD TUESDAY

Was Foreman of Old Pine Lake Iron Company—Highly Respected in His Community

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon from the Congregational church for George McMulk, pioneer Ironton resident, who died a week ago last Saturday at his winter home in Lake Helen, Florida.

Rev. G. R. Parker officiated at the services and interment was at Brookside cemetery.

Mr. McMulk was born October 18, 1859, in Simcoe county, Ontario, Canada. When a small boy he moved to Tioga, Ont., being employed by T. D. Dopey of Rochester, N. Y., for some time and later was manager of the John Smith farm for several years.

In 1882 he came to Ironton, where he was married Dec. 25, 1887, to Anna Williams. The couple have made their home there since. Mr. McMulk was for a number of years foreman of the Pine Lake Iron company. Since 1918 he had been spending the winters in Florida because of ill health.

Surviving besides the widow are a son, Harold, one brother and several nieces and nephews.

In Tribute "GEORGE MAC"

George Mac, as we affectionately called him, was my neighbor and friend for more than thirty years. I prized his friendship and revered him as I have few other men. The hundreds of people who, like myself, have come and gone with the seasons remind me of "The Grand Old Man of Ironton." I am sure I express for them, as well as for my own family, the sense of great personal loss and the recognition that our little summer community will never be quite the same.

I have never known a man so ready to help another in need of any sort. I recall him in his prime, so untiring, so resourceful. It used to be said of him that if anybody was in trouble for twenty miles around, he always sent for George Mac. In our village, if a house was on fire, or an animal had foundered, or a man lay sick with smallpox, as actually happened years ago, George Mac was there to do his part.

And his judgments were somehow supreme. I have often said that he was as fine an example as I had ever known of a man whom life and a desire and willingness to serve others had educated and refined and elevated to a place of great honor in the minds of his friends. He had had no opportunity for schooling in the usual sense of the word, but he was so balanced, so wise, so fair, so generous in his judgments, that one turned to him year after year for his advice on every sort of problem. He was a wise man, which is after all so much greater than being a learned man. In my own life no one can take his place.

He loved beautiful things. He understood why some of us came back year after year to look at our hills and the blue lake and the sunsets across the fields. He was sensitive to all the wonders of flowers and trees. The plantations at the Charlevoix Nursery will long be a living memorial to that love for beautiful growing things, and the stone walls which he erected with his own hands a lasting monument to his pride in his work, which made so many of the things he did memorable.

He brought cheer wherever he went. There was sunshine in his soul that radiated from him and shone on others. That patience with

FINAL RED CROSS FLOUR SHIPMENT COMES IN 3 WEEKS

Welfare officers of the local American Legion post have been informed that the final shipment of Red Cross flour will be made in about three weeks.

At a meeting held Monday afternoon in Buoy City, it was announced that the county had been allotted 300 barrels and local officers were told that Charlevoix's share would be 75 barrels.

There is a supply of flour on hand here now sufficient to take care of local needs until the new assignment is received, providing care is used in its distribution.

life and the willingness to accept it without bitterness did not fail him these past summers as he began to approach what he knew was the end. As his thin, gaunt body became more bent, more spare, his step slower, his strength less and less equal to his usual tasks, his face did not pass under the shadow.

His reply to my greetings when we met at "Joe's" for our morning mail was characteristic of his whole life philosophy.

"Well, George, how are you this morning?"

"Well, Mr. Nelson, I can't complain."

That was it. The habit of uncomplaining acceptance of life and death did not fail him at the end.

Ironton can never be the same without George, and yet just the imperishable memory of his friendly, cheery personality and his helpful ways will outlast the generations and become a tradition of our community.

CITY VOTE REPUB- LICAN AND REPEAL

BALLOTS CAST SET RECORD

Wet Majority 264 Votes—Full Republican Slate Elected to Office
With State Support

Charlevoix went republican and wet with one of the largest votes on record for a spring election Monday. Expressing their dislike of the 18th amendment by 264 votes, Charlevoix voters almost as emphatically turned "thumbs down" on both city and state democratic candidates.

A total of 1,957 votes, seventeen more than at the primary and only a few less than at the November election were cast. The second ward set an all-time record with 537 votes.

While L. S. See, Ray S. Hamilton and Robert E. Rife were unopposed on the republican ticket for mayor, clerk and treasurer, respectively, other party nominees found the opposition severe from democratic candidates. Harry A. Craig was retained as supervisor of the first ward by a margin of six votes over J. M. Foster, and E. J. Kibbe was re-elected second ward alderman by a majority of 50 over Edward Heise. Frank Partridge defeated Ben Yettaw by 171 votes for second ward supervisor, and Thos. Leo Carey was elected alderman of the third ward by a margin of 198 votes over Alton Powers, Dem. Charlevoix gave all republican state candidates a substantial majority.

TRANSPORT REGU- LATION IS NEEDED

IS NECESSARY STEP TO PROSPERITY RETURN

Discrimination Between Railroads and Trucks Threatens Transportation Systems

Lack of federal and state regulation of the operation of commercial trucks is one of the barriers standing in the way of return of prosperity, it was pointed out by several speakers at the meeting of the Michigan Railway Employees and Citizens League held in Traverse City last Wednesday night at which 150 members were present, with Judge Parm C. Gilbert presiding.

The history of transportation regulations, both state and federal, was traced by Mr. Waples, who pointed out that under the present state of the law there is no federal regulation of motor vehicle carriers for hire although complete regulation of interstate railroads. While there is complete regulation of interstate railroads in Michigan the regulation of motor vehicle carriers within the state does not cover the matter of rates generally and is rather limited as far as contract carriers are concerned. The present laws only authorize the fixing of maximum rates for motor vehicle common carriers, there being no control at all over minimum rates which are the only rates of any importance at the present time. It was advocated that the association only sponsor legislation designed to fairly and without discrimination, regulate motor vehicle transportation. Mr. Waples suggested that the ideal solution of the transportation problem should be along the lines of co-ordinated transportation with each type occupying primarily the field for which it is best suited.

A parallel between the banks and the railroads was drawn by Henry Miltner, Cadillac attorney, who told about the unfair competition of truck and railroads which has been a prominent factor in establishing the railroads in their present low estate. He painted a gloomy picture of what would happen in Northern Michigan if the railroads, through inability to earn on their investment, were given permission to pull up their tracks.

E. T. Carey of Saginaw, a Pure Marquette employe, substituted very ably on the program, pointing out the following facts:

"For the year ending September 1930, the primary school fund was $24,000,000.00. Railroads paid $10,346,000.00 or 42 per cent of the total amount; 1931 taxes were practically the same. In 1932 the primary school fund was $20,000,000.00. Railroads, express companies and car loading companies paid $8,007,511.27. It can readily be seen what would happen to our schools if for any reason the railroads could not pay these taxes.

"The livelihood of 9,000,000 people are affected by railroads laying off men and reducing purchasing. At the present time the league has a membership of between 125,000 and 150,000 people and units have been installed or will be installed in all the leading communities throughout the state. The executive committees of these various units are composed of leading business and professional men together with local railroad employes.

REFORESTATION BILL SIGNED BY PRESIDENT

Measure Aimed to Give Employment to 250,000 Men

President Roosevelt Friday signed the reforestation bill, first of a series of measures designed to relieve the unemployment situation.

Under terms of the act Mr. Roosevelt hopes to have men at work in the forests within three weeks. The work corps ultimately will be expanded to include 250,000 jobless recruited in a coast-to-coast effort to care for the most needy.

Congressman Prentiss M. Brown was one of the active supporters of the reforestation bill. In a letter to the Courier last week, Mr. Brown stated he would endeavor to secure for Northern Michigan a portion of the appropriation to be made, and pointed out its great benefit to this region through the possibilities of restoring our timber industry.

PROBATE JUDGES WILL MEET HERE

SELECT CHARLEVOIX AS 1933
CONVENTION SITE

Meeting to Be Held Late in June or Early July—Big Delegation Expected

Selection of Charlevoix as the site for the annual convention of the Association of Probate Judges of Michigan has been announced by Judge Ervan A. Rueggesser, probate judge of Charlevoix county.

The matter of choosing a site for the 1933 convention was left open at the association's meeting last fall in Grand Rapids. The general opinion seemed that the convention for the present year would be held in some southern Michigan city, but a communication received by Judge Rueggesser today from Wm. E. Smith, association president, carried the information that members had voted themselves favorably in regard to convening in Charlevoix.

Local city and association of commerce officials have been informed of Charlevoix's selection, and an invitation will be extended to the association immediately, setting a date and assuring welcome and entertainment facilities to the association membership.

The convention usually is held late in June or early July and it is expected a definite date in this period will be selected. The meeting will bring between 75 and 200 delegates. This year's attendance is expected to be large, due to the fact that many new probate judges were named last fall. This will be the first convention for new members and the information available at the convention is of value to all in the conduct of their offices.

Details necessary in preparation for entertainment of the visiting delegates will be taken care of immediately so that definite plans may be announced.

LIVINGSTON NAMED BANK CONSERVATOR

Appointed to Replace H. A. Craig, Who Declined Position

Archie L. Livingston, cashier and stockholder in the Charlevoix State Savings bank, has been appointed conservator of that institution.

Harry A. Craig, first named to the position by R. E. Reichert, state banking commission, declined to serve and the substitution was made late last week.

Up to the time the Courier went to press Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Livingston had not received confirmation of his qualifications from the state banking department, and thus was unable to make an official statement regarding his policies for future conduct of the bank's affairs.

Appointment of a conservator for the State Savings bank is made in conformance with the state department's policy to name reliable persons to head institutions which have not been given permits to open for business upon an unrestricted basis.

PLANS AID FOR NEEDY OF STATE

DESTITUTE OF MICHIGAN NOT TO GO HUNGRY

Governor Comstock Takes Only Way
Out in Order to Obtain Federal Money

(By Elton R. Eaton.)

The destitute of Michigan are not going to go hungry, not if there is anything that Governor Comstock and his administration can do about it. Fared immediately after the clearing away of the banking legislation by the ultimatum of the Reconstruction Finance committee that no more funds would be available to feed Michigan's hungry unless the state provided money from some source to help out the situation. Governor Comstock and Senator Leon Case, Waterbury newspaper publisher who is the administration's leader in the Senate, have presented to the Legislature a bill that will divert to welfare purposes several millions from the automobile weight tax.

Money from this tax, as well as from the gas tax, is about all that the state is receiving at the present time. Much against their judgment and dislike to divert the weight tax money, both Governor Comstock and Senator Case thought it best to take this action in order to be sure to get the federal aid that is absolutely essential to Michigan.

Senator Case and other legislative leaders fully realize the growing seriousness of the welfare problem in Michigan. The governor let it be known that he did not like the drastic word sent him by Washington, but there was no other course for him to follow but comply and that is the reason Senator Case, Senator Francis Kulp of Battle Creek, and others are so anxious to have it enacted quickly.

Road men and Louis Webber of Fremont, lobbyist for real estate dealers, are providing about the only opposition to this plan to secure money to feed Michigan's hungry men, women and children.

Former Senator B. G. Davis of the Van Buren-Allegan district, has asked the state Legislature to petition the national Congress for the issuance of what he terms "baby bonds." The former senator declares that U. S. bonds issued in small denominations will do more than anything else to bring the country out of the dumps it is now in. It will be recalled that it was this former senator who hunk in the days of Governor Sleeper strenuously opposed the issuance of the $50,000,000 bond issue for good roads. He urged the state at that time to create a sinking fund by the collection of a mill tax specially for roads, and then spend it as it was needed. He pointed out that the interest charges alone on the bond issue would almost take care of needed road construction at that time. That was back in the days before a gas tax. Time has proven much that Senator Davis said was true. The money that had been set aside to pay off the road bonds has in the past few years been diverted to other purposes and the taxpayers are still paying a fixed charge of something like two million and a half per year as interest on the road bonds issued during the Sleeper administration.

Beer—From the way some members of the House talk one would gain the idea that that is the most important and only subject worthy of legislative consideration. Their demand is about to be satisfied, as Governor Comstock's carefully prepared legislation on this subject is now before the Legislature. Doubtless many of its provisions will be amended, but prospects are that hereafter April is ended, Michigan will have legalized beer.

Governor Comstock has just let it be known in a sort of definite way just how far he proposes to go in reducing the operating costs of the state government. With the introduction by Senator Leon Case of Waterbury and Senator Francis Kulp of Battle Creek, two Democratic leaders in the Senate of several administration bills, it is announced that the governor proposes to cut the operating costs of the state of Michigan to down around $12,000,000 per year. This figure is slightly under the amount that was collected during the Grosbeck administration.

The governor declares that he is going to make the cut in the various state departments and the institutions and that he proposes to see to it that the proper officials live within their income. While many associated with some of the departments and institutions say the governor's proposal will bring ruin to the state, others who support the governor point to the fact that the entire income of the state of Michigan during the administration of Governor Chase Osborn was around the figure fixed by Governor Comstock and the state flourished and did well at that time. The state has now in addition to the $12,000,000 income that the governor proposes, the income from dozens of other sources that did not exist in the days of Osborn. There was no gas tax, weight tax, corporation tax, mortgage tax, fishing or hunting licenses to bring in millions and millions of dollars as there is now. Governor Comstock has made it pretty clear that heads will come off if his economy rule is not followed.

Rep. Earl McNitt of Cadillac thinks it is about time that the state remove the double taxation on Michigan industries. He has introduced a bill in the House which would repeal, if passed, the corporation tax law of the state. He declares that industry can no longer pay this double burden and that if factories are to continue to operate in the state, his measure should be passed. The corporation tax law was passed back in the days of prosperity when Michigan needed many new buildings at various institutions. Although the buildings were long ago completed, the tax has been continued on from year to year and diverted to other purposes than that for which it was originally intended.

Lovelorn couples who desire to get married on the spur of the moment must still go to Indiana or Ohio. The House killed the bill that would have repealed the five day notice of intention that is now required.

The University of Michigan and the Michigan State college are battling against drastic cuts in their appropriations. The bills now in the Senate cut half a million dollars from the Michigan State college and considerably over a million dollars from the University. Since the introduction of the bills a number of days ago members of both the House and Senate have been flooded with requests not to make such drastic cuts as proposed. But Democratic and Republican leaders declare that these two schools as well as all the other state institutions are in for cuts that will really be reflected in the tax bills of property owners.

Reduction from $5 a day to $4 per day for the pay of supervisors while attending meetings of the county boards is provided in a bill that has met with the approval of the Senate.

The Legislature has made legal the issuance of scrip by municipalities that desire to use it to pay their obligations. The bill while introduced primarily to help Detroit will benefit any community in Michigan that desires to print its own money instead of using currency.

The state department of education will no longer have anything to say about what kind of a school house shall be built by the people of any school district in the state. The Legislature has passed a bill doing away with this state supervision that has resulted in the expenditure of vast sums for buildings in districts unable to bear the burden.

Some members of the Legislature have the idea that automobile drivers are loaded down with money and can still pay a higher gas tax. Rep. Edward Hrouver of Holland has a bill in to raise the gas tax to four cents a gallon and cut the weight tax 25 cents a hundred. Taxpayers have been urging that the gas tax be cut in half and that the weight tax be cut in two, but so far the proposal of tax reduction on these two items have received but scant consideration.

There is a bill in the Legislature which if passed would repeal the law that provides a pension for members of the supreme bench upon retirement after a certain age. There are no former members of the bench now on pension.

PETOSKEY MAN LISTED FOR PORTO RICAN POST

W. L. McManus Among Thirteen Candidates for Appointment

A movement for the appointment of W. L. McManus, Jr., Petoskey, Democrat, as governor of Puerto Rico was brought to the attention of Postmaster General Farley.

Among others endorsing the candidacy of McManus was Rep. Prentiss Brown, Democrat, Michigan, who said he had written a letter to Farley asking favorable consideration for the Petoskey hotel man.

It was understood that thirteen names have been proposed for the appointment. No decision has yet been reached.

Bridging the Gap in Human History

Dedication of a building at the University of Chicago devoted to the investigation of early man—a building which "finds no parallel in any other university, either in America or abroad"—draws the Near East still nearer to the West. It is in the East that the origins of the civilization we have inherited are for the most part hidden; and the Oriental Institute under western skies seeks now to help man in a literal sense to "orient" himself—to get his bearings and see in true perspective the history of the human race. Especially is it to help bridge the gap between the savage of the paleontologist and the historian's story of the people who emerge in Europe as "civilized" beings.

Of special significance is the evidence that in this period man in Egypt began "to bear remote voices that proclaimed the utter futility of material conquest." It was then that "conscience and character broke upon the world." The chariot lids of Egyptians 500 years after the Pyramids age and two millenniums B. C. revealed a longing for felicity beyond the satisfactions of food and drink and shelter.

In the spacious walls of the Oriental Institute the East walks again in its beauty and majesty, but with sobering if not frightening suggestion to the present, which sees in every object reminders of a perished past—of the death of civilizations that dreamed they were immortal. Yet every earthly fact is touched by the spirit of skill that begat it and is passed on as a symbol of struggle toward an ideal. The great winged bull that looks with steady gaze into a strange world may be but an early dream of human flight—the man's face appearing above the wings, the strength of the bull suggesting the power at the motor that has taken the place of beasts of burden.

Even if these relics of a dead past cause disquiet in these days, it is cheering to remember, with Mr. Fossick, speaking in their presence, that it is the continuing peril that develops the human spirit, that it has been in times of instability and not in hours of placidity that the greatest contributions have been made to the cultural life of man. The past only tells us, in the words of a great pre-scientist philosopher, that it is the "fear of the future to be dangerous."—New York Times.

Salt Rheum Formed Water Blisters on Baby

Healed by Cuticura

"My sixteen months old baby was bothered with salt rheum. It started with a rash and then formed a water blister, and the more he scratched the more it itched until the blister was broken. Then it would break out in another place. As soon as I put his night clothes on he kept up a steady wailing and could not sleep. It affected his whole body and he was a sight."

"My druggist told me about Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I purchased some and after using them a month or two my baby was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Doris Hardy, 13 High St., Boston, N. H., August 11, 1932.

RICE STILL CONTINUES TO BE MAIN CROP OF EASTERN WORLD

Grain Called Second Major "Staff of Life."

Washington.—While the shifting of the world's wheat supply is spectacular—millions of bushels carried thousands of miles across great oceans—the transportation of rice, also a major "staff of life," goes on more quietly in a smaller area. It is pointed out in a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

"In China, canal boats and the backs of coolies spread the grain into regions close to its growth," says the bulletin. "In India, too, the lands are short, and are made by bullock cart and railway. Barges float their loads down the streams of India-China and Siam, and small rice trains on Siam's modern railways help in the movement toward the coast. Steamers and ocean junks carry their grain cargoes up the coast of Asia to China and Japan."

India and China in Lead.

"Exclusive of China, for which corn is no accurate statistics are available, more than 63,500,000 tons of cleaned rice are produced annually. Toward this mighty rice bowl India contributes more than 55 per cent of the total amount. Japan contributes 14 per cent; French Indo-China, Java and Madras, and Siam follow, each with somewhat less than half of that amount. Estimates indicate that China raises about 25,000,000 tons each year, but, as rice has been a forbidden item of export from time immemorial, no one worries about statistics as long as his daily portion of rice is forthcoming."

"Rice growing is not confined to continental Asia and its adjacent islands; in Africa, Europe and the United States rice fields also sprawl over many well-watered areas. With the exception of Italy, European countries find the demand greater than their production. But from the fertile fields, especially in the Po valley, comes sufficient rice to place Italy in the group of rice exporting countries."

"In the United States, mainly in Louisiana, Georgia, and the Carolinas, there is harvested annually nearly 575,000 tons of rice. About 11,000 tons of the cereal is imported, but only nine times that amount is sent by the United States into the export market."

"In Minnesota in early autumn one can witness the traditional harvesting of wild rice by the Northwest Indians, an activity that originated countless generations before white men ever set foot on American soil. Present day methods do not enter into the harvest. Two or three persons, usually squaws, paddle the canoes into the beds of rice which grow in the shallow waters around the edges of lakes. There they pull the heads of the rice over the side of the boat, strike them sharply, and gather the grain in the bottom of the canoe. Modern inventions have been tried, but they destroy the stalks and reduce subsequent crops, so have been abandoned."

"Contrary to the belief of some, all domestic rice is not alike. Indeed, there are some 4,000 varieties of rice in Japan."

Wet and Dry Rice.

"In general rice is classed into two groups, 'wet' and 'dry' rice. It receives these classifications from the manner in which it is grown. The 'wet' rice is grown in flooded fields, while the 'dry' variety, sometimes also called 'hill' rice, is grown in uplands where the water supply is limited. Hill tribes usually grow the dry rice in jungle clearings on the mountainsides."

"Rice cultivation entails much back-breaking labor throughout the East where most of the grain is first sown in nursery beds and grown there to the height of about one foot. It is then transplanted into fields which have been flooded into fields which have been flooded and worked into a deep 'porridge' of ooze and mud. The grain is usually harvested by hand with sickles, and eventually threshed by hand or by driving oxen and water buffaloes round and round over piles of rice heads. The husking and polishing for local consumption, too, is often done by hand or foot pounders. "In Japan, Java, and many other places rice fields resemble tiny gardens, rather than fields, so small is the area that is allotted to each farmer."

"In China and Japan the area cultivated by one hand laborer is usually about one-half to two acres, while in the United States, where modern, machine methods are employed, one farmer may handle as much as 80 acres. Under the latter system the large, level fields are flooded during growth. Before harvest time, however, the water is drained off. The dried ground becomes firm enough for the use of ordinary reapers which cut and bind the rice as wheat is cut and bound."

"Although its use as food is lost in the mists of antiquity, rice is believed to have been utilized first in India, the land which produces far and away the largest rice crop today. As early as 2,800 B. C., a ceremony of the first planting was performed in China. The emperor, Son of Heaven, sowed the seeds of rice, the princes the lesser grains."

LANDS IN U. S.; NOW MAN WITHOUT COUNTRY

Lone Sailor Is Held Up by Immigration Officers.

Los Angeles.—Another man without a country—one whose only reward for an 8,800-mile cruise in a 19-foot boat has been a short stay behind the bars of the immigration station in Los Angeles—has turned up on the west coast.

Fred Rebell, literally a citizen of no land, sailed into Los Angeles harbor recently in his tiny craft after more than a year on blue water, en route here from Australia.

Born in Windau, Latvia, when that land was a part of the czar's Russia, Rebell went to Australia twenty years ago, but did not become a citizen of the "land down under." While he was away Latvia became a republic, and he an expatriate.

In 1921 he conceived the idea of his lone journey across southern seas to the United States and began to prepare for it by studying navigation in the Sydney library. He made his own sextant and bought three cheap watches for his chronometers. He bought his boat—a 19-foot clinker-built skiff with a large bowsprit and a sloop rig—and equipped it with a canvas canopy which could be drawn part way over the open cockpit as protection against long spells of rough weather. He started out in December, 1931, cruised through the southern islands, touching at Suva, Samoa and many other points and navigating and handling his little craft single handed. At one stage of his long trip the center board of his ship rotted away. Rebell repaired that, and later in mid-ocean successfully repaired one of his watches. His library-borrowed navigation was continually successful.

When he reached Honolulu he obtained a 60-day distressed seaman's permit. He got under way again and headed for the California coast. It took him 64 days to reach Los Angeles and as soon as he set foot ashore he was detained at the immigration station because his 60-day permit had expired. The "distressed seaman" had spent all of his 64 days at sea. To add to his distress, his boat which he had steered without damage across thousands of miles of deep water was wrecked inside the Los Angeles breakwater by the violent storm which recently lashed the western seaboard.

William Slavens McNell, the author, came to Rebell's rescue and helped him out and the man without a country is now temporarily living in Los Angeles, completing plans to write about his long trip and incidentally planning another cruise.

This Town Is Ruled by One Family, Literally

Savoy, Mass.—The town government of Savoy is, in a broad sense, the Barber family. Here's why:

E. A. Barber is town moderator, selectman, member of the board of public welfare, and member of the board of health.

His wife is town clerk, town treasurer, and a member of the school committee.

The town, incidentally, has no debt.

Hunters in Rowboats Capture Game in Flood

Princeton, Ind.—Hunters took to row boats when the Wabash river went over its banks here and forced rabbits and other game to higher ground.

One hunter reported capturing 28 ducks on a knoll surrounded by water. Rabbits had taken to bushes and other floating objects. The hunters reported they rowed up to the logs and grabbed their catch.

Television Wedding Is Held in Kansas City

Kansas City.—Elmer Taft and O. E. Little, a radio operator, were married in what was said to be the first wedding broadcast by television. The ceremony was in the studio. In a room outside the studio, the images of the bride, bridegroom and the minister were shown on a screen.

Silly Old Beliefs Hard to Overcome

Even Women of Intelligence Cling to Their Fond Superstitions.

A friend of mine, a short time ago, says a woman writer of note, voiced the following complaint:

"One of the most amazing paradoxes of our day is the survival of superstitions that are on an intellectual level with the darkest ages. The joke of it is that they flourish side by side with modern civilization and enlightenment—science beside hocus pocus."

"One of the most intelligent women in our club—or so I thought until I found this out—will start nothing on a Friday. A friend whom I presented, at Christmas, with an exquisite pair of silver grape shears, insisted on giving me a penny for them—as the gift of a scissors was certain to 'cut' friendship. And she wasn't joking."

"Can you explain the survival of such barbarisms among supposedly rational, educated, cultured people?" Explain? Page a Solomon to explain the quirks and turns of perverse humans.

But I can go you one better, my friend. I can reveal a barbarism still less reasonable than is practiced in this day and age—and by those as scornful as we of those who admit to superstitions.

That is the barbarism of intolerance. For if there ever was a growth straight out of the soil of the most benighted ignorance and stupidity it is distrust and hatred of those of different races or nationalities, because they are different.

The word "barbarism," by the way, was originally used to signify all other nations. Those who used it so, unknowingly branded themselves.

And speaking of that most ancient superstition, intolerance of those whose beliefs or habits and customs are different from our own—is this not even more amazing in an enlightened person than fear of scissors or the number thirteen? In such matters the fear, irrational as it is, is yet of something supernatural, of the Unknown, while the fear and hatred of intolerance is fear of other people, people who dream and hope and work and love, people about whom in this day and age every child has learned enough to realize that we are all brothers and sisters "under the skin."

Widow Lives in Scrap Heap Despite Heritage

San Diego.—After being destitute for 30 years Mrs. Sena Ryan, at the age of eighty-three, has inherited $5,000.

But it is too late. Thirty years of living among rusty and dusty debris have burned deeply into the aging mind one simple fact, and there isn't room for more.

"I haven't got a cent," she says, peering suspiciously at her questioner through thick lenses.

As far as she is concerned the report of the inheritance is just some idle talk she doesn't understand and it worries her to try.

"It's my home," she says, gesturing toward the heap of castoff tinners and metals from which her late husband, collector of unwanted things, built his home by the junk heap.

"It's been my home for thirty years," she says, protestingly, as though the whole thing were a plot to drive her from her castle. "My husband died in that bed"—gesturing toward a crazy relic—"and that's where I want to die. I haven't a cent. I'm going to stay here as long as they'll let me."

A daughter is trying to nurse her eighty-three-year-old mother into an understanding of her "affluence."

The money was the estate of a son, a barber in Los Angeles, who died in testate. Under California law the money goes to the mother.

HOPING FOR PROFIT

The United States has experienced five major curtailments of its normal banking activities. The years which marked the beginning of these periods of suspension were 1819, 1837, 1857, 1873 and 1933. Previous to each of the four earlier times, and just before the present one, the country had passed through a period of feverish prosperity accompanied by excessive speculation. The one element common to all five periods is that in each of them, men bid up prices of goods, lands and securities in order to pass them on to others who hoped to profit by selling them to still others at still higher figures. In all five periods the lure of unearned profits to be gained through mounting prices carried the going values far above the dependable long-time earning powers of the properties. In each case the interest charges involved in carrying the properties on credit finally became too great for the earning powers of the properties to sustain, and when the last holders tried to sell out the crash came. In each case the credit had been supplied by the banks.

FARMERS PAID THE FREIGHT

The pending Moore bill at Lansing needs the changes necessary to protect the interests of the Michigan farmers and small town tax payers.

At present the bill is 99% for the city real estate men and subdividers and 1% for the owners of small homes and farms.

John C. Stafford, president of the National Farmers association, points out that, until hit by the depression, the Michigan farmer helped pay this tax. The Federal Farm Loan bank reports on farm mortgages show that the Michigan farmers were tax delinquent in 1928 for only $83.19. Hard times increased this figure to $56,955.14 for 1929; to $607,954.40 for 1931, and the estimate for 1932 is over $1,000,000.00.

When the Moore bill proposes to waive all taxes prior to 1928, it soaks the farmers who paid up promptly and makes a Santa Claus donation to the city real estate men and subdividers who have let their taxes ride unpaid for nearly ten years.

If any delinquent taxes prior to 1928 are waived this loss will fall on the rural tax-payers who paid promptly until the depression came.

FREE FOR ASKING

Folks who have fought their way through an attack of tuberculosis are almost sure to be superior beings. There is something in the long discipline that either makes or breaks them. If they hold on and fight through, a lot of heroism is brought out. Part of their heroism is shown in their concern about fighting the fight of others. They want to see tuberculosis stamped out.

The Michigan Tuberculosis association says that every known case of tuberculosis calls for a little detective work. Generally there are clues. They point to a certain source from which the patient drew the invading germs. They point to others, perhaps children, to whom he may transmit them. The war against tuberculosis demands close attention, both to discover the source of infection and to shut up its future avenues.

The Tuberculosis association is promoting its annual educational drive, called for six successive years "The Early Diagnosis Campaign." It wants to supply interested Michigan people with two free pamphlets, post-paid, on request to 535 South Capital avenue, Lansing. They are called "What's Ahead in Tuberculosis" and "Tuberculosis in Children."

FIVE-DAY LAW REMAINS

An attempt to kill the five-day marriage law has failed in the lower House at Lansing. A majority of the members of that branch of our lawmaking body evidently believed there was sufficient merit in the law to warrant its retention as a part of the state's marriage code. We think they made a mistake.

Almost any law has good points that convince some people that it should remain on the statute books. But what any one can see in the five-day marriage law to cause them to fight for its retention is slightly more than we can understand. As soon as the law went into effect it was perfectly plain that its well-meaning provisions simply missed the mark they were expected to hit. Admirable in theory, perhaps, but in practice it has simply proven an annoyance to those for whom it is not needed. It should be repealed.

MAY GROW MORE PEAS IN STATE THIS YEAR

Buyers Say Acreage Can Be Expanded Without Ruining Market

Buyers of Michigan field peas, one crop which paid its producers a fair return last year, say that the acreage of the crop in the state can be safely expanded a little in 1933.

The acreage of field peas in Michigan last year was 36 per cent lower than the 10 year average, and buyers of the crop are now paying $1.25 per bushel for good grades of peas. This price does not permit the grower to become rich but the return per acre is higher than that for many other common crops.

The sections in the state in which peas are now grown are in the northern part of the lower peninsula and in various parts of the upper peninsula. The varieties which are the most popular with buyers are Canadian field peas and Scotch green. O. A. C. No. 181, a newer variety developed in Ontario shows up well in yield tests made at Michigan State college.

RELIEF HIGHWAY PROJECTS DISCONTINUED

Appropriations for February and March Are Exhausted

Relief projects on Charlevoix state trunk line and county highways have been discontinued for the time being, at least.

Appropriations made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for February and March have been used up, as has also the allotment of exchange money granted as payment for equipment hire, materials, supervision, etc. Last Saturday's operations were the final wind-up.

County officials were busy the early part of the week issuing pay checks to the several hundred men employed during the last part of March. Whether or not additional loans will be made so that the work may be continued is not known at this time.

COLLEGE FINDS WAY TO MAKE SOILS TEST

New, Quick Method Tells Amounts Various Elements in Samples

Members of the soils department at Michigan State college have perfected a simple method which can be used in the field to test the amounts of phosphorus, potassium, calcium, carbonates, available nitrates, magnesium, and several other elements in soil samples.

The equipment to make these tests will be in the hands of county agricultural agents during April and these men will be able to tell any farmer in their county which elements are lacking in his soil. The test will be a valuable guide in plans for soil improvement through the use of legumes, barnyard manure, or commercial fertilizer.

MAY GET LOAN BLANK WITHOUT PAYING FEE

Applications Should Be Made to Charlevoix County Agent

Farmers who apply for loans this year from the $90,000,000 fund authorized by Congress for crop production loans, should refuse to pay any fees for help in the preparation of their loan applications. It was declared by G. H. Dahl, field inspector of the crop production loan office, stationed at Traverse City.

The law as enacted by Congress this year specifically prohibits the charging of any fee for the preparation of the application. Mr. Dahl explained, and provides for fine or imprisonment, or both, for any person found guilty of assessing such a charge. Notarial fees, however, are still necessary, as are fees charged by the county recording official for recording the loan given as security for the loan, and for searching the records for prior loans.

Prospective borrowers need not write to Washington for application blanks and detailed information about the loans, but may get the material from the office of the county agricultural agent, B. C. Mellenkamp.

New Invention Brings Instant-Gas Cooking Service to Any Home

A new Coleman invention now makes it possible for every housewife to have in her own kitchen, modern Instant-Gas Cooking Service no matter where she lives.

These stoves light like gas, cook better than gas, produce a faster, cleaner, hotter, cooking flame and are more economical. Two cents worth of fuel will cook an average meal for a family of five. It is cheaper than wood, coal or kerosene, and cheaper than gas except where rates are unusually low.

This wonderful new stove is simple and safe in operation. All that is necessary to do, is to strike a match, open a valve, light the burner and start cooking. It has no preheater which is common to the ordinary liquid fuel stove of this type, so there is no priming, no waiting, no complicated operation.

Special tests show that these stoves produce better cooked foods, foods that are tastier, more appetizing, especially when baked in the "flavor-saving" oven which preserves the natural food flavors and luscious juices of meats.

These stoves also have new style and new finishes in colors, which add to the beauty of any kitchen. The new table top models compare with the finest city gas ranges in appearance and cooking convenience. They are the delight of every woman who sees them.

Coleman Instant-Gas Stoves and other products are now on display at Wood Bros. and Staley Hardware Co.

Can You Tell One As Good?

Read the yarns told by those who competed for the championship model for the biggest liar. Some of the "tall stories," including that of the cat with a wooden leg and other "whoppers," are told in an illustrated article next Sunday, in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with The Detroit Sunday Times.

It's almost a pioneer who can remember when there was some humiliation about being on the welfare.

Wonder, does anybody really know what happened to Detroit's banking circles?

PLAN TEN MILLION FOR RELIEF LOANS

Administration Proposes to Raise Sum by Special Taxes

More than $10,000,000 in state funds, produced by the imposition of special taxes, will be poured into the empty coffers of Michigan's municipalities after July 1 as a part of the administration welfare program.

Until that date both the communities of the state and the R. F. C. must be satisfied with temporary diversion of highway funds to meet the emergency.

These statements Gov. Comstock made before a large gathering of city officials at Lansing, Thursday. He said the state treasury contains no funds that could be used for relief work at present and that it would be a physical impossibility to get a special tax into operation before the close of the biennium.

This May Revolutionize the Air Industry

The new "foot-proof hoverplane," which, it is said, may revolutionize air transportation, since it can take off vertically from the ground and descend in the same manner, as it underwent its first tests at Heston, England. The odd-looking helicopter is the invention of two young Austrians, Raoul Hafner and Bruno Nagler. They also state that it can hover in the air, fly backwards at will, and can be perfectly controlled while stationary in the air or at full speed.

Rough Crepes and Matelasse Weaves

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IF IT is to guess the thought uppermost in the minds of the majority of the fair sex just about now, we would say—a new spring outfit. Which encourages us to talk about the fasci-mating materials that are extending such an irresistible come-and-try-me invitation to all who behold them.

Of course the very first thing to consider in planning a smart suit, dress, coat or blouse is the material which is to fashion it. Since first things must come first, we will begin by telling about the perfectly summing rough crepes which are playing so important a role in the style panorama.

We can think of no more wearable a type during the daytime hours and none of more convincing chic than the suit, either jacketed or caped, which is made of rough navy crepe. These dark blue crepes will be the rage from now on.

Making them up with an accompaniment of gay plaid taffeta is one way of doing as fashion bids. Another is to enhance these rough navy crepes with accents of white, preferably white organdie details such as huge bows, or ruffled collar and cuff sets or neck lines which are outlined with garlands of shimmer organdie flowers. We will be seeing "oodles and oodles" of white organdie fixings during the coming days.

Not even the wiles of crisp and immaculate organdie trappings can take away from the prestige of plaid taffeta such as is lending so sprightly a dash.

PLACKET EFFECTS BROUGHT INTO USE

Buttons are very much in evidence, but have subsided to a more conventional style, leaving the quality of novelty to the new fabrics. Plain glass buttons, in ball or flat shapes, and mother of pearl, generally flat, are taking the place of the metals of the winter, although there are still some shiny nickel types—smooth and undecorated.

Talking of buttons is another way of saying that placket effects are repeatedly brought into use—a feature that can be said of skirts as well as of blouses. In the matter of skirts plackets are apt to appear anywhere—front, back and in neck style, at the bottom near the hem.

Perugia Sandal for Wear With Frock for Spring

For wear with very sheer stockings we suggest a Perugia shoe—sandal rather than a shoe—consists of nothing more than a series of rhinestones and a flat sole with a high heel attached. The brilliants surround the sole from back to front, dividing in front between the great and near-great toes, passing just above the ankle bones and fastening in the back of the heel. We don't guarantee any degree of comfort for the foot in this costume, but we are willing to vouch for the effectiveness of such finery.

Pink Velvet Wedding Gown Chosen by Stylish Bride

Pale pink velvet was chosen by one recent fashionable bride in Paris for her wedding gown instead of the traditional white satin. With it she wore a veil of pale pink tulle which swept the length of her train. Her bridesmaids wore crepe gowns of the same tone accented by brown velvet toques, gloves and slippers.

Brocade Scarfs Chic

Brocade scarfs of in triangles and worn on the outside of black velvet evening coats are considered the height of chicness from the Paris point of view.

of color to scores and scores of the new spring suits and ensembles. For instance note the adorable cape suit here pictured, which is fashioned of a rough navy crepe such as we have been talking about. The plaid taffeta blouse has a most interesting scarf neckline in that it looks as if it might be attached to the removable cape. The hat is a navy straw.

As to the charming striped rough crepe frock centered in the group, it is one of the gray prints which are the hit of the season—either gray with white or yellow, it can please. The print used for this particular model is gray with stripes in a dulled yellow. The scarf is lined with yellow taffeta. Its almost impossible to keep taffeta out of the picture nowadays. The big gray pearl buttons have a swatch of the yellow taffeta drawn through them which eliminates the style message which this attractive frock conveys.

A new novelty matelasse-type fabric of bengali in soft green fashions the attractive daytime dress on the seated figure. One has to see this material in the original to sense how really handsome it is. There is a sort of invisible tiny conventional figure running throughout its weave added to which is its crinkled and blistered surfacing which at once classes it among the smart matelasse weaves which are the call of the hour. The large white organdie bow and the organdie bordering about the pointed front opening give a perfect style note in a perfect springtime gown. Note how the full sleeves achieve the desired broad-shouldered silhouette.

SMART FOR SPRING

Mamma! woolens are the swaggers for the spring suit. The material for the model pictured is reversible—checked on one side and a solid color on the other. Which makes this double-faced wool cape suit exceedingly practical as it offers many costume changes, simply by wearing first one side out then the other. One way of doing it is to wear it as here shown. Another is to turn the jacket and skirt checks out, topping this with the cape showing the monotone side, or let all three pieces show up the checks, or wear skirt and cape with checked side out, the jacket contrasting the plain color. There are any other number of combinations possible. For milder days the jacket might be discarded, for the cape will pose very effectively over a slinky blouse. The suit itself without the cape makes a modish appearance. The vaginal tat is considered extremely voguish.

MIXTURE OF RACES IN NATION'S CHIEF

Author Traces Forebears of Franklin Roosevelt.

When Franklin Roosevelt's original American ancestor, Claes Martenszen Van Rosenvelt, came to America about 1643, the other hundred and twenty seven of his progenitors in that generation who were then treading this globe were scattered far and wide on both sides of the ocean. Mostly they were no ignorant of one another's existence, both men and women, as you and I are of the Bulgarian peasant tilling in his native village today who, for all we know, may be with us in the common of some President of the United States to take office in the year 2533.

These forebears of Franklin Roosevelt, as Alvin Page Johnson has traced them in his book on "Franklin D. Roosevelt's Colonial Ancestors," were of many racial stocks—Dutch, French, Finnish, Scotch and English. Some were already numbered among the settlers in the great wilderness of the American continent; others had not yet broken the ties that bound them to the old home.

But it is curious to note how the trait of distinction is continually cropping up in individuals all along the Roosevelt line. The strain of the Plymouth colony is strong in him, for he traces back to Richard Warren, John Howland, Isaac Allerton and John Tilley of the Mayflower company, and to Thomas Southworth, stepson of Governor Bradford. Among his ancestors in the Massachusetts Bay colony were Peter Aspinwall, one of the first settlers of the Muddy river district, now better known as Brookline, and Anne Hutchinson. Another, of about the same remove, was the great French physician, Mathieu Labele, personal physician to King James II after he was driven into exile.

The family line is stirred with the names of magistrates, soldiers, merchants, colonels of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company—men and women who made goodly contributions to the seething American melting pot but wholly unaware that destiny was laying a finger in the business to draw out of it a President for the great Republic of the West.—Boston Transcript.

It is the prescription of an old family doctor who has treated thousands of women patients, and who made a special study of bowel troubles.

It is fine for children, too. They love its taste. Let them have it every time their tongues are coated or their skin is yellow. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made from fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients.

When you've a sick headache, can't eat, are bilious or sluggish; and at the times when you are upset to be constipated, take a little of this famous prescription (all drug stores keep it ready in big bottles), and you'll know why Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the favorite laxative of over a million women!

MICHIGAN DEMOCRATIC AND WET

REPUBLICANS SWEEP ASIDE BY HEAVY MARGINS

Seventy-five Wet Delegates Named as Michigan Became First to Ratify Repeal

While Charlevoix city and county voters were keeping their district firm in the republican ranks at Monday's spring election, Michigan voters generally were helping the democratic party finish the job they started last November.

With returns incomplete, but sufficiently conclusive, it is apparent Michigan's rock-ribbed republican traditions were swept aside by a democratic majority which put their entire slate of state candidates into office. Of the former republican regime, only Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state, remains.

Credited with unbeatable leads are Edward M. Sharp and George E. Bushnell, democratic candidates for justices of the supreme court. Dr. Paul Voelker for superintendent of public instruction, Franklin M. Cook and Charles F. Hemans for university regents, Murray D. VanWagoner for state highway commissioner, Mrs. Edna C. Wilson for state board of education, and Benj. H. Halstead and Charles D. Downing for members of the board of agriculture.

Wets Win Heavily

Monday's results on the liquor question placed Michigan in the position of being the nation's first state to ratify repeal of the 18th amendment. Returns indicate that at least 75 wet delegates were chosen out of the 100 who will attend the constitutional convention April 10. Thirty-five other states must follow Michigan's example to erase the prohibition amendment from the United States constitution.

FEDERAL EMPLOYEES GET PAY REDUCTION

Cut of Fifteen Per Cent Went Into Effect April 1st

A 15 per cent pay cut for federal officials and employees throughout the country became effective Saturday. President Roosevelt, using the power granted by the New Economy Act, made the reduction by executive order.

The pay cut is effective from April 1 to July 1. It is expected to be extended then unless there is a radical upturn in the cost of living. The reduction is estimated to save the government $20,000,000 for the three months, or at the rate of $120,000,000 a year.

SOCIAL AND BANQUET AN ARTISTIC SUCCESS

Fine Program at Methodist Church Thursday Evening

An affair that would have done credit to any organization in the city was put on last Thursday evening by the young people of the local Methodist church.

It was the culmination of a very interesting contest in mission study. Forty-four of these young people sat down at tables arranged in an open oval, with decorations in spring "daffodil yellow," and with a large canopy of the same filling the ceiling, suggestive of the spring sunshine.

After a fine menu, Miss Staley introduced the toastmaster, Miss Taylor, who, in turn introduced each number on the program with a very clever and ingenious poem, with just enough of personalities to add to the zest. Messrs. Brown, Belding and Daveport furnished both vocal and instrumental numbers; Mr. Bussler spoke on "How It Feels to Be a Winner," Miss Pedersen on "How It Feels to Be a Loser—and a Good Sport;" Miss Tuhy sang, accompanied by Miss Iva Howe; Miss Staley read, and Miss Neckerson played, all much enjoyed.

Miss Vera Belding gave the young people a serious and inspiring talk: "This Depression Is a Fight! You Do Not Have to Fight Alone!" appealing to the energy of youth, working together with high idealism of Christianity. The personal prize for the most points on China was presented to Harold Newman. All the various committees did their work ably, depending largely on themselves alone for results.

CREWS BUSY REPAIRING COUNTY HIGHWAYS

Rain and Spring Break-Up Causes Widespread Damage

Maintenance crews of the county highway department are busy this week filling in washouts and otherwise repairing county roads damaged by Friday's rain and general spring break-up.

The worst damage reported was on the Horton Bay-north road, the scene of a large washout. Repair to shoulders on the Charlevoix-Bozeman city road was necessary due to water damage and many other places demanded attention.

The spring break-up has left all but hard surfaced roads in bad condition. Heaving from frost has been general and temporary repairs are keeping crews of highway men busy. The Peninsula road is reported in bad condition. In fact, motorists are warned to keep away from all soft-surfaced roads until they dry out.

ROGERS FILES ANSWER IN MANDAMUS ACTION

Samuel R. Rogers, East Jordan member of the Charlevoix county road commission, Saturday afternoon filed answer to mandamus proceedings instituted by Laverne C. Rouse, Bayne City, former commissioner, to show title to the office now held by Rogers through appointment by the board of supervisors. The case will probably be heard at the May term of circuit court.

STATE REPUBLICANS IRKED AT INACTION

Demand Democrats Present Program Without More Delay

Republican members of the House Friday leveled a bitter attack at Governor Comstock and administration leaders for their alleged failure to present a legislative program in concrete form during the past three months of the session. They demanded that "whatever program the administration has to offer" be submitted immediately to permit speedy action.

The criticism was delivered by Rep. James M. Wilson, of Kalamazoo, who said his remarks represented the views of the 44 Republican members of the lower chamber.

"The Republican members of the House of Representatives demand that whatever program the administration has to offer be submitted at once," Rep. Wilson said. "They deny that any part of the useless delay in legislation to the present hour is of their responsibility. Dallying with vital measures cannot longer be tolerated, nor will the Republican members longer submit silently to charges of ignoring the demands of the people."

Cooperation of County Ministry Results in Services for All Three County Communities

Good Friday services will be held in Charlevoix county Friday afternoon in Charlevoix, Boyne City, and East Jordan. The program has been made possible through the cooperation of ministers of the several churches, some of whom will speak in two churches during the afternoon.

The program to be used will include a short opening service, followed by addresses on the seven words spoken by Jesus on the cross. There will be music between each address, during which time people are free to enter or leave.

My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken me? 5. I thirst. 6. It is finished. 7. Father into thy hands I commend my spirit.

In Charlevoix the services will be at the Congregational church, in Boyne City and East Jordan at the Presbyterian churches.

AUDIT SHOWS CITY FINANCES ARE IN EXCELLENT SHAPE

That the financial status of the city of Charlevoix was in excellent condition when city affairs were turned over to the new administration Monday night, is indicated by an official audit authorized by the outgoing council.

The financial statement, prepared by Wm. H. Gierich, public accountant, appears on page 8 of this issue. The audit, covering the period of Mar. 1, 1931, to Mar. 1, 1933, shows the city has a cash balance of $36,289.82 at the close of that period. Six funds—police, park, auto camp, cemetery, local improvement and water—were overdrawn to the amount of $5,006.31, the difference between the cash on deposit and the total of all funds, shown as $41,296.16.

Since completion of the audit, the council authorized transfer of money from the electric light fund to bring all other funds into balance.

In view of present conditions, tax delinquency, etc., Charlevoix's financial position is excellent. The city has been operated on a pay-as-you-go basis, without the necessity of borrowing, a condition quite unusual in these times. When the low city tax rate and reductions in electric costs are taken into consideration, local residents may feel quite fortunate.

JOHN SIMS BAKER, 71 DIED LAST THURSDAY

Was Identified in Local Business Circles Over Half Century

John S. Baker, 71, long identified in Charlevoix business circles, died early last Thursday following an extended illness.

Deceased was born November 17, 1860, at Dunfermlie, Ont. At the age of 11 years he came to Grand Rapids with his parents, and 55 years ago, in 1878, he came to Charlevoix. He had made this city his home since that time.

Mr. Baker's business interests during his residence in Charlevoix were varied. With Mrs. Baker, now deceased, he operated the old Elston hotel, Baker's Inn, and built the Charlevoix Beach Hotel and property to their present proportions. He also owned and operated a blacksmith shop and implement store, organized the Troy Laundry and was connected with other business enterprises. He was prominent in fraternal circles.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Arthur VonDolcke, two grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Jane Chase and Mrs. Mary Clarke, both of this city.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon from Brookside chapel. Rev. G. R. Parker of the Congregational church officiating.

HONORS AWARDED FOR SCHOLARSHIP

MISS VIRGINIA NICKERSON IS VALEDICTORIAN FOR '33

Miss Lila Tiltonson and Miss Virginia Taylor Share Salutatory—Four Others Honored

With the close of the 1932-33 school year approaching, scholarship awards to those of the senior class maintaining the highest average during the past four years have been announced by O. P. North, principal. Leading the class of forty-eight members, one of the largest graduating in recent years, is Miss Virginia Nickerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Nickerson, whose average of 96.7 entitled her to the valedictory honor. Miss Nickerson, 16, is one of the youngest to receive the honor in local school history.

Miss Lila Tiltonson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Tiltonson, and Miss Virginia Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Taylor, share the salutatory honor. Their average for the four years is 94.2. Four others, three girls and one boy, received honorable mention. They are Dorothy Staley, Elizabeth Dhasleer, Marjorie Jenn Currey and Winfield Kirby. The standstills of this group were very close.

All three of the leading honor students have been prominent in school activities. Miss Nickerson was active in public speaking and dramatics. Miss Tiltonson, who nearly equaled the record of her sister, Eloise, valedictorian of the 1931 graduating class, was president of her class three years. Miss Taylor has served as a class officer and is prominent in other activities, as were also the four students given honorable mention.

FARMERS CUT DOWN ACREAGE

Potato Planting Will Be Over 5 Per Cent Less This Year

Further retrenchment in farm production programs is in evidence this spring says the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in its April 1 report on the agricultural situation. Farmers have reported to the bureau intentions to reduce corn acreage by 3.5 per cent or nearly 4,000,000 acres; to decrease the acreage of spring wheat and oats by 3 per cent, sweetpotatoes 13 per cent, and potatoes 5.4 per cent. The principal increase is one of 22 per cent in tobacco acreage.

SHEEP MEETING WELL ATTENDED

INSTRUCTION SCHOOL FOR TWO COUNTIES DREW 55

College Experts Explain Best Methods of Handling Flocks at Emmet County Farm

A sheep school for Emmet and Charlevoix county sheepmen, which included demonstrations on proper handling of sheep and lambs was held at the farm of Wm. Stolt, Petoskey, last Tuesday and was attended by 54 D. H. LaVoi, animal husbandry specialist, Michigan State College, was assisted by A. Bartlett in carrying on the above demonstrations.

The meeting was arranged for by B. C. Mellemcamp and A. R. Schubert, county agriculture agents of the two counties.

It was the most complete meeting held for such work and sheepmen from both counties openly expressed themselves as feeling well repaid for their trips from all parts of the two counties and as having received much help.

The meeting was started in the middle of the forenoon by a shearing demonstration given by Mr. Bartlett. He assisted boys especially of 14-18 club age in shearing. While this was in progress Mr. LaVoi discussed with the rest of the group different grades of wool, and through the 20 fleeces he had on display was able to make his explanations very clear to all. Since during the past two years the greatest share of wool in the country has been sold on grade sheepmen are more desirous of knowing what they have to sell and how they might improve their product.

Following the lunch hour when coffee was furnished to all, the shearing instructions were continued by Mr. Bartlett. A county champion is to be selected from the boys participating who will represent the county in a state contest at Farmers' Week next winter. Mr. LaVoi posted two ailing young ewes and showed the internal parasites in each. Systematic drenching with copper sulphate and nicotine sulphate starting when the lambs are a month old is the best method of preventing parasites from becoming established in a flock, he said.

Results of the Lamb Production contest were outlined by Mr. LaVoi. The results showed the practices of the sheepmen in Michigan who produced the most pounds of lamb per ewe. Four Emmet county sheep raisers produced over 100 pounds of lamb per ewe.

Announcement was also made of the fact that Emmet county among the 21 counties entered in the 1932 Lamb Improvement contest placed 5th in the state.

FISH BOATS FAIL TO BREAK UP ICE FLOES

Efforts to Reach Lake Michigan Fishing Grounds So Far Futile

Boats of the local commercial fishing fleet have made several unsuccessful attempts in the last few days to battle their way through ice floes off this harbor to the Lake Michigan fishing grounds.

Strong easterly winds of the past week carried most of the great ice fields out into the lake, but does firmly wedged between the north and south points of the bay off Charlevoix have so far blocked all efforts to break through.

BEER MONEY IS HOPE OF STATE

SEEN AS MEANS OF FILLING EMPTY COFFERS

Finances Pinpointed Out As Real Reason for Haste in Enacting Brew Legislation

(By Elton R. Eaton.)

Many people of Michigan have wondered why the administration in Lansing is so anxious to have the legislature pass a beer bill. They realize that the legislation is not the result of any unusual public demand, although the public is favorable to the legal sale of beer within the state.

The real reason of the anxiety of administrative officials in Lansing is due to the fact that the state of Michigan is without cash and officials hope that the license fees provided in the beer bill will bring some revenues into the empty state treasury and not because of any general hunger for beer.

Yes, the state is practically penniless. Employees of educational institutions were only paid half of their wages the first of this month and practically no bills have been paid by the state since the first of the year. At a time when the state treasury should be running over with cash, there is none there. County treasurers are reporting that they have practically no tax money to send the state. That portion of the gas and weight tax not already expended for purposes specified in the state law, is being diverted to other purposes so the state must have money from some source, say members of the house and senate, if its government is to continue to function. The beer bill is regarded as the one, last currency vein that can be tapped and it is for that reason that such frantic haste is being made to pass the measure.

To those who are anxious to get a license to sell beer, there will be no definite information on this subject until the bill has been placed on final reading in the house. Last week-end found the measure slowly making its way through senate hearings.

But there is this much that is sure about it, the villages, cities and counties will have nothing to do with issuing the licenses or controlling the sale of beer. It is known in many places that dozens of applications have already been filed with village and city authorities, but these applications will not count. No village or city legislation can keep the state from issuing a permit within the municipal boundaries.

If one desires to get a license to sell beer, the application must be filed at Lansing with the new state beer control commission that is provided for in the bill now being considered. There can be no bars and beer will be permitted served at tables only. The schedule of prices for licenses will not be definitely known until the bill is ready for the governor's signature.

Representative Vern Bowen's bill that provides for the abolishment of the securities commission and a severe penalty for the sale of worthless securities or stocks in the state, has the approval of Governor Comstock. The bill is now well on its way to becoming a law. The measure will go away with a branch of the (Continued on page 7.)

In another section of this week's Courier the local bank solicits the continued patience of the depositors, since the bank must conform to many new regulations and necessarily much detail work remains to be done.

Meanwhile the bank will continue its operation under the terms of the Governor's proclamation. All money in the new trust funds established with the bank continue to be subject to 100 per cent withdrawal at the option of the depositor. Deposits will be accepted as previously in trust, and may be withdrawn in part or whole. Withdrawal of 2% of old balances is being allowed.

The announcement of the bank in detail will be found on page four of this issue.

If only the guilty ones were to be the sufferers we might look up on the evil with more tolerance but unfortunately many innocent ones will have to suffer as much or more than the guilty ones if it comes back.

Only Six Imports Are Vital to U. S.

All Other Needed Articles Are Produced Here.

Washington.—America's billion-dollar import trade could be cut to just six vitally necessary articles.

Out of the myriad types of goods which flow into this country each year, only a half dozen are absolute necessities which have no substitute produced at home, which could not be produced here or which are not already produced in this country.

These six articles, listed by the United States Department of Commerce, are platinum, tin, manilla, sisal, kapok and rubber. In 1931, the latest year for which detailed figures are available, they made up only 11 percent of Uncle Sam's total bill for imports. If America's importations were suddenly reduced to these six commodities, cotton, the most important export, could pay for them all twice over.

Coffee, Tea on List.

Another ten articles which cannot be produced here or for which no substitute can be produced are listed by the Commerce department as only semi-necessities. They are coffee, tea, cocoa, camphor, chinabark, coriander, opium, cloves and pepper.

Catchable fishes, which would transform American economic and social life if imports came to include only the indispensable necessities or even the semi-necessities listed by the department, but it could be done.

Commerce experts have sorted out not only the products which America must have, but also those now being imported which could be produced domestically under favorable price conditions, which could be replaced by American substitutes and which are partly produced at home already.

Together these categories, which embrace only 11 articles in all, are half of the skeleton of American foreign trade. Altogether their cost in 1931 did not make up more than 54 percent of what the United States actually spent on imports.

The other half of the skeleton is the ten leading American exports, cotton, petroleum, automobiles and other vehicles, industrial machinery, potatoes, fruits and nuts, grains, nonferrous and nonprecious metals, and coal and related fuels. They are the goods bringing the most money, in the order named, into this country.

If foreign trade were suddenly cut to the skeleton, it America bought

Only Diamond Mines in U. S. Are in Arkansas

Murfreesboro, Ark.—Arkansas is the only state that can boast of a diamond mine or diamond deposits—yet, little is known of this industry, even by residents.

There are diamonds in Pike county, Arkansas, that blind the eye with their brilliance and beauty and are as fine as those mined from the Kimberleys in Africa.

The largest stone to be taken from Arkansas soil weighed 8 carats. Thousands of the finest quality have been sold.

As early as 1889 the geological survey of Arkansas published an article on the possibility of life county. It was not taken seriously. In fact, the matter was laughed at.

However, in 1904 when John Hadlock picked up two glittering pebbles from his farm near here and took them to Little Rock, where they were examined by jewelers who pronounced them genuine diamonds, the doubting Thomases began to die.

Later these stones were sent to New York, where they were cut and polished. They weighed approximately three carats.

One company alone has marketed over 5,000 diamonds. They range in size from 2 1/2 carats.

only the 60 commodities on the Commerce department list and sold only the ten types of goods now most largely sold abroad, she would still have had a $280,000,000 favorable balance of trade on the basis of 1931 figures.

Economic maturity standing upon Uncle Sam is revealed in the two lists, the one of important exports and the other of vital imports. America is no longer a young country pouring out boundless raw materials in exchange for manufactures. Two of the leading exports, automobiles and industrial machinery, are manufactures.

All Are Raw Materials.

Imports tell the same story. All of them are raw materials and most of them, not being native, would have to be bought regardless of the country's economic age. Others of the essential imports, however, disclose the exhaustion or stripping of natural resources known as economic middle age. For instance, America, the land of lush forests, must import pulp wood.

None of the six absolutely irreplaceable imports—platinum, tin, manilla, sisal, kapok and rubber—ever have been produced in this country, however. They play a very small part in America's actual import business.

Most costly import on the department's whole list is sugar. It is classified as a necessity which we import but which we also produce in some measure at home.

Silk, a semi-necessity for which American products could be substituted, commands the second largest import business among the articles listed. China, Japan, and Italy ship it into this country. Coffee, an irreplaceable semi-necessity is third in importance, and newsprint, a necessity

Will Forecast Weather Month in Advance

Scientist Says It Will Come in Our Lifetime.

Chicago.—Cold waves such as the nation recently recovered from will be accurately forecast by science more than a month in advance in the not distant future, according to Dr. Oliver Austin Lee, head of the Dearborn Astrophysical Observatory.

He declared this would undoubtedly be accomplished by science within our lifetime as a result of a world-wide study of solar radiation now being made under the direction of the leading scientific minds.

Completion of this gigantic task will mean the fulfillment of a dream long cherished by science to make possible "long distance" weather forecasting. It will mean the saving of untold millions of dollars from crop losses throughout the world, and a tremendous advance to aviation.

"Since solar radiation is the basis of all life, science has been concentrating on it to give us the answers to many problems that now confront us," Doctor Lee said.

"Many observations have been established throughout the world, particularly for the purpose of studying solar radiation, until now virtually a world-wide network exists in which scientists for many nations are represented."

"Specific instruments have been devised especially for this study of the changing intensity of the sun's radiation, and recordings are taken each day all over the world where the sun shines."

While sun spots have "a tremendous connection" with the earth's weather, Doctor Lee said they cannot yet be held responsible for such rapid changes in temperature as noted during the recent cold wave, because "nobody has yet found any direct connection."

The sun is now going into the minimum stage of its eleven-year sun spot cycle, Doctor Lee explained, and this leads to the belief sometimes that intense cold weather is due in such a period. This does not hold true, he said, despite the fact that at times solar heat varies from 2 to 3 per cent at the minimum sun spot stage.

Squatters Use Home in Owner's Absence

Loveland, Colo.—When Carl Gooch and his wife went to California, "squatters" moved into the Gooch residence and made themselves at home.

Upon his return to Loveland Gooch discovered that the uninvited guests had moved out with some of the furniture, linen, towels and clothing. They had used a quantity of coal and wood and had depleted the pantry shelves.

The only satisfaction Gooch was able to get out of the visit was the knowledge that the "squatters" were clean. They had taken a bath and left the water in the bathtub as evidence.

Getting Oil From the Back Yards

Oklahoma has another oil boom, this time a series of backyard oil wells drilled on city lots on the edge of the residential section of Blackwell. Two of the oil "miners" are shown working their well, which is the smallest in the world. The wells come in at an average depth of only 23 feet from an oil sand 18 inches deep. They are being drilled with post augers and pumped by hand with common farm pitcher pumps, and each has a yield of five or six barrels a day.

produced in part at home, is fourth. Taken together these four imports made up exactly a third of the money spent abroad for imports during 1931. They composed 59 per cent of the cost of goods listed by the department as necessities and semi-necessities. After them in importance comes rubber and wool pulp. Between these six commodities and the other necessary and semi-necessary imports is a great gap.

Good Bread High in Food Values

Contains Large Percentage of Calories Needed for One's Health.

Bread in some form or another has been from the beginning of civilization an important contribution to the nutrition of mankind. After man discovered that he could grind wild grain into meal, mix this with water and bake bread between hot stones, he began the cultivation of grain for food and the establishment of a settled home.

It was centuries later that the use of "leaven" was discovered. Bread in anything like its modern form is said to have been first made by the Egyptians. The first bread was merely cakes of coarsely ground meal held together by water. A great variety of grain was used and wheat bread is used almost to the exclusion of other grains. Most of this bread is made from refined wheat flour, known as "white" flour. In France and England this is the favorite bread. In the other countries of Europe we find rye bread, known in some places as black bread, used largely.

"A fine white loaf" was a symbol of luxury food, and used only by the great until the last centuries, when large scale milling operations began to produce fine white flour in large quantities. Within a much shorter space of time commercial bakeries turning out thousands of loaves of bread each day have taken over the task of baking bread for large communities. The majority of this bread is made from white flour and the quality produced is often excellent, sometimes much better than the average loaf of home-made bread. Large scale operations have put the loaf on the market at a cost which little more than covers the cost of the material and fuel for a home-baked loaf. Prices per pound differ, depending largely upon the other ingredients besides flour used in its preparation. "Milk" bread is preferable from the food value standpoint.

We depend upon bread for a goodly percentage of the calories needed daily in our diet. We get from it an appreciable amount of protein. Bread, made as it is from a good quality wheat, with the addition of shortening, milk and yeast, is a valuable food for the sake of its "fuel" and protein. It is also so easy for digestion that it is completely utilized. At the same time it is an inexpensive source of food.

Bread must, of course, be supplemented by other foods which provide more protein, minerals and vitamins. In a well-varied diet we will get the supplements easily from extra milk, meat, eggs and vegetables and fruits. While wheat bread is of higher value in minerals, especially iron, and in vitamin B, than white bread, it is not so generally popular as white bread, but it is a good plan to use it to some extent in the weekly meal plan.

Where the money to be spent for food is too limited in amount to allow of the purchase of liberal amounts of the more expensive foods, whole wheat bread should be counted upon to provide iron and vitamin B.

From the nutritive points of view we should not discount the contribution of bread to the diet. We hear so much about the value of fruits, vegetables and milk that we somehow forget the importance of this inexpensive food.

Paris Plans Organizing Felines to Combat Rats

Paris.—The city of Paris may raise an army of municipal cats to combat the growing menace of rats.

The people of the Palle-Mercouri quarter, one of the oldest in Paris, some of them on the verge of abandoning their apartments to the rodents, are clamoring for cats. Their neighbor, M. Rene Flapet, at their demand has just made a complaint to Prefect Edouard Bonard of the Seine department.

Paris has before it the examples set by Lyons and Havre. In Lyons, Edouard Herriot, mayor and former premier of France, has instituted "chatterboxes"—French for cat-raising centers—to combat rats. In Havre, Mayor Leon Meyer, now minister of merchant marine, has done the same thing.

Heretofore, Paris has contented itself with providing free rat poison. But poison has not proved adequate to counterbalance the high birth rate of French rats.

"It must be kept in mind," declared M. Flapet to M. Bonard, "that a pair of rats produce from 50 to 65 offspring a year, in three litters."

ECONOMY

I am for economy. I don't believe in spending money until we get it living within our means is a good personal rule and a good government rule. A government is poor indeed when it can't find any place to economize except in the public schools. Schools are the backbone of any nation. If you will find out what the schools are, you will know what the nation is. If the schools go backward to do the country.—Calvin Coolidge.

THE SMALL LOAN BILL

One of the measures that has passed the House of Representatives at Lansing would reduce the amount of interest which may be charged borrowers under the provisions of the Uniform Small Loans Act of 1921. This act at present fixes 3 1/2 per cent a month, or 42 per cent a year, as the maximum legal interest licensed lenders who deal in loans of $300 or less, may charge. The bill now before the Senate would cut the maximum to one per cent a month, or 12 per cent a year.

Even one per cent a month may seem high to persons accustomed to borrowing upon adequate security and paying back what they owe. The maximum legal rate for general transactions in Michigan is seven per cent a year. Dealers in small loans, however, say the cost of conducting their business is great and requires a greater return on the investment.

From the debtor's standpoint, 3 1/2 per cent a month is a heavy obligation to undertake, and may easily aggravate instead of cure the troubles that sent him to the lender in the first place. Only an exceptional need, or a chance for an extraordinary investment, would seem to justify payment at the rate of 42 per cent a year.

Cutting down the legal interest should result in lenders accepting only the better risks offered. It will be a benefit for those who still can obtain money, and it should save many others from contracting obligations that would mean disaster for them. One per cent a month may not be a proper maximum, but certainly 42 per cent a year is too high.—From the Detroit Free Press.

THE LURE OF GOLD

From Wilson Goldes, Charlotte banker and business executive, comes the suggestion: "that instead of taking over the non-profit paying copper mines of Northern Michigan, a million men could be put to work somewhere mining gold—something that always has a market and is real—not in direct competition with any one."

State and federal grubstaking of men to mine gold is not as visionary as at first it might appear. In north Georgia hundreds of men have taken to the hills in search of free gold and with only the crudest kind of mining implements have been able to dig a fair return for their labors out of mother earth. This country has a number of gold bearing areas in the west and northwest where search for free gold could be made profitable. But very little financing would be necessary to equip men for such a venture and the lure of treasure would attract them from all sections of the country and from all walks in life.

A million men sent in quest of the yellow treasure would mean a million men taken from the ranks of charity and made self-supporting. A million men each adding their meagre mite of gold daily to our present supply would mean cheaper gold and consequently higher commodity prices. For although we measure the value of all things in gold, we must remember that gold is also a commodity subject to the law of supply and demand. Let the nation revive the romantic and historical days of "49." It would have an economical and refreshing effect on our national life.

THOSE WHO LOSE

The railroads are among the largest contributors to our national well being. The taxes they pay goes to the support of our educational systems. They employ thousands of workers at good wages, are liberal patrons of the coal mines for fuel and in countless other ways furnish a ready market for the products of the manufacturer and producer. To subject the railroads to unfair competition by the busses is an economic mistake that brings injury to every citizen.

ALL INDUSTRIES SUFFER

The experience of the railways has been worse during the depression than that of most industries, but all industries are suffering, as the railways are from the combined effects of terrific losses of earnings and terrific increase of taxes due to unwise, wasteful and grossly excessive government expenditures. From the Railway Age.

Indignation from the agonized man that is going up from some of the state's employees over the activities of a certain Mr. Leeblove and his pals, Michigan is having a little Semitic movement all its own.

EASTER SERVICES CULMINATE WITH CANTATA

Wooler's "Hail the Victor" at Congregational Church Sunday

The week of Easter services at the Congregational church will culminate with the singing of Alfred Wooler's cantata, "Hail the Victor."

The Presbyterian church choir of East Jordan have joined with the Charlevoix singers in working on this beautiful cantata. The solo and many choruses interpret the last days of Christ on earth very effectively with lovely melodies and harmonies built around the inspiring text.

The soloists are Mesdames Adams and Livingston and Messrs. Kirby, Nordrum, Seiler and Wilkinson. The chorus of 35 singers are assisted by Miss Lola Essenden at the piano, Miss Helen Parker at the organ, and Mrs. A. J. Stelter directing.

All music lovers and those who care for anything that depicts the life of our Lord, are invited to attend the services at the Charlevoix Congregational church Easter Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

INCREASED ACREAGE OF FIELD PEAS WARRANTED

One crop in Michigan which may be safely expanded this year is field peas, the farm crops department at Michigan State College said recently.

The average price paid for high grades of peas is now $1.25 per bushel, it is pointed out. Last year the crop's production was 36 per cent below the ten-year average and the return per acre in 1933 promises to be higher than for many other agricultural commodities.

AT THE MOVIES

Premiere of "Wild Girl" Announced at Palace Theatre

Presenting a picture of California in the days of the gold rush along with an unusual romance of that colorful period, "Wild Girl" opens at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday with such luminaries as Charles Farrell, Joan Bennett and Ralph Bellamy in the leading roles. Paul Walsh is said to have set a new standard in bringing a bygone era to the speaking screen with this adaptation of Bret Harte's famous story, "Salome Jane's Kiss."

Is a Real Human Document Made to Live by Robinson

"Silver Dollar," which opens at the Palace Theatre Wednesday and Thursday is an astounding drama, one of the few really great masterpieces of the screen, in which Edward G. Robinson unquestionably gives his greatest performance. It has the bigness of "Cimarron" in its panoramic sweep of historical happenings; but it is even more powerful in its throbbing drama, that pulses with the heart-beats of those sturdy pioneers who built the nation. The entire cast does exceptional work. It is composed of such sterling players as Jobyna Howland, De Witt Jennings, Robert Warwick, Russell Simpson, Harry Holman, Charles Middleton, John Marston and Marjorie Gateson.

To Our Depositors

The appointment of Archie L. Livingston, as Conservator of the Charlevoix State Savings Bank has been confirmed by the State Banking Commission.

The Bank must conform to many new regulations and much detail remains to be worked out before the bank can come under full operation in charge of the Conservator. This will take some time, during which we solicit your continued patience.

In the meantime, the bank will continue its operation under the terms of the Governor's proclamation. All monies in the new trust fund continue to be subject to 100 per cent withdrawal, at the option of the depositor. Deposits will be accepted, as heretofore, in the trust fund, and may be withdrawn in part or whole.

Bank drafts issued on New York and Chicago and payments on notes will be accepted.

While Mr. Livingston has been officially appointed Conservator for this Bank, a plan of re-organization has not been worked out. A good deal of work in furnishing necessary data to the Department lies just ahead and a little time will be required to develop a satisfactory plan of re-organization.

In the meantime, The Charlevoix State Savings Bank will strive to be of every possible service to the community, not inconsistent with the regulations prescribed by the Banking Department.

We are not unmindful of the inconvenience that is being caused our depositors, but with some recovery from the financial and economic distress of the past few years, coupled with a fair measure of goodwill, confidence and encouragement on the part of the Public, our plans and efforts to the full re-opening of this bank will be greatly aided.

MICHIGAN DEPT. OF STATE WEEKLY NEWS

Despite efforts of state officials and the Legislature, approximately 300,000 fewer Michigan automobiles had secured licenses on April 1, 1933, than on April 1, 1932.

Records of the department of state show that on March 28, 1932, a total of 798,252 motor vehicles had been given 1932 license plates. On March 28, 1933, a total of 416,000 vehicles had been given 1933 plates and stickers good until August 1, 1933, had been issued for 33,104 vehicles.

During the last three days of March, most of the branch offices of the department reported an increased sale of the half-price permits for use with 1932 plates, but accurate statistics are not available. It is believed that many motorists have been awaiting another extension of time and will secure proper license plates during the first week of April.

The act of the Legislature, allowing use of 1932 plates until August 1, 1933, when accompanied by a permit fastened to the windshield showing that one-half of the weight tax had been paid, was adopted late in February. An extension of time for 15 days was granted in order that the stickers might be printed and distributed. On March 15, another extension until April 1 was granted by the secretary of state at the request of the Legislature, after innumerable citizens had informed officials that their funds were tied up in banks closed because of the state and national bank holidays.

It was thought that a large number of motorists would take advantage of the half-price permit but the number of sticker-permits sold on March 28, was 28,989. This is far below expectations.

The department of state has no part in the administration of present state prohibition laws, nor is it expected that the department will be given any powers or duties under liquor and beer control bills now under contemplation by the Legislature. It was announced by Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald.

This statement was made in answer to the flood of letters being sent to the department containing applications for beer licenses.

Continuing to hold its rank as the leading salt producing state in the United States, Michigan in five years has produced more than $37,000,000 worth of that commodity, according to figures compiled by the Division of the Geological Survey of the Department of Conservation. In 1931, the last year for which figures are now available, 2,053,980 short tons of salt were produced in this state with a total value of $5,760,000. Because of lower prices and over production, the figures represented a drop under 1930 when 2,558,290 short tons were extracted with a total value of $7,884,072.

STATE REQUESTS SIX U. S. FORESTRY CAMPS

One for Southern Part of State and Rest in North Is Plan

Request that Michigan be allotted six camps under the federal reforestation-unemployment program has been made at Washington, P. J. Hoffmaster, head of forest work of the state department of conservation, has announced.

He said that he expects a definite announcement from federal authorities this week if that number will be granted.

Under present plans, one of the camps would be established in southern Michigan with the remaining five scattered throughout the upper and lower peninsulas. Hoffmaster declined to reveal the exact locations of any of the projects.

A minimum of 200 men would be employed in each camp, he said. The duration of the reforestation work in Michigan is still indefinite, he declared, but said that he understood a movement was under way in Washington to extend it over a two-year period.

Michigan's quota under the plan would be about 8,000 men.

Our Government
—How It Operates

By William Bruckart

POSTAL SAVINGS SYSTEM

THE old maxim concerning savings that if you watch the pennies, the dollars will care for themselves, must have had some reference to the postal service, for a vast amount of its annual income which exceeds $200,000,000 annually is in the form of the lowly one-cent piece.

But I like to think of the postal service as a gigantic corporation having branches in every city, town and hamlet in the United States. I like to imagine it as an enterprise, operating not for profit but for service in my interest and in yours.

It might be mentioned in this connection that no better evidence of the faith of a people in an institution has been recorded than has been shown in the last two years by the growth of deposits in the postal savings system. That is just as much a part of our postal system now as it is the right to send money through the mail in the form of a postal money order.

Respecting this evidence of faith, the figures reveal that more than $800,000,000 of funds, mainly from individuals, is held by the postal savings banks.

The postal service, whether considered in its correct light as a government agency or visualized as a great private corporation, has to have management, supervision, guidance. Without detracting one whit from the splendid type of service rendered by those workers which constitute the vast machine, it must have policies formulated and purposes planned if its future equals its past. Hence, the postmaster general sits as a member of the President's cabinet to take counsel as he serves as the titular head of the service, and the Post Office department exists for the purpose of supervision of the machinery that handles our mails.

The chief deterrent to a clear conception of the postal service is its size. It is so vast that comprehension of its various activities at once is difficult, yet an idea may be gained of its various ramifications by examining the structure at the top for the purpose of seeing how supervision of the work is divided.

The postmaster general has four assistants, each with allotted work to administer. He has his legal adviser, the solicitor and another attorney who is a special assistant to the attorney general of the United States, and he has a chief inspector and a corps of inspectors to see that the laws are observed, to look after those pennies.

To the first assistant postmaster general is assigned supervision of the service rendered; that is, he is responsible for maintenance of a service to meet the needs of the public, and that includes management of postmasters. In the last analysis, it is he who determines whether a rural route will be extended or whether a uniformed carrier shall be assigned to deliver mail in the new development of homes at the edge of town. This official is the one also who theoretically disposes of letters and papers and parcels improperly addressed or not called for at the local post office and which eventually are classed as "dead letters."

Railway mail, international mail and air mail are supervised by the second assistant postmaster general. With the aid of the Interstate Commerce commission, he decides how much money the railways will be paid for handling the mails, and the schedule of payments has to be revised frequently because of changing conditions and expanding operations. The international mail involves treaties and conventions with foreign nations and its complexities are myriad.

All of the finances of the postal service are assigned to the jurisdiction and control of the third assistant postmaster general.

The third assistant is responsible for determination of the income of the postal service. In other words, he seeks to work out policies and programs to keep income and outgo some, where near even, though it has happened in very few years in history. To do that, the third assistant must seek to find the cost of handling the various kinds of mail and the performance of the many services now imbedded in the postal service. For example, the parcel post rate on a pound package from Washington to Kansas City should be approximately the same as it costs to collect, transport and deliver that package to the addressee. It is a nice problem, but without the answer or an approximate figure, the postal deficit can get out of hand.

In the hands of the fourth assistant postmaster general are concentrated all of the mechanical and engineering phases of the service. He runs a gigantic shop for manufacturing mail bags and other equipment, and buys the equipment which the government does not make. It is under his supervision that the new post office building in your town was designed and constructed (if owned by the government) and he makes the rental contracts if the building is leased. And as though he had nothing else to do, the fourth assistant is the "boss chauffeur" and garage manager and mechanic for the thousands of motor vehicles which the postal service owns and uses.

'Rush' Has Doomed
Travel by Water

Lovers of leisurely travel cannot read without a sigh of the evil days upon which the steamboat has fallen, the steamboat whose traffic was for so long indispensable to the prosperity of the country's inland waterways. It is only a little while since a newspaper paragraph recorded the financial distress of the Hudson River night line, and now we read that the day line, which has made the loveliness of the Hudson and of the Rip Van Winkle country familiar to generations of tourists, is in the same plight—sunk in debt. That, too, is the story of the famous Lake Champlain line which for 106 years has been carrying passengers and freight between Plattsburgh and Burlington. The automobile has left these once profitable enterprises with only the bare bones of traffic. Our age demands the service of speed, and the steamboat which 50 years ago, surpassed our grandfathers' childhood dreams of all that was imaginable in rapid and luxurious travel, is now looked upon as a conveyance fit only for old ladies and slowpokes.

Yet nothing in the rocket-flight of the automobile can make up to some of us for the comparatively deliberate journeying by steamboat, for the slow unfolding of the landscape from her deck as she moves with hardly perceptible sound or motion, calmly, restfully, from one landing place to another. It is a rare automobile trip that can afford us those vistas and reaches that open to us as we thread the Highlands of the Hudson in a steamboat for instance.

The staid lines of steamers between Boston and New York survive and there are indications that they prosper, a reminder of the spacious days long ago when every evening a proud procession of rival Sound boats curved round the Battery in New York, Boston bound, gay with bunting from stem to stern, filling the hearts of children on East river ferries with inexpressible longing just once to make that splendid voyage to the mysterious East, the scene of Bunker Hill and the home of Paul Revere. One of these days, we hope, the steamboat will come back into its own and plow our lakes and rivers and bays and sounds with all the dividend-earning glory of the enchanted past.—Boston Transcript.

DEMOCRATS FINISH THE JOB

Monday's election in Michigan gave to the Democratic party a clean sweep of all state offices for whom ballots were cast. The people made good the campaign slogan of the Democrats. They "finished the job" for them. The result was against the hope of this newspaper, but the people spoke and the will of the majority is our will also.

The election results take from important offices in Michigan some of its best officials. They substitute men untried, inexperienced and largely unknown. The Supreme Court loses Justices John S. McDonald and George M. Clark, two of as fine judicial minds as ever graced the bench. It substitutes for them George E. Bushnell and Edward M. Sharpe, two splendid attorneys who will doubtless make names for themselves as jurists. The one thing we dislike about this situation more, even than the defeat of two able and splendid men, is that the bench of the Supreme Court of Michigan should be mere political spoils to be fought over in each succeeding election.

We regret, too, the defeat of Governor C. Dillman, state highway commissioner, an able and honest and efficient public servant, who has been made the victim of as rotten politics as Michigan ever saw. The one great fault with Dillman was that he refused to build roads for political purposes or to take orders from political adventurers. We are placing in the hands of an untried man the biggest money-spending department in our government.

As we look at it the election was not so much a discrediting of the candidates on the Republican ticket as it was a manifestation of disgust with the Republican party organization and its methods. After the debacle of November 8, this newspaper, a Republican newspaper, declared emphatically that the Republican party never could win again until it had reorganized following a very thorough housecleaning.

The party failed to clean house, failed to reorganize, held a convention in Grand Rapids only five weeks ago which was a stench in the nostrils of everybody. Trickery and chicanery characterized it generally, and the state central committee meeting held soon after didn't help the situation in the least. Factionalism and double-crossing within its own organization never will help the party. Those failings will be ever present until the house is cleaned.

The party organization did nothing for its candidates in this campaign. At least if it did anything, nobody ever heard of it. The result was inevitable.

There will be other similar results until such time as the organization is purged, until the house is cleaned of its tricksters and until the party is given over to Republicans who are willing to work unselfishly on behalf of its candidates and on behalf of the state at large.—Grand Rapids Herald.

THE ROAD IS CLEAR

Several factors which may have caused delay in the work of the legislature have been eliminated. The state banking holiday, the liquor issue and the spring political campaign, all issues calculated to divert the legislator from his sworn task of law-making, have been settled for the time being and there should be no further excuse for failure of performance.

Personally we feel that Governor Comstock means well. That he is sincere in his desire to assist the state towards economic and financial recovery cannot be questioned. The horde of barnacles that have attached themselves to the ship of state at Lansing are proving a serious handicap to his program and whether he will be able to put over the plans of administration in spite of this remains to be seen.

The mandate given the Democrats in party in Michigan last November has been further strengthened by the sweeping victory of that party at the April 3 election. No greater vote of confidence was ever given a political party in this state. The people have seen to it that the administration highway has been cleared of every obstruction. With a clear road ahead, a careful and competent hand at the wheel, the Democrats of Michigan will have only themselves to blame for failure to keep faith with the people. There is a great opportunity for service.

OUR SCHOOL COSTS

In answer to the many inquiries regarding the salaries in the Boyne City school system, the following statistics are presented:

In September the average grade teacher's salary was $999.29, as compared with $1,303.59 in Charlevoix and $1,022.22 in East Jordan. The average high school salary here was $1,259.29, and in Charlevoix $1,678.51, and East Jordan $1,341.25. For the entire faculty and superintendent the local average was $1,197.15, while in Charlevoix it was $1,642.05 and in East Jordan $1,272.50.

Despite the drastic cut imposed upon the Charlevoix employees during the past week, the average salary there is still $201.64 a year more than the average Boyne City salary. The reductions that have been made in the local school since 1929 are responsible for this situation. In 1929-30 the total paid for salaries of teachers and superintendent was $50,802. In 1930-31 it was reduced to $45,080. That was lowered to $43,200 last year and at present amounts to $39,020. Thus, since 1929 a total reduction of $11,782 has been enforced, of which $4,180 was made last year.—Boyne Citizen.

BEGIN SAVING NOW

Governor William A. Comstock has emphatically pointed out that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will not continue longer to be the 24-hour angel of Michigan. He has stressed the point that R. F. C. money is a loan and not a gift. These loans draw interest and must be, at some future time, repaid. Also the Governor, with an eye to eye firmness, points out that economy means actual saving, and not ways and means for raising more money to meet budgets which were extravagant in 1929 and are now almost grand larceny. Michigan this year, he says, must either cut its coat according to the cloth, or finish in the slough of despond. If the legislature will help him, fine. If not, he will peremptorily ask them to step aside and let men run who can run.

GAUSS INSURANCE CZAR

Governor William A. Comstock, acting in conformity with powers granted him by the Legislature, has declared an insurance loan holiday, which will remain in effect during the existing emergency.

Under the terms set down by the governor, Charles E. Gauss, state insurance commissioner, issued orders suspending cash payments on policy loans and insurance surrender values. The order provides for loans needed for premium or $100 needed for necessities.

Other exceptions include loans for taxes, to meet interest or principle on mortgages, or when failure to meet obligations would result in loss of equity or ownership in property. All applications for loans prior to February 11, the date of the governor's first banking proclamation, must be met by insurance companies. Death benefits and matured endowments shall be paid.

UNSUNG HEROES

The real hero during the banking holiday was the merchant who cashed checks and extended credit. Without hesitation he tied up every cent of currency and risked his credit with the wholesale houses. These risks were taken willingly that he might help his customers.

Now that conditions are improved it is only fair that checks held by merchants should be promptly redeemed. Change accounts should be paid so that the merchant can restock his shelves. Merchants who extended themselves to keep business going and the wants of life satisfied are entitled to every consideration. They were the unsung heroes in the midst of a world of turmoil and suspicion. We honor them for patriotic service rendered in a time of great need.

Love may be blind, but it usually manages to find an eye opener.

state government that never functioned as originally planned. Organized with the idea of providing some sort of protection to the people who had money to invest, the right to sell placed upon various bond and stock issues by the commission was paraded before investors as a guarantee by the state that the investment was O. K. Upon this assumption millions and millions of dollars were turned over to stock and bond promoters. With the Brown bill passing, this thing will be at an end in Michigan.

Senator A. L. Moore of Pontiac and Representative James Helme of Adrian were the only two members of the legislative house and senate taxation committees to refuse to sign a telegram to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in Washington pledging the enactment of a bill diverting funds from the highway department to feed the starving of Michigan. The R. F. C. some weeks ago sent a telegram to Governor Comstock advising him that unless the state of Michigan used some of its own money to relieve the suffering in this state there would be no federal money forthcoming. The R. F. C. stated that it was willing to continue its aid to Michigan if the state would do its part. Governor Comstock made it clear to the members of the legislature that the bill diverting the unexpended portion of the automobile weight tax money from the highway department to the welfare department must be passed.

"Michigan people will be without food during April, May and June if this money from the federal government is not forthcoming. So you must pass this bill diverting some of the money from the automobile weight tax to welfare," Governor Comstock told the legislators.

Realizing that the bill could not be made a law in time to get the Washington allotment of money in time to prevent thousands from going hungry, the Governor urged members of the taxation committee to sign a telegram to R. F. C. officials in Washington pledging their support to the weight tax diversion bill. The Governor said he had been assured that this telegram would be sufficient evidence of good faith on the part of the state to comply with the governmental requirements to cause the release of federal money for welfare use in Michigan. This is the telegram that Moore and Helme refused to sign. The April allotment of federal money for the use of Michigan in buying food for its hungry and unemployed is $3,000,000. Over half of this money is for use in Detroit.

While the Moore bill providing for the re-assessment in years to come of delinquent taxes is a dead issue, members of the house as well as the senate are in accord that some sort of relief must be provided for the delinquent taxpayer. They are not in accord with the Moore scheme, but they believe, as does the Governor, that some sort of aid must be given to the man who is unable to pay his taxes and the next few days will doubtless see members of the house giving some consideration to the delinquent tax question.

The proposal of Governor Comstock that the legislature consider a measure to bring additional revenues in from a sales tax will take up much of the legislature's time in the next week or so. There are prospects of some sort of a sales tax being passed but this question is one that is bound to prove plenty of legislative argument.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Sunday morning service, 10:45. Subject, "Doctrine of Atonement." Wednesday evening at 7:45, first Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room. "Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, April 9.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (Jer. 17: 7, 8): "Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is. For he shall be as a tree planted by the waters, and that spreadeth out her roots by the river, and shall not see when heat cometh, but her leaf shall be green; and shall not be careful in the year of drought, neither shall cease from yielding fruit."

GOVERNOR IS RIGHT

Tally for Governor Comstock. He has let it be known that he is not in favor of the schemes of Attorney General O'Brien to seize commercial industries from private hands and operate them under the control of the state. The proposal of Mr. O'Brien is one of the most radical ever made by a Michigan public official. Consider the state seizing the copper mines of Houghton and Ontonagon county and starting work in them when copper is a drug on the market and selling below the cost of the labor to mine and mill it! Surely Michigan has fallen on strange ways. Governor Comstock is to be commended for his stand. —Tom Conlin in the Crystal Falls Diamond Drill.

JOHN WINDER SEC-OND IN ORATIONSWas Entrant in Sub-District Contest at Petoskey, Tuesday

The sub-district oratorical and declamation contest was held Tuesday evening in the Petoskey high school auditorium. A very large and enthusiastic audience was present, several going from Charlevoix to support the local entrants.

According to those who have attended a large number of these contests, this was the closest and most difficult to judge of any held in many years.

In oratory, Petoskey carried off first honors with the subject "Demagogues," which dealt in a really masterful way with the need of sincere, honest leadership in our country to replace the vacillating, selfish politicians now in office. John Winder with his oration "Coolidge, the Man," won second place. This was a very timely topic. Picture the great loss to the nation by the death of Calvin Coolidge, the ideal of a Golden Age.

Cheboygan's representative, with the declamation, "The Negro's Struggle for Freedom," was placed first. Charles Levinson's "King Philip to the White Settlers" was greeted with great applause, but due to the closeness of the contest resulting in a tie for second, Charles missed placing by only one point.

There were seven schools entered, the majority of which have regular classes in public speaking, from which the contest entrants are chosen. Charlevoix's forensic work is carried on entirely as an extra curricular activity.

SETTLE TOWNSHIP
ELECTION DISPUTE

No Recount of Votes Deemed Necessary in Charlevoix Two.

Charlevoix township's election dispute, resulting in a threatened recount of votes cast at last Monday's election, has been settled to the satisfaction of all concerned, according to reports.

It appears the irregularity charged was unintentional. Vernon Norton, clerk, was unable to turn in two absent voters' ballots for the count due to the fact he received them from the postoffice too late to reach the township hall before the polls closed. Charges against Mr. Norton by an opposing faction were apparently grossly exaggerated.

Mrs. Wm. Prevost, defeated by Neil McCauley for member of the board of review by a single vote, requested the matter be dropped. This contest was the only one affected, all other successful candidates having large majorities.

TREAT SEED POTATO
TO AVOID DISEASESAppearance of Tubers and Market
Quality Ruined by Disorders

The two potato diseases which cause the most injury to the appearance of tubers, scab and black rot, can be eliminated by treating the tubers with a solution of corrosive sublimate before planting, according to the farm crops department at Michigan State College.

Market reports from Detroit show that shipments of potatoes from other states are constantly increasing and the Detroit dealers who sell these potatoes say that the demand for them is created by their better quality and more attractive appearance. Consumers will not buy scabby potatoes or those blemished by black scurf if they can obtain clean stock.

The corrosive sublimate solution is made by adding four ounces of corrosive sublimate crystals to 30 gallons of soft water. The seed should be treated before it is cut. Seed should be soaked in the solution for one-half hour. Longer soaking does not injure the seed but is unnecessary. The solution weakens as the potatoes are treated and one ounce of the chemical should be added after each batch is treated.

THE MIDNIGHT-NOON
DRAMATIZED FRIDAYPassion Play and Guest Speaker at Methodist Service Good Friday

At the local Methodist church an "Absolute Silence" service, in the fragile noon-day darkness, to help make real the world's greatest tragedy, will be the Methodist Good Friday service—not too long—1:30 to 3:00; everyone coming and going at the same time; no commotion, or disturbance, or distraction; the "commemoration" in the only way prescribed by Christ; the great, rough cross; the borrowed tomb; a guest speaker for the short Crucifixion Address—all will be features of this service. The Passion Play pictures will be given in the artificial darkness. Then "The Adoration," a dramatization of the three Marys at the cross; a beautiful and appropriate violin solo by Mrs. Poquette, of Petoskey, will be followed by Rev. J. E. Bowker, of Traverse City, just appointed to Calvary Church, Jackson. At last, "The Celebration," in only the holy light from the cross. The recessional—absolutely unsparking—will be "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," unto the sidewalk. The service will be somewhat like that of last year, unanimously voted by the church, and so largely attended that many had to stand—yet with some additional features of great beauty and religious significance—and will be, as now planned, one of the most spiritually impressive services ever held in this city.

The remainder of the Passion Play will be given as part of the elaborate service on Easter evening, at seven-thirty. This—with Easter music by the choir, and an augmented chorus, will be followed by the striking play, "The Roman Soldiers" at the Borrowed Tomb, in the cold, gray dawn of that memorable night, with the miracle mystery of the opened tomb. The latter has already been built, following the lines of the famous "Garden of Gethsemane," and will add greatly to the whole Easter program.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS
By B. C. Mellencamp.Crop Production Loans Available
During Month of April

The Government Crop Production Loan, as well as the Barnyard Loan, are being considered by many farmers in need of this assistance. Considerable time has been spent by the Extension Service in rendering assistance to those seeking loans. In order to facilitate matters it is suggested that anyone interested in securing one of these loans, come to the County Agent's office in the new postoffice building, Boyne City. Either your agent or his assistant will be there ready to serve you. Each application must be typewritten and requires considerable time so it is desirable that you call at the office where all the information and details are available.

Up to the present time very little action has been taken in regard to the Barnyard loan applications. Some have been made out for three months and still no disposition made of them. This means that considerable delay for some reason is holding up the Barnyard loans, but you can be assured that the Crop Production Loan will be handled with greater speed. The two loans are handled by entirely different departments.

Charlevoix County Has Highest Per Cent Alfalfa Acreage in State

According to the U. S. Census of April 1, 1930, Charlevoix county has by far the best record of any county in the state of Michigan. We have a total of 8,929 acres in alfalfa out of 11,654 acres in crop land, or a per cent of 21.4. Next to Charlevoix comes Antrim county with 18.1 per cent in alfalfa.

Farmers in this county can be highly gratified over this showing as it certainly indicates good judgment on their part to have a large acreage of alfalfa on every farm. Expressed another way, without a doubt there would be approximately from 12,000 to 14,000 tons every year of the best feed that a man can raise.

Alfalfa will yield the highest number of pounds of digestible nutrients per acre of any crop, except corn. Alfalfa is the greatest protein producing crop that can be grown by Michigan farmers. One acre produces 500 pounds of digestible protein as against 90 pounds per acre for timothy.

It would be well for our farmers to maintain this high percentage, and, if possible, raise it up to 25 per cent, because there is a very close relationship between alfalfa production and profitable agriculture. Especially is this true with dairy production—as nothing can exceed the value of alfalfa and by having adequate quantities of this good roughage on hand the cost of production is considerably lessened. It is more noteworthy when one stops to consider that in 55 counties in this state there are only 5.8 acres out of every 100 in alfalfa while our county exceeds the average by approximately 100 per cent. Farmers keep up the good work.

FARMERS SHOULD FILE FOR LOANS AT ONCE

Charlevoix county farmers who desire to procure a government loan for crop production purposes should get in touch with County Agricultural Agent B. C. Mellencamp, Boyne City, at once and file their application.

This loan is available for seed, fertilizer, spraying, tractor oil and gasoline and for no other purpose. Applicants must be bonafide farmers or tenants having a fixed acreage and these loans can not be made for family garden purposes.

Bible Called King of All Textbooks

That professor at the University of Texas who is requiring students in Journalism to practice rewriting stories from the Bible is but applying an old idea in a new environment. The English Bible has long been king of textbooks for him who would know how to write the English language. In addition to its instructional value, the course at Texas ought to serve as a character of unity. Whoever a journalist, old or young, finds himself getting puffed up over his technical skill all that is necessary to bring him back to earth again, to make him know the limitations of his craftsmanship, is to set him to reading St. Luke's report of the parable of the Prodigal Son.

All things considered, there never was a better reporter than Luke. He wasted no words; he never spent time on introductions; he had perfect understanding of color, movement, background. His account of a shipwreck (Acts 27:28) has not been surpassed in nineteen centuries. It begins gently as a zephyr:

"And when the south wind blew softly, supposing that they had obtained their purpose, loosing thence they sailed close by Crete. But not long after there arose against it a tempestuous wind, called Euraquylon. And when the ship was caught, and could not bear up into the wind, we let her drive."

The wind did not rise more rapidly than the swell of the narrative nor did it subside more delightfully. Young journalists should get much profit out of trying to tell the tale better if only by the discovery that it cannot be better told. The Old Testament is full of work of first-rate reporters. It would be interesting to know what the youngsters of Texas would make out of the account of the death of a certain royal tempter who found Nemesis staring her in the eye:

"And when John was come to Jezreel, Jezebel heard of it; and she painted her face, and dressed her head, and looked out at a window. And as John entered in at the gate, she said, Had Zimri perished, who slew his master?"

"And he lifted up his face to the window, and said, Who is on my side? who? And there looked out to him two or three eunuchs. And he said, Throw her down. So they threw her down; and some of her blood was sprinkled on the wall, and on the horses; and he trode her under foot."

For anybody who wishes to write strong, vivid, incisive English there is no exercise which is more useful than persistent study of the phraseology of the Bible.—New York Sun.

Government's Fixed Charges Boost Cost

Standing Expenses Exceed 100 Million Yearly.

Washington.—The congressional bill glibly refers to them as "the permanent and indefinite." They don't appear in the regular tabulation of appropriations for the coming year as reported by the house and senate appropriations committee, says the Chicago Tribune.

Yet they are going to cost the taxpayer this year the sum of $1,285,191,928 and in the next fiscal year of 1934 the bill will be $1,345,553,553 larger, or $1,398,536,581.

They are indeed the "permanent and indefinite," for they are the appropriations which go on year after year on the strength of some past legislation and without the necessity of any annual affirmative action such as is required to authorize payment of the regular current appropriations.

The largest permanent and indefinite items by far in these years of a public debt of more than $23,000,000,000 are the $725,000,000 to be required in 1934 to pay interest on the debt and the $534,000,000 required to be written on the books as the annual contribution to the sinking fund established under the Liberty loan acts.

Some Cost Nothing. Other items, unlike most items in appropriation bills, cost the treasury nothing. Such a one is the $71,000,000 to be taken from premiums on converted veterans' insurance and which are set aside for payment of losses and benefits in 1934.

Then there are the incomes from various gifts and donations to government and social enterprises which must be distributed each year. There are revenues from public lands and national forests and Indian reservations. These may be distributed to states to compensate for taxes lost through being lost to non-taxable government property and enterprises.

In addition to these forms of permanent and indefinite appropriations, there are appropriations that go on and on just because their backers were once upon a time legislatively clever enough to get them put in this privilege.

Survey Reveals Speedy Readers Remember More

Berkeley, Calif.—Fast readers are better readers than slow ones, an educational survey has shown.

Evidence supporting this contradiction of common belief was reported at the University of California by Dr. John A. Hockett, assistant professor of education, after a series of tests with his students.

The fastest readers remember more of what they have read than slow readers, Doctor Hockett found. He asked 20 questions of his students, based on text they had read in two minutes.

The group of students that read fastest answered an average of 12.7 questions correctly, the middle third answering 11.8 questions correctly, and the slowest reading third answered only 10.4 correctly.

The group tested by Doctor Hockett was composed mostly of graduate students in education. The students read at speeds varying from 50 to 220 words a minute, with the average 205 words a minute. The text dealt with educational problems.

A group of teachers in an Oakland elementary school, given the same test, read at an average of 243 words a minute, with individual maximum and minimum of 185 and 360 words a minute.

Boys to Seek Gold

on Haitian Estate

Haiti, Mont.—The "joiners" learned by Hiram Marceyes, twenty, and Walter Bakke, twenty-one, on gold mining in a prospectors' short course at the Montana School of Mines in Butte this winter will be applied by the pair in far-off Haiti.

Marceyes and Bakke plan to place nine for gold on land owned in Haiti by Marceyes' aunt, Mrs. Rose Miller of Missoula. Hundreds of streams course through the 100,000-acre estate and gold hunters of the past found many indications of rich deposits.

The 1934 post office and treasury appropriation bill an attempt was made to bring the permanent and indefinite items into line by a simple order that all such appropriations should hereafter be on an annual basis. But before the bill reached its final approval that order was stricken out.

There is, for example, the permanent appropriation—in the sum of $6,636,460 for 1934—to be paid out in state subsidies for vocational education. Part of it goes to pay teachers of agricultural subjects, part to teachers of industrial subjects and home economics, and part to that happy body of bureaucrats, the federal board for vocational education.

Another permanent appropriation is the $3,000,000 for most inspection by the bureau of animal industry. Nobody knows why this service should be placed in the permanent category.

All in all, there are promising prospects for an economy committee to graze in the field of the "permanent and indefinite."

Big Fortune in Spanish Gold Revealed in River

Mississippi Gives Up Coins 800 Years Old.

McLain, Miss.—Biting from a historical background of pre-Civil war days, a fortune of Spanish gold valued 800 years ago has been discovered in southern Mississippi. The discovery has awakened new interest in the early history of the state, and has caused historians to delve deeper into some of the legends. It also has thrown an interesting light on early accomplishments of Gen. Andrew Jackson and others.

Only a short distance from the boarded up shack of Ab and West Sylvester, discoverers of the glistening Spanish gold, can be found the skeleton of a swinging bridge said to have been built by Jackson.

Choctaw Indians once inhabited this land, and according to an old folk tale, the chief's daughter fell in love with the property owner and they later married. When the government sent the Indians to a new reservation the Indian woman left her husband and went with her tribe. The land was left to the white man, who later married an American woman.

As a vast sum of foreign money had come into his possession, he was compelled to bury it in five different locations until after the Civil war. Later thieves stole a map of the money locations from him and dug up three of the caches. Forrest Lee, a farmer, still later unearthed a fourth chest, which contained Spanish gold coins, jewelry and a gold pocket knife.

It is believed that the tree marking the location of the fifth chest was cut down; thus, until a few weeks ago, nothing more was known of the missing treasure.

The vast sum comprising the fifth fortune has not been estimated, but it is said to represent many thousands of dollars, besides probably heavy premiums that will be paid on coins bearing old dates. There are 1,100 coins, all very thin yellow gold, presumably doubloons.

So great was the shock to the Sylvesters at finding the fortune on the creek bank near their home that the older man was confined to his bed for several days, with an attending physician.

Hunter Explains His Method of Taking Lions

Kingsburg, Calif.—Kingsburg today knew just how to capture mountain lions. Jay Bruce, famous California hunter, told the citizens.

Here's how he captured more than 500 of the big cats during his career as official exterminator:

First, you take a pack of dogs, get on the trail of a lion, and chase him for miles and miles. Finally, you chase him up a tree.

Then, you take a long pole, fix a noose to the end of it, and try to slip it over the lion's head. The lion, of course, resents that and jumps from branch to branch in his tree, and from tree to tree.

However, you persevere. Finally, you succeed in slipping the noose around the lion's neck and tie the rope to the trunk of the tree. Then, you tie up your dogs (because they probably would attack the cat when he came down) and yank the lion from his branch and onto the ground.

After that, all you have to do is slip a sack over the lion's body, tie the sack to a pole, get some help, and carry the lion away.

Quite simple, Bruce says.

Europe Easily in Lead With Christian Sects

Europe is the most Christian of the continents, figures assembled by Dr. Olaf Morgan Norlie, president of the American Lutheran Statistical association, have shown.

Europe has more professing Christians than all the other world divisions combined, and the percentage of these to its total population is far higher than that of any other continent.

But all the Christians in the world total only 28 1/2 per cent of the population, the compilation says, their number being 558,027,365 and that of the non-Christians 1,416,049,550.

However, if Christianity is compared with the separate non-Christian religions instead of with the total, then it is easily in the lead. For its 28.27 per cent compares with 17.77 per cent for Confucianism and Taoism, 11.05 per cent for Hinduism and 11.09 per cent for Mohammedanism.

If, in turn, Christianity is divided into its major groups, the Roman Catholics comprise 15.08 per cent of the world's population, the Protestants 6.74 per cent, and the Orthodox Catholics 6.45 per cent.

NAVIGATION OPENS OUT OF THIS PORT

Beaver Island Boat Reached Harbor and Fishing Started

Breaking of the ice blockade in Lake Michigan off this harbor has allowed the opening of navigation and boats are now moving regularly.

Charlevoix commercial fishermen started operations last Thursday and since that time have experienced little difficulty from ice. The freighter Rambler has been making regular trips between this port and St. James. On the return trip last Saturday, 2,500 gallons of gasoline was taken to the island, thus ending a threatened fuel famine.

The government lightships Grey's Reef and Manitowish Shoals are now being outfitted for the season. The exact sailing date of these vessels is not known.

Overhauled operations are also under way on the Beaver Island Steamship & Development company's steamer "Ossian Bedell," which will take over the Charlevoix-Beaver Island mail run within a short time.

The opening of navigation has created considerable business activity, welcomed by local business interests.

Ramsdell of the University of Michigan, estimates. Roadside improvement, fire control, flood prevention and disease and pest control will be part of the work which unemployed enlisted in the service will be required to do.

SETH PARKER CLUB CONCLUDE MEETINGS

Supper and Program Monday Evening Enjoyable Affair

As a fitting climax to their series of meetings during the past winter, thirty-seven members and friends of the Seth Parker club gathered at the school Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock for a "friendship" supper and program. With Mr. Parker as genial toastmaster, the evening was assured a success from the start.

After the guests were seated at the table a welcome song was sung by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Flanders to the tune of the old radio favorite "How-do-you-do" with verse variations appropriate to the occasion. Merry jokes were handed each guest and they were later read during the supper. A "riddle roll call" and the singing of the "State Song" also figured in the table fun.

The evening program opened with singing of "America the Beautiful" by the assembly, after which Mr. Kirby sang two numbers. Mr. Bush gave an enjoyable talk on "Friendship," closing with a clever poem of his own composition. Dan Williams, playing the accordion, and Mrs. Williams the harmonica, entertained with "Red Wing" and other favorite melodies. "Anti-Caruso Career," a humorous reading by Miss Bigge, provokes much laughter and was an outstanding feature of the evening. A Seth Parker story, "Four in Our Family" was read by Mrs. Miles, after which the theme song of the same name was sung by Mrs. Miles and Mrs. McGhan. The prize for a musical guessing game "Musical Wedding" was won by Mrs. Edith Novotny, who correctly guessed 32 titles out of 33.

Mrs. Shockley, organizer and leader of the club, spoke a few fitting words to the members and friends and read extracts from a letter received from Phillips Lord (Seth Parker), telling of the activities and accomplishments of some of the clubs throughout the country. She expressed a devout wish that this club may continue its meetings next year and extended a hearty invitation to those present to meet together at that time.

The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" brought to a close a very pleasant evening and a series of profitable and enjoyable meetings.

COUNTY NORMAL NEWS

Vacation seems to have agreed with all of us but Mr. Bussler, who is confined to his home in East Jordan with illness. All are ready for a new term of teaching and for the home stretch of the year's work.

Congratulations are in order for several of the class who have already secured positions for next year.

Due to the efforts of Miss Somerville and Mr. McCann in regard to decorations in the normal room, we are sure that spring has really come.

The normal class are enjoying observation period with a group of ten kindergarteners who are taking their first lessons in reading from Mrs. Dick.

The normal students who enjoyed the music classes over the radio every Monday afternoon are very sorry the classes have been discontinued. These students, however, plan to make use of the songs they learned. Miss Martha Reidel, Miss Somerville and Miss Gornell will teach several to the normal class.

If anyone would like to have a "life history study" made of his name, let him apply to Miss Burdick. She possesses a faculty of unearthing most unusual and unsuspected bits of interest.

Mrs. Dirk and Miss Bigge are attending a county normal conference in Mancelona next Saturday.

The art project for the week showed how easy it is to make very attractive vases from "cast off."

If you don't think you have a right to be proud of your state come up some time and listen in on the Michigan history class.

"Backed Up"

ANY BANK, to survive times like these, must be possessed of not only formidable financial assets but of a personnel, the integrity of which can never be questioned. Thus, the fact that we continue to hold the confidence of old depositors and are making new friends daily, attests to the reliability of this institution and its staff.

Your Bank Account here is "backed up" by Capital, Surplus and Undivided Profits, the sum total of which alone is reassuring. In addition, the conservative, never-take-a-risk policy which we have maintained through the years, must convince you it's a "GOOD PLACE TO BANK." IT IS!

Do Motor Trucks and Buses really pay taxes?

Heavy duty motor trucks and passenger bus owners complain they are heavily taxed. Signs are displayed on giant motor vehicles: "This truck pays $1950 per year in taxes."

Gasoline and weight fees are not taxes

They are simply payments for part of the expense of building and keeping up concrete roads which cost the real taxpayers approximately SEVENTY-FIVE MILLION DOLLARS annually to maintain, exclusive of city streets.

One-third of this money is spent solely to build and maintain roads strong enough to stand heavy motor bus and truck traffic.

These giants of the highways actually contribute a pitifully small share of the enormous burden now being carried by owners of pleasure cars and light trucks.

Railroads are the heavy taxpayers

Motor transport pays practically nothing in the form of taxes to help defray the cost of government.

The railroads of this state are paying approximately TEN MILLION DOLLARS PER YEAR toward this cost. They are using no publicly owned property in the conduct of their business. RAILROADS PAY AS HIGH AS $2800 PER MILE PER YEAR IN TAXES.

How long will the taxpayers of this state stand for this discrimination?

Indians Give Young Paleface Real Thrill

Said to be the first white child of his age ever honored by an Indian christening, five-year-old Bobbie Alberts is the recipient of unique honor at the hands of braves from several tribes assembled at the southern California oasis in Palm Springs. Bobbie came whizzing to watch an Indian inter-tribal council held at Palm Springs. His flaming red hair attracted the braves who asked the privilege of giving him an Indian name. Conferring, they chose "Sunset" because of his hair and the fact that the christening pow-wow was held just as the sun set behind Mount San Jacinto.

Historic Montreal Church Burns

Firemen are seen directing streams of water into the flaming roof of the historic St. Jacques Minor church, Montreal's oldest and most famous religious edifice, during the fire that reduced the once beautiful structure into a mass of ruins. The fire started while nearly 2,000 worshippers were attending mass, but all escaped.

Catching Sap on Coolidge Sugar Lot

The coming of spring is the signal for the maple trees to begin yielding their maple sugar sap. And so the old sugar lot of the late Calvin Coolidge once more takes on an active appearance. It was at this same old sugar lot that the late President and his father, Col. John Coolidge, worked year after year gathering the sap and boiling it down into maple sugar. It may be spring but still three feet of snow covers the ground. Here are the oxen dragging the maple sap to the sugar house for boiling down.

Our Government
—How It Operates

By William Bruckart

DEPARTMENT OF INTERIOR

UNDER our system of government, predicated on alignment of the citizens into two major political parties, changes are effected very slowly in the matter of expanding, or accomplishing a shrinkage, in any establishment or its functions. Some politician rises up and makes "an issue" of every proposal of that kind, and quite obviously he has his following. Thus, oftentimes functions of government go on long after their necessity has ceased.

But I am going to discuss changes that have come about whether the political parties desired or not, changes that were accomplished in a manner comparable to reverse to the history of the memorable character, "Topsy, who 'just grewed.' They are centered in the Department of the Interior, and I say without fear of contradiction that no department of the government has experienced such changes with respect to importance of its several units.

It was not so many years ago, less than half a century, that the country looked to the Department of the Interior in connection with the grave Indian problem; it looked to the same agency concerning disposition of the vast public lands, and the same agency was in charge of all veterans' pensions, though the number was small as compared to now.

In the meantime, the West was developing. Public lands were being absorbed and the number of Indians was decreasing and the blood was being diffused. Far-seeing statesmen recognized that conservation of the beauty spots required early action, and preservation of them as national parks got under way.

The course of the times carried with it the constituent elements of new problems, such as administration of irrigation projects, as the arid states received the overflow of population. Reclamation of lands was the premise from which the movement had to proceed.

Thus, the Department of the Interior saw its influence wane in some sections of the country and on some matters of national import, and observed it expanding in others. The public domain has declined in size and importance until the general land office is only a fraction of its former self, though still an office of consequence, and the office of commissioner of Indian affairs, once among the powerful offices of the government, has declined in importance correspondingly with the shrinkage of Indian population and problems.

Through the years, of course, the department has received additions, such as the office of education, and the national park service has been built up as the nation sought to conserve for the future the beauty spots and recreational grounds naturally presented in virgin form. The development of the green resources of Alaska to a large extent is under the direction of the secretary of the interior who has the Alaska railroad under his administration. There is also the geological survey, an agency for study of the nation's geologic map.

As to the changes that have come in the department since its inception, however, none stand out more than does the expansion of influence through construction and management of irrigation projects. Actually, none bear more importantly on the economic and physical well-being of what was the West of yore. The director of reclamation has been exerting this influence of the federal government for 30 years, and if one may use the constant calls for additional legislation as a criterion, the limit of power and influence of that office is yet afar off. Irrigation is only in its infancy.

As the work in connection with educating the Indians and providing for their future welfare and protection of their funds grows less, and as the area of the public domain declines, the functions of government decline there, but in another part of the great building that houses the department the functions of government are expanding that the national parks may be protected and preserved for future generations. And so it is, too, with the commissioner of education who is the liaison between the state school systems and the federal government, as well as serving in co-operation with all educational institutions throughout the country.

It is not intended in this discussion to depreciate the value of the work done by any of the units making up the Department of the Interior. The purpose is to show how a changing of conditions, resulting from growth of the nation itself, has brought about modification of the work and the demands upon government. Some can say that the general land office, for example, lacks consequence when it is recalled that every day and everywhere there is some one or group clamoring to gain a homestead in public land to exploit mineral resources of oil, of copper, of a dozen other things. These are owed by the federal government and proper administration of them is just as vital as important as sound construction of the gigantic project headed up in Hoover dam and the Colorado river basin.

A Little Thing Like Clothes

By JESSIE DOUGLAS

©, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service

"THAT," said Tom Winslow, knocking the ash from his cigarette, "is the prettiest girl in this town."

They both looked after the retreating figure of Daisy Miller, dressed so neatly in her blue serge, with a black hat that was meant to cover, not adorn, the red-brown hair.

"If you give me a month I could have that girl so dead in love with me that any one could see it!" Arthur Baldwin offered.

"You've lost already, and I'll put ten on it, Art."

Daisy Miller's heart beat very fast as she washed the dinner dishes. She had really not seen anything of Arthur Baldwin since they were in high school together; she had thought less of him, and yet tonight he had telephoned her to ask permission to come over to see her.

"I don't see why he should want to see me," she thought, "I can't understand—" and yet she was dithered and she felt a new glow in the dullness of the gray days and an escape from monotony.

In her own room she surveyed her wardrobe critically. The gray chaise was beyond redemption and her best crepe needed a patch under the arm; the only thing left was what she had on, the blue serge dress that had never been anything but useful.

Again she felt that strange new excitement when the bell wheezed and she opened the door to Arthur Baldwin. He stood a moment in the hall retaining her hand.

"I am glad to see you, Daisy!" he said, scrutinizing her white face.

There was an awkward silence for a moment after he had sent himself in the comfortable living room in the big chair across from Mr. Miller.

"How're you getting on with your law?" Mr. Miller inquired.

Arthur Baldwin found himself in the clutches of that inveterate old talker, and he listened to drowsy reminiscences of the '80s, while he fidgeted in his chair.

When at last he said good night he admitted it was one of the dullest evenings he had ever spent and quite unsuccessful except for his last remark to Daisy.

"You certainly have wonderful hair, Daisy," he said as he took her hand in the hall as he left.

He smirked to himself as he remembered the slow, almost painful dash that touched her cheeks.

"I'm old enough to know better," Daisy thought the next morning as she scanned the paper; but a new infection in the air had caught her and she explained to her father briefly that she was going to the city.

It must have been the hair that did it, but Daisy was unable to resist a hat that looked altogether alluring in one of the smartest shops on Fifth avenue.

But the hat made her suit look even older than ever; and Daisy plunged. She gasped when she saw herself in the new suit with its long, slim lines and its delicious golden brown color; with bewitching tail. But how shabby her shoes looked.

As a very last touch she bought herself a new pair.

"I'll take two years to save it all again," Daisy thought shame-facedly. "All the money that I put by for a rainy day."

She settled herself down by the window in the train, feeling in her new clothes that she was too noticeable. She prayed that she would meet no one she knew. She moved over to a very margin of her seat as a big man sat down beside her; he looked at her curiously and then cried, "Why, if it isn't Daisy Miller!"

"I used to be ill when we were in school together," he laughed.

Daisy looked up at him; perhaps it was the new hat, perhaps it was the consciousness of that smart suit, yet there was a charm about that shy, bird-like glance that touched William Armstrong.

"Just come back to civilization," he explained. "I'm going to surprise my people. It's a long run from Arizona to New York."

"How wonderful!" Daisy exclaimed softly. "I've always thought that was about the most interesting place to live—" then for some unaccountable reason she blushed.

"Not for your kind?" Armstrong said gravely.

He touched tentatively the rich fur on her coat.

"Oh, this?" said Daisy with disdain. "As if clothes matter!"

"When a girl's as pretty as you are, Daisy, I guess you're right!" he said heartily.

"I'd like to drop in and talk with you about God's country," he said as he waved her hand in farewell.

That was why two days later Daisy Miller, answering the telephone, said softly:

"Oh sorry, Mr. Baldwin, but I have another engagement tonight."

"Congratulations!" Tom Winslow cried, holding out his hand to his bet-hing partner. "When it comes to a bet-killing, Art, I must admit you never fail." He polished a frowning finger to the notice printed in the evening paper.

"The engagement of Miss Daisy Miller to Mr. William Armstrong of Tucson, Ariz., was announced . . ."

Amnesia in Some Form Seems the Common Lot

Writes Waldemar Kaempffert in the New York Times:

"Since January, 1930, the New York Times has reported 64 cases of memory lapses as serious as that of Colonel Ruyonold Hobbs. There must have been hundreds more of which the press never heard. Men and women who forget who they are, and who wander about pathetically—totally new personalities so far as the world is concerned—were commoner than many of us suppose.

"The truth is that we all suffer a little from amnesia or loss of memory. Who has not had the experience of trying to recall the name of a person or place, apparently in vain, only to have it flash up vividly in the mind hours later and for no apparent reason? 'Normal amnesia' the physicians call the phenomenon.

"Luckily we have the power of reconstructing and synthesizing mental records of past events. It is only when the blankness covers long periods of time that amnesia becomes alarming, that we lose all recollection of our real selves, and that we actually develop new personalities.

"Although they know little enough about the mind and its vagaries, psychiatrists classify 'amnesia.' There are localized amnesias, which affect only certain groups of memories. A man may forget how to walk, for example, but not how to crawl or hop; his memory of writing may have gone, but he will still be able to talk.

"Then there are retrograde amnesias, in which it is impossible to remember what occurred immediately before some mental or physical shock. The victim of retrograde amnesia forgets experiences almost as fast as they occur. Paranoes try to fill the gaps in the memory by illusions."

DISCUSS BEER, BETTING BILLS

URGED TO PROVIDE MUCH NEEDED REVENUE

Legislature Has Unusual Assortment of Bills Before It for Consideration

(By Elton R. Eaton.)

Beer, gambling and races—strange and almost unbelievable as it is, these seem to be the major questions just at present before a legislature that has in its hands the welfare of nearly five millions of people.

Beer legislation has come as a direct result of the vote of the people. In some of the larger newspapers there has been an indirect criticism of the legislature because it has insisted on taking its time with this important bill. Members of both the house and senate realize that the state is sorely in need of the money that it will bring into the state treasury. But these same legislators, or at least some of them, realize too that untold damage that careless legislation can bring upon the state.

The beer bill as originally introduced gave to villages and cities absolutely no control over the operations or their method of doing business. The bill went so far as to place members of the liquor commission to be appointed under its provisions beyond the reach of the law. They could not be held for any criminal act or they could not be sued in any civil action. One senator pointed out that if this provision was permitted to stand, the members of the commission could retain for themselves all of the income from the beer business in the state.

The senate passed some seventy or more amendments to the bill. Some of these evils were corrected. Others were not. An effort by Dr. J. T. Upjohn, veteran senator from the Kalamazoo-St. Joseph district, to amend the bill so that a closing hour could be fixed at night and to prevent girls from selling beer, found no favor. It is a pretty safe prediction that another determined effort will be made to add similar amendments to the bill in the house.

While there is a disposition on the part of some to let any kind of a beer bill pass, there is a general desire to have a bill passed that will permit the beer business in the state to be conducted in a respectable and orderly way, one that will not bring the criticism that was heaped upon the old time saloon.

Governor Comstock has made it clear that he will veto any beer bill that does not provide the state with plenty of regulatory power. His statement was inspired when it was brought to his attention that the senate had attached an amendment to the beer bill which, if passed, would do away with all enforcement laws the state passed in 1917. It is a fairly safe prediction to make that the state will have some sort of a beer bill by May 1st.

Rep. Don E. Sias of Midland has been made chairman of the special legislative committee that will conduct an immediate investigation into the prices of farm machinery and the advisability of the state entering into the manufacturing of machinery that is used on farms. The Sias resolution calling for this investigation was passed by both the house and the senate without an objection. Chairman Sias stated following its adoption that he planned to have the investigation started immediately and he hoped that he would be able to make available to the legislature before the present session adjourned. Serving on the commission of inquiry with Chairman Sias are Representatives John Strange of Eaton county, Edwin Babcock of Branch county and Senators Neal Lanier of Kent county and Jay Towne of Jackson county.

It was weeks ago when the prediction was made in this letter that pay days were near at hand for the employees of the state of Michigan unless immediate and drastic action of some kind was taken. The crisis is now at hand. While beer bills, betting bills and other measures of a similar nature have been forced to the front ranks in legislative deliberations, there has been under consideration in committee rooms and elsewhere the financial plight of the state. The deficit left as a heritage from the last administration plus the constantly and rapidly decreasing revenues of the state have brought about the emergency sooner than expected. State officials have advised the legislature that unless there is forthcoming some new revenues at once, there is little prospect of a pay day next week.

INFANT DEATHS DECREASE IN REGION

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT REPORT ENCOURAGING

Service Given in Behalf of Infants Believed Responsible for 24% Drop in 1932

Infant death rate in Emmet, Otsego, Antrim and Charlevoix counties was reduced 24 per cent in 1932, it is revealed in the annual report of Consolidated District Health Unit No. 3 of the Children's Fund of Michigan.

"There was a marked reduction in the infant death rate last year over 1931," the report read. "The rate has been reduced from about 75 deaths per 1,000 live births in 1931 to 51 per 1,000 live births last year. This reduction, we believe, is due, in part, to the extra service we have been giving in behalf of infants."

"However, the number of mothers dying as a result of child birth was increased during 1932. Consequently we plan to devote more effort to maternal hygiene in the hope that this rate will be lowered."

The report was submitted to the Emmet county board of supervisors Friday by Miss Katherine Warner, county nurse, who works with the Children's Fund representatives.

Work of the fund in combating contagious disease is shown by the paragraph:

"Only one case of diphtheria was reported last year compared to three the previous year. During the period from 1927 to 1931 the average number of cases was eight per year. Unquestionably, the immunizing of children against diphtheria has reduced the occurrence of this disease."

"No cases of smallpox were reported in 1932. The number reported in 1931 was three. The average yearly number of cases in the period 1927 to 1931 was 51 cases. Surely vaccination has brought about some of this decrease."

The Children's Fund was established by Senator James Couzens to safeguard the health of Michigan's children. Its activities embrace service to mothers and babies at birth, pre-school clinics, examinations of school children and treatment, vaccinations and inoculations, dental service and general health service.

4-H Club Work to Be Exhibited
Friday, April 28th

The biggest event of the 4-H club winter program will soon take place at the East Jordan high school auditorium. All of the 4-H Club members of the county will at this time display their articles and garments and enjoy a wonderful program.

From present indications, approximately 250 club members will complete their requirements and receive their Certificates of Achievement. Represented in this exhibit will be the 4-H clubs from 12 clothing clubs, 9 handicraft clubs and 6 hot lunch clubs, a total of 27 different clubs in all sections of the county. Also, the reports and stories written by each member will be placed on their exhibit.

The boys and girls 4-H Club members and leaders extend a very cordial invitation to everyone in the county to enjoy this occasion with them. They are anxious to have you see what they have accomplished. The program they are planning for your enjoyment will be one that they themselves have developed.

First of all, free movies will be shown in the East Jordan theatre, which will include one or two 4-H Club films, and best of all, two or three comedies. The noon hour will be enjoyed at the tourist park if the weather permits. Bring your lunch basket and cup with you and we will furnish a hot drink. The afternoon program will start at 1:15. Features of the program will be stunt put on by each school represented in our club work, presentation of awards to the winners, and a style review which will include about 75 girls wearing the dresses they themselves have completed during their club program. Why not plan on enjoying this occasion with us?

Insect and Insect Control Meetings Attract Farmers

Four meetings that will be of considerable interest to farmers and city gardeners will be conducted on Tuesday and Wednesday, April 25 and 26. Last year's experience has taught us that insects and other pests caused a great loss. Especially was it true that grasshoppers were very prevalent, also, garden pests such as cutworms, cucumber beetles, lice and many others did their damaging work. These meetings will be entirely devoted to a discussion of insect control and the recommendation of sprays that will handle all troubles and ailments.

C. B. Dibble of the M. S. C. department of entomology, will be present to discuss these subjects.

1st Meeting—Marion Center orange hall, Tuesday, 10:00 a. m.
2nd Meeting—Horton Bay 1 O. O. F. hall, Tuesday, 2:00 p. m.
3rd Meeting—East Jordan library, Wednesday, 10:00 a. m.

4th Meeting—County agent's office, federal building, Bayne City, Wednesday, 2:00 p. m.

It just seems that the problem of control of insects and pests becomes increasingly difficult. Last year everything that could happen to gardeners in the way of worms and insects, did happen. We are positive that with precaution you will not need to suffer any great loss from them this coming year. Attend your nearest meeting and find out the proper measures to use and the type of spray that will be most efficient for your needs. Remember that these meetings are for the city folks as well as farmers, for no matter what size crops you put out, insect control is just as much of a problem.

Fertilizer Returns

$2 or More for Each $1 Invested

John W. Sims, Michigan fertilizer authority formerly with State College, tells us that farmers should get a return of $2 or more in increased yields for every $1 invested in fertilizer.

He quotes 344 Michigan farmers reporting an average extra return of $5.05 for each dollar of fertilizer invested in corn in 1929. Corn was high; so was fertilizer. They averaged $4.63 extra return for each $1 invested in fertilizing potatoes. Crop prices are much lower than in 1929, and fertilizer prices are also lower.

REARING POND PROJECT PROGRESSING

SPORTSMAN'S CLUB HAVE DAMS UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Large Control Dam Is Completed and Other Smaller Ones Are Being Finished Rapidly

Following closely upon their decision to enlarge the capacity of the Stover creek rearing ponds to handle a larger number of game fish, the Charlevoix Sportsman's Club has lost no time in putting their plans into operation.

Work started last week is progressing rapidly with a force of volunteer workmen on hand daily to do their part in the task. At the present time the ripple dam at the foot of the new pond designed to rear 25,000 brook trout is nearing completion. This pond is located directly below those used last year for steelhead.

The greatest improvement work upon which is now practically finished, is the construction of an $5-foot concrete dam at the head of the entire system. This concrete wall, four feet high and solidly constructed, has been designed to eliminate trouble experienced last summer from drift materials plugging the fine screen of the upper dam during heavy rains and subsequent flood stages.

Many nights last summer members of the club had to be constantly at the ponds to keep the screens free to prevent overflow and loss of fish. Another troublesome feature was caused by larger fish making their way into the ponds from upstream during flood stage and feeding upon the small fry. It is believed the new dam will allow control of flood water with its possibility of a 4-foot head and also serve as a reservoir during low water periods. The dam has a 15-foot gateway, which, when screened, will provide considerable more flowage and consequently greater ease of cleaning.

Work will be rushed along until completed. Another rearing pond with four ripple dams is yet to be constructed for mackinaw trout. It is hoped to have the entire program finished in time to give the fry an early start to an advanced stage.

The 100,000 consignment of steelhead spawn has been received and are now in the process of hatching at the government hatchery. After advancing to the fry stage, they will be transferred to the rearing ponds.

The Sportsman's Club has under way a very ambitious program. Carried through to completion the results will be a great benefit to the entire county.

ANNUAL FATHER AND SON BANQUET TUESDAY

"Mussie, the Jungle Man" Has Been Procured as Soaker

Probably one of the three or four most clever, amusing and entertaining speakers in Michigan, "Mussie, the Jungle Man," has been secured for the address at the Father and Son banquet next Tuesday evening, May 2nd, in the dining room of the Methodist church.

Dr. Mussie was here eight or nine years ago, at which time he convulsed everyone, especially the boys, with his inimitable wit and drillery. And he has a challenging message. After several disappointments in securing a speaker, the Men's club feel that after all they have been fortunate.

Dr. Mussie is being brought here from some distance and at considerable expense, but with the low price of tickets it is felt many will hear him. It is probable special tables will be provided for women, as no one should miss hearing this speaker.

PRIEST STUDIO MOVING TO NEW QUARTER

South Portion of Birnkant Building New Location.

George W. Priest, veteran Charlevoix photographer, will soon be located in new quarters.

Alterations are now being made in the south portion of the Birnkant building, corner Bridge street and Park avenue, to make it suitable for studio purposes. The store place was recently vacated by the Sally Gift Shop.

Mr. Priest's move from the second floor of the same building will be an advantageous one, for when the new quarters are completed they will be most modernly equipped for studio work.

FORESTRY CAMP WILL AID LOCAL BUSINESS

Michigan Counties Will Get Immediate and Future Help

Michigan counties which secure the location of a civilian conservation corps camp within their boundaries will receive an immediate and an increasing future benefit from the work done by men in such camps, according to the forestry department at Michigan State college.

The work is financed entirely by federal funds, and the camps will be organized to carry out President Roosevelt's program of forestry work to alleviate unemployment. Most of the men in the camps will be recruited from the ranks of unemployed in the larger cities, but it is expected that a part of the men will be selected locally in the sections in which the camps are located.

In any event, at least part of the supplies for the camps will be bought locally and this will mean added business for merchants in the nearby towns. It is estimated that the camps will mean thousands of dollars in extra business.

COUNCIL VOTED PAY ROLL CUTS

TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS WAS SAVED MONDAY NIGHT

Practically Every Department of City Affected—Floyd Brown Named Fire Chief

Approximately $2,000 was lopped off the expense of city payrolls by a program of economy measures adopted by the common council in regular session Monday night. Practically every department was affected.

The electric light and water department stood the heaviest portion of the reduction. Payrolls in this division were cut approximately $1,500. A savings of $240 was effected in the highway department, not including a reduction in day labor to $6 per hour. Other savings made included: fire, $240; city parks, $84.00; auto camp, $210; cemetery, $175 in addition to a reduction to $6 an hour for day labor.

Among the appointive and elective officers, the salary of mayor was reduced from $675 to $600; city attorney from $225 to $200. The salary of chief of police was reduced from $1,200 a year to $960, and a further savings was effected by combining harbor master, formerly a separate office, to the duties of the chief of police, thus eliminating the former office entirely. Salaries of aldermen, clerk, treasurer, assessor, fire chief and health officer were left at the former figures.

The office of street commissioner was revived after a year in the discard and the salary was set at $80.00 per month with a gasoline allowance of five gallons per week. In the case of several employees of the electric light and water departments, house rent is furnished.

Fire Chief Appointed
Mayor Lou S. See named Floyd Brown as fire chief to succeed Henry Marshall, who retires after 25 years of service. The appointment was confirmed unanimously, as was also the appointment of Mrs. Mary Rife to serve as deputy city treasurer.

The matter of selecting a park commissioner to fill vacancy was referred to the park committee. At the spring election no candidate filed for the office of park commissioner to succeed Earl A. Young, whose term had expired. The council will make an appointment to fill the vacancy at their next meeting.

BELVEDERE CLUB PREPARING FOR SUMMER

Annual Clean-Up in Progress—Cottage Inquiries Gratifying

The annual clean-up campaign in preparation for the 1933 summer season has been started at the Belvedere Club.

E. J. Edwards, warden, has called back former employees, and they are now engaged in raking, burning leaves and grass and getting the lawns and gardens into shape.

Mr. Edwards reports that the last few days has seen a considerable increase in rentals and inquiries for cottages, indicating, it is believed, a normal summer season for this popular resort.

TROUT SEASON TO OPEN NEXT MONDAY

THOUSANDS OF ANGLERS WILL INITIATE 1933 SEASON

All Feeder Streams Are Open This Year—Matter of License Fee Still With Legislature

Only four days remain for the army of trout fishermen to burnish up their arms and equipment in preparation for the advance on the streams next Monday, the opening day of the 1933 season.

For those who have not already done so, there are leaders to be tied, flies to be sorted and depleted patterns filled in, reels to be oiled, lines to be treated, rods to be varnished and waders to be patched and vulcanized. At daybreak Monday the vast army, equipped with bamboo rods and other equipment will invade the trout stream frontage in quest of the wily brooks, the big rainbows and crafty browns. Others will try their luck for mackinaw trout in the big lakes or invade the inland lakes which come under the "pike" classification.

Fishermen have before them a new opportunity this year in the opening of the feeder streams, closed for five years. While many sportsmen disagree with the policy of opening up these streams, nevertheless they will take advantage of fishing the new water. All streams, with the exception of certain portions to be designated later by the conservation department, will be open. This will be a boon to the angler in new territory. He will no longer have to carry a map to find out which waters are open and which are closed.

Another, and less pleasant situation, confronts the fisherman. He has no idea where he stands on a license fee. Neither does anyone else. A proposed rod license of $1 for all fishermen was introduced in the legislature, reduced to 50c by an amendment and then defeated. Now the legislature is struggling with a dollar license for trout fishermen and a 50c license for other anglers except those fishing on the green lakes. The license will have to be distributed today and unless the legislature acts before that time the conservation department will have to go ahead on last year's set up and sell trout licenses for $1.75. Director George Hogarth has promised to do all in his power to reduce the license fee this year.

Regardless of licenses and feeder streams, the dyed in the wool fisherman is going ahead with his plans for being on his favorite stream next Monday.

NEW TAXATION IS TALK AT LANSING

SEEK NEW REVENUE FOR DEPLETED TREASURY

Beer Question Apparently On Way to Settlement, Legislators Seeking More Cash

(By Elton R. Eaton.)

Now that the all-important beer question will soon be settled through legal beer to flow through spigots instead of the bootleg beer that has flooded the state in recent years, taxpayers are beginning to wonder just what can be done in the few remaining weeks of the legislative session to bring them a bit of relief. While incomes have tumbled fifty percent, sixty percent, seventy percent—yes, in some cases incomes have entirely stopped—the state is now hearing on legislation to bring in additional revenue from the taxpayers of Michigan.

There will be little talk during the next few weeks that the legislature is in session about anything else except new revenues.

The farmers and home owners who can no longer bear the taxation burden of the state, county, city, village and township have in many cases thrown up their hands and are no longer even trying to pay taxes. Many who can pay taxes are taking advantage of present disturbed conditions not to pay taxes. While there is not really a taxpayers' strike in Michigan, thousands are not paying who could pay. They ask why should they pay taxes where there is legislation being proposed to cancel the back taxes of those who have not paid their taxes in recent years. As a result of this feeling about the entire income of the state, except from its automobile revenue, has come to a stop. It was following the introduction of what is known as the Moore delinquent tax bill that the taxpayers began to quit paying. One state official who has made a study of the tax situation, declared that this proposed delinquent tax legislation had thrown the state into its present deplorable plight. As a result the institutions, the taxpayers and everybody else suffers.

Now the legislature is faced with not only the problem of dealing out new ways to raise money but to overcome the untold damage that some of the fool provisions of the Moore bill created.

There is bound to be a sales tax of some kind from all the talk you can hear around legislative halls, and just now members of both the senate and house are trying to figure out just what should be taxed and what should not be taxed.

"Regrettable as it may seem, I am afraid that the merchants are the ones who will have to assume the greatest portion of the new tax," a state member of the senate, declared, "if such a thing should come to pass it meant the financial ruin of hundreds of merchant who have already seen their business drop to a mere nothing."

While there was talk in the early part of the session of cutting the expenses of the state to meet its reduced income, there is no such talk now. Too many people have got to be given jobs and the influence of some of the educational institutions and departments are altogether too powerful to permit such a thing to happen. So taxpayers have got to pay, and pay plenty. Indications are that the state expenses will be somewhere near where they were some eight or ten years ago—and even then the taxpayers protested.

There is one thing that the taxpayers can make up their mind on right now, taxes in Michigan will not be decreased in proportion to their incomes. If the taxes are not collected from real estate, they are going to come from somewhere.

It is estimated that the beer bill ought to bring in two and a half million dollars, but this is only an estimate and no one has the slightest thing upon which to base these figures. But anyway officials think it ought to be that, therefore they make an estimate that it will be that amount.

Senator Francis Kulp, one of the outstanding newer members of the Michigan legislature who came into office on the Democratic landslide last fall, bitterly opposed to the high tax placed upon beer. Senator Kulp is a prominent Battle Creek lawyer who probably knows as much about the legislative and other legislative problems as any man in the legislature. He is a direct tax upon the poor man. CITY DOCK IMPROVEMENTS PROGRESSING

Two Smaller Yacht Docks Have Been Lowered for Convenience.

Improvements on the city docks at the foot of Mason street are progressing at good shape.

Necessary repairs are being made on the smaller yacht docks in addition to the larger wharf. The dock furthest north has been lowered 17 inches and it is expected similar work will be done on the next one to it. Lowered water levels have made it difficult for a person to reach the dock from small craft, thus the improvements will provide a convenience.

Material to cover the larger dock is expected this week and the job will be completed when it is available.

Fertilizer Returns

$2 or More for Each $1 Invested

John W. Sims, Michigan fertilizer authority formerly with State College, tells us that farmers should get a return of $2 or more in increased yields for every $1 invested in fertilizer.

He quotes 344 Michigan farmers reporting an average extra return of $5.05 for each dollar of fertilizer invested in corn in 1929. Corn was high; so was fertilizer. They averaged $4.63 extra return for each $1 invested in fertilizing potatoes. Crop prices are much lower than in 1929, and fertilizer prices are also lower.

HERE'S ENCOURAGEMENT FOR THE FLY ANGLERS

An undersized trout caught on an artificial fly and returned to the water has twice the chance of living to maturity than one caught with a barbed or even barbless hook.

Experiments conducted by the fish division of the conservation department show that in addition to the artificial fly being the least destructive, a much larger percentage of trout put back into the water again continue to live than has been generally supposed.

COUNTY NORMAL NEWS

This week has been one of unusual interest in the normal room. First in order was a general celebration in honor of all members of the class securing Palmer Method Teachers' certificates.

Insects and bugs may not sound very interesting, but when studied under the direction of one of Michigan "bug" experts from Lansing, they prove a most attractive study. The class extends its appreciation to Mr. Melencamp and Miss Higge, as well as to Mr. Thompson and Mr. Dow for furnishing transportation to the farmers' meeting at Marion.

Observance of Arbor and May days will take the form of field trips for the purpose of tree and bird study, under the guidance of the Misses Burdick and Martha Reidel, Mr. Thomson and Mr. Bussler.

A course in library methods is being offered this week. Completion of this course will enable the students to use the library a little more intelligently and efficiently here, as well as at college.

Roll call may be said to waste time when practiced in congress at Washington, but it serves as an interesting appetizer for beginning a civic recitation.

Some very interesting and intellectual books have been reviewed for the class in sociology. One of the latest, "Prison Doctor," was reviewed by Miss Martha Reidel.

The normal class did not have class in music Tuesday due to Miss Atkinson's absence. She is attending a music conference in Grand Rapids.

The Dance

By JOHN GRAY

©, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU service

IT WAS the day before the all-important junior ball at Tilton college. On the "spare room" bed in the Denby farmhouse lay the pink chiffon frock that Bertha had bought for the big event. Silver slippers and stockings lay beside it.

The whole house was in an air of expectancy and even the cows and chickens in the barnyard and pasture must have suspected that something was in the air from the happy, preoccupied air of Bill Denby, gruff and usually indifferent as he went about his daily chores. Bill Denby was Bertha's brother, for older by ten years, who, though he avoided society himself, never seemed more content than when his pretty sister was included in the festivities at the nearby Tilton college.

Then George Fulton came with the news that changed all this air of pleasurable expectation to one of gloom and dejection.

"I've done the thing that seems most honorable," he announced. "It means that I can't take you to the ball." And with much faltering and many hesitations he proceeded.

"Last summer I met a girl who lives out in Wyoming. We played tennis together and went swimming and sailing and—well, before we parted, I asked her to go to my junior ball with me. That was before I met you. Well, we wrote once or twice and nothing more was said about the ball, and then we didn't write any more. I had met you and she didn't seem to care whether I wrote or not. This morning I had a letter from her. It just says: 'I'm coming for the ball. Will arrive at 5 Friday. I know you haven't forgotten your invitation.'"

"It's too late to prevent her coming—she is almost here. I didn't know what to do. Of course, I want to take you more than anything else. I made up my mind that the right thing for a fellow to do in the circumstances was to go to the girl he really cared for, the one who—well, the one who trusted him and understood him—and tell her."

It was not till George had gone and Bertha had gone to nurse her grief in sight of the pink frock laid out so neatly that she permitted tears to flow. Bill Denby, who had looked in vain for his sister downstairs, found her there in the spare room. Bertha explained.

"I don't care so much about going with him," she blushed, "but I wanted to wear the dress. I never had such a pretty dress before."

"I'll take you," Bill said firmly. "But they won't let you in—you're an outsider."

"See here," said Bill, shaking a doll-like finger in her face. "You said this George is the boss of the dance. I'll show him I'm no outsider this time. I'm going and he's going to let me in. That's the least he can do."

In the thirty hours that were to elapse before the dance, Bill found only a few, for sleep. There was a hasty trip by motor to Tilton in quest of evening clothes. It was eight years since Bill had worn them.

He came back with numerous bundles. "Here's everything from soup to nuts," he announced, "dancing pumps, silk socks and everything. Now start in and show me the steps."

The next evening at half-past eight, when Bertha, dressed in her pink chiffon, started off with her brother to Tilton college, she was inclined to think that this smooth-shaven, well-dressed young man must be some one else other than her big, rough brother.

It was an uncomfortable moment for Bertha at the door when the student whose duty it was to receive tickets, barred the way and looked skeptical when Bill said he would see the chairman of the committee, who would fix things up for him. George came forward, sensed the situation in a flash, and escorted the Denbys past the dismayed door committee.

What followed made Bertha feel as if she had suddenly been swept off her feet. The girl, beautiful, stately and brunette, but certainly older than George, took both Bill's hands in hers.

"What a wonderful surprise," she said. "I was going to get in touch with you tomorrow, but I didn't expect to meet you at the dance." Then she and Bill gravitated to some chairs behind some palms, and when the music started for the first dance, and George was expected to be the first on the floor, he did not even try to locate Bill and the mysterious girl.

They danced for a few minutes and then drifted toward two chairs which they utilized for a conversation. "That's Helen Dawson," George said. "She's the one Bill was engaged to. One of the boys was in Wyoming a few weeks ago and told her about Bill—how he'd never married and didn't like girls, so she decided to come and look him up. She found out when the dance came off, remembered I'd asked her, and took that as an excuse to come East. She didn't think that she might have spoiled it for me. But everything is turning out all right, I guess," added George as he looked across the room to where Bill and Helen Dawson were still talking, oblivious of music, dancers and possible on-lookers.

And that night when Helen and her new-found friend, Bertha Denby, whom she had seen once before as a little girl, said good night, Helen whispered to Bertha that she was engaged to Bill again. And Bertha, sublimely happy, confessed that with little persuasion she had accepted George.

Flower-Trimmed or With Feathers

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FLOWERS are flourishing in fashionland. Even so early as in mid-season we began to have hints of a flower-veined to be. The first flower-garlanded hats made their appearance timidly. These for the most part adhered to the tailored mood, such as for instance a sailor with perhaps a band of little velvet-flowers very primly encircling the crown or perhaps with a wee band of posies next to the hair.

They were adorable, as they brought a breath of spring, and the reaction to them was so favorable that milliners were encouraged to follow them up with a more pretentious gesture. There began to arrive from abroad most ravishing little toques and bouillon caps made all of violets, or rose petals, or gardenias or, perhaps, velvet posies in variegated coloring.

The latest arrivals from certain French ateliers introduced a most charming idea, that of flower necklaces which are worn like leis. We are illustrating one such centered in the group pictured. The flowers in this instance are white camellias for both the wreath about the hat and the lei necklace. Among the models of her spring collection Jane Chochet also is offering an interesting lei formed of white linen hyacinths with a black ribbon across the back of the neck. This is shown with a toque of lovely black straw with matching hyacinths bordering the left side.

Most of the flower toques are designed in colors to form a perfect harmony with the costume, with the exception of the all-white sets which are effective with black or whatever the color may be. We are showing two flower toques here. The ensemble at the top, to the right, is made of violets with a matching corsage. The matron of honor who wore it had on a lovely light blue lace gown. For the bride a set was created which consisted of a toque of white rose petals and a unit which was a perfect heart shape formed of identical petals. These heart-shaped flower muffs are the newest novelties for brides.

The dainty toque below to the left in the picture is half and half of navy straw and purple velvet posies. It tops a dress of gleaming blue, the hyacinth tone of this blue being a perfect complement to the rich purple tones of the flowers.

The cult of the mode for military effects is answered in dashing cockade hats and fez turbans whose height and severity of line is something for which we are expected to acquire a taste. None the two models below in the picture. They are indicative of this new style trend. There is no end to other feather fantasies which are distinguishing the season's hats. They include every type from simple pillbox and bonnet effects to all sorts of intriguing novelties.

THREE NEW KINDS OF SPRING COATS

There is a lot of talk about Schiaparelli's square-shouldered coat model which, in its most historic form, presents us with a detachable collar over its padded shoulders.

A sleeve applied with cartridge pleats at the shoulder is a simpler means the designer uses to get the same square effect. One lipstick-red milled wooden coat that is here from Benyere shows a square armhole as well as a square shoulder.

For a dress coat—a division more important this spring than last, with the increased interest in the afternoon toilette—one may choose from many portable shades and soft weaves and decide on either furled or unfurled designs. The flat little Peter Pan collars of fairly longish pelts are a magnet for the young folk, and the more sophisticated woman goes for rever lapels of the same kind of skins.

Between these two versions is an other, which has a self-fabric cape bordered once, twice, or thrice with fluffy fox. Being a detachable unit, one may ditch the cape entire and, opening the revers, face forth with a late spring model which needs only a corsage to give it elegance and je ne sais quoi.

Cashmere Sweaters Are Among Latest Arrivals

The latest sweaters are in plain colors, in cashmere or wool. A few exceptions are in wool and angora. This mixture is also found in ensembles or capes, gloves and scarves and the wool is knitted in dark shades with the angora worked in stripes of pastel tone and white.

A variation of the scarf is seen in a round knitted collar, which rests on the shoulders and is fitted to the throat. It has a small turned-over fluted edge and is made in one piece and fastens with two clips.

Shoulder Strap Pins

Shoulder strap pins are in again—but this time they are not concealed in pre-war style, but are out in the open decorations for evening dresses. They are elaborate and fanciful, set with gems and made in four-inch lengths so that they will be very much in evidence.

IT TIES AROUND

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

They're efficiency for you. No buttons, no troublesome snaps for the woman who owns one of these fifty cyclotocks as they are called. The model shown is in a brown and white cotton print with white plique finistings, for most everything from house dresses to evening frocks is trimmed in plique or organdie nowadays. You slip your arms through the little puffed sleeves, wrap the left side across the back, then wrap the right side over and tie the ends in a bow in front. The silhouette and tailoring are as smart as in your favorite afternoon gown. It's the sort of dress that makes working at home a joy.

Color Combination

Burgundy or wine color proves to be lovely combined with pavement gray, hyacinth blue and with any of the lavender pinks.

Five Club Members Chosen on State Honor Roll

From a recent announcement from the state boys' and girls' clubs department at M. S. C., Charlevoix county can be highly gratified to have five club members receive statewide recognition. In each project five honor roll members are selected. This means that out of hundreds of club members, five outstanding members are chosen based upon club interest, club activities, attendance at meetings, participation in various contests, and the merit of their reports and stories.

In the corn project, Clayton Healey, East Jordan, has been recognized as being one of the five outstanding members in the state.

In the bean project, Robert Tainter, Boyne City, received the same high rating. In addition, Robert Tainter was selected as the all-around county champion for the year 1932.

Not to be outdone by the boys, Mary Ellen Johnson, Bay Shore, has proved to be outstanding among the third year canning club members. For years Mary has been carrying on a splendid club program and has had her share of county awards. She has always stood up well in competition, last year having the best collection of fruits and vegetables in the county, and the best collection of jellies and jams, in addition to being first with in her own group.

David Matchett, Charlevoix, takes his place on the state honor roll in the third year dairy project. He likewise has won his share of awards in the various dairy exhibits held in the county.

In the advanced dairy project, the name of Carlton Smith, Charlevoix, again comes in the front. Carlton has been outstanding in many activities, having won two trips to the state fair at Detroit and last year having the highest score in a judging contest held at Traverse City, for which he received a beautiful purebred Holstein heifer.

These awards to members of our Charlevoix county 4-H clubs speaks very highly of the many activities correlated with the continued growth.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Subject: "Everlasting Punishment."

Wednesday evening at 7:45, first Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

"Probation After Death" was the subject of the lesson-lesson in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, April 23. Among the Bible citations was this passage (1 Thess. 4:14, 18): "For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so they also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. Wherefore comfort one another with these words."

Will Rogers Is A Kindly Vagabond In Latest Film

Backed by an impressive cast that is headed by Will Rogers, "Too Busy To Work," the celebrated wit's latest picture will open an engagement at the Palace theatre next Saturday where it will remain for two days.

The story of "Too Busy To Work" revolves around the adventures of a philosophical and kindly vagabond and his search for his daughter, whom his unfaithful wife took with her when she ran away with a more aristocratic man while he was away fighting in the war.

Mark Nixon, who scored successfully in "Rebecca Of Sunnybrook Farm" and "Amateur Daddy," portrays the leading feminine role, dividing the love interest with Dick Powell, a newcomer to the screen who made his debut in "Blessed Event."

Others in important roles are Constantine Romanoff, Douglas Cosgrove, Louise Beavers and Jack O'Hara.

Premiere of George O'Brien in "Robbers' Roost" Today

What is said to be George O'Brien's outstanding screen achievement will be seen at the Palace theatre Wednesday and Thursday with the opening of his newest Fox Films vehicle, "Robbers' Roost." It has a supporting cast headed by Maureen O'Sullivan and one of Zane Grey's most exciting tales as a basis for its plot.

The story deals with an actual occurrence in Arizona cattle history, and with the exception of the interior scenes, the production was filmed at the actual locale of the event.

SUGAR BEET INDUS. TRY AIDS FARMERS

Over Eight Million Dollars Paid to Growers During 1932

A final report covering the operations of the beet sugar industry in Michigan and Ohio during 1932 reveals that $8,528,491 were distributed to 18,839 Michigan and Ohio farmers in payment for the 1932 sugar beet crop, according to an announcement made by the Farmers and Manufacturers Beet Sugar association.

The report shows that during the operating period the industry consumed 369,497 tons of coal, coke and limestone; more than $208,000 worth of miscellaneous supplies and over 100,000 yards of cotton filter cloth. In addition, transportation companies received in payment of freight charges, over $4,400,000.

In addition to the farmers engaged in sugar beet production employment was furnished to 16,747 agricultural workers and 4,480 beet factory employees.

An article, next Sunday, in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with The Detroit Sunday Times, tells about a young man who lives in the laboratory of Chicago University where scientists feed him glass beads, steel bolts, rubber tubing, sand and gravel.

"With the one or two exceptions the liquor control commission was made up of people who could well afford to pay any price for beer, but beer is the beverage of the working man, the man who is forced to count his pennies. He can pay five cents a glass for beer, but when he pays more than that, then he is paying more than he can afford, and I don't like the new bill for that very reason," stated Senator Kulp. But higher taxes on everything seem to be in the air, and higher taxes Michigan people are going to pay.

Many prominent Democrats as well as Republicans are not at all satisfied with the trend of affairs in Lansing. Democrats do not like some of the appointments that have been made. They do not like it because they have not been provided with some sort of a definite legislative program. Republicans have made similar comments. So far the only economy measures presented and acted upon are those introduced by Rep. Vernon J. Brown and Rep. Hartman. No other legislative economy steps have been advanced outside of what these two men have done. Maybe in the four or five weeks left there will be something of a definite nature advanced, and this is the thing that all are expectantly waiting for.

Only senate and executive approval awaits the enactment of Rep. Brown's bill doing away with Michigan obnoxious securities commission. Worthless paper to the tune of five hundred million dollars has been passed off on the people of Michigan through permits issued by the commission during the past few years. Rep. Brown declares that the state should not permit the sale of anything that tinges of such investments as have been passed upon by the commission. Not an objection to the bill has been raised in the house.

There is prospect of a constitutional amendment being placed upon the ballot at the next general election which will provide for one board of control of all state educational institutions. The plan, originally suggested in the senate by Senator Kulp of Battle Creek, has found much favor in both the house and senate. The new superintendent of public instruction, Mr. Volker, is known all to favor the plan.

It's going to be just too bad for the Honorable John K. Stack, Jr., of Escanaba, Michigan, U. S. A., and the general of the great state of Michigan if the bill introduced by Rep. Barber keeps on going as strong as it has up to date. The bill would prevent officials from employing relatives. About the greatest accomplishment of the administration of John K. Jr. to date has been the employment of his daughter as something or other in his office—at a salary of fancy it makes some of the old timers about the capitol a bit jealous.

The Orr insurance bill which gives to Michigan life insurance companies the same advantages that big eastern insurance companies have in making loans at present, is soon to become law. The bill was held up in the house one day because of a slight misunderstanding as to its provisions. Insurance companies have been big just as hard as the banks relative to loans and while the big life insurance companies under the laws of the state where they exist, have refused to permit certain loans, the Michigan companies have been forced to pay them, putting them to a great disadvantage with their powerful eastern competitors. The Orr bill puts all of them on equal footing.

The legislature hopes to complete its work by May 20th, that date having been tentatively set as the time for adjournment. There is some talk of another session in the fall to take up some of the problems that are bound not to be disposed of at the present session.

Love may be blind, but it usually manages to find an eye opener.

COMMUNITY LOSES A BELOVED WOMAN

Mrs. Jone Durance Died Last Friday
—Funeral Monday.

Last Friday morning this community was shocked to learn of the death early that morning of Mrs. Jone Durance. Her illness had been severe, but apparently was improving when a sudden condition of phlebitis brought about death.

The funeral was conducted Monday afternoon in the Methodist church by the pastor, Rev. W. W. Hurd. The church was crowded to capacity by the many friends coming to pay tribute. The Rev. Hurd attended in a body and at the cemetery conducted the beautiful burial ceremony of that order.

Deceased was born in Hayes township, April 9, 1881. She was married to Thomas R. Powell and to this union were born five children, four of whom survived, viz: Fannie Powell, Detroit; Theodore R., Columbia, S. C.; Mrs. Ruby Jacobs, New Brooklyn, S. C.; Charles, of Naval Mine Depot, Yorktown, Va.

On April 20, 1930, she was married to Jone Durance, who also survives.

Mrs. Durance was an earnest Christian from early life and a faithful member of the Methodist church. Her sincerity, integrity and friendliness had won her a host of friends, as testified by the many beautiful floral tokens.

COTTON CLUB DANCE NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

Colorful Semi-Formal Affair to Be Held at Moonlight Gardens

Friday evening, May 5th, has been set aside for the Cotton club spring party. Cotton semi-formals will be worn by the club members, while their gentlemen friends will appear in dress suits.

The evening of dancing will take place at Moonlight Gardens, Howard Davenport and his "Rhythm Boys" will furnish the music. Mr. and Mrs. Jeffery have very kindly made available their dance hall for the evening and have consented to serve punch and wafers, both facts for which the club is very grateful.

Invitations are being prepared for the one hundred girls enrolled in the Cotton club under the leadership of Miss Vera Belding. Guests, and chaperons have already received personal invitations.

The semi-formal dance party is expected to be a very colorful affair. It will also be an event out of the ordinary, for as the name suggests, only gay cotton dresses are permitted for the girls.

CITY MOURNS DEATH OF MRS. J. M. CLARK

Beloved Woman Succumbed Friday
After Extended Illness

Mrs. Libbie Clark, long time and highly respected and beloved resident, died last Friday at 6:50 p. m. Her death was not entirely unexpected, as she had for some time been afflicted with a serious malady.

Mrs. Clark had lived in Charlevoix since childhood—a long life of charity, benevolence and much service and kindness to others. The flower from her garden, and from her beautiful spirit went into many a home and many a heart.

The funeral was conducted Monday afternoon at the home by her pastor, Rev. W. W. Hurd of the Methodist church. Rev. G. R. Parker assisted in the service. Her two children, Mrs. Nels Palmer of Ludington, and Adelbert M. Clark of Gloucester, Mass., were present.

Old records reveal that Mrs. Clark became a member of the local Methodist church on August 21, 1887, while the "living record" in the minds and hearts of the members and her many friends, testify to her faithfulness, loyalty and beautiful spirit throughout all the years.

TWO GAS SERVICE STATIONS ARE UNDER WAY

Building Stations.

Opening of the 1933 summer season will see two more gasoline service stations in operation in Charlevoix.

A. T. Jeffery has a station practically completed at Moonlight Gardens on US-31 in the north city limits. Construction has been completed and work of landscaping the grounds is under way. The station will handle Sinclair products.

The second station is that under construction by Bert Beaudoin in front of his residence on South Bridge street. The plans call for a completely equipped station, handling Standard Oil company products.

TIME LIMIT FARM LOANS UP APRIL 30

Farmers Have Until Saturday to Apply for R. F. C. Funds

Hundreds of government checks for funds advanced to farmers as crop-production loans are now being received daily by farmers throughout the state and the seeding and planting season is now progressing in earnest.

These government loans are available to owners or tenants having a fixed acreage and are limited to three hundred dollars, which must be expended for seed, fertilizer, spraying, oil and gasoline for tractors and for no other purpose. The interest rate is five and one-half percent and the time limit for filing applications will expire on April 30th.

Applications for government crop production loans must be filed in the county where the farm is situated and local farmers who are interested should apply to R. C. Mellemcamp, Boyne City, for further information and the necessary papers.

LEGION ACTIVITIES Edited by F. V. Tyler.

Next Tuesday evening, May 2nd, has been set aside by the post for the annual spring clean-up of the grounds around the Legion home on East Garfield avenue. Members of the post are requested to be on hand with their favorite "weapons" as soon after supper as practicable. Tuesday evening, to make use of the evening hours of daylight. Light refreshments will follow the labors of the volunteer workers and the usual bugle and drum practice for the members of the corps.

On invitation of the pastor of the First Congregational church, the post members will attend services there on Memorial Sunday, May 28, in a body. The rallying point for the march to the church will be at the Legion home.

Plans of the commander were ratified Tuesday night at the post meeting for a unique trip to the national convention of the Legion and the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago next October. The steamer "Ossian Bedell" has been chartered for this trip (and ladies, this is a strictly stag affair—you may go as far as the deck, if you wish) and during the summer months Legionnaires all over the district will be solicited for ten backs apiece to cover the cost of their fare. The trip will consume six days and the voyagers will sleep and, if they desire, eat on the boat and use it as their floating hotel while at the convention. The post bugle and drum corps will go along to take part in the twelve-mile-long parade which the national convention committee is planning. Legion concessions on the boat and its use as a public ferry between the municipal pier and the exposition grounds on a percentage basis is expected to make a profit for the post.

Proposed allocation plan the counties will receive 3 mills, school districts 4 mills and cities and villages 1-10 mill. Distribution of the millage will be the duty of the county tax commission. They will also apportion the township's share. It is anticipated 1932 property tax assessments will be used as the basis for computing the 1933 levies. Under this plan the county's share of 3 mills will raise approximately $30,000, which is $45,000 short of the $75,000 which the budget is expected to call for. Where the balance will come from remains to be seen.

LOCAL MUSICIANS GO TO CONFERENCE

WIN HONORS AT GRAND RAPIDS LAST WEEK

Marian Tyler Awarded 2nd Chair in Flute Section North Central Band, Scholarship at Interlochen

Charlevoix high school was well represented at the North Central Music Supervisors' conference held in Grand Rapids, April 22-24. In attendance were Miss Esther Mary Atkinson, vocal supervisor, Robert Magor, instrumental director, and Grace Belding, Maria Oldham, Bernice Meggison, Marian Tully, Marian Tyler and Dick Straw, students from the music department of the local schools.

The conference included school musicians from about one hundred fifty cities in the states comprising the North Central association. In addition to the general and sectional meetings for supervisors, rehearsals for the students were conducted pointing toward the final concert given by the North Central band, orchestra and chorus on Wednesday evening. The band was under the direction of A. A. Harding of the University of Illinois; the orchestra was directed by Charles B. Richter, head of the department of instrumental music at the University of Iowa; and the chorus was conducted by Olaf C. Christiansen, director of vocal music at Oberlin Conservatory.

Marian Tyler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Tyler, was given the second chair in the flute section of the band and was one of the few members singled out for special recognition by means of a scholarship award for the National Band and Orchestra camp at Interlochen this coming summer. These scholarships were given on the basis of musicianship, character, attitude and probability of being able to avail oneself of the opportunity to attend the camp.

The other five students from Charlevoix were candidates for the chorus and all placed well in initial tryouts. In the makeup of the chorus the director organized a "little choir" composed of specially selected voices for solo effects and both Grace Belding and Dick Straw were recognized by inclusion in this select group. Miss Belding won especial recognition in placing in the first row of lyric sopranos.

Miss Atkinson was active in the management of the conference, being a member of the very important committee on educational exhibits, and in addition, having charge of the registration of all students for the chorus.

Following is an account of the conference written by one of the students from Charlevoix participating:

(By Marian Tyler)

A lot can be said about the conference from the point of view of a member. Those who merely attend the concerts can see the results of days of rehearsal and careful drill, but they miss the fun and the friends and the little events that make a conference memorable.

There were, perhaps, 400 high school students from 140 cities in five states who came to Grand Rapids to play or sing. These all had to learn to work together and think with the conductor before they could put on a concert that would really do them justice. So the five days that were spent in shaping a band, orchestra and chorus are what you will be interested in.

On Saturday morning, hundreds of excited players and singers were milling about the new civic auditorium, inspecting everybody's name badges, scrambling for the registrars' desks and sliding on the polished floors. After registration came the long, dreaded try-outs. It is an awful feeling to have the doors of some cold little committee room close behind you and see the try-out man rub his hands together with an air of getting down to business. "Play a half page of this and ten measures of that for me, please." Then you shiver and think home would be heaven by comparison. It wasn't really as bad as we thought, however, because the try-out men were kindly and did not hurry us or frown at our mistakes.

Immediately after the try-outs, we attended the first full rehearsal and were placed in chairs according to ranking ability. After much noise and tuning, the baton went up on "Rienzi," Victor Grabel conducting. The "Rienzi" was his own arrangement, so we were particularly for-unate in having him as leader. Too much was not expected of us at this first rehearsal because—although everyone knew the music, each had his own ideas about it.

An hour or so of playing can make one very hungry. You have no idea how much food a hungry musician can put away if you haven't watched one eat. About five minutes after rehearsals were over, that auditorium was empty and everyone was trekking for a lunch counter.

Thereafter, both band and orchestra had four and a half hours per day of full and sectional rehearsals. They were not always in the same place and it was necessary to come early to find where you belonged. Late comers in band and orchestra were relegated to the last chairs in their groups. There weren't very many who were late. However, on Monday morning, I ran nearly all the way from Prospect avenue to the Pantlind hotel (seven blocks), dashed through the lobby to check my instrument out and simply broke all speed records through the connecting tunnel to the civic auditorium trying to get to a 9 o'clock rehearsal. Then I got into the wrong sub-auditorium and had to go tearing up two flights of stairs in a sort of semi-darkness, only to find that

SUPERVISORS ACT TO CUT EXPENSES

WELFARE DEPARTMENT GIVEN GREATEST ATTENTION

Indigents Must Plant and Care for Gardens or Forgo Aid—County Will Cooperate in Plan

Charlevoix county supervisors took steps at their special session last week to curtail expenses in view of anticipated diminished revenue during the coming year.

The department receiving the greatest attention was that of welfare. Through the establishment of welfare department gardens, which welfare dependents will be compelled to plant and care for, it is hoped to save operating costs materially. Another plan adopted, compels able-bodied male indigents to furnish labor on such projects as cleaning and improving parks, cutting wood for other welfare dependents, and improvement and care of public property and roads at the rate of 20¢ per hour for the value of all aid received. If employed, the indigent must furnish cash on the same basis for aid received.

The plan as outlined on the garden project directs the county poor commissioners to cooperate with B. C. Mellencamp, county agricultural agent, in planning and procuring garden plots. It is expected details of the plan will be worked out at once so the project may be started. In connection with this plan, the local American Legion post offered the use of 17 acres of land south of their hall on Garfield avenue for garden use. Emmet county has a similar plan in successful operation at the present time. If indigents refuse to cooperate, no further aid will be forthcoming.

Faced with the prospect of diminished revenues due to the 15-mill tax limitation and general tax delinquencies, the supervisors were forced to some action of this sort. It is anticipated the number of applications for aid will decrease due to the knowledge that something will not be received for nothing any longer. The plan provides an opportunity for indigents to discharge an obligation to the county which would otherwise be considered as charity. It gives to the county some measure of return in the form of public improvements for the sums expended for the aid of indigents.

It is hoped the psychological reaction will cause some to take steps to prevent the necessity of applying for aid through planting of gardens, cutting wood, and exercising more judicious use of the money they may earn during the summer months.

The prosecuting attorney has been directed to draft agreements for indigents to sign on the labor agreement plan. Details of the garden project will be worked out as quickly as possible and further announcements along this line will probably be available next week.

COUNTY TAX COMMISSION FORMED

ORGANIZED AT MEETING HELD MONDAY MORNING

Duty of Commission Is to Allocate 15 Mill Property Tax to Various County Units

Charlevoix county has taken preliminary steps toward division of the property tax, which is this year limited to 15 mills by an amendment passed by Michigan voters last November.

Governor Comstock last week signed the Southworth bill, first major tax measure passed by the legislature, which gives counties a minimum rate of three mills and school districts four mills, leaving the remainder, except one-tenth of a mill, which must be allotted charter cities and villages, to be allocated by a county tax commission provided for in the bill.

County Commission Named

Personnel of the tax commission as set by the Southworth bill included County Treasurer Jos. Wm. Flanders, County School Commissioner Wm. C. Palmer, and Howard Stephens, chairman of the finance committee of the board of supervisors. Judge of Probate Ervan A. Rueseger, delegated the authority and duty of naming the other two members, last Saturday appointed J. M. Harris, Bayne City, as representative of the county high schools, and R. G. Watson, ex-mayor of East Jordan, as representative of the county tax payers.

Harris Chosen Chairman

The committee named J. M. Harris as chairman at an organization meeting held in the court house here at 9:30 Monday morning. All members of the commission were present except R. G. Watson, who was unable to attend. County Clerk Fenton R. Bulow acts as clerk of the commission.

Due to the fact that the various tax units, especially townships and school districts, have not had sufficient time to prepare their budgets as provided by law, no work along the lines of allocation was accomplished by the commission at Monday's meeting. A suggested budget plan and form which will be sent to each unit to fill out and return was drafted. The more important work of the commission will start when these forms have been sent back.

Two Budgets Reported

The county supervisors at their special session last week prepared a tentative budget, which was the first given the commission. The Charlevoix city council filed the second Monday, holding a short special session at noon to confirm a budget drawn by City Attorney Lisle Shanahan.

Hundred Taken from Welfare List Started Work Monday

The Charlevoix county highway commission received notification Saturday from the state highway department of approval of their application for R. F. C. funds for relief road projects during May.

At a session Saturday afternoon the local welfare committee selected 26 men from this district to start work Monday. Welfare committees throughout the county held similar meetings, selecting around 100 men.

SALES TAX BILL IS BEING SOUGHT

WOULD PROVIDE STATE MUCH NEEDED REVENUE

Legislature Making Effort to Clear Docket as Date for Adjournment Approaches

(By Elton P. Eaton.)

With the time for final adjournment of the legislature fixed for May 20, there is a rush to dispose of the many hundreds of bills that have been introduced as well as pass some sort of a sales tax bill that will provide the state with additional revenue that Governor Comstock says he must have. As indicated in the legislative letter of last week, the sales tax bill would be the chief legislative subject for the next two or three weeks.

There seems to be a general sentiment that a retail sales tax of 3 per cent has more favor in the house and senate than any other plan, but there is plenty of opposition to this tax. It passes the tax burden of the state right back onto the hands of those that have found it impossible to carry, the little fellow. Most anything he might purchase under this proposal, would be taxed.

The small town merchant cannot afford to carry the sales tax burden and he must pass it along. Just naturally the buyer is the one who must pay.

There is an exceedingly wide variety of ideas in the legislature on the sales tax question—and the various sales tax bills are in for plenty of mauling before they get very far.

The lower house of the legislature went down into the sewer the other day and passed a bill permitting dog races in the state. Fortunately for the good name of Michigan there were some 35 or 40 members of the house who opposed the measure. Any number of members tried to dodge a vote on the issue, but escape was not easy. Many who voted for it were ashamed of their vote but thought it necessary to do so in order to get some support for some legislation they were personally interested in. The bill now in the senate is doomed for defeat in the upper house. If present sentiment should change, and the bill be passed, Governor Comstock has announced that he will veto it.

Michigan taxpayers are a-keed in a bill that has just made its appearance in the house to provide a pension of not more than $9 a week to any needy person above the age of 65 years. A Detroit representative would have the state collect the money for this purpose and supervise its payment.

Another one of Rep. Vernon J. Brown's economy bills, introduced in conjunction with Rep. Hartman, has found its way successfully through the legislature. The measure provides the legislature with power to fix the salary of the commissioner of public safety.

The notorious "beer" bill that has been buffeted about legislative chambers for weeks and weeks has finally been made into law. Legislative observers declare that the future of the prohibition question in Michigan lies entirely upon the success of this measure. Instances of house and senate members gave the cities and villages of Michigan outside of Wayne county some control over the permits to be issued and the regulation of the business. As originally planned local communities would have nothing to do with it. Permits must first have the approval of village or city councils and commissions. The tax goes entirely to the state and it is estimated that it will bring between $2,000,000 and $2,500,000 of revenue into the state treasury. The tax is $1.25 per barrel and a barrel is 31 gallons. As originally framed the bill did not permit restaurants with counters to serve beer, but this was changed so that beer can be served over these counters. There can be no free lunches and customers must sit at tables in public places to drink beer. No drinks can be given away. Counties have the right to vote local option on beer if they care to do so, petitions bearing 20 per cent of the name of the people. Candy stores, drug and confectionery stores cannot sell beer. State officials announce that they are going to see to it that the bootlegger is put out of business now that Michigan has legalized the sale of beer.

While the Michigan legislature is advancing a bill toward the governor's office which has for its object

LACK OF FUNDS IMPEDING ROAD WORK

STATE CONVERTS ROAD MONEY FOR GENERAL USE

In the Meantime Township Roads Absorbed Under McNitt Bill Go Without Attention

Little prospect exists of an early release of either Horton or McNitt act monies from the state highway department to the various county road commissions of the state, according to a letter received recently by the clerk of the county road commission from Martie DeGlopper, deputy state highway commissioner.

This letter, which has been sent to county commissions all over the state, explains why state highway money has not been forthcoming in keeping with the Horton act provisions for distribution among the counties.

The Horton money is the weight tax money which is prorated back to the counties in place of the county highway tax and the McNitt money is the money given to the counties to care for the township highways, which have been taken over by the county commissions, and for the maintenance of which the state was to furnish the money.

The deplorable condition of the state's tax collection is explained by Mr. DeGlopper's letter when he says, "frankly that there is no way of telling when the Horton act money, due the counties on April 15, can be paid."

The letter says that of the normal state tax of $24,500,000, of which $19,000,000 would have ordinarily been collected by this time, only $8,000,000 has been collected. On April 1 the total receipts from the weight tax were $6,000,000 below the same date a year ago. It is hoped, Mr. DeGlopper says, that the money due in April and May can be paid the counties on or before July 1.

This answers the question of many farmers as to why the county is not proceeding with the maintenance and improvement of many township roads which have recently been taken over by the county under the McNitt bill.

COTTON CLUB PARTY EVENT FRIDAY NIGHT

Informal Private Dance to Be Held at Moonlight Gardens

The Cotton club May party, an informal private party planned for Friday night at Moonlight Gardens, promises to be an unusual event, thanks to the splendid cooperation of everyone concerned, especially the parents of the girls in the club.

The Cotton club was originally a group of girls who either could not or would not wear anything better than cotton frocks, no matter what the occasion might be. With the rapid increase in membership the idea has grown "that anything that affords a big time at little expense" is worth going after in a big way. With one hundred girls on the job, "Old Man Depression" hasn't a chance.

Much of the charity that begins abroad never reaches home.

COUNCIL WILL ACT ON BEER LICENSES

ACTION EXPECTED AT MEETING MONDAY NIGHT

Beer Legalized by Legislature Last Week—Will Be Available When Licenses Are Issued

While no official applications have been received to date, it is anticipated the city council will take up the beer licensing problem at their meeting next Monday night.

The council did not meet in regular session this week, convening only for a short time Monday noon to confirm a tentative budget for presentation to the county tax commission. The next regular meeting is May 8th.

The state beer bill as passed and signed by Governor Comstock last week, gives to local governing bodies the final word in passing on the applicants for beer retailing licenses. The applications must go to the state liquor commission but they must also have the approval of the local governing body which, in this city, is the common council.

It is quite probable that applications will be received for consideration next Monday night. A movement which may, or may not have public approval is under way at the present time. A petition, sponsored and signed by all local retail grocery merchants, is in circulation for signature. The petition, when presented to the council, will request no license be approved for any grocery store in Charlevoix. If acted upon favorably by the council, the action will mean that places other than grocery stores as designated in the beer bill will handle beer when it becomes available some time this month.

Provisions of Bill

Some of the provisions of the beer bill passed by the state legislature are as follows:

Sales will be limited to persons over 18 years of age and free lunches are outlawed. Beer may be sold in places where meat are sold and in small cafes whose principal business is done over lunch counters.

The bill creates a liquor commission of 17 members which is in charge of licensing manufacturers and vendors—subject only to the authority of local governing bodies (except in Wayne county) in the matter of licensing retail vendors. The commission will be bi-partisan in character, not more than nine members being from the same party, and not more than two of the three members of the executive committee being of the same political faith.

A local option clause is contained in the bill under which counties may state tax collection is explained by Mr. DeGlopper's letter when he says, "frankly that there is no way of telling when the Horton act money, due the counties on April 15, can be paid."

The letter says that of the normal state tax of $24,500,000, of which $19,000,000 would have ordinarily been collected by this time, only $8,000,000 has been collected. On April 1 the total receipts from the weight tax were $6,000,000 below the same date a year ago. It is hoped, Mr. DeGlopper says, that the money due in April and May can be paid the counties on or before July 1.

This answers the question of many farmers as to why the county is not proceeding with the maintenance and improvement of many township roads which have recently been taken over by the county under the McNitt bill.

Both teams did much better playing than last fall, when Mitchell won a score of about 8 to 40. Bay View plays Creswell this week Friday, on the home grounds. Elbert Handerson of Central Lake, is teacher at Creswell, and Sam McKel of Mancelona, is teacher at Bay View.

MUST DRENCH SHEEP TO KILL PARASITES

Production Contest Records Show Profits Fall If Treatment Is Omitted

Michigan shepherds who want to make a profit from their flock will have to drench their lambs early and often according to the records secured by Michigan State college animal husbandry department from the farmers who entered last year's lamb production contest.

Lambs one month old can be drenched safely with one ounce of the copper sulphate and 40 per cent nicotine solution. The solution is made by mixing one ounce of copper sulphate and one liquid ounce of 40 per cent nicotine sulphate in three quarts of water.

The whole flock of sheep should be drenched every 30 days. The dose for 50 pound lambs is two ounces of the solution, and adults may be given four ounces of solution. Sheep which have been weakened by parasite attacks should receive smaller amounts than the standard dose for their age.

State Fire Towers Were Manned April 15 for Annual Battle

April 15, the date on which Michigan's forest fire fighting organization began its duties for the 1933 season, reported its first forest fire for the year, a small blaze in the Pigeon river district. Not more than six acres were burned over.

While all of the fire towers are being manned, the key men have been equipped and the 14 district headquarters ready for any emergency, continued wet weather is believed to have made the woods safe from serious fires for some time.

Fire wardens are devoting much of their time to watching fires started to burn over grass and pasture land and are urging all persons building such fires to first obtain a permit from the nearest warden to save expense of sending out fire fighting crews.

POISON in Your bowels!

Poisons absorbed into the system from souring waste in the bowels, cause that dull, headachy, sluggish, bilious condition; coat the tongue; foul the breath; sap energy, strength and nerve-force. A little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will clear up trouble like that, gently, harmlessly, in a hurry. The difference it will make in your feelings over night will prove its merit to you.

Dr. Caldwell studied constipation for over forty-seven years. This long experience enabled him to make his prescription just what men, women, old people and children need to make their bowels help themselves. Its natural, mild, thorough action and its pleasant taste commend it to everyone. That's why "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin," as it is called, is the most popular laxative drugstore sell.

Runaways Are Huge Problem to the Police

New York Records Show Most Are Under 17.

New York—Missing girls are becoming the biggest kind of a bother to the New York police department. Some 2,700 of them disappeared in New York during the last calendar year and numbers of them never could be found. Many wound up in police stations or in underworld dens. A few met untimely ends—their bodies were found abandoned by roadsheds, in the resort rooms where they were slain, or in out of the way hiding places. A sizable group eloped to presumably happy marriages.

Of the runaways, 1,688 were under seventeen years of age. And of these some six hundred or more went the wrong road far enough to claim the attention of the police department's crime prevention bureau. Nearly a hundred of them ended their adventures in the police headquarters lines up on charges of larceny—handicuff, robbery, arson, and assault.

According to Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney, however, the vast majority of the runaways were not bad girls, but were "just dissatisfied—dissatisfied with their homes, their places of employment, their whole environment. They were not bad, they were merely out of step."

Many Blame Stump.
The depression, of course, was to blame for hundreds of the disappearance cases. With the head of the family out of work, the father all but empty, small yards crying for food, no funds with which to buy fiery or even decent clothes, hundreds of girls in their early high school years suited action to prolonged periods of despair over their plight by vanishing into the unknown of city life in search of whatever change in fortune the future might have in store for them. Anything better than their present lot, they seemed to reason.

On the other hand, Capt. John H. Ayers, for the last fifteen years head of the missing persons bureau and generally recognized as one of the world's leading experts on the "missing girl" problem, is convinced that the depression has been instrumental in keeping just as many would-be runaways at home as it has forced out into the uncharted byways. Perhaps more.

"Fifteen-year-old Jane, tired of dishwashing and bedmaking, and with a runaway bee buzzing in her bonnet, will most often think twice before she gives up the safety and protection of that humble abode and goes out in search of the job nowadays," the captain explained. "With unnumbered

German Ambassador to England a Beau Brummel

London—The man who has the swankiest wardrobe in London—so says a local newspaper—is not an Englishman, but a German.

He is Herr Von Hoesch, new German ambassador to the court of St. James, and he has no fewer than 100 suits. Evening clothes, dinner jackets, formal levee wear, riding clothes, sports and shooting clothes, tounge suits, morning suits, and uniforms without number.

It took the ambassador's faithful valet, Hubert, two days to unpack. Two rooms were specially fitted for the clothes. Even so, the shoes (a pair for each suit) overflowed under the bed where his excellency sleeps.

All other sartorial details are to keeping. Overcoats, it is said, number dozens. There are, quite naturally, so many hats and shirts that Hubert, who has been with Von Hoesch for twelve years, can scarcely keep track of them.

Fireman Hero Is Asked for Saved Man's Glasses

Boston—When he started in a West end tenement house, Fireman John O'Grady rescued a man from a flaming bed and carried him through smoky corridors to safety.

So badly was he affected by smoke that the fireman spent eleven days in a hospital. After he returned to duty a stranger visited him and asked:

"Are you the fireman who saved so-and-so in that fire on Leverett street?"

"Yes," the fireman replied.

"Well," said the stranger, "where the h—l are his glasses?"

Rats Boss Valley, Care Not to Roam

Washington—Why a rat large enough to control acres of land should confine itself to a particular territory is a question which puzzles Dr. Joseph Grinnell, of the University of California.

Dr. Grinnell's report was on a study of the giant kangaroo rats, a comparatively unknown species making its home in the San Joaquin valley, in California. According to the report, the rats "own" whole square miles, to the practical exclusion of other seed-eating mammals.

Each rat has its own particular plot of ground, usually covered with rich vegetation. These plots are separated from each other by comparatively barren strips. Boundary lines apparently are respected by the entire group.

Nearly All Accounted For.

Captain Ayers estimates that fully 98 per cent of the girls reported missing here year in and year out are either restored to their relatives or otherwise accounted for. Vast numbers of them return thoroughly dissatisfied of their own accord. Many who had run away in a fit of pique are found in the homes of friends or acquaintances after a night or two of absence.

The reasons why young girls leave home are many and varied—almost as many as the subjects of the individual cases, according to Captain Ayers. Some of the stock motives were summed by the expert as discontentment with home surroundings, failures at school lessons, desire to "live one's own life," eagerness to earn money, clothes and luxuries, desire to go on the stage and—mora.

As for the stage struck girl, she is becoming virtually non-existent so far as the "missing" lists disclose. Captain Ayers believes that the records would show that out-of-town girls who come here to make a name on the stage are not one-fifth what they were a few years ago. Whether the stage has lost its lure or the fact that so many of its people are looking for work like folk in more prosaic callings, the bureau chief cannot guess. He only knows that the would-be stage beauties who elude the professional attention of his investigators are becoming fewer and fewer every year. Not one single case of a stage struck girl was entered on the bureau's records last year.

Science Brings Aid to the Deaf

Taught to Speak Words They Can't Hear.

Philadelphia—Fated by inheritance or accident to live in a world of silence, 120 deaf children of Philadelphia are being taught by methods of scientific education to speak words they never can hear.

Facilities for the special training, designed to make a minor handicap of a terrible affliction, have been provided by the board of education in an effort to save from a life of isolation those whom deafness otherwise would make objects of charity or pity.

Some of the boys and girls at the school were born deaf, while others lost their hearing through illness or accident. Unable to hear the spoken word, they are being taught to communicate by an intensive training in vibration.

"Though systems of lip reading have been in use for years, officials pointed out, they do not help a deaf person to acquire recent values.

"During the last few years a remarkable device has come into use," Mrs. Serena F. Davis, principal of the school, said.

"It is a microphone which rests on the teacher's desk and is connected to a pair of earphones for every child. When the instructor sings, talks or plays a musical instrument, the children feel the vibration and recognize the sounds after repeated repetitions. In the case of speech, they learn to recognize words without resorting to lip reading."

In addition, she explained, the children are taught light and heavy accents of words by placing their fingertips against a bass drum while the teacher speaks words against the drumhead, just as one would speak into a "mike."

Burglar Alarm

By ALICE DUANE

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service

THE bareheaded young man who stopped before the Barkley Jones house did not look undernourished or weak. He was tall and thin.

He glanced at the front door, then at a slip of paper in his hand. Then he rather stealthily made his way from the front of the house to the back door.

He asked the maid who answered his rapping if there was something to be done about the place. "Just anything," he said rather pathetically. "Just anything you can give me to do."

Annie, the maid, gave one look into his gray eyes and decided that, if she had to pay him out of her own pocket, he would have work for the afternoon.

"Sure," she said. "Just sit down on the steps and I'll ask." She was a pretty girl, and the man smiled at her thankfully. Her eyes filled with tears as she turned away from him. She hurried off to her mistress.

This lady, overplump, over-endowed with this world's goods, sat idly before the living room fire. "I must say, Elsie," she said irritably to a young girl who was playing solitaire, "that you're about as unpleasant a guest as I can imagine. Why can't you suggest something to do?"

"Oh," said the girl contritely, "I'm awfully sorry, Aunt Bess, but I come to visit you just to get away from seeing people, especially men. I just love to sit here safely—"

"It's safe enough," snorted Aunt Bess—otherwise Mrs. Barkley Jones. "But I'm bored." Then catching sight of Annie at the door, "Well, now what?" she added crossly.

Annie told her story. "A poor young fellow," she said. "As nice looking as you please. And he doesn't look as if he'd eaten for a week. Just anything he'll do, he says."

"Oh, well!" Mrs. Jones considered. "Why, of course. You couldn't turn him away. Tell him he can clean the cellar. And make him some coffee and sandwiches, if you want. You might bring us a trayful, too, Annie?"

"I wish," Elsie thought, "that I hadn't been such a fool. But it was his fault, too. He was too brutal to leave me without a chance of explanation. I wish I'd sent him that letter. It would be better to have him know I haven't a speck of pride than not to have him at all."

In the cellar the young man—"My name's Pete," he told Annie—was looking in troubled perplexity at the neat tray the maid had just brought him. A small pot of coffee, cream and sugar, a pile of bread and butter, sliced chicken and ham and Swiss cheese.

"More fool," he thought. "What'll I do with it? I can't hurt the girl's feelings. Oh, well," he thought, "I might as well try it."

Then, fortified by his lunch, he began to clean up the cellar. It wasn't until he was almost through that Annie was frightened. Then she realized what he probably was—a burglar.

Annie couldn't stand keeping her suspicions to herself. "Here," she said, "you empty these trash baskets into the barrel there." And she went upstairs, carefully locking the door at the top of the kitchen side, so that the man couldn't follow her.

She burst in upon Mrs. Jones and Elsie.

"Oh, Mrs. Jones," she cried. "It's my fault, I suppose—but that young fellow down there—he's been asking me questions, and I'm afraid I've told him a lot about the house and the family! Such a nice young man he seemed, too, at first. But he's a burglar!" And Annie began to cry.

Aunt Bess subsided into a state of semi-hysteria. It was the last straw, she thought, as she watched Elsie trying to quiet the weeping Annie.

"But he can't be a burglar, Aunt Bess," said Elsie reasonably. "He was too obvious, pumping Annie like that. I'll go and see." And she started cellarward, the shaken and still fearful Annie close behind her.

In the cellar, when Elsie found her, bending over the trash barrel with a ripe and ecstatic expression, was the young man.

"Why, Peter Wales!" cried Elsie. "How on earth did you get here?"

"Motored over this morning. Found out at your house where you'd gone. I knew you wouldn't see me, so I tried this way of getting to with some old clothes." He smiled at the bewildered Annie. Then he walked over to Elsie and took her firmly in his arms. "Now listen to me, Elsie," he said. "We'll have no more fooling. You'll marry me—now. As soon as we can get a license. You and I both made a mistake with our silly quarrel."

"Oh, Peter," said Elsie—"I can't! How did you know?"

"Here!" Peter held her with one arm. He spread the other hand in front of her. She took from it a crumpled, torn scrap of paper. "I saw this in the rubbish—it must have come from your trash basket, a piece of a letter you'd written to me, and then torn up when you decided not to send it."

With shining eyes and flushed cheeks Elsie read, in her own handwriting: "—a silly mistake. Oh, Peter, I can't live without you."

Annie gazed in unaltered fascination as Peter pressed his lips to Elsie's. Aunt Bess waited in chill and shuddering fear, for news of the burglar.

Placidity Only Desire of East Indian Mystic

Old India, says a traveler, has never known anything except the height of insolent magnificence and the depths of poverty. India lives today much as it lived a thousand years ago, or two thousand, despite its mountain peaks of wealth and the mugging of the British Raj. Here is the source of that towering which forms the basis of oriental philosophy, that it is not worth while for a man to gain the whole world if he loses his own soul.

The Hindus phrase it differently but that is the idea. It accounts, perhaps, for the placid, slightly plying look which the Indian mystic gives the smart European who comes to look down upon his civilization. You get that look from men who have nothing in the world to call their own, not even a rag to cover them, who sit in the dirt and smear their bodies with ashes and take what food the people give them. They regard the visiting westerner with detachment, despite the money that jingles in his pocket. A sheltered cave or corner of quiet is all they ask of this world.

MICHIGAN'S SHARE
It's good news for Michigan that Christopher M. Granger, a native of this state and a graduate of Michigan State college, has been named to direct the government's $500,000,000 forest conservation employment program. It is reassuring that this state will not be overlooked and that the advantages of work in Michigan will be fully recognized.

As John W. Blodgett pointed out recently, Michigan not only has some of the best forest lands in the country, well adapted to the type of work to be carried out, but it also happens to be one of the hardest hit in unemployment distress. An army of unemployed forestry workers can be recruited here virtually at the scene of projects which should be included in the national program.

It is not expected that Mr. Granger will show partiality to his native state at the expense of other sections of the country. But his knowledge of the natural advantages for forest work here should stand Michigan in good stead, giving assurance that Michigan on its merits will get its full share of benefits.—Grand Rapids Press.

START ENLISTMENT OF MEN FOR WOODS CAMP

Harry A. Craig Named to Handle Registrations—Quota 24

Work of enlisting men for the new national forest camps has been started in Charlevoix county.

Through appointment last week by W. S. Carpenter, director of the State Welfare department, Harry A. Craig, chairman of the county unemployment committee, was named to handle registrations for the county. Application blanks may also be obtained from County Clerk Fenton K. Bulow and district chairmen of the county unemployment committee. Charlevoix county's quota is 24 men, according to information received by Mr. Craig. To be accepted for enlistment, a man must be between 18 and 25, single, and a member of a family receiving welfare aid. Enlistments are for a period of six months and the applicant must agree that between $20 and $25 of his wage of $30 monthly be returned to his dependents.

The 24 places will be allotted to the various townships and cities of the county according to population.

MOST CHICKS SHOWN AT COLLEGE EXHIBIT

East Lansing Draws Bigger Entry List Than Any Similar Display

Dates for the sixth annual Michigan baby chick show have been set for May 23 to 26 at Michigan State college and those in charge of the show predict an increase in entries, which in previous years have made this show the largest held in America.

Michigan is one of the leading states in the hatchery business and more baby chicks are shipped from Zeeland each year than from any other single point in the country. The hatchery men use the college chick show to exhibit quality stock that has enabled Michigan to build up this important business.

Entries are not confined to Michigan owners. Last year's show brought birds from 17 states and one Canadian province. More than 13,000 chicks were displayed last year. Ducks, geese, turkeys and pheasants are also shown.

STATE FERRIES PRE- PARING FOR SEASON

Lower Rates This Season Expected to Increase Auto Traffic

The state ferries at Mackinaw City and St. Ignace are working each day getting ready for the summer season. On May 16, the two-boat schedule will go into effect and handle traffic until June 30, when all three ferries will be in operation.

The lower rates this year on the state ferries are expected to increase the amount of traffic by a large margin over that of last year. Already this season the number of cars travelling on the boats is greater than for a corresponding period during the past season. The money return from this business is not as much as it was last year at this time, due to lower rates, but it is believed the increase in business will bring the total returns for the season very near the former mark.

15 MILL TAX IS AL- LOCATED BY SENATE

Charter Cities Would Be Given One-Tenth of a Mill

The administration bill dividing among the local taxing units the property tax which voters last fall limited to 15 mills is back in the house in vastly different form than approved by the representatives several weeks ago.

The bill, shoved ahead of the beer proposal, was unanimously passed by the Senate Thursday. It provides that the state shall not share in the division unless legislature specifically decrees before May 1 that a share be given it.

Minimum rates of three mills will be awarded counties; rural school districts will receive four mills; city school districts, seven mills; charted cities and villages 1-10 of a mill; with the remaining millage to be divided between townships and other units according to their needs.

The sum represents ten per cent of the total of $2,000,000 which is due the districts. Fry said that similar amounts will be paid as rapidly as possible, depending upon the amount of revenue received by the state which can be used for the purpose.

"Cleanup night" at the Legion home, Tuesday, proved a complete flop on account of the weather and has been postponed until next week at the same time. But then—shucks! —Jake Ypma's mule wouldn't come, so what would have been the use, anyway? Yes, Jake says he tried building a fire under him but that he didn't really begin to get discouraged until the stick of dynamite exploded and the gentleman from Missouri just switched his tail once or twice and quietly went on eating hay.

The post members are trying to scrape up a team among themselves to give the Indians a little practice during their Tuesday night workouts on the south side ball park. That's the combined effect of spring and the new baseball uniforms which the post has recently acquired. This news will probably make the Indians smile shyly.

The Memorial day committee officially "took hold" at Tuesday night's meeting. It is composed of Comrades Hamlin (chairman), Poole, Wilkinson, McGhan and Carter. Their plans will be made public at a later date.

The community garden project sponsored by the city authorities is getting under way in good shape and many have already made application for their plots. It is rumored that there are going to be several four-footed prizes for those who produce the best results from their gardens.

Plenty of garden truck and a good fat hog ought to go a long way to soften a hard winter. The local post is especially interested in this project because it has so many unemployed among its members. Leave

FATHER AND SON BANQUET GREAT SUCCESS

Dr. Musser's Address Was of Talent and Much Interest

The committee and everyone involved are unanimous in pronouncing the Father and Son banquet, given Tuesday evening by the Men's Community club, as about the best ever given in this annual series.

The address by Dr. Howard Musser was the most entertaining, vigorous and inspiring of all that has been presented at these occasions. The speaker was seven years in the jungle of India, and has been a world traveler and lecturer ever since. His droll humor and clever wit lent much entertainment and enjoyment to the address. Even the youngest of the boys were held spell bound with interest and attention throughout the whole speech.

Dr. Musser was introduced to the assembly of the high school by Principal O. P. North at 11:30 Tuesday morning, and greatly delighted the young people with his jungle stories.

The attendance at the banquet was very good, about one hundred and fifteen places being taken. The formalities of toasts were dispensed with to give all the time to the speaker. The Kendall Radio Trio sang several numbers and were enthusiastically called back.

Our Government—How It Operates

By William Bruckart

WHY THE SENATE?

THE senate, through the years, has been termed the greatest deliberative body in the world. This is because its own rules allow unlimited debate. Once a senator is recognized by the presiding officer, he can go on and on with his speech; he can talk about anything he desires to discuss, except to cast aspersions on fellow senators or members of the house, and his statements may not be challenged in a court of law.

Senators are jealous of their prerogatives. They are constantly on watch against any move that threatens to limit debate. Though they appear to waste hours or days, and even weeks, by ceaseless discussion and repetition, every effort has failed to change the basic formula of unlimited debate. And it is well that no change ever has been accomplished, for in that very fact there is a measure of safety for the country that is often forgotten.

Whereas the house of representatives, partly because of its great numbers but more particularly because of the shorter term of members, is quite susceptible to public reaction on whatever public question absorbs attention at the moment, the contrary is generally the case in the senate. I do not mean that the senate goes against the will of the people, or that it stands out against apparent needs of the nation. It is responsive always in the end, but it moves more slowly because traditionally it has given more thorough consideration to every question in an open exchange of views than is ever possible in the house with its larger membership.

Thus, it can be seen readily that the senate acts as a check against too hasty action. Legislation cannot possibly be rushed through the senate without extensive debate unless everybody is in accord as to the need therefor. And if there is such an unanimity of sentiment, the conclusion assuredly is one of which none need have fear.

But consider how the unlimited debate arrangement operates, or may operate, for your good and mine. Take the matter of a declaration of war. The house would receive a message from the President, would refer the matter to a committee, and would have the necessary resolution back before it and act on it possibly within two or three days. Not so in the senate. Its committee might quickly report its findings and recommend passage of the resolution declaring a state of war in existence. Senators, however, who doubted the advisability of the course would not allow precipitate action. Such was the case in the declaration of war against Germany in 1917. There were the "willful twelve," you will recall. They thought a declaration of war was improper, and they blocked action. In that instance, however, the sentiment of the country was overwhelming and vote was reached more quickly than ordinarily happens.

In the case of the treaty of Versailles and the covenant of the League of Nations, the situation was different. President Wilson recommended ratification of the treaty and adherence to the League. Nevertheless, some of the senators thought the sentiment of the country had not crystallized. Debate proceeded, unlimited debate, continued for weeks. Newspapers of the country took sides. The country was fully informed, and eventually the proposal to join the League of Nations was so qualified that it was a nullity.

So the senate moves slowly. It wastes a lot of time; of that there can be no doubt. Moreover, at times it appears almost stubborn, because of its apparent do-nothing attitude. Yet therein is strength for the nation and its citizens for the possibility of ill-considered action is eliminated.

Another reason may be mentioned, explanatory of the slow-moving procedure in the senate. Senators are elected by the entire voting population of their state, and for a term of six years. They are not quite as close to the rank and file of the citizens as are the representatives. It was contemplated by the Constitution's framers that they should have more of a national viewpoint. They are United States senators, despite the fact that frequently one of them becomes nothing more than a state senator in his efforts to do things his state or a section of his state desires.

One-third of the senate always has six years to plan for re-election; one-third of the membership need not worry about campaigning for four years, and the remainder faces election two years hence. From this it is to be seen that the election is far enough away for a majority of the senators that they can put aside much of the necessary political fence-building. Not that any of them ever overlook politics. That would be as impossible as a fight to the moon, unless the individual decided to retire voluntarily, but the game of politics in the senate is obviously on the basis of longer range, and statesmanship often dominates.

CONSERVATION IS IN GREAT DANGER

BILL TO ABOLISH COMMISSION IS INTRODUCED

Seen by Sportsmen's Organization as Menace to Future of Conservation in State

On Thursday, April 20, Senator George Cutler, introduced bill 161 in the Michigan senate which would repeal the staggered conservation commission law. This bill would wipe out the present conservation commission, consisting of seven men, of which two are appointed each year by the governor, (which keeps conservation out of politics). This bill would require the governor to appoint a director of conservation, subject to the approval of the senate, and the salary to be fixed by the state legislature. (He is now appointed by the commission without political considerations.)

If this bill passes and becomes a law, it will turn our conservation department upside down. It will make our conservation department a political football. It will mean that we will dispense with the economy of the conservation commission, six members of which have had years of experience in the administration of our conservation affairs, and who have given years to the state without salary. Last year, all the members of the commission cost the state only $2,500 for traveling expenses paid for by hunting and fishing licenses. It will mean that the conservation department, with its field force, will become a part of a political machine, at the expense of Michigan's welfare. It will mean that conservation in Michigan will step backward ten years; when game wardens were pawns of politicians.

Do you want this to happen? The conservation commission of Michigan has carried on during the past stringent year in a manner that has amazed the whole nation. It has functioned efficiently with a greater cut in budgets than any other state department. It has trimmed its sails to the needs of the times. It has functioned in the interests of Michigan's sportsmen.

The Cutler bill will abolish all this and substitute a political grab-bag arrangement.

The bill was introduced by Senator Cutler of Luther, who is a brother of Judge Hal Cutler, a member of the Ne-Bo-Shone association, which is now appealing to the district court of the United States to keep every fisherman out of its stretch of the Pine river. Does this mean anything to you, Mr. Sportsman?

This bill is now in the conservation committee of the senate of which this same Senator Cutler is chairman. When it is reported out, every senator and every representative will be on the spot. The vote for the bill will mean that he is in favor of turning back the wheels in order to make political jobs. If he votes against the bill it means that he is dorses the present set up and is in favor of keeping the department out of politics.

You cannot allow this bill to pass either the house or the senate.

You must write, wire or telephone your senator and representative immediately upon receipt of this notice—today; now!

First of all, notify the members of the senate conservation committee with your protest. The members of this committee are:

George Cutler of Luther, Democrat.
Ben Carpenter of Harrison, Republican.

Charles B. Asselin of Bay City, Democrat.
Ray Derham, Iron Mountain, Republican.

Felix Flynn of Cadillac, Republican.

William Palmer of Flint, Dem.
Claude Root of Greenville, Dem.
Gordon Van Eenennaam, Muskegon, Republican.

Anthony Wilkowski, Detroit, Dem.
Then wire your own senator or representative. You can't afford to let this bill pass. You can't afford to let Michigan's conservation program get raped by hungry, job-hunting politicians!

Editor-in-chief, Mich. Sportsman.

DRAMA CLUB PRESENT- ING "SMILIN' THROUGH"

Climax Year's Activities Wednesday Evening, May 10th

"Smilin' Through," said by many to be America's best loved play, will be presented Wednesday evening, May 10th, at 8 o'clock by the high school drama club. This offering comes as the climax of the year's dramatic program and is the most ambitious attempt which the club has yet made.

Dorothy Staley and John Winder, who studied last summer at Northwestern University school of speech are cast in the leading roles. Miss Staley has the double role of Kathleen Donagannon and Mooneyeen Clare, and Mr. Winder plays the part of John Carteret. Lloyd Arnold enacts Owen Harding, John Carteret's oldest and dearest friend. Paul McCartney doubles in the parts of Kenneth Wayne and Jeremiah Wayne, and Winfield Kirby will be seen as Willie Aibel. Lila Tiltonson portrays the role of Ellen, Mr. Carteret's housekeeper and a second mother to Kathleen. Others in the cast are Marjorie Carey, Lucille Bazzart, Virginia Nickerson, Junior Supersaw, Dorothy Partridge, Marjorie Boen, Jane Stelter and Crawford Norton.

Owing to the fact the Drama club has no special need to make a profit, the prices have been reduced to a minimum.

ACHIEVEMENT DAY A GREAT SUCCESS

FIVE HUNDRED ATTENDED PRO-GRAM AT EAST JORDAN

Displays of Handicraft Work Were Praiseworthy—Certificates of Achievement Awarded

(By B. C. Mellenkamp.)
The second annual 4-H club achievement day held at East Jordan high school more than exceeded expectations. It was certainly a great inspiration to note the enthusiasm and interest of the club members in their projects.

When one stops to consider that a great many did not have suitable equipment or material to work with, we can appreciate the effort that must have been put forth in making the splendid articles that were exhibited.

Probably the most appreciated features of the program were the free moving pictures held at the East Jordan theatre and the style review in which approximately 50 girls participated. From 10 until noon the audience was entertained at the theatre, where seven different reels were shown. Many for the first time had the opportunity of hearing a talkie. Four of the reels were on 4-H club work, the others were, news reel, vaudeville skit and a comedy.

The style review in charge of Mrs. Charles Withers, Charlevoix, was put on in perfect order. The members of each club appeared on the stage wearing the dresses they had made. It is rather inspiring to think that included in this review were 15 little ten-year-olds who were capable enough to make their own dresses.

The afternoon program with John Vester of Clarion as chairman, started promptly at 1:15 with two numbers by the East Jordan high school band. It is of particular interest that Gwendolyn Hott, one of our outstanding club members of last year, led the band. E. E. Wade, superintendent of schools at East Jordan, welcomed the 4-H club delegation and expressed his high regard for the splendid work being accomplished. The entire audience then joined in the song number, community singing, under the direction of Miss Roberts of the high school faculty. The little act, put on by each school or community represented, came next.

A. G. Kettunen, state club leader, presented the certificates of achievement to all handicraft members and announced the names of the delegates who had won county honors. The following delegates will compete for state-wide honors:

First year—Russell Knapp, Advance school; Millard Hooker, Clarion school; Gerald Fincoot, Wallon Lake school.

Second year project—Cornelius Smith, Bay Shore school; James Baker, Murray school; Clara McGhan, Marion Center school; Lyle Anthony, Tainter school.

Third year project—Douglas Ross, Bay Shore school; Junior Masters, Wallon Lake school; Walter Wyant, Clarion school.

Fourth year project—Lewis Laurie, Wallon Lake school.

Others appearing in the Charlevoix county honor roll are Floyd Lowe, Tainter school, and Vernon D. L. Bay Shore, 1st year project; Dick Zee, Bay Shore, and William Hinds, Clarion, 2nd year project; Loy Ralech, Marion Center, and Steve Feulak, Hilson, in the 3rd year project.

Miss Sylvia Wikson, assistant state club leader, announced the names of the winners in the clothing club project. In the style review the two winners selected to represent our county in state competition were Miss Margaret Behling, 5th year club member from the Knop school district, and Miss Jane Davis of the East Jordan group. The following members were named on the county honor roll:

First year project—Elizabeth Johnson, Wallon Lake school; Winifred Ziska, Evelyn Dechar, school; Elsie Hilber, Hilton school; Edna Kotar, Hutton Bay; Christine DeMaio, Hutton Bay; Stella Stallard, East Jordan group; Lorene Brintnall, East Jordan group; Jeannette Uman, Tainter school; Annley Thayer, Tainter school.

Third year project—Arthella Vahr, Bay Shore school.

Fourth year project—Louise Tainter, Tainter school.

Fifth year project—Margaret Behling, Knop school district.

The hat lunch clubs in the county exhibited posters to demonstrate the work done in this project. Considerable time had been devoted to making the posters attractive and instructive. For the second year in succession the Undine school, under

POMONA GRANGE HAD ITS FIRST MEETING

Session Saturday Night at Barnard Was Interesting One

The first Pomona grange meeting of the year was held at Barnard grange hall, Saturday evening, April 29. A delicious pot-luck supper was served from 6:30 to 8:30.

An outstanding number on the program was an enlightening talk by State Representative Douglas Tibbitts. Mr. Tibbitts answered many questions asked by grangers about procedure of the house, sales tax and the distribution of the 15 mill tax.

Several songs, recitations, talks, and a short play completed an enjoyable program.

The Pomona grange voted to pay one cent for each county song book, ordered if the subordinate granges and will pay two cents for each member. This will distribute the cost of the song books more fairly and provide each member with a copy.

The next Pomona meeting will be held at South Arm grange hall, June 24. Pot-luck supper at 6:30, lecturers' program following. These programs are open to the public.

FEEDERS DAY HELPS LIVESTOCK OWNERS

College Sets May 13 As Date for Reporting Results Feeding Trials

Michigan livestock men will again be the guests of Michigan State college at feeders' day, Saturday, May 13, when the results of the past year's livestock feeding experiments will be explained by members of the college's animal husbandry department.

The tests to be reported will cover work with colts, beef cattle, swine and lambs. All the experiments were selected in view of the problems which face Michigan livestock owners under present conditions.

the leadership of Mrs. Babie Stueck, won first place.

In tabulating the results of our winter club program, we find that 27 clubs finished with a membership of 253 boys and girls out of 262 that started, which makes 96.5 per cent. The highest thus far in the county. In the hot lunch project there were 50 active members and 16 associate members, all of whom finished. In the handicraft club 76 out of 79 boys completed their requirements and in the clothing project, 81 out of 87 finished.

The 4-H club members wish to thank one and all for all courtesies extended which contributed to the success of their achievement day.

TAX COMMISSION HAS TOUGH TASK

ALLOCATION JOB DEPENDING ON STATE SCHOOL AID

County and City Present Increased Budgets—School Board Expenses Hit Low Figure

Not until it is known or estimated what share of the proposed state sales tax goes to the schools will the county tax commissions of the state be able to properly allocate the 15 mill tax, the Charlevoix county tax commission has decided.

The commission, which went into session Wednesday morning to take up the preliminary work of division, is of the opinion that the allocation will depend entirely on what assistance the schools get from the state through the proposed sales tax or some substitute tax.

In order to simplify the work of the commission a supply of form budget blanks has been sent to the various townships and school districts of the county. This will enable them to submit their budgets in a uniform style and will greatly assist members of the commission in assembling the county information.

The county, the cities and a large portion of the townships and school districts have already submitted their budgets to the commission. The county budget, this year based on actual expenditures of 1932 rather than anticipated expenses as has been the case in previous years, is considerable in excess of that of last year. The budget would call for a 10 mill tax to balance, which the county cannot possibly receive and leave anything for the other tax units.

The Charlevoix city budget for all departments and interest and sinking fund, calls for $37,908.00 for 1933, as compared to $32,363.00 for 1932. The statement showed city general bonds falling due between March 1, 1933 and February 1, 1934 to be $13,481.47, and special assessment bonds during the same period of $5,777.35.

The budget of Charlevoix school district No. 1, city and township, presented the commission, totals approximately $42,488.00 for 1933, as compared to a budget of $73,285.00 the previous year. The greatest reduction is in teachers' salaries, set at $15,540.00 for 1933, as compared to $37,750.00 a year ago. Estimated revenues are $35,475.00, including debt service, which may be raised in addition to revenues under the 15 mill tax. It appears the board of education has practically "hit bottom" in its scaling down of school expenses. A detailed report of finances and teaching staff for the coming year will be published as soon as the board is able to present a definite program.

It is hoped that information will be received soon from Lansing in regard to what help school districts will receive in order that the tax commission may go ahead with its work.

JOHN MARSHALL DEAD AFTER YEAR OF ILLNESS

Was Resident of This City Over Fifty Years—Funeral Friday

Charlevoix lost another from its ranks of pioneer residents by the death at 2:30 Wednesday morning of John Marshall, who succumbed at his home on State street following an illness of a year.

Deceased was born June 10, 1851, at West Williams, Ont. He was married there in 1876 to Frances Durand and the couple came to Michigan soon afterwards. They resided for a time at Torch Lake before moving to Charlevoix over 50 years ago. Mr. Marshall worked as clerk for the old Charlevoix Lumber Co. for many years and was a city employee a long time.

Surviving in addition to the widow are three sons, Henry and Charles of this city, and Elmer Marshall of Flint. Funeral services will be conducted at the Baptist church at 2:30 Friday afternoon. Burial at Brookside.

EAST JORDAN YOUTHS GUILTY OF ASSAULT

William and Wade Healey, East Jordan youths arrested last week for attacking Claude Pearsall when the latter found them netting brook trout from his private pond, were found guilty of assault at a justice court jury trial at East Jordan, Wednesday afternoon. The trial was held before Justice Blount. Sentence has not been pronounced.

PRE-SCHOOL CHILDREN GIVEN ENTERTAINMENT

Guests of High School Home Management Class, Saturday

The home management class of the high school sponsored a party for little folks of pre-school age Saturday afternoon in the kindergarten room. The occasion was a class problem in directing the play of children along with their work in child care.

The kindergarten room furnished an interesting setting where they found endless enjoyment in the sand box, play house, and constructive toys available. The table for the refreshment was decorated in pink and white and young beauties used in the center. The little folks were served fruit, gelatin desert, graham cracker sandwiches and chocolate milk. Colored balloons of various colors were given as favors.

The children present were: Billie Carey, Bobbie Carey, Billie Peterson, Mary Ann Glados, Jane Coulter, Phyllis Trimble, Tom Wade, Nancy Rae Kipke, Lois Shapton, Percy Ann Hamlin and Betty Ann Dowd.

REARING OF GAME FISH HAS STARTED

40,000 BROOK TROUT WERE RELEASED SATURDAY

Part of 100,000 Lake Trout Placed in Ponds Tuesday—Work on System Nears Completion

Plans of the Charlevoix Sportsman's Club to raise a quarter million game fish to advanced stage in their Stever creek rearing ponds got under way last Saturday when 40,000 fingerling brook trout were transferred to the ponds.

Two consignments of fingerlings, one of 25,000 to the Club and another of 15,000 to the local railroad agent, were received from Northville. They were transferred immediately to the ponds, work upon which was just recently completed. This number will in all likelihood be all of the brook trout to be taken care of.

The second step in the plan was taken Tuesday afternoon when a part of a 100,000 hatch of lake trout fingerlings were transferred from the local government hatchery to the ponds. The lake trout were released in a series of lower dams, only this year added to the system and completed the early part of this week. The remainder of the fish will be released in a few days as soon as the unfinished labor on the ponds is completed.

By June 15th it is expected to have the ponds filled with all available game fish. A consignment of 100,000 Oregon steelhead trout is now being hatched at the federal hatchery. They will be placed in the original series of upper ponds in which 50,000 steelhead were raised last year, as soon as they are ready for planting.

The work of building the several dams in the rearing pond system has been progressing satisfactorily for several weeks. All of the labor has been donated for the construction and cost of material is expected to be taken care of by the city council the same as a year ago. Gates in the 65-foot concrete dam constructed to control flood water were installed Tuesday afternoon. This addition to the system is expected to aid materially in eliminating damage occasioned by flood water during rainy periods.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY WOODS ARMY DRAWN

Selection of Men Made at Welfare Meeting Here Saturday

Charlevoix county's quota of 24 men for the civilian reforestation camps have been filled and the men are now awaiting word instructing them to report.

The selections were made Saturday at a meeting of welfare chairman from the various districts of the county at the court house here. In addition to the regular quota, alternates were signed up in case some of the original group accepted fail to pass physical examination or for some other reason should withdraw.

In dividing the quota of 24, seven men were chosen from each of the larger cities, Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City, and three from Boyne Falls. In the same manner, three alternates were chosen from the larger cities and one from Boyne Falls.

RAILROADS PAYING BIG SCHOOL TAXES

PROVIDE NEARLY HALF OF MONEY FOR COUNTY

Railroads Largest Contributor to Primary School Fund—Ask Regulatory Legislation

Of the 4,362 school children in Charlevoix county the education of 1,963, or 45 per cent, is almost entirely made possible through railroad taxes, according to a study just completed by Floyd E. Drake, Grand Rapids, executive secretary of the recently organized Michigan Railroad Employees and Citizens League.

Charlevoix county in 1932 received $66,040 as its share of the state primary school fund, Mr. Drake explains, or at the rate of $15.14 per school child. Of the $20,776,924.31 in the fund that year the railroads, through taxes paid, $9,349,847, or a sum equal to 45 per cent of the total. On this basis railroad taxes made up $29,718 of the sum received by Charlevoix county.

"The primary school fund is one of the most sacred funds in Michigan's government," Mr. Drake said. "It makes possible the education, as of 1932, of 1,372,310 of Michigan's children. Without this fund their schooling would be impaired or minimized, in many instances, would be impossible. The biggest contributors to the fund are the railroads, whose taxes by law go directly into it. Thus railroad taxes are making possible the education of 617,540 of the state's children. This is just one of the reasons why our league has been organized."

The Michigan Railroad Employees and Citizens' League, according to Secretary Drake, is made up, as its name implies, of employees and citizens interested in a "new deal" for the lines. Organized this year and intended to be permanent, it already has a membership of 150,000 and aspires to an additional 100,000 by midsummer. A unit in every city, village and township served by a railroad is planned. Twenty-eight county branches are scattered through the lower peninsula and establishment of 15 others above the Straits has started. Sixty per cent of the present membership consists of non-railroad employees, officials for a fair chance for the lines to meet truck and other competition, through same legislation and comparable rates and taxes.

"The railroads have so long been the target of regulatory legislation that they now are in difficulties," Secretary Drake said. "But they are too vital a part of our economic life and our dependence on them is too great for us to stand by and see them further victimized by unfair competition. In the matter of taxes alone they are relieving us in this state of nearly half the cost of public education. Who will help us support our schools when the roads are bankrupt? We cannot carry additional tax burdens."

"As proved by our League the public's attitude toward the railroads has changed. Unless a like change by our legislators follows and the lines' problems are met they face disaster. In that event we all will suffer."

It is well to make a good beginning—and it is also well to remember that the end is what determines everything.

TOURIST CAMP TO OPEN NEXT MONDAY

Grounds Enlarged to Capacity This Year

First Night Fee of 50c Reduced to Flat Rate of 25c Per Night by City Council

Charlevoix's tourist camp, located on Lake Michigan at the west city limits, will open Monday, May 15th, for the 1933 summer season, according to an announcement by Hugh Brady, caretaker.

Work of getting the camp ready for the season has been in progress for the past several weeks. Continuing a program of enlargement, all available camping space has now been improved by clearing of the northeast corner of the grounds of brush and other obstructions. Space for quite a number of camping sites has been made available by this improvement.

The camp will open the season this year at a lower rate. At Monday night's meeting of the city council, it was decided to reduce the fee from 50c the first night and 25c subsequent nights, to a flat rate of 25c. This move was taken due to numerous complaints of past years in regard to what was termed an excessive first night rate. Campers would drive on to the first available state park rather than pay the fifty-cent charge. Under the reduced fee it is expected the number of campers will increase appreciably, as Charlevoix's camp enjoys great popularity with the tourist public and is preferred to many other nearby locations.

While not formally introduced, it is understood plans have been suggested to place the auto camp on a lease basis, with the caretaker operating it for the revenue and a small retainer, to save the city the expense of operation. If this plan is adopted, it is likely a group of over-night cabins will be built at the camp and other measures adopted to place it on a self-sustaining basis. The plan is a very feasible one and has every prospect of being worked out successfully.

Regardless of what change in operation is made, the fact remains that the camp is in excellent shape to uphold its reputation as one of the most popular tourist stop-overs in Northern Michigan.

Everyone interested is invited to attend. No admission charge.

CHARLEVOIX SET FOR BEER SALES

FOUR LICENSE APPLICATIONS APPROVED MONDAY

Sales Will Be Permitted After 6 p. m. Thursday—Supply of Brew Bothering Dealers

Beer may be sold in Charlevoix after 6 p. m. Thursday providing retailers are able to obtain a supply of brew to place on sale.

First steps to legalize sale of beer in this city were taken by the council Monday night when that body approved the applications for license of four local retailers. This step removed all legal barriers for the time being, at least, for an opinion has been made by Frank A. Picard, chairman of the state liquor control commission, Lansing, that approval by the local governing body will constitute authority for sale until the commission has had sufficient time to consider the applications and grant formal license.

Applications approved by the council Monday night included those of Monte Withers for a restaurant license; A. T. Jeffery for operation of a beer garden at Moonlight Gardens; James Bracken for license to sell for consumption on premises; and Oscar Nelson for license to retail for consumption off the premises. An application received in writing from the A. & P. store was taken until presented on a legal application blank provided for the purpose.

While the council was on the subject of beer licensing, a petition bearing the names of practically all local retail merchants as well as a representative number of citizens was presented. The petition requested the council refuse to approve granting of license to any grocery store in the city to handle beer. The petition was granted by vote of the council and placed on file.

It is anticipated several wholesalers will handle beer in Charlevoix, as well as retailers, and that all hotels will apply for license to sell during the resort season. Practically the only obstacle in the way now is procuring a supply. Out-state breweries are unable to meet requirements and Michigan breweries have not had sufficient time to have a supply on hand.

The college radio station broadcasts twice daily. The noon program is a weather and market reporting service combined with short timely talks on farm problems. The afternoon program is more general and includes a homemakers' section.

PLANTING OF LAKE TROUT COMPLETED

LAST CONSIGNMENT RELEASED SUNDAY, MAY 7TH

Fry Distributed As Near As Possible on Grounds From Which the Spawn Is Taken

The 1933 distribution and planting of lake trout from the Charlevoix federal hatchery was completed Sunday, May 7, when the bureau of fisheries boat "Fulmar" planted one and one half million trout fry on the Fishermen Island grounds and a spot several miles north of Grand Traverse Point.

This finished a series of plantings which started on April 17, when 1,426,000 were planted on the various fishing grounds where the Charlevoix, Beaver Island and Northport fishermen operate. On April 18 another plant of 1,426,000 was made on other grounds serving the fishermen in the north end of Lake Michigan, and on April 27, a similar number was planted on the grounds around Grand Traverse Point and Northport, Charlevoix and Leland.

On May 4th a load of 1,426,000 was planted north of the Beaver Island group on grounds which are fished by fishermen from the islands and from that vicinity along the north shore. On May 5 and 6 a load of 1,426,000 was taken from the hatchery and planted in the St. Ignace, Mackinaw City, Cedarville and Hessel areas as follows: 1,302,000 adjacent to St. Helena Island and Graham Shoals in the Straits; 240,000 on the Goose Island shoal, and the balance, 434,000, along the fishing grounds adjacent to the Les Cheneaux Islands. This planting serves the St. Ignace, Hessel, Cedarville and Detroit operators.

The fish were all well advanced and in very fine condition. It is the aim of the hatchery men to place the fry as nearly as possible on the ground where the spawn is taken in the fall, and to make the distribution as fair as possible to the fishermen taking the spawn. The fish are carried in troughs arranged with constantly running water, these conditions being identical with the arrangement in the hatchery, making it possible to carry the fish safely for the long periods when making plants in areas far removed from the hatcheries.

The spawn from the Cheboygan area is shipped to the federal hatchery in Alpena and distributed from that station.

IRON TON TREE PLANTING "BEE" ON TUESDAY

Gift by Geo. R. Hemingway Provided Roadside Development

The Ironton community had a tree planting "bee" Tuesday. A group of thirty men, including seven provided by the county road commission, took part, and the Ladies' Aid society of the Ironton Congregational church served dinner at noon.

The activity was the result of a gift of 253 trees by George R. Hemingway of Oak Park, Ill., Ironton summer resident and owner of the Charlevoix County Nursery near Ironton.

The gift provided sufficient trees for planting on both sides of road from Bird's corner to the Ironton ferry, two miles on the Peninsula road to Wilson corner, in the Ironton church and south for some distance on M-66. The trees were alternated—maple, birch and mountain ash. They will stand in future years a monument to their donor.

Several cities in Northern Michigan have been benefited this spring by Mr. Hemingway's generosity. Trees have been given to Petoskey, Traverse City and Cadillac for similar purposes.

Wednesday evening at 7:45, first Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

"Adam and Fallen Man" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, May 7.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (Rom. 8:2): "For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death."

Green Sprouting of Potatoes Especially Recommended

While the green sprouting of potatoes has always been a well established practice with the most successful potato growers, it is more necessary this spring than ever before. This will be an insurance against weak, poor stands. This practice will be of especial value in determining the infection of yellow dwarf, since the disease does often times cause a slow, weak sprout development.

Other things, of course, cause poor stands such as poor storage, chilling, unfavorable weather the previous season, etc. The green sprouting, however, will help the grower to discard all tubers that do not develop healthy vigorous sprouts and should help him to secure a more even stand of healthy plants.

The seed should be treated ten days or so before planting time and should be spread in a thin layer on the barn floor or some place where it will get plenty of light. It should not be exposed to chilling temperatures, nor to temperatures much in excess of 70 degrees F. At time of planting all weak sprouted tubers should be thrown out. Use only those that have made a vigorous sprout growth, especially at the seed end.

Yellow dwarf often shows in the tuber as small yellow spots. Potatoes showing any "potting" of the flesh should not be planted. The seed basis should be large (up to 2 ounces) and each piece should carry two or more sprouts.

Right now is the time for growers having questionable seed, to determine whether or not they want to risk planting it. They can green sprout a bushel or so. Good potatoes in five days time should show sprout development. Should they remain dormant the seed is likely to be poor and give weak stands.

Two Colt Breaking Demonstrations

Today there is much more interest in horses than for several years past. The value of the horse is high compared with other classes of livestock. Michigan is not producing enough horses to take care of replacements on the farm. Many farmers in Charlevoix county are deeply interested in raising their own colts. Last year 11,000 head were shipped into this state to act as replacements. There is no reason why more farmers can not raise their own colts.

The two colt breaking demonstrations, under the direction of H. F. Moxley, specialist in animal husbandry, should be of considerable interest to all farmers in the county, as tied up with these demonstrations will be suggestions in regard to feeding and care and management of work horses. Another interesting feature will be multiple hitch demonstrations, which enables one man to accomplish more work in the same length of time.

Watch next week's paper for the time and place of these two demonstrations.

* MICHIGAN DEPT. OF STATE WEEKLY NEWS *

A bill containing the recommendations of Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald that automobile weight tax fees be reduced to three, six and nine dollars, is being drawn up for presentation to the legislature in the near future.

Since the recommendation was made public ten days ago, state-wide approval of the idea has been shown by the large volume of letters reaching the department of state, expressing the writers' endorsements of the plan. That there already exists in the legislature a strong sentiment for reduction of weight tax fees is known as several other measures calling for reductions in license fees have been introduced.

The bill now being prepared sets the tax for light automobiles at $3; for medium-weight cars at $6; and for heavy cars at $9. It is estimated that the reduction in weight tax fees would lower weight tax revenues about 66 per cent under present levels, but no accurate estimate is possible. By lowering the fees, a large number of automobiles, now not being used, would be returned to the roads.

At the time of making the recommendation, Mr. Fitzgerald was just as emphatic in announcing his disapproval of any increase in the gasoline tax. Real tax reduction does not mean the shifting of the burden from the right to the left hand, he said.

Department of state records indicate that the present law regarding revocation of licenses to operate motor vehicles, is working undue hardships on Michigan citizens.

The law provides that the license must be revoked when the driver pleads guilty or is found guilty of violation of various traffic laws and several instances have come to the attention of the department where

At the present time there is pending in the legislature an amendment which would make restoration of the licenses discretionary with circuit judges.

A man who has been driving automobiles in Michigan for 25 years, secured his first Michigan motor vehicle operator's license last week. He is Ralph DePalma, noted racer. Although he has been driving in Michigan since 1908 when he took part in an automobile race in Grand Rapids, DePalma has confined his driving to Michigan race tracks.

DePalma's application stated that he had driven an automobile for at least 1,500,000 miles and he was given license No. 1,500,000 to commemorate that fact.

Study Sitting Bull's Own Story of His Life

Museum Claims Hieroglyphs Bear His Signature.

Washington, D. C.—Carlson documents relating to Sitting Bull, the celebrated chief who generally is held responsible for the so-called "Custer massacre," are being studied by the Bureau of American Ethnology of the Smithsonian Institution.

The story of this colorful Indian leader is now arousing exceptional interest in Europe. Numerous inquiries have lately been received from France, England, and Germany.

The bureau has one manuscript which bears strong internal evidence of being an original and authentic hieroglyphic autobiography prepared by Sitting Bull himself. Matthew W. Stirling, chief of the bureau, is now investigating the authenticity of this manuscript which, if it actually has been prepared by the chief, shows him to have been a skillful artist.

TYPICAL 1934 BEAUTY

This favored young lady, Jane Gior, is said to fit perfectly the requirements laid down by beauty experts who attended the international beauty convention at Hollywood, Calif. Her measurements are: Height, 5 feet 5 inches; weight, 114 pounds; neck, 12 inches; shoulders, 35 inches; waist, 25 inches; bust, 35 inches; hips, 36 inches; thigh, 20½ inches; and calf, 13½ inches.

pared by Sitting Bull himself. Matthew W. Stirling, chief of the bureau, is now investigating the authenticity of this manuscript which, if it actually has been prepared by the chief, shows him to have been a skillful artist.

Autobiography in Pictures.

It is well known that the great Sioux leader wished to leave an authentic story of his life. Shortly after the Civil war he prepared his first "autobiography" in pictures. He could not write his name at this time but authenticated each drawing with his hieroglyphic signature, a conventionalized picture of a sitting bull. He gave the original manuscript to his brother, Jumping Bull, who as the story reaches Mr. Stirling, allowed two copies to be made of it by an Indian named Four Horns.

The Bureau of American Ethnology has one of these painted records. The other is believed to have been destroyed in the San Francisco fire. No trace ever has been found of the original. The copy owned by the Smithsonian is mounted on sheets of an 1808 master roll of the Thirty-first Infantry regiment and evidently was made for one of its officers. It consists of 25 pictures, each illustrating some incident in Sitting Bull's life from his first fight to his leadership of the Band of Strong Hearts.

The Bureau also has Sitting Bull's own interpretation of these pictures, given to Rev. J. C. Williamson, a missionary, in which he couched that all but a few of them were copies of his originals. He believed at that time that Jumping Bull had interpolated a few incidents out of his own life.

Sitting Bull's "Coups."

The character of the man himself stands out in these pictures. Nearly all of them relate to personal combats with Crow or Gros Ventre Indians or white soldiers. Many of these fights ended with the scalp of his opponent hanging from Sitting Bull's saddle. But he was even prouder of his "coups" than of the scalps he had taken. His hobby was to touch the enemy with his "coup stick" and get away. In accord with the tradition of his people, his life of constant killing and scalping was a game for Sitting Bull and every "coup" added one to his score. He esteemed a "coup" about as much as a scalp.

It is as an object of comparison that the Bureau's manuscript stands out. It bears the date of 1882. Instead of the hieroglyphic signature the pictures bear the written signature of Sitting Bull—a peculiar, child-like scrawl. It has been verified that before 1882 Sitting Bull had learned to write his name and was rather proud of the accomplishment.

Specimens of the old chief's signature have been preserved. Compar-

Police Arrest Woman, 71, as Reckless Driver

Pueblo, Colo.—Police Judge C. V. Maranduke isn't so sure that it is all the "younger generation" when it comes to joy rides.

Officers arrested H. R. Newhouse, sixty-nine, and Mrs. Ellen Ogden, seventy-one, and charged the couple with drunkenness. In addition they charged Mrs. Ogden with reckless driving.

Officers said the automobile driven by the elderly woman narrowly avoided crashing into a police car, and did finally collide with a parked automobile.

Wife Investigates; Is Knocked Out by Burglar

Stockton, Calif.—When Charles H. Huston arrived home early in the morning, he found his wife unconscious on the floor with a swollen jaw. When she regained consciousness she related that, hearing a noise, she arose to investigate and encountered a burglar, who struck her. She had been "out" for about fifteen minutes, she estimated.

44 Legislatures Reduce Expenses

More Than $200,000,000 Was Lopped From Budgets.

Washington, D. C.—Legislatures in 44 states which met this year cut taxpayers $2,875,230 in salaries and effected savings estimated at more than $200,000,000, a survey revealed.

The salaries were paid to 6,687 legislators. Incidental expenses for legislative sessions bring the total above $11,000,000. In four states—Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi and Virginia—no legislative sessions were held.

Twenty-four states paid legislators on a work-day basis ranging from $3 to $15 per day. The larger figure is paid in Arizona and the lower in Kansas, Michigan and Oregon. The remaining twenty states paid their representatives a set amount a session, ranging from $200 for New Hampshire to $3,500 for Illinois and $5,000 for Pennsylvania.

Legislative experts computed that $100,000,000 had already been saved to taxpayers, although 32 legislatures

Nuisance May Become Source of New Industry

Minneapolis, Minn.—The aspen growth of the Northwest, hitherto regarded as a nuisance by farmers, may become the source of a new industry and give Minnesota a new source of income.

Experiments conducted at the University of Minnesota under the auspices of Ralph H. Montanum, associate professor of chemistry, show that a high grade of alpha cellulose can be made from the aspen. Alpha cellulose is used in the manufacture of cellophane and rayon fabric.

The research was conducted as part of the rehabilitation program instituted last summer by Louis H. Fournier, president of the University of Minnesota.

Catching Sap on Coolidge Sugar Lot

The coming of spring is the signal for the maple trees to begin yielding their maple sugar sap. And so the old sugar lot of the late Calvin Coolidge once more takes on an active appearance. It was at this same old sugar lot that the late President and his father, Col. John Coolidge, worked year after year gathering the sap and boiling it down into maple sugar. It may be spring but still three feet of snow covers the ground. Here are the oxen dragging the maple sap to the sugar house for boiling down.

Mothers Baby Rats With Her Kittens

Henryetta, Okla.—An ordinary black and yellow speckled house cat has adopted two rats to raise along with her brood of four kittens at the Miracle Sweet Feed mill here.

E. A. Cronm, part owner of the mill, found a nest of young rats in the building. Intending to furnish a wholesome meal for the mother cat and her four young ones, Cronm placed the baby rats in the cat's pen.

Instead of devouring them, however, the sympathetic cat promptly began to mother them.

New Spanish Justice Is Slow, Records Indicate

Madrid.—Justice moves unusually slowly in Spain and there are persons who have been under arrest since the proclamation of the republic, April 14, 1931, without trial.

The principal prisoner of this type is Gen. Domingo Berenguer y Fuste, premier of Spain from January 28, 1930, to February 14, 1931. He is held in connection with the "responsibility" investigation of the execution of Capt. Fernando Galan and Garcia Hernandez at Jaca in the December, 1930, republican uprising. Berenguer has been held on various occasions in the Madrid military jail in a castle at Segovia, and has also been allowed to remain under arrest at his home, where he now is.

In their cells in the Madrid jail still are the three Miralles brothers, ardent monarchists, who were arrested during the excitement around the ABC building May 10, 1931. On that occasion a mob attempted to burn the monarchist newspaper. Police and civil guards intervened. Shots were fired. Two persons were killed. Various monarchists were arrested and all eventually released except the Miralles brothers, although there are no definite charges docked against them.

Man-Tailored Vies With Fur-Trim

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

COMES stepping along in the spring style, shows the strictly tailored suit, daintily trimmed down to the minutest detail, so much so as to provide a question mark along the shoulders on the part of the more conservative. Some of the new suits have gone so far as to be actually trousers, worn with man-tailored shirts, sporty ties, stiff cuffs and swaggering fedora hats.

But we, ye who are skeptical, and give eye to another number of fashion's program, for equally prominent on the horizon there rises a gracefully silhouetted figure clad in softly furled delicate gray or beige, made even more appealingly feminine with the accompaniment of a sheer little be-frilled blouse or the flouncing of one of those mincing huge butterfly bows of crisp organdie which are the rage just now.

What to choose, the severely and daintily man-tailored or the bezzilingly feminine, for the new spring outfit, 1933, that's the question! Toss a penny if you will, for either way looks tri-umphantly on to the very height of fashion.

If your flippant penny happens to head toward the strictly tailored you will be tremendously interested in the ultra chic suit which the lady seated in the pictured group is wearing. Here is the masculine fashion at its best. It is an afternoon suit that copies the male tuxedo even to a satin lapel and a satin strip down either side of the skirt. The blouse which is styled like a man's vest and the ascot tie are in white satin. For high-class swank this model stands at the very head of the list. The smart set are quite wild about it—this idea of the tuxedo suit.

For less formal wear the double-breasted suit sketched in the circle below is an excellent and thoroughly practical style, either in black or navy. Note the masculine derby hat which tops it. This model also looks good in tweed, and tweeds whether in "cape costumes" made up with the popular taffeta checks or in strictly man-made tailored fashion are "all the go" for spring.

If your fancy leads to the more feminine type, why not a fox trimmed gray or beige wadded topcoat, such as shown to the left in the picture? How flattering they are, the suits and coats in delicate tones which are made ornate with matching fur. You are offered your choice between caped types and those which "say it" with novel voluminous sleeves. In either event handsome borderings of luxuriant matching fur complete these charming ensembles. The placement of fur on the cape is done with a view of keeping it away from the face in most instances so that the suit or coat may be happily worn way into the summer. The cape suggestion sketched in the top oval gives the idea.

HOW COLORS ARE USED IN STYLES

Dark colors are in favor for costumes and bright accents of accessories—sweaters, blouses, belts, roll bars and cuffs, scarfs, pocketbooks, gloves, hats and handkerchiefs.

For evening, the pastel family of colors are in exceptionally good repute. So that you will be up-to-date on the names as well as the shades of new fabrics, keep these new titles for old colors well in mind: Red-gray, sunset-orange, sulphur yellow, Jerusalem-cherry red, Algerian blue, Byzantine-green, teal-green, deepwater-blue and that intangible new shade of blue that is going to be very popular and which, at least for the moment, is called moonlight blue.

Many of these shades are old friends wedded to new titles to give you a fresher impression of them.

Warm Weather Fashions Show a Youthful Trend

Warm weather fashions indicate that the predominant trend this year would be toward youthfulness in design and fabrics.

The variety of materials run all the way from chiffons to piques, and the colors shown were equally diversified. Reds, blues, browns, tawny and grays were in evidence, used separately and in combination. The trends indicate that day wear will be shorter, slimmer and younger, while evening wear evidences a distinct Victorian influence.

Many two-piece jacket and dress models are being shown, which indicates a tendency toward utility in street wear.

Satin for Summer

Satin is enormously-indorsed, and is expected to materialize this summer mostly in lacquered accessories and supple evening gowns in delicate shades like pearly pink or blue and nude.

WHEN BIRDS COURT

Song is the most conspicuous feature of bird courting. Males are the best singers, and they do most of the singing. They employ their songs chiefly in courting the females, and usually cease singing—like modern husbands—as soon as they have won their brides, and started their families. Song sparrows and red-eyed vireos may continue their unsile even during the moulting season in August or September when other birds are usually silent. The females of a few species sing as well as the males, but their songs are always more timid. Female cardinals, purple finches, and a number of tropical American vireos sing operatic duets with the males during the courting season.—Missouri Farmer.

How to train BABY'S BOWELS

Babies, bottle-fed or breast-fed, with any tendency to be constipated, would thrive if they received daily half a teaspoonful of this old family doctor's prescription for the bowels. That is one sure way to train tiny bowels to healthy regularity. To avoid the fretfulness, vomiting, crying, failure to gain, and other ills of constipated babies.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is good for any baby. For this, you have the word of a famous doctor. Forty-seven years of practice taught him just what babies need to keep their little bowels active, regular; keep little bodies plump and healthy. For Dr. Caldwell specialized in the treatment of women and little ones. He attended over 3500 births without loss of one mother or baby.

It looks as if pari-mutuel betting on horse races will shortly be legalized in Michigan. There is said to be an overwhelming sentiment for such a law among the legislators, although a determined effort is being made to block legislation in that direction. Those in favor of betting on horse races say it will have the effect of adding interest to the "sport of kings," while the tax on the betting system and on the race meets will add considerable money to state coffers. Attempts to include dog racing in the list of legal sports will not be realized, as those in touch with the trend of legislation declare. Governor Comstock is said to disfavor dog racing and has intimated he will veto the betting bill should it be linked up with the fleet footed canines.

IT'S HUMAN NATURE

It is not surprising to find at times apparent confusion existing in the Legislature. But as the law makers settle down to the real work of the session much of this will disappear. It is only natural that when a large number of people are called together to make the laws that there will be wide difference in opinions relating to legislation. That is why most legislation is the result of compromise. That is to be expected and you can't blame the legislators because of it. Law makers are very human. The making of laws brings out about all of the traits that are to be found in human nature. Considered from all angles the present Legislature will measure well with those of the past. Much good can be expected from their work.

FARM WOMEN PLANNING FOR WEEK AT COLLEGE

Home Demonstration Groups to Send Delegates to Farm Women's Week

Practically every home demonstration group will be represented at Farm Women's week at Michigan State college, July 23-28. Miss Edna V. Smith, state leader of home demonstration agents believes, according to reports which she has received from the various divisions.

Plays, socials, and entertainments have been sponsored by the women during the past several months in order to raise funds to send at least one delegate as representative of each group. A number of the women are also planning to attend all or at least part of the meetings to be held during the week.

FARM POPULATION IS NOW GREATEST EVER

Increase Reported to Be Largest Recorded Since Year 1920

The farm population was 32,242,000 on January 1, 1933, compared with 31,241,000 on January 1, 1932—a net gain of 1,001,000 according to the annual estimate of the U. S. department of agriculture issued recently.

This is the largest increase recorded since 1920, the first year for which annual estimates are available. From January 1, 1930, to January 1, 1933, the farm population has increased from 30,169,000 to the present high mark. The previous high mark was 32,076,960, in 1910, a census estimate.

The farm population now is the largest in history.

ADAM PFISTER VIC-TIM OF HEART ATTACK

Died Monday Morning at Mason Street Home—Funeral Thursday

Charlevoix was saddened Monday by the death of Adam G. Pfister, many years—a local business man, who died of heart attack at his home on Mason street.

Mr. Pfister was born in Chicago, September 27, 1862. He came to Charlevoix about forty years ago from Sycabogann, Wis., first engaging in the commercial fishing business. He later opened a restaurant and of late years had won the name of "Charlevoix's Porgern Man" through his operation of a popcorn stand on Bridge street.

Surviving besides the widow is a daughter, Mrs. A. F. Young of this city, and a brother residing in Wisconsin.

Funeral services will be conducted at St. Mary church at 9 o'clock Thursday morning.

Mr. Pfister had a host of friends who will greatly regret his death.

ASSISTANTS TO FIRE CHIEF ARE CONFIRMED

John Zeitler and Ray S. Hamilton Were Named Monday

The appointment by Floyd Brown, fire chief, of John Zeitler as first, and Ray Hamilton as second assistant, was confirmed by the city council Monday night.

An appropriation of $25 was voted to the Baxter Relief Corps for Memorial day decorations.

Other matters taken under consideration but left as unfinished business included purchase of a small truck with dump body for street and general city work. Such a piece of equipment would allow laying up of the large city truck except when needed for heavy work and snow plowing.

The extension of the Belvedere Club water main to allow several cottages to receive service from the city system was referred to committee with power to act, also the matter of amending the city licensing ordinance in cases where the fee is considered exorbitant.

EXTEND TIME LIMIT ON R. F. C. FARM LOAN

May 15th Set As Final Date by Department of Agriculture

The department of agriculture has extended the time limit for receiving crop production loan applications from April 30th to May 15th for Ohio and Michigan.

This extension of time was occasioned by the unusually late seeding season in these two states and to give all farmers an opportunity to file their applications.

These loans are made for crop production purposes only, and applications must be filed with the county farm agent or chairman of the loan committee in the county where the farm is situated.

LEGION ACTIVITIES

Edited by F. V. Tyler.

Tuesday night saw the big clean-up begin on the grounds around the Legion home on East Garfield avenue. A lot was accomplished and one more night (next Tuesday evening, May 16th) should see the job completed.

Bugle and drum corps practice suffered on account of the announcement of the clean-up. Now, if you don't feel husky enough to wield a rake or a shovel, corps members, come anyway to the practice and—as they say in the personals—"All will be forgiven." But Memorial day is pretty close on and we don't want the folks to think we have been laid away in moth balls along with our white pants all winter. And then, there is the district meeting at Alpena looming up ahead, some date close after May 15th, and that's even nearer by. So, let's practice for all we're worth while we may.

Arrangements have been made for plowing the Legion's community garden plot on Carpenter avenue this week and quite a few have already spoken for plots. Leave your name and the amount of ground you want with the "adje" at the information bureau.

MISSIONARY GROUP MEET AT PETOSKEY

Charlevoix Had Largest Attendance at Convention Friday

Women of the Grand Traverse district Home Missionary society met last Friday in the Methodist church at Petoskey for their annual convention.

Charlevoix had the largest delegation present, also the largest group of girls at the Queen Esther banquet the preceding evening.

Mrs. Adah Beeman, district president, conducted the business with force and promptness, receiving many compliments for her management and the various special features of the program.

An outstanding attraction was the several addresses by Miss Elizabeth Guthrie, missionary in the Browning Home, Camden, S. C. This society works throughout the United States, but has been especially useful in the southern states where orphanages, homes, schools, training institutes, etc., are maintained.

Miss Dorothy Pederson won the district prize in the story telling contest, conducted in connection with the banquet. Mrs. Beeman was re-elected district president, Mrs. Martin Block as treasurer, and Mrs. Arthur Edwards as secretary of young people's work. Other officers were chosen from elsewhere in the district, which extends as far south as Ludington.

MODEL SAILING CRAFT INTERESTING DISPLAY

Four Models by Local Men Shown at Campbell's Boat Shop

A window display of miniature boat models is attracting considerable interest at Campbell's Boat Shop on Bridge street.

The display consists of four models: One is of the sailing craft "Savonair" of Pentwater, the work of Franklin C. Sears. This vessel was lost in the 90's with all hands drowned. Hendrick Hudson's "Half Moon," is the work of Fred Looze, member of the local coast guard unit. A replica of the 40-gun U. S. frigate "Constitution" is the work of Frank Novotny. The model, property of Robert Bonthron, is done in bronze and copper.

The fourth model, a reproduction of the schooner "RosaBelle," a familiar vessel in this port for many years, was done by Mr. Campbell. The "RosaBelle" was built during the Civil War period in 1863 and traded in this port many years.

All of the models reflect excellent workmanship by their builders.

Charlevoix anglers turned out in force in their quest for trout last Sunday. Visiting eastern streams were Nat Blissett, Frank Nowland and Ty Smith on the Little Pigeon; Charles Emery and Harley Ochs on the west branch of the Sturgeon; Fred Coon and Earl W. Miller to Lost lake, and Bert Stanley and Guy Smith to the Pigeon. Many other parties fished on streams in the eastern part of the county and nearer home. Due to prevailing easterly winds, the fishing was not the best and few limit catches were reported.

One of the apparent results of the new 50c rod license in this county is a tremendous increase in sales over a year ago. The license, now applicable to all trout fishermen over 18 years of age, becomes a general rod license, necessary for all anglers, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature. In passing the house, the bill lacked the necessary two-thirds majority vote to place it in immediate effect. The license was made available to trout fishermen through resolution, somewhat of a new procedure in legislative matters. Regardless of these facts, however, it will eventually become a general rod license and must be purchased by all anglers over the age of 18 years.

INDIANS OPEN SEASON WITH A VICTORY

Defeated East Jordan 14 to 7—Play Harbor Here Next Sunday

The Charlevoix Indians opened their regular baseball season at the new Legion park last Sunday afternoon with a 14 to 7 win over East Jordan Independent.

"Be" Denemy, who started on the mound for Charlevoix, was hammered for seven runs, including two homers, before being relieved in the fifth inning. Amos John held the Jordinians scoreless until the ninth and Jim Lord turned in a similar performance in the final inning.

East Jordan scored two runs in the 1st and five in the 5th for their only lead during the game. The Indians marked up three runs in the fourth, two in the 5th and nine in the 7th despite the fact the visitors used no less than four hurlers in an attempt to stem the tide.

Amos John pitched wonderful ball during the time he was in, and three young Navvood players trying out for positions on the team played well.

The Indian stack up against some tough opposition next Sunday afternoon when they meet Harbor Springs at the local park. Harbor, last year Emmet County league champs, defeated Keweenaw easily in their opening game last Sunday. The game will be called at 2:30 o'clock.

"It Was Easy to See, -- Mermash Chicks Were Better!"

"I put 5,600 chicks under brooders this year, 2,500 were Barred Rocks. The balance were Leghorns. Our success with Mermash 16" was simply wonderful. We had few losses. The chicks grew rapidly and feathered over the back early.

"We tried part of them on another well advertised mash. They did fairly well, but it was easy to see that the Mermash chicks were larger and better and we put them all on Mermash. I hope you may continue to supply us with quality feeds at such fair prices."

So wrote L. Van Wezel of Holland, R-6, of his 1932 experience with Mermash 16"—our superior dry mash chick starter, growing ration and egg ration. It contains ocean kelp and fish meal to supply chicks iodine and other minerals lacking in our soils and crops. Other ingredients:—Ground yellow corn, pure wheat bran, flour middlings, meat and bone scraps, alfalfa leaf meal.

Mr. and Mrs. Seymour came to Charlevoix county on May 12, 1883. The bride and groom were from New York, and during the past year and a half they have been in the county. They are now in the county.

COLONIZING MOVE IS ON AT HIGH ISLAND

House of David Members Return to Renew Former Industries

High Island, eight miles west of Beaver Island, is again to be colonized by the House of David.

Farm machinery and implements and cattle were taken there last week by the freighter Ramona. The island has been abandoned by all except a few Indian fishermen since the death of King Benjamin Purnell, when most of the members returned to the main colony at Benton Harbor.

According to Thomas Rowe, who is in charge of the island colony, the buildings and dock will be rebuilt and a sawmill again installed.

TAX COMMISSION MAKE ALLOCATION

TENTATIVE ALLOTMENTS FORWARDED TO UNITS

Protests May Be Made at Hearings
May 23 and 24—Final Report
Before June First

The Charlevoix county tax commission has completed preliminary work of allocating the 15 mill property tax to the sixty tax units of Charlevoix county.

Following sessions Monday and Tuesday, the commission completed a tentative allotment which has been forwarded to the various units. On Tuesday and Wednesday, May 23 and 24, officers of the various units will have an opportunity to make their objections, if any, in regard to the allocation as tentatively made.

On Tuesday, May 23rd, at 9:30 a. m., a hearing for townships, cities and villages, will be held at the office of J. M. Harris, commission chairman, at Boyne City. The same day, at 1:30 p. m., a hearing for school districts will be held at the same place.

On Wednesday, May 24th, similar meetings, at the hours scheduled above, will be held at the Charlevoix court house for the same purpose.

On or before June 1st, final hearings will be held and the final report of the commission completed.

The allocation, as tentatively outlined, is as follows:

University of Michigan.....0.6 mills
Michigan State College.....0.2 mills
County of Charlevoix.....8.0 mills
To each township.....1.2 mills
School districts.....5.0 mills

Total.....15.0 mills

Drastic reductions of county, township and school expenditures will be forced by the allocation. In every instance the budget asked by a unit was necessarily cut. No unit escaped.

The county of Charlevoix, asking for a budget of $99,000, requiring 11 mills, was cut to 8, producing $72,000.00. The county was given the heaviest division, but necessarily so, due to the fact that at least 5 of the 8 mills will be required for poor and mother's pension requirements, leaving only 3 mills for general county running expenses. No provisions have been made for the county to raise additional funds in case of a shortage, while in the case of school district, which may fall short of their requirements, they may, by a two-thirds vote of taxpayers, raise additional funds over and above money needed to retire bonded indebtedness previously incurred. It was the view of the tax commission that welfare needs must be taken care of.

All cities and villages having a tax limit in their charter are exempt from the 15 mill limit. Similarly all expenditures to retire bonded indebtedness contracted before adoption of the 15 mill limit are exempt.

Chandler and Norwood townships asked for no township allotment. Thus the 1.2 mills allotted to townships will be added to their school budget in these instances, giving them 6.2 mills instead of 5 mills.

The Charlevoix school district, presenting a budget of $52,450.00, will receive approximately $17,631 under the allocation. With $22,600.00 available from other sources, they will have around $40,231.00 for the coming year.

GRADE SCHOOL BUILDING WAS BROKEN INTO

Many Rooms Entered Tuesday Night
But Nothing of Value Taken

Local law enforcement officers are investigating today in an attempt to learn the identity of culprits who Tuesday night broke into the Charlevoix grade school building.

Lack of evidence that doors had been tampered with leads to the opinion those responsible secreted themselves in the building until it was locked by Janitor Scott at 10:30 or else had keys to gain admittance.

Window panes nearest the door knob were broken by nearly every door in the grade building. Teachers' desks were riddled, but a check up failed to reveal anything of value taken.

MICHIGAN SUGAR BEET ACREAGE IS INCREASED

Crop This Year Expected to Bring Nine Million to Farmers

Michigan farmers will receive $9,000,000 from approximately 160,000 acres of sugar beets which will be harvested this fall.

Dr. J. A. Brock, secretary of the Farmers and Manufacturers Beet Sugar association, said that about 35,000 more acres of the crop would be sown this spring than in 1932. The total planting should harvest about 1,600,000 tons, he estimated.

Besides the prospect of the sugar beet crop being one of the most profitable this year, Brock claimed that 30,000,000 "man hours" will be required to handle the 1933 production.

"Approximately 42,000 farmers, beet field laborers and beet sugar factory workers will be required to handle the 1933 sugar beet crop," he said. "In addition, thousands will be employed in the manufacture and production of supplies and materials and in the distribution of the finished products."

In 1932, the industry furnished 32,082,095 "man hours" of employment to Michigan residents.

CITY EMPLOYEE AN ACCIDENT VICTIM

MURLEY PLUM WAS INSTANTLY KILLED LAST SATURDAY

Electrocuted While Making Temporary Power Line Connection in Pit
Under Belvedere Hotel Porch

Murley Plum, 36, twelve years an employee in the Charlevoix electric light department, was electrocuted early Saturday morning.

The accident occurred when he was making a temporary power line connection following removal of a transformer serving the Belvedere hotel and located in a pit beneath the hotel porch.

Upon request for electric service, an inspection of the transformer the previous day resulted in discovery the pit had become flooded during the winter, necessitating removal of the transformer to dry out. This task had been completed, and when Plum started to make the temporary connection he contacted the 2300-volt wire with a screw driver held in both hands. The wet, icy floor of the pit created a positive contact and death was instantaneous. A two-hour effort to revive the stricken man failed.

Dan Soule, superintendent, and Floyd Rice, employee of the department, were fortunate not to have met Plum's fate. All had been working on the job, and all thought the power line was disconnected from the pole in front of the hotel. Contact plugs had been removed, thus leading to this opinion, but a small cut-over wire, attached previously by Plum to eliminate radio disturbance, was still connected and unobserved by the men.

Mr. Plum came to Charlevoix ten years ago from Bellaire, where he had been employed by the city two years. He is survived by his wife, and three sons residing in this city, also his mother and brother at Bellaire.

Funeral services were conducted at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon from the Baptist church, Rev. W. H. Ranch officiating. Interment at Brookside cemetery.

WOODS ARMY LEFT FOR FT BRADY WEDNESDAY

Will Receive Preliminary Training
Before Transfer to Camp

Charlevoix county's quota of men for the Roosevelt civilian forest camps entrained Wednesday afternoon for Fort Brady amid scenes reminiscent of World War days.

Examinations were held at the court house in the morning by Lieut. J. L. Richardson of West Point, and those accepted left by train in the afternoon.

Several changes were made in the original choice of 24, due to inability to pass physical examination, over age, failure to report, etc. The final set-up saw eight from Charlevoix, seven from East Jordan, six from Boyne City and three from Boyne Falls.

The men will receive their preliminary training at Fort Brady and later will be transferred to an upper peninsula forest camp. In all probability they will go to Raco.

STATE ASSURED FUTURE R.F.C. LOANS

PASSAGE OF KULP BILL MEETS FEDERAL DEMANDS

Welfare Highway Work, Stopped
On Monday, Will Be Resumed—
County Worries Over Finances

The Michigan legislature Tuesday passed the Kulp bill permitting the use of highway funds for welfare purposes. The bill had met strenuous opposition in the house.

Due to delay in passage of the Kulp bill, designed to meet R. F. C. requirements for direct state participation in welfare work, the R. F. C. from which source funds for welfare road work was coming, had threatened to withdraw future loans to Michigan. Loans amounting to $1,390,000 for the first half of May were held up pending action, and the state highway department Monday ordered all welfare work suspended until the matter was cleared up.

Passage of the Kulp bill has met the demands of the R. F. C. for state participation and, in all likelihood, welfare work will now be resumed again.

Around $15,000 has been expended in Charlevoix county since the latter part of February from R. F. C. funds on roadside development work on state trunk lines. This money has relieved the county poor commission expenditures to no small extent, and withdrawal of such support would have been keenly felt.

Effects Road Revenues

Now that the Kulp bill has passed, the greatest problem worrying county officials is how the state highway department will handle the funds to be diverted for welfare work. The Horton money, from which this county was to derive $30,000 to retire road bonds, is affected, also approximately $32,000 received for the purpose of county road maintenance. If the funds are directed to be spent on state trunk lines, county highways are bound to go begging for attention. It is to be hoped there will be no change in the present plan of distribution. Until it is found out what will be done, however, county road maintenance will be pretty much at a standstill.

Receive McNitt Money

The county has received one-fourth of its McNitt money, a check for $5,780 having been received. This money, directed to be used for maintaining township roads incorporated into the county system, will create little extra work, inasmuch as most of it has already been spent during the winter and spring months to increase employment and relieve distress in the county. County road crews have been cut down to a minimum at the present time due to lack of funds and uncertain prospects of future finances.

STATE ORDERS RELEASE PART OF ROAD MONIES

Release of $625,000 to counties for township road purposes under the McNitt act was authorized Thursday by the finance committee of the state administrative board. The payment will be made before July 1.

The committee also approved release of $545,000 to counties for various highway purposes. This allocation will give the state a clean slate with counties as of March 1, 1932.

IMPORTANT BILLS JAM LEGISLATURE

TAX MEASURES MUST STILL BE ENACTED

Legislature Has Much to Accomplish
During Final Days of Present Session

(By Elton R. Eaton.)

Not until the very day that the Michigan legislature decided to adjourn its present session and go home will the people of Michigan know how they are going to be taxed and what is going to be taxed. Neither will they know how much money has been appropriated for state expenditures and how much has been cut from the budgets of past years.

Seemingly all of the important tax legislation, all of the tax relief measures and many of the important appropriation bills are being turned into the legislative hopper at one time—at a time when representatives and senators are anxious to quit their long tedious legislative grind and get back home.

Not to this very day has there been any definite welfare legislation advanced to a point for final consideration. This is due largely to the fact that many members of the house are not in accord with the executive and senate idea of fund diversion to aid the hungry unemployed people of Michigan. This money must be diverted from one of the only sources the state is getting money from—the automobile weight tax, or the federal government will no longer give aid.

In fact the Michigan welfare department has already been advised that no federal money will come to Michigan for the usual May allotment. That means that cities and counties that have contracted debts upon the assumption that they would have this federal money to pay these bills with, will not be able to pay the bills for supplies contracted for the various welfare units of the state.

Michigan is one of the few states that has not yet complied with the demand of Washington that it provide some state aid for the support of its unemployed people in order to get federal aid. Washington takes the position that as long as the Michigan state government has done nothing to provide funds for the hungry, the federal government cannot and will not help a state that refuses to help itself.

Upon promises of the enactment of the Kulp bill that provides funds for welfare, the state government during the past few months has been advancing money to the state, but now the federal aid has been withdrawn. So it can readily be seen that the important legislative welfare questions are going to be jammed into the final days of the session for consideration.

Bills that provide finances for the public school system of Michigan are making progress. Fears expressed a few weeks ago that almost a complete collapse of the school system of the state was an outlook for the fall, have been disappearing and it begins to look now as though the legislature will be able to get some revenue producing bills through that will keep the most of the schools open for at least a greater portion of the year.

Some progress is also being made on the Moore delinquent tax bill that has been down and out two or three times but in some way finds sufficient new vitality to arise again and carry on. Possibly this is due to the fact that even though the original bill wasn't all that it should have been, there is merit to the desire of some of the representatives and senators to give some aid to property owners who are unable to pay their taxes. The one stumbling block that has stood in the way of the Moore bill, the fear that it was designed to aid some of the big city real estate subdividers who in the past have milked the public, has been somewhat overcome by the presentation of facts which show that most of these fellows do not now own the land they originally dished out as nice, attractive homesites. House and senate committees are working on some of the points in the bill that have been so strongly contested and they hope that there will be a satisfactory agreement in the near future.

Prison appropriations have been cut by both senate and house committees. Much of the luxury of prison life will go out as a result of these curtailments.

Four-H club work, one of the excellent features of the work of the extension department of the Michigan State college, has met with the approval of the house, the appropriation for this work among the boys. (Continued on page 7.)

GENERAL ROD LICENSE PROVIDED

WILL BECOME EFFECTIVE IN EARLY FALL

Sets Fee at 50c for All Persons Over 18—Non-Resident Male $2, Wife
50c—Ten Days for $1

Ninety days after the state legislature ends its 1933 session every person over 18 years of age fishing in any of Michigan's inland waters will be compelled to have a license.

The general rod license recently adopted by the legislature will not go into effect until early in the fall and in the meantime all fishing license regulations, except that for trout, will remain as in 1932. The legislature provided that 1933 resident trout fishing licenses cost 50c. In the meantime the non-resident fishing license fee is $1.00, the charge made last year.

The general rod license, to be effective probably early in September, provides for the licensing of all persons over 18 years of age fishing in any of the inland waters of the state. Under the present law the so-called "connecting waters" including the St. Mary's river, St. Clair river, Lake St. Clair and the Detroit river are "inland waters," but a bill is now before the legislature which would class them with Great Lakes waters. If this bill should become a law, fishing in these waters will not necessitate the securing of a license.

The general rod license briefly provides:

Residents: no person over 18 years of age who is a resident of the state may catch or attempt to catch fish in any manner in any of the inland waters of the state without a license. The fee shall be 50c and entitles a man and his wife to fish with the one license. Owners, lessees or occupants, or anyone regularly domiciled on any enclosed land or any number of their family actually residing thereon may fish without a license from waters wholly within the limits of the land at any time permitted by law.

Non-residents: no person over 18 years of age who has not resided in the state for six consecutive months immediately preceding his application for a fishing license must obtain a license to fish in any of the inland waters. The fee for a non-resident fishing license will be $2. A license will be issued to the wife of a license holder for 50c if she exhibits an unexpired non-resident fishing license issued to her husband. A non-resident fishing license good only for a period of ten days will be issued for $1.00, and the wife of such license holder may obtain a similar license for 50c. Non-resident licensees will be permitted to take or ship out of the state one day's legal catch of fish.

LOVABLE--- ENIGMAS

THESE puzzles we have married! How disturbingly efficient they are. Patiently they sit across the dinner table from us and listen to our evening complaints — short-handed at the office, chief cranky, customer spoiled golf date, stenographer late, letters misfiled—women have all the best of it! Then they smile riddles.

If you could see the little woman in the morning after you leave for the office! Children to bundle off to school, meals to plan, marketing to do, laundry to send, buttons to put on, tears to mend, dozens of trips to the front and back doors, lunch, squabbles to settle, a cut finger to bandage. At night, she meets you with a chic little gown you never saw before. Junior struts new shoes. There are new towels in the bathroom. There is an unfamiliar and delicious dish to tempt your appetite.

Where does she find time to be company purchasing agent, vice-president in charge of cooking, general manager of sewing, teaching and all the rest?

Will Straighten River to Correct Boundary

U. S. and Mexico to Curb Erratic Rio Grande.

Washington.—One of the most important rectifications ever contemplated in a boundary between the United States and a neighboring country, is arranged for in a convention recently signed in Mexico City which provides for the straightening of the Rio Grande for 87 miles below El Paso, Texas. The convention must be ratified by the senates of the United States and Mexico, and agreements must be made in regard to engineering details.

"The problem along the Rio Grande is a common one with rivers in all parts of the world that run through arid regions," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society. "Very light alluvial soil gathers in a wide, level flood plain; floods come suddenly because of the quick runoff from the bare mountains and hills; and the swirling waters cut new channels through the easily yielding soil with almost every major rise."

"For ages the Rio Grande wandered at will across the broad valley that lies just above El Paso, as well as over the equally wide valley that lies below the city. A careful observer driving over the valleys can see almost obliterated channels of the past from the present river. Maps since 1850, when the earliest American surveys were made, show a confusing maze of winding and intersecting lines that represent the dim ghosts of Rio Grandes of 25, 50, 75 and 80 years ago."

Jumbled Property Titles. "As the Rio Grande has been the boundary since 1849 between Texas and New Mexico, and since 1853 between Texas and Old Mexico, the wanderings of the river in the two valleys near El Paso have caused constant inter-governmental disputes and have played havoc with property titles. In the upper valley, the problems have been domestic. Immovable lawsuits between property owners spring from the erratic river changes."

"Finally the states of New Mexico and Texas became involved and took the whole tangled matter to the United States Supreme court. It was not until that tribunal handed down its decision in 1928 that numerous residents in El Paso's upper valley knew what state they were living in. For many miles the boundary fixed by the court does not follow the Rio Grande of today, but lies a considerable distance to the west along what has been determined to be the river bed of 1849."

"Straightening out the jumbled boundary situation below El Paso has been a much more difficult task because two nations are involved. There have been numerous treaties, but the temperamental Rio Grande has frequently created situations that existing treaties could not quite be made to cover. The most stubborn problem of all has been the so-called Chamizal dispute, whereby Mexico claims a valuable slice of the city of El Paso, asserting that the true international boundary is along an old bed north of the present river location. The Chamizal zone is not considered in the recently signed convention, but is left for special consideration."

Improvised Incubator

Saves Baby Born on Ship

Liverpool.—Two babies were born in the Pacific liner Oceanic, which arrived from a 4,000-mile voyage from Valparaiso.

The first weighed only three pounds at birth, and his life was saved by means of an incubator fabricated hastily from an old sugar box.

The incubator, made by chips, the carpenter, had a glass top and was kept at a constant temperature from the tropics to Sand under Spain, where the baby was landed. The infant was fed with milk from a fountain pen filler.

Missouri Will Pay Bill Owed 35 Years

Missouri, Mont.—Missouri never forgets. Witness the fact that William Frank Earnhart will receive $1845 Missouri has owed him for almost thirty-five years.

The money was due Earnhart for the period between the time he was called to serve as a member of the Missouri volunteer guards, in the Spanish-American war, and the date he entered service.

"I'm glad to get the money—but it's too bad the state doesn't pay interest on its claims," Earnhart remarked.

Trade Figures Show an Upturn in Philippines

Manila, P. I.—An upturn in the volume of exports of timber and lumber from the Philippines to Japan during 1932 was noted in trade figures just released here, while exports to the United States and foreign countries fell off considerably.

The exports to Japan, principal importing country, totaled 36,049,648 board feet, the customs declared value of which was 722,737 pesos, compared with 35,738,320 board feet in 1931, valued at 934,217 pesos. To the prevalent low price of lumber and timber was attributed the difference in the customs declared valuation during the two years under consideration.

Lumber and timber shipped in the United States during the last year amounted only to 5,315,688 board feet valued at 240,275 pesos, as against a total of 20,318,080 board feet in 1931 with a customs declared value of 1,230,723 pesos.

The United States is next to Japan in the importation of lumber and timber from the Philippines.

Besides Japan and the United States the Philippines also shipped its lumber and timber to the Netherlands, Spain, Italy, Hongkong, the Dutch East Indies, and Africa in 1932.

Planes Are Banned From Landing in U. S. Forests

Missoula, Mont.—No airplanes may land, except in emergency, on an official business, within the great "pristine areas" set apart in Montana forests recently. Evan W. Kelley, regional forester, has decreed.

In the South Ford, Spanish Peaks, Absaroka, and Mission mountain "pristine areas" no roads penetrate vast forests and precipitous mountains. The districts were set aside to preserve wide expanses of virgin territory. Few, if any, persons either live or visit these districts—there are no service stations, advertising signs, hot dog stands, or summer homes.

Emergency landing fields have been built in the areas to provide means of rapid fire control, after the department decided against building roads into the districts even for this purpose. There is not a road in this wilderness. Mountain goats, deer, bear, elk, and other game are abundant.

During vacation periods experienced rangers will conduct parties into the districts.

Plow Turns Up Gold

Rusk, Texas.—Emerson Polk, negro, has quit farming. His disc plow was to blame.

It unearthed a glass jar of gold coins, said to amount to $255, recently. Forthwith, Polk bought himself a motor car and "retired."

Indian Prince Is Wealthiest Man

Hereditary Fortunes Almost All Suffer Reverses.

London.—"Buddy, can you spare a million or so?"

Strangely enough, in those days of depleted fortunes and vanished bank accounts, there still exist in the world a goodly number of men who could, if they wished, answer in the affirmative.

A survey of the money monarchs in Europe and elsewhere revealed that the Nizam of Hyderabad, one of India's most powerful potentates, still stands at the head of the list of richest men in the world.

In million and coin he possesses $500,000,000, and the art treasures which fill his residential palace are valued at $1,000,000,000 more.

Next to him comes Sir Basil Zaharoff, the "mystery man of Europe" who amassed a fabulous fortune in munitions during the war. While his fortune has been greatly depleted, owing to the fall in munitions stocks and other securities, he can still point to $200,000,000.

Another huge fortune belongs to Senator Azulelli, Italian landowner, who has some $127,000,000 to his name. He is, incidentally, one of Italy's 153,000 millionaires. That country has more extremely wealthy men than any other in the world.

One of England's wealthiest men is Sir John Ellerman, shipping magnate, who can boast of $100,000,000. The Duke of Westminster, who owns acres upon acres of London's most valuable property, has a similar fortune.

High on the list of British multimillionaires stand the famous Coats and Wills families. The former amassed a fortune of about $75,000,000 in the manufacture of thread, while the latter made its money in tobacco.

Bankers, steel merchants and newspaper proprietors, who were formerly among the outstanding multimillionaires of Europe, have suffered severe reverses. Among them is Baron De Rothschild, the great French banker, whose hereditary fortune dates back to the Middle Ages.

Once regarded as France's wealthiest man, his place is now shared by Francois Coty, perfume manufacturer, and M. Menier, candy manufacturer.

LARGEST FAT MAN

Joe Baggio of Philadelphia is considered the world's largest fat man. He weighs 750 pounds and has not been out of the house for fifteen years because he is too big to get through a doorway. He eats 12 pounds of spaghetti each day and 7 pounds of hot dogs, 1 gallon of coffee, 3 quarts of ice cream and 60 to 70 hard-boiled eggs. It takes 8 yards of cloth to make his pants and 5 yards for his shirt.

Our Government—How It Operates

By William Bruckart

HOW CONGRESS FUNCTIONS

THE galleries for visitors in the chambers of the senate and the house are situated so as to give the maximum view for everyone, but that necessitated placing them on a level quite above the floors where the senators or the representatives have their seats. That circumstance does not always permit a proper understanding of debate. Many visitors go away from the Capitol, therefore, with an impression that enactment of legislation is far too complex and intricate for the mind of the lay person to comprehend.

It is unfortunate that this condition prevails, but it is not the only reason why those seeing the house or the senate in session for the first time fail to understand what is happening. They see only a part of the whole picture of the legislative function. They lack a knowledge of the rules of the game, and they are not conversant with what has gone before.

The house and senate are on a par in dealing with the bulk of the laws that go on our statute books, but each body has certain functions reserved to it and while which the other one has, and can have, no concern. The house, by direction of the Constitution must originate all laws that raise revenue, those that tax you and me, and it also must start all laws—they are bills while in the legislative machinery—making appropriations of public moneys. The senate could start them, of course, but would not mean anything. The senate, however, was given certain specific duties by the Constitution also. No treaties with foreign nations are operative until approved by the senate. It likewise has the final say-so respecting merely all appointments to office made by the President.

It was suggested above that if the visitor wanted to see the start of the talking picture, he would have to attend another theater. That other theater is the committee room. There are 37 of these committees in the house and 31 in the senate. They are permanent committees. Special committees are constantly being named to do a specific job not really susceptible of being handled by one of the standing committees, such as an investigation. In these committees is where the bulk of the work is done; where the grain is threshed.

The regular and usual procedure, therefore, is that a representative will introduce a bill in the house, or a senator will introduce one in the senate. Frequently, the same text of a measure will appear simultaneously in each body. The rules provide for reference of the bill to the committee having jurisdiction. The committee has a regular meeting day; the new bill is taken up, usually with only members of the committee present, and it is talked over informally. If it is of great consequence the committee will order that hearings be held so that those favoring the proposed law may state its merits and that those opposed to it may voice their opposition and point out weaknesses in the bill. Sometimes these hearings will continue day after day over several weeks.

As a general rule, a witness before a committee will be allowed to tell his story, to state his views, without interruption. When his statement is finished, however, the committee members have their fling. Questions are not always designed to be fair, nor are they always aimed to bring out things which the witness desires to admit. It all depends on whether the committee member views the subject from the same angle. In consequence, the stenographic record of testimony that always is taken sometimes makes literature akin to comedy, for witnesses have a tendency to go too far; to leave themselves vulnerable to opposition criticism by overloading with verbiage in their own statements, or by deliberate misrepresentation of facts.

Having taken all of the testimony that is offered, the committee makes works behind closed doors. Not being under the necessity to watch out for the political effect of what they say, they talk frankly about the proposal before them, and reach an agreement, sometimes informally, sometimes by a record vote, as to the course they will follow. In most cases, the bill as it was sent to the committee needs correcting. Amendments to accomplish the purposes desired are drafted, with the advice of experts employed by the house and senate for that purpose, and in final form, if the majority of the committee so votes, the bill is ordered to be "reported to the house with the recommendation that the bill do pass," or to the senate, if it be a senate committee.

The fact that the bill has been sent back to the house or to the senate by one of its committees does not mean that it ever will see the light of day, figuratively speaking. Indeed, the chances are about 50-50 that it never will receive attention in the senate and they are about ten to one that nothing more will be heard of it if it was reported in the house by a committee of that body. Each house has a "calendar of business," and when a bill is reported, its members and title is entered on that calendar, there to await further attention, or possibly death because of adjournment of congress.

Still Put Faith in "Witch Doctor"

A few weeks ago a "witch doctor" was shot to death on a Newark (N. J.) street.

He was a witch doctor who didn't do his job. He had been hired to chase away evil spirits, and when the evil spirits persisted the death of the witch doctor himself was indicated.

When arrested, the murderer frankly explained the necessity for the deed. It seems that evil spirits had for weeks haunted his house. Their manifestations took the form of one misfortune after another, misfortunes that could have been the result of nothing but the workings of the "evil eye."

So he went to the man who among certain of his immigrant Italian neighbors had a reputation as a master of evil spirits, and hired him to drive out the evil eye from his household. In spite of the single white powder which this man sprinkled about, the misfortunes were not halted—the bad spirits did not go away. In fact the witch doctor's white powder only attracted more ill fortunes. So he killed the witch doctor.

It seems inconceivable in this day and age, does it not, that anyone exposed to the enlightening influences of American institutions should still believe in "evil spirits" and attribute occult powers to a "witch doctor"? Yet we have a murder to prove it.

And, come to think of it, the incident is unusual not so much for the warped and twisted viewpoint that was responsible for it, as for the old-fashioned notions which the murderer gave his ignorance, his fears and his superstitions.

The words "evil spirits" and "witch doctor" are out of date. But not so stupidly and ignorantly, not thoughtlessly and superstitiously, not the desire to blame our misfortunes on some one else and to hope to cure by easier means than getting at the root of them. The same spirit which caused this poor man to pin his troubles on a witch doctor is responsible for more than that one murder in the world today. It is a spirit not too foreign in any of us if we allow ourselves to be swayed by thoughtless emotional reactions rather than the dictates of intellect and justice.

And it behooves us all whenever we feel ourselves swayed by fear or hate or prejudice or the desire to place blame, to make very sure we are not really seeking a witch doctor.

Found Effective Enemy of Destroyer of Grain

Through its complete and thorough investigations of the grain-destrating moth, Angoumois, one of the most destructive of its kind, a science degree has been won by an Australian student at the University of California, says the Washington Star. This insect inserts its eggs in side of grain of corn and wheat, from which moths come to lay eggs and spoil more grain. Unable to detect the presence of the spoiler in the kernel on account of its diminutive proportions, farmers did not know what to do until told to release it from the premises. This wasp, which uses its antennae, goes through the grain and immediately picks out an infested kernel. Drilling a hole in the kernel, it gives the larva a hypodermic injection, which paralyzes without killing it, then lays an egg beside the paralyzed victim. As soon as the egg hatches, the larva that comes from it proceeds to devour the still living, but helpless moth larva.

When arrested, the murderer frankly explained the necessity for the deed. It seems that evil spirits had for weeks haunted his house. Their manifestations took the form of one misfortune after another, misfortunes that could have been the result of nothing but the workings of the "evil eye."

So he went to the man who among certain of his immigrant Italian neighbors had a reputation as a master of evil spirits, and hired him to drive out the evil eye from his household. FARMER'S WELFARE

The welfare of the farmer is a basic need of the nation. It is well to have our cities prosper, but it is not well if they prosper at the expense of the country. In this movement the lead must be taken by the farmers themselves, but our people as a whole through their governmental agencies should back the farmer. Everything possible should be done to better the economic conditions of the farmer. Everything possible should be done to make life in the country profitable, so as to be attractive from an economic viewpoint, and there should be just the same chance to live as full, well rounded, and as highly useful lives in the country as in the city.—Theodore Roosevelt.

INDIANS WINNER OVER HARBOR SPRINGS TEAM

Defeated Emmet County Champs by 6 to 4 Sunday—Boyer City Next

The Charlevoix Indians marked up their third successive victory Sunday, defeating Harbor Springs, 1932 Emmet county champions, by a 6 to 4 score. The game was close and interesting.

Pitching behind excellent support, Amos John allowed the visitors only seven hits while striking out 14 men. He was in no danger at any time during the game. Tookola formed the other half of the local battery. Brooks, McBride and Piefer were the Harbor battery. Brooks relieving McBride in the third following Charlevoix's 3-run rally. Harbor's pitchers were nipped for 12 hits and struck out 4.

The game was featured by the hitting of "Stub" Lord, who connected with three doubles and a single in four times at bat.

The Indians have another home game at south side field Sunday afternoon. Boyer City, rated one of Northern Michigan's strongest clubs, will furnish the opposition. The week following Charlevoix will take on Keweenaw. Manager Glenn Rose expects his team will have their new uniforms for next Sunday's game. The uniforms are being bought with donations by local merchants.

BIOLOGICAL CAMP TO OPEN FOR 25TH YEAR

August 4, 5 and 6 Set Aside for Insecting By Visitors

From a small tent colony where each summer a few scientists studied to a busy village with a "main street" lined with over 100 professors' and students' cottages, scientific laboratories and community buildings, is the record of 25 years of progress which the University of Michigan Biological station on Douglas lake celebrates this summer. The station is now the foremost freshwater summer study camp in the world. Visitors' days this year will be on August 4, 5, 6 and 7, when a special program will be arranged.

The growth of the station has been due largely to its location in Cheboygan and Emmet counties, in the "transition zone" where the evergreen forests of the north and the deciduous hardwoods of the south meet and mingle. The station is located on Douglas lake and is in the Bogardus tract, owned by the University, which covers over 3,900 acres and runs to Burt Lake. The trees and plants of the region are varied, more than 1,000 species of flowering plants being found. Land animals, fishes and the many small water animals which are so important to science abound, while 173 species of birds have been identified in the region.

The station, directed by Professor George R. LaRue, annually accommodates 100 students, a staff of University faculty members and a number of independent research workers. From June 26 to August 19 it is undoubtedly one of the busiest spots in Northern Michigan.

NEW LAW WILL HELP MICHIGAN FARMERS

Act Effects Prices of Farm Products and Farm Credits

The passage of the farm adjustment Act by congress and the signing of it by President Roosevelt is the beginning of a national program with the avowed purpose of increasing the purchasing power of farmers, with a consequent effect of bettering the economic condition of all classes of people.

The Act, as passed, has three main sections. The first concerns the betterment of farm conditions by a plan of increasing the prices of farm products. The second deals with the matter of agricultural credits, and the third gives the President and his aides power to change present national financial and currency measures.

Michigan farmers are more immediately concerned with the first part of the Act, which part will be commonly referred to as the Farm Act. This section of the law provides three means of increasing the prices of farm products: first, acreage reductions; second, payment of allotment benefits; and, third, marketing agreements with processors and handlers of farm produce.

ANGLERS REQUESTED TO FILL GAME CARDS

Information Received in This Manner of Great Value

Conservation officers have placed in the vicinity of the most popular trout streams, large white boxes containing cards for fishermen to fill out and a container in which to deposit them after they have been filled out. These cards are put out for the purpose of getting an estimate of the number and species of fish that are taken by anglers to guide in further re-stocking of the streams and lakes. This information would be appreciated by the conservation department and would assist greatly in maintaining good fishing grounds in the vicinity.

The information on the cards would give the fish-planting department definite knowledge of what fish were taken and whether the fish planted in the waters remained there to fill the creels of anglers or if they migrated to another point. By stocking lakes and streams with the type of fish that remain where they are put, the fishing grounds of this region could be built up much better than they are at present.

CENTRAL LAKE CANNERY IS AUCTIONED

Kentucky Firm Highest Bidder for Defunct Organization

A bid of $13,159.77 was accepted from the Paducah Food Products Co. of Paducah, Ky., for the Central Lake Canning company's plant at the court house in Bellaire.

The hearing was held before Judge Parm C. Gilbert in circuit court, and the bid was accepted with the sanction of the stockholders and creditors. This was considered to be a fairly good price, the times being the way they are.

Buy "American-Made" goods.

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

May 9, 1933

A great thing has occurred amongst us. We have made a complete turn-around, and at last America's face is toward the future.

Three years---1929 to 1932---we Americans looked backward. All our old financial and political machinery was geared to pull us out of the depression by the same door through which we entered. We thought it simply a case of going back the way we came. It failed. We now realize that the way out is forward---through it.

Thanks for that belongs to President Roosevelt. Inauguration Day he turned the Ship of State around. Having observed the failure of sincere efforts to haul us back the way we came, he designed a new method---new political and financial machinery---to pull us out the way we are going---forward. He is clearing international obstacles out of the way; he does not stand in awe of tariffs. The people begin to feel that he does not take advice from the "interests"; that he has courage and loyalty to work for one supreme interest only---the welfare of the American people. That is a big achievement for two months in office.

And now we all look to what is coming; we grow less and less concerned with what is behind. We are looking for a hand-hold on the haul rope. Every man wants to do what he can, and all he can.

The best thing I can do for the Country is to create industry by building good motor cars. If I knew anything better to do, I would do it. Industry must be my contribution. Motor cars must face ahead to the future, like everything else. They are so much a part of the Nation's daily life that if they lag behind they hold the Country back.

Navy Sheers Enlivened With Color

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE question as to "what's the style" for spring and summer, 1933, is answered very definitely in the fascinating, plus-size, navy sheers which have been "stealing the show" in most window displays and at the majority of style parades staged so far this season.

They are worthy to admire and to covet, are these graceful-looking navy suits, frocks and ensembles made of the thin kind you have to wear, materials which are the rage just now. As to just what type of fabric shall fashion your new navy sheer, it is left for you to decide.

In making your selection you will be called upon to decide, perhaps, between one of those gorgeous, thin crepes, or tulle-like types, which are ribbed in either tiny or wide welts (newest thing out) or one of the numerous thin almost-to-transparency wools which are such good style. Then again your fancy may turn to a quality-kind plain triple sheer such as tallers to a nicety. At any rate whatever the weave, if it be navy and if it be sheer, depend upon it, it will qualify a hundred per cent smart. What's more, it will be the most practical outfit you could possibly choose and with its accents of white or bright color it will flatter to heart's desire.

It makes the navy-sheer story the more thrilling in that those who create of these materials are displaying such cunning and originality in their manipulation. They are, for instance, tucking some of these sheer suits all over from head to foot. Then again the treatment is varied in that these thin fabrics are shirred in row-androw pulls from neckline to hemline.

To these costumes of tulle, shirred or tailored navy, or black, if you prefer, sheers, a final note of chic is repeatedly added in the way of white plaques or organdie accessories. The intriguing thing about these attractive collars and cuffs, gilets, lapels and other items too numerous to mention is, they are so fashioned as to button on with a view to removing and laundering at will.

For those who prefer gay contrast instead of touches of white, an array of charming dresses are being shown this season which flaunt eddying dashes and splashes of high color. The combining of vivid print with solid navy sheers is an oft-repeated gesture. An effective instance of this style trend is recorded in the winsome frock illustrated to the left in this picture. This smart daytime dress is made of a ribbed sheer of beige, in light navy with bishop sleeves and the new Patent neckline done in a bizarre scarf print. A silver girde fastening provides an additional bright accent.

For the swagger navy dress to the right the designer turns to a sheer rough-finished novelty worsted. When you learn about the striped sleeves, you will be eager to borrow the idea instantly. They are made of two shades of blue organdie set together with silver thread fagoting. The opportunity offered in this clever stroke of handwork for striking color effect is endless. One might even work out, if they so chose, a Roman stripe effect using multicolored bands of organdie.

EVENING ENSEMBLE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

This very lovely evening ensemble which is a Lucien Lelong creation proclaims the charm of velvet as it poses over dainty flowery gowns. The adorable capelike wrap has the new draped sleeves which flow from a scarf yoke. It is typical of the ravishing styles in promise for summer. The gown is a gorgeous cire mousseline print with dark green background.

Draped Bateau Effect Is New Neckline Treatment

Another mood of width across the top of a frock is the newest neckline treatment, which several of the Paris couturiers agree on, the draped bateau effect. This is sometimes done so high that it crosses the front of the throat, but in any case it is another hint that the horizontal emphasis at the top of the silhouette or across the shoulders is to continue. The square sleeves quoted in some collections is another trick to give that width at shoulders which makes the hips seem slim.

PARIS GOWNS MADE OF WRAPPING CORD

Save your string—don't throw away even a small scrap, because when you get enough you can make an entire dress, or spring coat, out of it and be the last word in Parisian smartness. Schiaparelli uses regular wrapping cord to create a very busy looking costume, for she loops it around into interesting designs in a large mesh manner and then stiffens the whole thing so that it has a certain amount of body and doesn't just wilt when you put it on.

And the scraps from all your clothes, too—don't think of throwing away any of them, because your gloves must, absolutely must, be made to match each and every outfit, from your wool ensemble to your printed georgette or crepe de chine evening gown. Gloves are now made of silk, satin, milled, lace, chiffon, wool, tulle with organdie gannet gloves and in leather touched off with any of the above materials.

Real Flowers Come Back Into Fashion Picture

Nature once again imitates art, as real flowers come back into vogue for wear with daytime and afternoon clothes. They're real, but the object of the game is to make them look as artificial as possible. For they are being "styled" to look like the artificial blossoms which have been in the habit of using as decorations for our more dressed-up costumes.

For instance, with a trailing gown of gray chiffon with a mauve cast, a smart woman recently appeared with a lei wreath of real chrysanthemums at the side with a single huge orchid. Another wore a black frock, with wide square neckline, finished at either side with white orchids held in place with clips. Gardenias and that white camellias are used in a similar manner, in pairs.

Pique Trim Hails

Perky little bows of white pique trim some of the newest spring hats. One model of dark straw with a tiny brim, ideal to wear with prints or even with the mannish suit, had two small pique bows in front.

WINDFALL FOR SOVIETS

A profitable source of food supplies have been found by the Soviet in Persia. Large herds of hogs overrunning the forests of Mazandaran, a big Persian province on the Caspian coast, are an abundance to the farmers whose crops they destroy. Further, no Mohammedan is permitted to touch pork, so it cannot be eaten. So the Russians have a cheap concession to kill all the hogs they can, which gives plenty of work dressing the animals for shipment.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellenkamp.

Swine Feeding Problems to Be Discussed

For the first time, we are glad to announce that two demonstrations on swine feeding, care and management, have been scheduled. H. F. Moxley, specialist in animal husbandry of the M. S. C., will lead the discussion. The information will be timely and the very latest. During the last few years our own state college has conducted several feeding experiments on swine that have given much better results than some of the old systems employed.

The first meeting will be at the South Arm grange hall, located south and west of East Jordan, on Tuesday forenoon, May 23, at 10 o'clock.

The second meeting will be at the Boyne River grange hall located three miles east of Boyne Falls on Tuesday afternoon, May 23, at 2 o'clock.

If you have any problems pertaining to swine, bring them with you. Many farmers have a brood sow and raise one or two litters a year. While they are not in the swine business on a big scale, they nevertheless will be interested in these meetings. Remember, Tuesday, May 23, and invite your neighbor to come with you.

Colt Breaking and Multiple Hitch Demonstrations

Many farmers dread colt breaking more than anything else connected with farming. Often colts are not properly trained and as a result are a source of much annoyance thereafter. However, it is rather a simple job if you employ a regular colt-breaking system.

Without a doubt, you will be highly interested in seeing a colt broken in a very few minutes and actually doing farm work. H. F. Moxley, specialist of M. S. C., will show you the system that he uses at two demonstrations scheduled for Monday, May 22nd. Come and see for yourself the ease with which this expert handles any colt, tame or wild.

The first colt breaking demonstration will be conducted at the farm of L. D. Welshimer, located about one-half mile west and one-half mile north of Ironton at 9:30, Monday forenoon, May 22nd.

The second demonstration will be on the George Parson farm located off US-31 about seven miles south of Charlevoix at 1:30 Monday afternoon, May 22nd. People from near Charlevoix should go south on US-31, turn left opposite the road to Norwood, then turn right for about one mile.

Also at the two above locations, multiple hitch demonstrations will be given, using 4, 5 and 6 horses.

Extension Ladies' Achievement Day Next Week

Great plans have been formulated for the annual achievement day sponsored by the extension ladies in the county who have participated in the home furnishing project. Fourteen local community clubs have received five lessons in this project under the supervision of Miss Gertrude Reis, specialist from the M. S. C. A total of 28 leaders have received this instruction.

The exhibit and program will be held in the Methodist church, Boyne City, on Wednesday, May 24th. Of especial interest will be a large display of slip covers, refinished furniture, curtains and drapes. Over 150 ladies have participated in this project.

IMPORTANT BILLS

JAM LEGISLATURE

and girls of rural Michigan having been passed without difficulty. The bill is now in the senate where it doubtless will meet with the same consideration.

Villages and cities will not be able to raise property assessments if a bill pending in the house should be passed.

Another veteran state employee passed out of the picture during the past few days, Thomas Buckingham, for nearly twenty years assistant superintendent of buildings and grounds, having been retired by the state board of auditors. His place has been filled by a brother of State Treasurer Fry. Possibly this indicates that the new assistant superintendent, who has proven to be a very likeable chap, will be elevated to the position that Wallace Brown has held so well and so efficiently over a long period of years. Supt. Brown's term of office expires July 1st unless the board should decide to retain him.

A bill regulating and codifying all of the cemetery laws of Michigan is in the house. It is one of the longest bills ever presented to the legislature.

BARNARD

Miss Maggie Boss is spending a week in Mackinaw City at the home of her brother, John and family.

The P. T. A. meeting is being held this week on Tuesday. This meeting is the last one of the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Case Goeman from near Central Lake, visited at the Clyde Smith home on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Shapton of Charlevoix, were guests Sunday evening at the William VerMeulen home.

Miss Josephine Somerville of Boyne City, who attends county normal at Charlevoix, spent the week end with Minnie Gornell.

The Bible study class have elected the following officers for the coming year: Mrs. Warren, president; Maggie Boss, vice president; Dorothy Smith, secretary; and Uiram Klooster, treasurer. Meetings will be held each week on Thursday at 7:30. A penny collection will be taken each time to cover expenses.

DRAMA CLUB'S PLAY

WON LAVISH PRAISE

Four Hundred People Saw Presentation Wednesday Evening

The unusually appealing and charming drama, "Smilin' Through" was given last Wednesday evening by a cast of high school players. An audience of over four hundred people showed deep appreciation of the evening's entertainment.

Dorothy Staley and John Winder in the leading roles gave remarkable interpretation in voice and action to the varying shades of emotion of their lines. Lloyd Arnold did very skillful work in the presentation of a difficult part. Paul McCartney's sincerity and feeling was so intense that at one time it called forth a spontaneous burst of applause. Winfield Kirby very expertly introduced the humorous vein in the drama. Lila Tillotson's poise and sympathetic understanding of her characterization was an outstanding feature of the production. Lucille Bogart and Marjorie Crey, representing spirits in lead—added greatly to the mood in atmosphere of the play. In the set back Marjorie Crey added a charm and vivacity by her splendid character portrayal.

The wedding guests—Jane Stelter, Dorothy Partridge, Virginia Nickerson, Marcus Roen and Junior Spennaw, with their gayer, added decidedly to the general character of the play and furnished a marked contrast to the tragedy which followed.

The stage setting, which is said to be one of the most beautiful ever represented on the stage, was a garden arranged by Marguerite Chew, Janet Livingston, Marcus Roen and Harry Goldstick. Adding much to the physical aspect of the setting and the emotional appeal of the play were the very elaborate lighting effects.

These were made possible through the kindness of Mr. D'Amico of the Dramatic camp at Ironton. The play opened with late afternoon followed by sunset, twilight, and moonlight. Careful arrangement of flood lights and spots made very interesting lights and shadows on the faces of the actors and on the scenery.

The setting up of these were done by Gordon Bartlett and Harry Barker. The latter did an excellent piece of work at the switchboard during the performance.

Bernice Meggison, dressed in a costume of over fifty years ago, sang the theme song and Mrs. Mingo's musical selections, of which the song "Smilin' Through" was most often used, added melody and atmosphere which was greatly appreciated.

Business matters were efficiently taken care of by Virginia Taylor and Marjorie Partridge.

Mrs. Dowd is to be congratulated for her outstanding ability in producing so effectively a play with a characterization so difficult to portray.

The staging and lighting had a very professional touch which required much intensive study on the part of the director. From many reports we hear that this is one of the finest productions ever put on by a high school group.

NORTHERN SANATORIUM

AGAIN WINS APPROVAL

Funds Collected from Malt Tax Provided by Legislature

Approval last week by both houses of the legislature of a bill revising the state tax on malt products, but following the original measure in appropriating funds for the Northern State Tuberculosis sanatorium, again gives assurance that the need for tuberculosis hospital facilities in Northern Michigan will soon be met.

That section of the new measure relating to the Northern sanatorium is substantially the same as a bill amending the old malt tax, passed previously this year by the house of representatives. It provides that $250,000 collected through the tax shall be set aside on April 1, 1935, for the construction and equipping of the institution. Until that date, the money is made available for general fund purposes.

"The present legislature in passing this bill is asking the people of Northern Michigan to wait two additional years for a sanatorium," stated

T. J. Werh, executive secretary of the Michigan Tuberculosis association in commenting upon the measure.

"While there is acute need for immediate construction, particularly since many patients who ordinarily might receive care at home now are utterly unable to provide for themselves, the condition of the state's finances apparently will not permit release of the money at this time. In two years the extreme emergency that now exists in Michigan undoubtedly will have been surmounted and all obstacles in the way of the institution finally overcome."

Veterans of two sessions in the effort to secure the Northern sanatorium, Rep. William Ward, Traverse City, and Senator Calvin Campbell, Indian River, again led the fight in the legislature for the institution. They were supported both by representatives of the northern, rural areas and by city members of the legislature.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

CHURCH

Sunday morning service, 10:45. Subject, "Soul and Body." Wednesday evening at 7:45, first Wednesday of month only.

Rending room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room. "Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, May 14.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (Gal. 4:28,29): "Now we, brethren, as Isaac was, are the children of promise. But as then he that was born after the flesh persecuted him that was born after the Spirit, even so is it now."

AT THE MOVIES

Special Talents Utilized for "If I Had a Million."

A dozen and a half movie stars, each playing the type of role in which he won original screen fame, combine talents in "If I Had a Million," drama boasting the largest all-star cast ever assembled. The picture comes to the Palace theatre Saturday and Sunday.

The picture, because of its elaborate plot and the large number of characterizations it called for, made it possible for producers to fill the various roles with stars who were specialists in their respective fields.

"Hot-Car" Thief Cripples Child, Spurs Round-Up

"The Devil Is Driving," rapid-fire melodrama set against the background of organized auto stealing and its death-dealing ramifications, has been booked for the Palace theatre, where it shows Wednesday and Thursday with a cast headed by Edmund Lowe, Wynne Gibson, Lois Wilson, James Gleason, Dickie Moore and Allan Dinehart.

METHODIST MOTHERS' DAY SERVICE UNIQUE

Women Were in Charge of Program—Drew Capacity Crowds

Mothers' day service at the Methodist church was entirely in the hands of women, except one solo. Three "Mothers of '76," in dainty costumes of the years gone by, received the worshipers and gave them seats. These parts were charmingly taken by the Misses Staley, Nickerson and Howe, and added much to the unique character of the service.

The offering worship was conducted by Mesdames McMillan and Bird. The women's chorus and the solo by Miss Belding also emphasized this aspect of the morning. Mr. Paolo sang beautifully, and a juvenile solo by Master Donald Bogart, accompanied by Miss Atkinson, pleased everyone.

Mrs. Hurd gave the address from the topic, "Who Cuts the Coat?" The lesson was from the story of the mother of Samuel, and the application was that, in a large way, it is the mother who cuts and fits the coat of the future character of her son. Mrs. Hurd was very highly complimented for her address and at the close was presented with a beautiful bouquet from the Club women of the church.

The attendance was very large, chairs having to be brought in, while at the Edgier Guest service in the evening, many were turned away, unable to get seats. Here were dramatized, in illuminated tableaux, six of the Edgar Guest poems on mother, Miss McMillan giving the readings.

COUNCIL DISCUSSES SEVERAL PROJECTS

Would Open Gravel Pit to Furnish Needs and Labor

Several propositions of importance were discussed at the regular meeting of the Charlevoix city council Monday evening.

A petition, signed by Charles Bellinger and fifty-four other residents of the first ward, requesting no approval be granted petitioners for beer license for operation in that ward, was granted and placed on file.

The matter of licensing garbage dispensers to bring their operation under city management, was discussed favorably and referred to committee for action at the next meeting.

City Attorney Lisle Shanahan was instructed to draw up a new fire ordinance or amend the old one to take in the entire city instead of just certain zones as at present. The matter was brought up due to many fire hazards which demand immediate removal on account of the effect they have upon insurance rates on adjoining property.

The matter of opening a gravel pit on city property adjoining the O. D. Hammond pit on the east was taken into consideration. It was pointed out the city could save a considerable sum of money by taking out gravel for its own needs, and in addition, could give an opportunity to many delinquent electric light and water users to work out their indebtedness to the city. The pit offers gravel of the best quality, easily available.

RECOGNIZED BY NORTH CENTRAL ASSN. FOR 1933-34

Local Graduates May Enter Most Colleges of United States Without Entrance Examination

Gerald F. Bush, superintendent of the Charlevoix schools, has just been notified that this school has been accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for the period ending April 19, 1934.

In explanation of the term of accrediting the local school authorities have been advised that it is the established policy of the association to prepare each year a new list of approved secondary schools accorded this honor and that no school is accredited by the North Central Association for a period longer than one year.

Before any school can be considered for accrediting by the North Central Association it must be on the highest list of schools approved and accredited by the school authorities of this state. In addition it must meet the high standards which the association maintains with respect to the school building and its equipment, the school library, laboratories and instructional equipment and apparatus, school records, the requirements for graduation, instruction and spirit, salaries of teachers, the training and preparation of teachers, the teaching load, pupil load, and the school's program with reference to physical education and to its athletic relationship with other high schools as determined by the State Athletic Association.

The North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools is an accrediting agency comprising some twenty states and is the largest regional accrediting agency in the United States. The object of the association is to establish closer relations between the secondary schools and the institutions of higher education within the north central states and in such other territory as the North Central Association may recognize. All decisions of the association bearing on the policies and management of secondary schools and institutions of higher education are understood to be advisory in their character. The accrediting of schools by the North Central Association is a cooperative undertaking. Membership in this association is purely voluntary. It must be the desire of the local authorities of a high school to have the school accredited by the association.

Advantages that high schools realize as a result of being accredited by the North Central Association can be summarized as follows:

1. The graduates of an accredited high school are privileged to enter institutions of higher education without entrance examinations, provided that they have credits in the high school subjects required by the college or university for admission. Since other accrediting agencies recognize schools accredited by the North Central Association, this privilege of entrance without examination is extended to the graduates of high schools practically throughout the United States.

2. The graduates of accredited high schools have the assurance that their high school diplomas will be acceptable to state boards having to do with the granting of certificates for the various professions of medicine, dentistry, law, etc. In states requiring graduation from approved high schools as a prerequisite to the obtaining of a teaching certificate, the graduates of schools accredited by the North Central Association meet the requirements of such a law.

3. A high school approved by the North Central Association must (Continued on page 8.)

CITY VALUATION GETS HEAVY CUT

BOARD OF REVIEW LOPS OFF NEARLY $200,000.00

City Valuation of $3,241,900 Reduced to $3,048,575.00—First Ward Gets Big Reduction Valuation of real estate and personal property in Charlevoix was reduced $193,325.00 by the board of review which this week completed its annual deliberations.

With the cut in property values comes either the necessity of reducing the city budget to keep within tax revenues, or raising either tax or electric light rates to provide sufficient funds for operation during the current year.

The valuation for 1933 as approved for submission to the board of supervisors for equalization in June, is $3,048,575.00, as compared to $3,241,900.00 for 1932. The committee on equalization of the board of supervisors must approve the reduction.

Real estate was given the heaviest slash, due largely to decreased values during the past year, and drop of rental rates for resort properties. Of the $193,325.00 reduction, real estate was given a $143,625.00 cut, and personal property $49,700.00.

The cut by wards was as follows: 1st ward, $92,225.00; 2nd ward, $24,350.00; third ward, $26,550.00. The reduction in the first ward was the largest on account of the predominance of resort property. The largest reduction, listed, $35,000.00, was made on the holdings of the Central Land Company.

While the reduction in valuations was quite general, many increases kept the total from a figure much larger than finally arrived at. In some instances, both real estate and personal property was assessed higher.

Another important matter of taxation, that of allocating the 15 mill property tax, is reaching its final stages this week. Meetings are being held in Boyne City and Charlevoix by the county tax commission to hear objections regarding the tentative allocation completed and forwarded to the various units last week. This matter must be settled finally by June 1st.

The grade line for Prospect avenue as drawn by the city engineer was approved and this street will be graded soon. Plans for the May street storm water sewer were accepted and placed on file.

The Charlevoix County bank was designated as city depository during the term of the present treasurer, Robert E. Rife.

EXPLANATION OF FARM ACT GIVEN

SECRETARY WALLACE SEEKS TO ENLIGHTEN FARMERS

Says Present Farmers Can Not Escape Troubles by Moving to New Farms Out West

There are no more Indians to fight and there is no more land in the United States worth taking which may be had for the grabbing, is the statement made by Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, in explaining that it is impossible for this generation to escape beyond intolerable economic conditions but must make their fight against adversity by attacking the causes of their distress.

They are to be aided in this fight, according to the secretary, by the farm adjustment act, but he stresses the fact that the cooperation of farmers and of members of other lines of industry must be obtained before the act can benefit those whom it seeks to serve. No concealment is made of the fact that administration of the act will be a tremendous task.

Adjustment in agriculture is necessary because it has been impossible for farmers as individuals to shift the industry from high gear in which it operated during war time to the low gear which is now needed to meet conditions when foreign nations will not buy our agricultural products. When fifty million acres of foreign grain lands were taken out of production during the war, American farmers were entreated to provide the remedy. They responded by planting thirty million acres more wheat.

When the war ended, Europe needed those extra thirty million acres only a short time and would buy then only if the wheat was sold at a low price and if the United States loaned the money for the wheat's purchase. Then a wave of nationalism swept across Europe. Tariffs and similar trade barriers were enacted by many countries to prevent the entry or sale of American wheat within those nations.

American farmers by individual action could not rid themselves of the thirty million acres of extra wheat land. Taxes, freight rates, interest, and other fixed charges on agriculture have to be met. If farm prices drop, the individual farmer attempts to secure the needed income by producing more units of farm produce. The greater production further demoralizes the market and there is a large carry over of wheat from one year to the next.

This is the condition of the wheat farmer at the present time. The stocks of stored wheat in the United States now are two or three times as large as the normal amount stored from one year to the next. It is sheer waste to produce things for which there is no need. The unused, unwanted portion of the crop depresses the prices of that portion which is sold.

Half of the wheat farmers of Montana had lost their farms by 1923. In 1929, the agricultural depression became a plunge. Today, agriculture is twice as much debilitated as general industry, and its prices are down 40 per cent below the level of prices in general.

Since 1929, millions of farm people have had to watch their garments, store their cars and tractors, deprive their children of educational advantages, and cease to improve their practices and their properties. They have been forced to adopt frontier methods of bare sustenance when there is no longer a frontier.

When the farmer gets higher prices, he will start buying shoes and clothing for all his family. He needs paint and roofing, fencing, machinery, and all other equipment needed to replace that worn out during the past few years. His wife will be able to purchase household equipment, a new hat, and perhaps will have time to run into town on Saturday afternoon to visit the stores.

The low prices of farm products have not resulted in providing cheap food for everyone. One of the men in the department of agriculture recently visited a city on the Great Lakes. He saw towering elevators crammed full of wheat and, in the very shadow of the elevators, saw ragged men and women sorting over the contents of restaurant garbage cans for something to eat.

Secretary Wallace believes there has been enough and more than enough of headlong and heedless (Continued on page 6).

HIGHWAY WORK IS AT A STANDSTILL

SHIFT IN HEADQUARTERS IS CAUSE OF DELAY

Federal Emergency Relief Commission Taking Over Matter of Distributing Road Funds

Highway work with R.E.C. money is being held up in Charlevoix county as elsewhere because of a transfer of the spending of public relief money from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which is scheduled to pass out of the picture, to President Roosevelt's federal emergency relief commission.

This is the word brought back from the state highway department in Lansing by local highway officials. It was presumed that, after the state legislature passed the Kulp bill providing for the expenditure of state money on highway relief work, men would be put back on highway jobs immediately with state and R. E. C. money. Transfer of the function of spending this federal relief money from the R. E. C. to the emergency commission takes some time and this is what is holding up the highway work in Charlevoix county.

The Kulp bill places the amount of money each county wishes to divert from the weight tax to relief work up to the county road commission and the county board of supervisors, and it will be necessary for these two groups to meet in each county before it can be determined how much of the weight tax money the county receives will be spent for relief labor on the county roads.

In the meanwhile road operations in Charlevoix county are being confined to maintenance work.

A. & P. STORE HOLDS RE-OPENING SALE HERE

Improvements Have Made Store Most Up-to-Date and Modern in North

The Charlevoix A. & P. store is holding a re-opening sale this week, between the dates of May 22 and 27, inclusive. The sale is the culmination of a program of improvements which have made the local store one of the most modern and up-to-date A. & P. stores in the north.

The quarters have been redecorated and refurnished. Sidewalks are attractive in green and white tile. The upper part of the walls and the ceiling are finished in cream color. All counters, show cases and other equipment are new, re-arranged to allow expedient service.

A spray system has been installed for the vegetable and fruit department and a feature of the meat department is a new refrigerated display case 30 feet long.

Henry Buddy, manager, has been connected with the store five years, coming to Charlevoix after a year as relief manager. The personnel, which will be increased as demands for service warrant, now includes Chester Buddy, Ralph Lemieux and Dale Chapman in the grocery department, James Krulik, meat cutter and Russell Curtis, helper.

EVERYBODY COMES UNDER SALES TAX

NO PERSON EXEMPT UNDER PROPOSED LAW

Legislature Setting Up Machinery to Shift Tax Burden from State Real Estate

(By Elton R. Eaton.)

One of the most important and far reaching economic changes in the history of Michigan is about to be consummated as the result of pending legislation that will doubtless become law within the next two or three weeks. The taxation system of the state that has existed since the territorial days is being scrapped and a new one perfected. Real estate, which in past years has carried the burden of development and progress, will no longer be regarded as an asset worth taxing over a small per cent of its value. Voters decided this point when they passed the fifteen mill limit constitutional amendment last fall.

But to take the place of revenues the state lost as the result of this change, the legislature is now considering legislation which places the tax burden almost entirely upon residents of the cities and villages of Michigan. No, the sales tax bill that makes this change, does not say that city and village residents will pay practically all of the taxes of Michigan in the future, but that is just what the measure will do.

The house the other day passed a sales tax bill that provided a three per cent tax on nearly everything sold, except products of the farm, dairy, orchard and garden. There were numerous other exemptions in the house bill.

When the sales tax measure reached the senate where it forms the chief subject of consideration this week, the senate decided that there should be no exemptions of any kind. The governor is contending that the house bill should be passed with all its defects, that even the house admits exists in the measure.

Rep. Edward Fisher, who comes from the rural section of Wayne county, refused absolutely to vote for the bill as it passed the house.

He declared that Rep. Barr, a member of the house committee on taxation who voted to report the bill out from the committee, had made the statement that there was not a single thing in the sales tax bill that was right. Even the Democratic administration floor leader, Rep. Southworth, said that there was little in the bill to admire. Rep. Fisher asked why he should vote for a sales tax bill that those who had a part in framing it and considering it for weeks, refused to call it a good bill.

Under the bill as it will go to consideration of conference committees, there will be no exemptions of any kind. If the measure should finally pass in this form, and there seems to be a general belief that it will, everyone will pay some form of tax under its provisions.

It is estimated that the sales tax bill will bring into the state treasury not less than $45,000,000. That is a lot of money in these days when even $45 looks like big money to most folks.

Following a careful study of this bill Rep. Vern Brown was so sure that it would bring into the state treasury more than the estimated sum made by Gov. Crampton that he had an amendment added to the (Continued on page 6.)

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

May 15, 1933

Time and again I am told—by my own organization and by others—that I penalize myself by quality.

Friendly critics protest our putting into the Ford V-8 what they call "twenty-year steel." They say such quality is not necessary; the public does not expect it; and that the public does not know the difference anyway.

But I know the difference.

I know that the car a man sees is not the car he drives—ho drives the car which the engineer sees. The car which is seen, comprises beauty of design, color and attractive accessories,—all desirable, of course. The best evidence that we think so is that they are all found on the Ford V-8.

But these are not the car. The car proper, which is the basis of all the rest, is the type of engine and its reliability; the structure of chassis and body, ruggedly durable; the long thought and experiment given to safety factors; the steady development of comfort, convenience and economy. These make the car.

A car can be built that will last two or three years. But we have never built one. We want the basic material of our car to be as dependable the day it is discarded as the day it is bought. Ford cars built 15 years ago are still on the road. It costs more to build a durable car—but two items we do not skimp are cost and conscience. A great many things could "get by"—the public would never know the difference. But we would know.

The new Ford V-8 is a car that I endorse without any hesitancy. I know what is in it. I trust our whole thirty years' reputation with it. It is even better than our previous V-8. It is larger, more rugged and mechanically a better job all round.

I readily say this in an advertisement because I know the car will back it up.

MEMORIAL DAY
As Memorial day approaches this year we are reminded again of the fast thinking ranks of Blue, once so dominant in our national existence, now almost swept by time into Oblivion. But although they may be removed from mortal sight, their memory continues to grow with the advancing years; by their heroic deeds and sacrifices have they written their name into the imperishable records of the nation.

It is well if we meet Memorial day this year, conscious of the sublimity of the occasion with full appreciation of the tribute we are paying those who remain. Let us, by our presence, help to strengthen their palsied limbs so that they may have the courage to walk with upright tread in the events of this sacred day, that by our love and attention we may lend them to know that we are mindful of how much they have meant to our national unity, and that this love, this devotion, will be theirs until the end.

No nation can hope to continue its existence that does not honor and revere its noble defenders. Although we may deplore war, may look with longing eyes to the day when all wars will be ended, we must not forget that it was through their blood so freely shed that we are walking toward the goal of all mankind.

As good citizens, let us take our part in the exercises of Memorial day that has been reserved for us, that we may be present and say in unison with those gathered throughout the nation, "Comrades, hail and farewell."

GOLD AND SILVER

The most astonishing provision of the farm relief act authorizes the President to provide for the unlimited coinage of free silver at a fixed ratio with gold, and in that event instructs the secretary of treasury to maintain their parity of exchange value. The act implicitly assumes that this could be done despite the fact that both metals are world commodities, and that the exchange value of gold for silver was six times as great in 1932 as in 1915.

Of making books there is no end—otherwise there would be fewer race tracks.

MAY COURT IS ADJOURNED TO FRIDAY

OTTO VAN DYKE FOUND GUILTY WALLOON LAKE ROBBERY

Sentenced Wednesday By Judge Gilbert to Serve Twenty to Thirty Years at Marquette Prison

The May term of circuit court for Charlevoix county adjourned Wednesday afternoon until Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock for hearing of the Schultz forgery case.

At the opening session Monday forenoon, a large photograph of the late Judge Frederick W. Mayne was presented the county by the Charlevoix County Bar Association with appropriate ceremony. Attorney J. M. Harris acted as chairman and made the presentation. Judge Parm C. Gilbert made the address of acceptance and all members of the bar association responded with brief remarks. The ceremony was an impressive one.

Citizenship was granted to Amos Tomley of Charlevoix, and Carl Prohaska of Horton Bay, and the balance of the day was occupied with probation cases.

VanDyke Found Guilty
Otto (Duke) VanDyke, Cheboygan, was found guilty by a jury Wednesday morning, following trial Tuesday, on a charge of entering the Walloon Lake postoffice and using an explosive to commit larceny. The crime was committed January 20.

VanDyke, whose record dates back to desertion from the navy in 1910 and includes such crimes as burglary, robbery armed and assault, was sentenced by Judge Parm C. Gilbert to serve not less than 20 and not more than 30 years at Marquette prison. VanDyke had previously been sentenced from Cheboygan county in 1924 to a term of 5 to 10 years at Jackson for possession of burglary tools. He was termed as a dangerous character, and his conviction in court here is a credit to local officers.

The First State Bank of Boyne City was awarded judgments of $1,067.57 against Wm. J. Nulph; $5,210.73 against W. H. White Co.; $2,747.16 against L. H. White; and Swift & Co. a judgment of $427.96 against R. C. Korth.

A verdict of no cause for action was returned in the trespass case of Glenn S. See vs. Bernie Ward.

Court will convene again Monday, May 29th, for the House vs. Rogers quo-warranto proceedings, and on Wednesday, May 31st, for hearing of the Charlevoix Hardware Company receivership.

MICHIGAN AIR TOUR WILL NOT BE HELD

Series of Week End Flights Are Scheduled Instead

The Michigan air tour, discontinued this year, will be succeeded by a series of week end flights which the sponsors believe will be more practical.

Announcement that there would be no air tour this year was made recently by Milo Oliphant, treasurer of the tour association.

Week end flights began last week and when seven ships gathered at Grand Rapids and flew to Holland for the Tulip festival. Because of the success of this initial flight, Oliphant said, they will be continued on throughout the summer.

COUNTY NORMAL NOTES

The normal class will graduate with the senior class this year as has been customary.

Normal class students are looking forward to the coming picnic at Whiting park June 3rd.

Did you ever stop to think just how many interesting facts there are about the state of Michigan? Ask some of the normal students who wrote themes on Michigan for Michigan history.

How much do you know of your own county? The normal students have made a detailed study of it. Better ask them.

Charlevoix students are not the only ones blossoming out in new clothes. Two sweet potatoes, watched carefully by the normal class, have decided to decorate themselves with some new green sprouts.

Several of the normal students have taken up tennis after school. The first few days caused a number of aching arms.

General topics of interest to be studied some time between now and the end of the year are: elements of public speaking; parliamentary law; social etiquette, and social entertainment.

Training Room Notes
The training room is working out a project in gardening. They have a miniature garden in the sand table in the extension room.

The second grade has finished planting the sand table farm. A group from the kindergarten are sharing the farm.

A number of pupils are absent on account of measles.

RUST

IT WORKS LIKE A THIEF IN THE NIGHT

For ages RUST has been destroying millions of dollars worth of metal products each year.

RUST is at work this very moment in YOUR basement, destroying little by little the metal parts of your heating plant, be it hot water, steam or warm air.

RUST begins work at this time of the year, shortly after your heating plant has been closed down for the season and the ravages of RUST become more severe as the warm days draw near.

The accumulation of soot and ashes in the furnace, smoke pipe and chimney from the winter months will soon be drawing moisture from the warm air and it is in this moist material that RUST thrives, and it will be hard at work doing damage from now until you start the fire next fall if you do not destroy it at once.

You can eliminate the dangers from RUST by having the furnace, smoke pipe and chimney vacuum cleaned before it gets a foothold. By removing the accumulation of soot and ashes at this time you are removing the food that RUST thrives on and you will prolong the life of your heating plant.

The Vacuum Cleaner we use for this work gets into every crevice and corner, places where the hand could never reach, and removes every trace of soot and ashes. The vacuum created by this machine removes only the accumulation of soot and ashes and does not loosen nor remove cement from between furnace joints, mortar from between bricks in the chimney, nor does it collapse the warm air or smoke pipes. It was designed to do a certain job and do it well, and for this particular kind of work it has no equal.

Let us vacuum clean your heating plant NOW, thereby eliminating the dangers of RUST.

Guernsey Breeders to Hold Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Guernsey Breeders' association of Charlevoix county will be held in the East Jordan library on Friday night, May 26, at 8 o'clock. This will be one of the most important meetings of the year as the election of officers will take place and the final plans for this year's Guernsey activities will be formulated. Approximately thirty breeders of Guernseys belong to this organization and are concentrating in all dairy activities.

Last year the annual summer show was held on Labor day at Whiting county park with 29 representative Guernseys on exhibit. Year by year the quality of Guernseys shown has been better than the year previous and it is expected that this year's exhibit will not be different in this particular.

All owners of Guernsey cattle in the county are urged to attend this meeting and to cooperate with the directors in outlining projects that will further the interest of Guernseys in the county. If you are not already a member of the organization, come anyway and meet the Guernsey boosters who have participated in the program. Instead of having around thirty dairymen as members, we should have fifty. Don't forget the date, Friday night, May 26, and bring any Guernsey friend of yours with you.

Summer 4-H Club Program Outlined

It is the time of the year that the 4-H club projects should be organized. For the girls the canning club project will be of great interest. Last year we had ten canning clubs which included as members 75 girls. While it is somewhat early yet, it is hoped that many communities will make plans for their organization meeting in the near future. Instead of having ten clubs, why not have twelve or thirteen this year. If interested in the canning club work, kindly get in touch with the county agent or your last year's leader and get the program started early in the season.

Of especial interest to the boys will be a potato club, bean club, corn club and the dairy club project. Already the East Jordan community have secured members for this year's program. The Barnard community had their first meeting last Monday night. All through the county boys and girls are asking, "When can we get started? What can we do this year?"

Any boy or girl between the ages of ten and twenty are eligible to join the 4-H club group in the county. If you do not already have a club in your community, get in touch with your county agent who will be only too glad to help you organize a club in your locality.

New Soil-Testing Outfit Used in County

Without a doubt the new soil-testing outfit recently developed by Prof. C. H. Spurway, of the Michigan State college, is one of the outstanding contributions to agriculture that has taken place during the last ten years. In fact no other state has anything that equals it at any price. No longer need a farmer guess at the kind of fertilizer he should use. In test results. This outfit shows the state of fertility of any type of soil in all of the major plant food elements.

Last Thursday, May 14, one of these outfits was available for this county and 30 different tests were made. The actual content of nitrogen, phosphorus, potash and calcium was ascertained by a series of chemical tests. The results are determined by adding distilled water and one drop of acetic acid to a given quantity of soil. The soil solution is then filtered in test tubes to which are added the various reagents to show the color charts come with the equipment to show the actual content of plant foods in the sample.

Prof. Paul Rood, soils specialist, supervised the tests and assisted in making out fertilizer recommendations.

tions for the different samples. It is expected that this county will have one of these outfits for our own use in the near future.

This means that any farmer in the county who would like to have a complete analysis made of his soil should get in touch with Agricultural Agent Mellencamp and be one of the first to have this service carried out. The work will be done in the order that requests come in.

EXPLANATION OF FARM ACT GIVEN

competition, each man for himself. That system, or rather that lack of system, in which the devil takes the hindmost results in everyone drifting toward the hindmost status, and the devil takes all.

Programs of planned land use must be adopted immediately. The need becomes the greater as tragic numbers of urban families occupy abandoned farms upon which trained farmers with all their skill and patience were not successful.

The first need is to adjust the production of basic crops of which there is already a surplus and for which there is no prospect of an early foreign market. This change in production is the purpose of the agricultural adjustment act. Taxes on the processing of basic products can be levied and the money obtained paid to farmers who accept the provisions of this act and adjust their crop acreages or their total production as requested by administrators of the act.

This adjustment will be continued until such time as diminishing stock-rises prices to a point where the farmers' buying power is as high as it was in the period from 1909 to 1914. This period of price levels is selected because during those years the prices farmers obtained for their products and the prices they paid for manufactured goods and urban services most nearly approached an equitable relationship.

Farm crop production will not be reduced to a strictly domestic basis. The foreign trade is now a mere trickle but that will be supplied and an attempt will be made to increase it. Production will not be pegged at a certain level year after year. The provisions of the act permit the administrator to change the regulations at any time.

This farm act differs from the part-way attacks on problems that have been launched in the past. The act provides for controlled production and price lifting can not work without that provision. Unless production is controlled, the rise in prices causes an increased planting of crops and a consequent wrecking of the price.

Wheat recently was 13 cents higher in price on the Chicago market than it was at Liverpool, but wheat normally is worth 15 cents more in Liverpool than in Chicago. This price in Chicago might well result in an increased wheat acreage which would destroy the favorable market if the present act did not provide powers to control the United States wheat acreage.

The government will force no particular rental or commodity benefit plan upon farmers. Help will be given in working out the details of the plans selected after conferences with all people interested. The immediate job is to decide which basic crops to concentrate on, what methods of production adjustment to employ, to determine to what extent market agreements can be useful, and to appraise the need for and the amount of processing taxes.

Representatives of farmers and of processors are now meeting in Washington to assist in making those decisions. As each decision is made, notice of it will be given to all newspapers, organizations, national, state and local, will be formed to further the purposes of the act as fast as decisions are made. All classes of people will be represented on the bodies which administer the act.

measure so that any excess would be impounded in the state treasury and spent only by legislative appropriation. This little amendment, if it remains in the bill during the final days of consideration, will keep the excess money, if there should be any, from being used in any old-way state officials might desire.

There is this much that can be said about the enactment of a sales tax bill—legislative observers declare that the passage of the measure in its present form, will take from the people of Michigan millions of dollars more in taxes than at any time in the history of the state. The bill is going to tax practically everything bought and sold.

Rep. Earl Berhans, who comes from the Van Buren district, a veteran legislator who has never lost an opportunity to aid the farmers of his part of Michigan, has just won an outstanding legislative victory. He has had passed by both the house and senate a bill which will save farmers and fruit growers many thousands of dollars each year. Mr. Berhans comes from a section of Michigan where fruit growing and grape raising is one of the chief industries. Farmers in the past have seen large portions of their crops go to waste because they could not be sold before spoiling. They started to make cider out of the apples and press the juice out of the grapes, and selling the juices.

If weather conditions happened to be unfavorable and these juices were not sold within three or four days, sometimes there might be a slight fermentation. Mr. Berhans saw an opportunity to help these farmers by making it possible for them to sell their cider and grape juice in bulk and fixing a limit within the law of fifteen days. The act provides that if cider and other fruit juice is sold within fifteen days from the time it is pressed from the fruit, it shall not be declared intoxicating. This act will save a large sum to the farmers in that part of the state as well as in other Michigan localities where fruit growing is an important industry. Rep. Berhans had the same kind of a bill passed two years ago but the ex-governor vetoed it.

Rep. Don Sias and Senator Lamar, both of Kent county, who are active in the investigation of farm machinery prices in Michigan, are anxious to secure all the information they can on this subject. They have requested farmers and implement dealers as well as others to send them any information they may have on this subject. The legislature approved a bill in money for their inquiry so their activities are either hampered.

Efforts during the early part of the legislative session to close up some of the normal schools has failed. Appropriation: Five have been made for all of them, but in greatly reduced amounts.

Jobs, jobs, jobs—hundreds of them, have been created and are going to be created by the enactment of legislation during the present session. The beer bill has already created dozens and dozens of jobs and the sales tax bill will require a small sized army to collect the tax. In fact the measure carries an original appropriation of $100,000 for help and incidental expenses necessary to set up the organization for the collection of this money. But with an army of thousands tramping to Lansing each week looking for collection positions of some kind, it should be expected that some of these hordes should be taken care of.

Sparks of genius have nothing in common with lovenaking.

INDIANS WON 4TH VICTORY SUNDAY

DEFEATED BOYNE CITY BY 10 TO 9 SCORE

Team Plays Kegomic Sunday, at Ellsworth May 30 — Join League, Open Schedule Here June 4

The Charlevoix Indians maintained an unblemished record Sunday by defeating Boyne City 10 to 9 for their fourth consecutive victory. A run in the last half of the ninth inning broke a 9-9 tie and gave Charlevoix its victory.

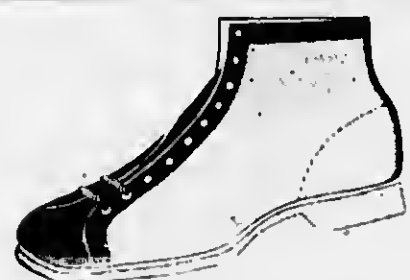

Colby and Tookalo formed the Charlevoix battery until the seventh inning when Amos John replaced Colby. Peters and Bradley were the losing battery, Peters retiring for a substitute in the sixth.

Boyne piled up five runs in the first two innings to Charlevoix's one. The Indians made the count 5 to 3 in favor of Boyne in the third, but the visitors added another in their half of the sixth to lead 6 and 3. Charlevoix went into the lead for the first time in the sixth, scoring four runs for a short-lived 7 to 6 advantage. Boyne tied the count 7-all in the seventh and both teams scored twice in the eighth, knotting the count at 9-all. With two out in the ninth, Richardson singled, stole second and came in on John's safe hit.

Play Kegomic Sunday
The Indians take on the strong Kegomic team from the Emmet county league next Sunday. It will be their fifth home game. The contest will be called at 2:30 o'clock.

Another baseball development in which the Charlevoix organization will play a prominent part is the recent formation of a Charlevoix-Aurtrim county league. Member teams are Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City, Central Lake, Bellaire and Alba.

Summing it all up, here is what MANAMAR will do for you:

1. It will raise a larger percentage of chicks.
2. It will grow them faster.
3. It will grow them with less feed per pound of gain.
4. It will produce pullets from one-half pound to one pound heavier at six months of age.
5. It will produce pullets that will lay market size eggs in less time.
6. It will produce heavier broilers at less feed cost and in less time.
7. It will reduce your year's mortality in many instances to one quarter or less of the former figure.
8. It will increase the hatchability of eggs, and the livability of the chicks.
9. It will give you eggs of a distinctly higher market value, with better shipping qualities, stronger shells, and heavier weight.
10. It will reduce the moulting period.
11. It will reduce, if not eliminate, your loss from anemia.

These are strong statements, but all we ask is an opportunity to prove them to you, in your own flocks, in your own pens.

REBUILT FORT TO BE OPENED JULY FIRST

Historic Mackinac Massacre Will Be Re-enacted at Celebration

Restoration of old Forts Michilimackinac stockade at Mackinac City and its official opening by Governor Comstock on July 1, with a local program and pageantry re-enacting the massacre of the garrison in 1763, is the stellar attraction intended to focus wide-spread attention upon the North Country this season.

The official opening of the stockade at Mackinac City will be followed with the official opening of Fort Mackinac on Mackinac Island, for the season on July 2, 3 and 4, with a grand Fourth of July celebration. Governor Comstock and a party of 25 or 30 state officials will go to the Island from Mackinac City following the program and opening of Michilimackinac stockade, to remain through the Fourth.

4. The examination of the school at regular intervals by inspectors and supervisors serves to stimulate progress and to prevent the development of questionable practices and tendencies.

5. A high school accredited by the North Central Association enjoys a greater prestige in the surrounding country and therefore finds it easier to attract non-resident pupils.

ANNUAL JUNIOR HOP A COLORFUL EVENT

Over Two Hundred Couples Enjoyed Party Last Friday Evening

Another Charlevoix J-Hop has passed into history as a successful climax to the social activities of the year for high school students.

Over two hundred couples were guests of the junior class at the gymnasium last Friday evening. Much time and effort was represented in the beautiful decorations, reflecting much credit to the committee in charge.

Wexstaff's orchestra furnished music for the evening and presented the Mac Kosak dancing school of Petoskey, in a group of novelty numbers. This talented group of pupils included Lily Murray, Louise Gruler, Virginia VanLeuven, Virginia Gokee, Jean Shurtz, Betty Wolf and Robert Steffel, as well as little four-year-old Arva June Phillips, acrobatic dancer.

If troubled with headache, dizziness, nervousness or any other symptom of eye-strain, consult Dr. Leahy, the Optometrist, at the Hotel Charlevoix, Monday, May 29. Hours from 9 to 5.—Adv. 202.

* LEGION ACTIVITIES *

Edited by F. V. Tyler

Saturday, May 27, will be Poppy day in Charlevoix. Headquarters for the sale of the poppies, which will be in charge of the local unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, will be the building formerly occupied by the baked goods shop next to the Charlevoix Fruit Co. store. Members of the Auxiliary will be in attendance and nine girls from the upper two grades of the junior high school have volunteered to make a house to house canvass with the poppies. They will be asked to report for duty at 9:30 a. m., Saturday, at the poppy headquarters. The amount paid for these poppies by the local post is turned over to the disabled veterans in the government hospitals who make these poppies with their own hands. They sell on the street for ten cents each and the profit goes to local welfare work among the needy veterans and their families.

Notice of the Memorial Sunday and Memorial day programs will be found elsewhere in these columns and it is hoped that all veterans will turn out in force and make this the most impressive Memorial celebration ever held in this city.

After Memorial day, the next important event will be the district meeting for the lower eleven districts at Alpena which takes place Sunday, June 4th. The program will appear in a later issue. An effort will be made to get the bugle and drum corps to go over in full strength and all Legionnaires and ex-service men are urged to go, as Alpena has more than once stood aside for Charlevoix, Petoskey and other towns in this district and is due for a reward.

If you do not feel able to attend the banquet, take a lunch or eat at a restaurant. But go, in any event.

Charles McCarthy, in charge of the Legion field devoted to community gardening, reports all the plots taken and applications still coming in. Don't forget the benefit musical entertainment at the high school gym on Friday evening, June 2nd, conducted by Mrs. Mildred Bekinger MacArthur of Flint and her daughter, Miss Mildred MacArthur. The program for this entertainment will appear next week.

THE CHARLEVOIX COURIER, WEDNESDAY, MAY 31, 1933

PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

COUNCIL ADOPTS REDUCED BUDGET

SUBSTANTIAL CUT MADE BUT TAX RATE REMAINS SAME

Other Business Included Adoption Fire and Garbage Ordinances — Lease of Tourist Camp, Airport

Meeting in special session Monday night, the Charlevoix city council adopted a reduced budget for the fiscal year of 1933-34 and approved several other matters of importance. While the budget was reduced from $323,363.00 to $304,485.75, the tax rate of 10 mills remains the same as last year, due to a drop of approximately $200,000.00 in real and personal property valuation for the same period.

The 1933-34 tax rate, designed to provide 7 1/2 mills for general purposes and 2 1/2 mills for interest and sinking fund to retire bonds during the coming year, and including the 1.2 mills allocated by the county tax commission, is at the same figure as a year ago.

Following is the budget adopted, as well as figures of the previous year:

Fund	New	Old
Contingent	6,364.31	6,590.40
Health	300.00	400.00
Cemetery	2,100.00	2,500.00
Police	2,100.00	2,200.00
Fire	1,500.00	1,800.00
Park	1,200.00	1,300.00
Street	6,000.00	7,000.00
Sewer	1,200.00	1,500.00
Advertising	1,800.00	2,000.00
Auto Camp	300.00	1,000.00
Int. & Sink	7,621.75	6,472.60

Total $304,485.75 $323,363.00

With revenues from the electric light and water departments, the city expects to have available something over $100,000 for the ensuing year, less tax and utility delinquencies. Between 30 and 40 per cent of last summer's tax is still delinquent, and patrons are in arrears for electric lights and water to the amount of around $6,000 at the present time.

In addition to general operating expenses, the city has between eight and ten thousand dollars in bonds coming due, and in 1934 the village bridge bond issue of $25,000, now 40 years old, must be met. These items account for the increased budget for the interest and sinking fund.

Utility Rates Unchanged
By ordinance adopted each year, the council left the electric light and water rates unchanged.

A savings of between $400 and $800 a year for operation of the tourist camp is anticipated through lease of the camp to Hugh L. Brady, caretaker. The lease, running five years, provides a salary of $250 a year in addition to fees and concession privileges. The lease provides the city may purchase any improvements made personally by Mr. Brady at the end of the five-year period for 50 per cent of their original inventory. Mr. Brady plans to erect a number of over-night cabins at the camp and adopt other methods of making it self-sustaining, as approved and sanctioned by the council.

Extend Fire Zones
An ordinance extending the fire zoning limits to include the entire city was adopted. The ordinance sets up restrictions as to construction of business places on Bridge street and chimneys in residential districts among other things, and authorizes the council to set hearings for removal of undesirable buildings deemed a fire hazard. It further gives the council power to authorize the fire chief to carry out its decisions in such matters. Action anticipated following adoption of the ordinance will result in the removal of many buildings which now tend to increase fire insurance rates.

Another ordinance adopted provides a license fee of $50 annually for all persons engaged in gathering garbage in the city limits, and gives city authorities the power of inspection.

COUNTY BANK PAYS INTEREST TO DEPOSITORS ON JUNE FIRST

In an advertisement elsewhere in this issue, the Charlevoix County bank announces the payment of $3,500.00 in interest on savings accounts June 1st.

The County bank, oldest banking institution in Charlevoix county, has paid out a total of $177,000.00 in interest on savings accounts in the past ten years.

tion of methods, types of containers used, etc.

Provide for Airport
Charlevoix is assured an approved and improved airport for a period of five years. The council voted to enter contract with Mrs. Lota Coulter for lease of her property now used as an airport for a period of five years at a rental of $300 annually. The lease gives the city the bay grown upon the property, and also permission to remove such trees and fences deemed necessary. An entrance to the airport will be built off the Marion Center road. Other improvements, to be made in cooperation with the Michigan department of aeronautics, include cutting of runways, leveling rough spots, cutting several trees and removing one fence, marking of landing circle, etc. Sheldon B. Steers, department inspector, has already looked over and approved the field, and will come here immediately to recommend and assist in making other necessary changes which will place the airport in excellent condition.

CHARLEVOIX PAID TRIBUTE TUESDAY

MEMORIAL DAY FITTINGLY OBSERVED WITH PROGRAM

Portion of Exercises Held at Gymnasium Because of Inclement Weather of Morning

Inclement weather, Tuesday, prevented many of Charlevoix' citizens from enjoying the usual out-of-door ceremonies at the memorial park and cemetery on Decoration day.

The parade formed at the appointed time on Park avenue, but rain drove the marchers to seek shelter on nearby porches and in their cars. When the downpour let up a trifle, spectators were directed by Marshal of the Day Floyd Black to the high school gymnasium where the unexpected showers made it necessary to assemble for the major part of the program.

The high school band opened the exercises, following which Rev. W. W. Hurd pronounced the invocation and there was another selection by the band, after which the Legion quintet, composed of Messrs. Poole, Hamlin, Wilkinson, Tyler and North sang two patriotic numbers. Judge Joseph P. Murphy of Petoskey, speaker of the day, was introduced and made a very interesting and stirring address on the duty of the present generation of veterans to take up the charge placed upon their shoulders by members of rapidly thinning ranks of Civil War heroes to preserve Memorial day as one of the sacred traditions of the nation. "The Star Spangled Banner" was played by the band, while the veterans stood at salute and the benediction by Rev. W. H. Rauch closed the indoor ceremonies.

The skies having cleared somewhat, the parade was re-formed and marched to the city memorial park on Bridge street, where the bugle and drum corps of the Legion and the firing squad from the coast guard station conducted the proper flag ceremony and the Woman's Relief Corps performed their ritual and paid homage to the boys who died at sea by casting a wreath of flowers on the waters of Round lake.

Four huddles and the firing squad were then sent to the cemetery, where a number of cars with spectators had awaited the belated parade. "Retreat," "To The Colors" and "Taps" were played, and the rifles volleyed three times over the graves of the soldier dead.

NOVOTNY SHIP MODEL IS MARVELOUS WORK

Miniature of French Ship "La Couronne" Goes to World Fair

What is claimed to be a marvelous piece of workmanship is a model of the French ship "La Couronne," year 1635, constructed by Frank Novotny, local tinsmith and now on display at Campbell's boat shop.

The model, containing 3,482 pieces of copper and brass, required 2,468 hours of work. Mr. Novotny started its construction January 14, 1929, and completed the task early this week. The model's 72 guns are mounted on wheels and may be moved backward and forward. Critics have found but a slight variance from the original.

The model will be displayed at the World Fair in Chicago.

QUO WARRANTO PETITION IS DENIED

REMOVAL OF L. C. ROUSE BY SUPERVISORS IS UPHOLD

Former County Road Commissioner Loses Circuit Court Action—Former Wilson Officer Sentenced

Presiding at a special session of circuit court Monday, Judge Parm C. Gilbert denied quo warranto petition of Laverne C. Rouse, Boyne City, former Charlevoix county road commissioner, and declared Samuel E. Rogers, East Jordan, duly elected his successor by the board of supervisors at their meeting of October 19, 1932.

In denying Rouse's petition, the court upheld the action of the supervisors in removing Rouse from office as legal and fully within their authority. Rouse's ejection came after extended litigation for the reason that as general manager of the General Oil Company of Boyne City, he had sold gasoline and petroleum products to the commission of which he was a member, in direct violation of the law. The attorney general's department, investigating the matter on petition, had previously rendered an opinion that sufficient evidence had been disclosed to warrant charges of malfeasance in office.

Rouse was given a hearing during the summer of 1932, and in July, at a special meeting, the board of supervisors deadlocked by a 12 to 12 vote on his retention in office. The matter was taken up again at the October session, and by a majority vote, the office was declared vacant and Rogers elected to fill the vacancy.

The Rouse matter, now apparently settled unless appeal is made within the 20-day period set by the court, has been a bitter political issue in the county for more than a year, has cost taxpayers a pretty sum of money and resulted in no gain other than from a political standpoint.

Rouse was represented in court by Attorneys Patchin and Memmick of Traverse City, and Benjamin Halstead of Petoskey. Appearing for Rogers were Rollie L. Lewis of this city, and J. M. Harris of Boyne City.

Schultz Is Sentenced

At a special session last Friday afternoon, Frank Schultz, former Wilson township highway commissioner, was sentenced to serve from 18 months to 14 years at Jackson prison for forgery. If Schultz pays court costs of $100 within 90 days, 90 days will be deducted from the sentence. Otherwise 18 months was recommended as the minimum term. Schultz previously served 20 days in jail here on the same charge, resulting, it is understood, from issuing township orders to fictitious persons and cashing them for his own gain. Court convened again Wednesday for final hearing of the Charlevoix Hardware Company receivership.

On Friday evening, June 2nd, Charlevoix music lovers will be afforded an unusual treat in the exceptionally fine program to be presented by Mrs. Mildred Eckinger McArthur of Flint and her daughter, Miss Mildred Mae McArthur. No admission will be charged to this entertainment, but a free-will silver offering is solicited for the benefit of the welfare work conducted by Legion, to which Mrs. McArthur and her daughter are devoting their talents and effort without compensation. Mrs. McArthur and her daughter are well known in Charlevoix and have a wide circle of friends and acquaintances throughout the county. The former Miss "Ollie" Eckinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Eckinger of this city, is the possessor of a beautiful and excellently trained soprano voice that has, on many occasions, delighted Charlevoix audiences in a wide repertoire of vocal selections. Her daughter, Miss Mildred Mae McArthur, is an accomplished reader with marked dramatic ability and a charming personality.

Since her residence in Flint, Mrs. McArthur has become prominent in musical circles in the southern part of the state and has conducted several outstanding performances that have given her an enviable standing as a soloist of high rank. Her sponsorship of a musical entertainment has come to mean a guarantee of satisfaction to the most exacting critics.

F. B. GILL ACQUIRES CANNING FACTORY

Company Whose Bid Was Accepted Failed to Post Bond

F. B. Gill, manager of the Central Lake Canning company for thirty years, was given a lease on the Central Lake plant Thursday, which he will operate until January 1.

The lease was granted by the court with the sanction of the company's receiver, F. M. Malone. In renting the factory, Mr. Gill agrees to pay all this year's taxes, insurance and the up-keep while it is in operation.

The Pducach Food Products company bid on the plant on the condition that they pay $4,000 down and give bond for the balance, the entire amount to be paid within 30 days. They failed to comply with the order of the court.

Mr. Gill states that he will contract corn, squash, pumpkins and probably a few beets and carrots. — Central Lake Torch.

STATE TO PROVIDE FOR POOR SCHOOLS

HOUSE VOTED FIFTEEN MILLIONS IN AID

New Bill Repeals Turner Law for Aiding Poor School Districts—$30,000,000 Available

The house has passed and sent to the senate the bill providing $15,000,000 state aid to the public schools in Michigan in each of the next two years. There was only one dissenting vote, that by Rep. J. W. Helme, Adrian, R.

The bill prepares the state to turn $15,000,000 in state revenues into the depleted coffers of the local school districts which this year will be limited to a property tax of four mills.

Combined with the primary school fund already in existence, it will represent an allocation of between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 annually by the state toward the support of the elementary schools. The total will be dependent upon the size of the primary school fund which is created by the tax upon public utilities.

In past years this fund has mounted to as high as $24,000,000, but a year ago it dropped to $21,000,000. This year, however, it will probably fall to $15,000,000 or lower because of the fact that the rate assessed upon the utilities is the average real estate tax paid throughout the state. This rate will decline as the result of last fall's constitutional amendment limiting the levy on property to 15 mills.

Distribution of the $30,000,000 will be almost the same as the method now followed in allocating the primary school fund and the $2,000,000 appropriation to "poor" school districts under the Turner act, which is repealed in the pending bill.

Ten per cent of the total is set aside to be prorated on a student population basis while the remaining ten per cent is to be used as an "equalizing" fund for the assistance of some districts where the general method is inequitable. In both instances, however, the distribution is so arranged as to benefit the district which affects low property tax assessments.

STATE ACTS SAVE SCHOOL SYSTEMS

PROVIDE FUNDS TO AID THE POORER DISTRICTS

Fifteen Million Dollars from Proposed Sales Tax is Voted to Provide Necessary Funds

(By Elton R. Eaton.)

When the voters of Michigan went to the polls a year ago and voted to change the system of taxation in this state, hundreds of thousands of them did not realize that they had endangered the educational system of Michigan. Little did they think that through their vote that unless drastic action of some kind was taken the educational opportunities offered the boys and girls of Michigan had been terminated.

School leaders by working night and day have worked out a plan whereby it is hoped that the rural, village and city public schools of Michigan can be continued as in the past.

Through a bill that was prepared by Rep. Thomas Thatcher of Muskegon, for many years a well known educator of western Michigan and Rep. Don Sias of Midland, a former educator, it is proposed to take $15,000,000 from the sales tax revenues that are to be collected and divert these funds to the schools of the state. This sum will be handled just as has been the primary school fund of the past.

The entire $15,000,000 will not go directly into the primary school fund, but the measure provides that ninety per cent of it shall. The other ten per cent will be used to help build up the poorer school districts. This part of the measure supplants the Turner act which had for its object the aiding of the poorer schools but in reality did not work out just that way. The Thatcher-Sias bill provides this aid so that only the poorer schools receive its benefit.

These two members of the house have had the assistance of Supt. Webster Peck and a large number of other prominent educators of the state.

While there has been a general fear that the educational system of Michigan was the object of a general attack on the part of many who think too much money is spent for the education of the children when the crisis arrived in the legislature, only a few can be found who are not thoroughly in accord with the plan to keep Michigan's educational standards as high as present conditions will permit.

Former State Rep. John Espie, who during the many years he was a member of the state legislature is a representative of the farmers of the state, declares after making a careful study of the numerous sales tax bills before the legislature that Michigan farmers are going to pay just as much as they ever did. Under the new sales tax system that is sure to be adopted, there is no way the farmer can escape paying this tax. In fact there are others associated with the legislature who have the same idea as Mr. Espie. Some even go so far as to say that the farmer will pay more than ever before. Only time will tell.

There will be something like 450 or 500 bills that will die in committee when the session comes to an end. Even though a very large per cent of the legislature is composed of new members they have learned how to have bills prepared and introduced. Many of them are silly and disgusting. Many have been introduced to satisfy some little group of constituents or some one "leading" politician of the home town district. Michigan can be thankful that many of these bills never got beyond committees.

The outstanding features of the Memorial Sunday service were the large representation of the different organizations and the presentation of the charter and charter membership list framed separately. The presentation was known to only one or two previous to the service. It was made possible by the willingness and splendid penmanship of D. E. Blake. Two other interesting events were the memorial for members and friends of our own fellowship, and the presentation of Master John Robert Tuttle for baptism by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. Y. Tuttle, who were in the city over the holiday.

Next Sunday we will entertain two very distinguished guests, the local high school junior class and the Cotton Club girls. The last group is headed by Miss Vera Belding. Music by the senior girls. In the evening the baccalaureate service will be held in the high school auditorium at 8 o'clock.

Children's day will be observed in the Sunday school at the regular Sunday school time. In connection with this service there will be baptism and dedication of children.

The junior church and senior C. E. held their last meeting for the season last Sunday. A picnic will be enjoyed by the junior church and a beach party by the older group to round out our program.

The exact date of the Vacation Bible school has not been fixed. Circumstances will delay the opening perhaps two weeks. No doubt the opening day will be June 19.

Greater Than the Fabled Romance of Cinderella

An article, in The American Weekly, with next Sunday's Detroit Times, tells of the astonishing career of a Japanese girl who was rescued from a Tokyo den of vice, married her rescuer and helped him climb from obscure poverty to Premier of Japan thus making her a Countess and a Lady of The Imperial Court.

It spoils a favor if you are asked to return it.

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

May 22, 1933

I suppose that I may claim to be the first Ford Dealer. I not only made cars, but sold them and frequently delivered them myself.

The "drive away" is not new; often I have driven cars from Detroit to towns in Ohio or Indiana or Michigan to make delivery.

There were no good roads in those days, and the people where I drove had never seen a motor car before.

My first really enthusiastic customers were Country Doctors. They were the first to realize the value of dependable transportation to a widely scattered practice.

Even today I occasionally hear from some of those first Ford users. We had to teach local mechanics how to care for the cars. That is how Ford Service began, which is now found everywhere in the world.

We believed from the beginning that a sale does not complete our transaction with our customer — it creates upon us an obligation to see that our customer's car gives him service. Ford Dealers know their duty to the public in this respect.

I can say of Ford Dealers generally that they have been and are men of character and standing in their communities. Most of them have been with us many years, which indicates that we agree on basic business principles. The Company provides that the methods used to sell the Ford car are consistent with the self-respect of the Dealers who handle it.

The present Ford V-8 is the peak of our 30 years experience. We have never made a better car. Its eight-cylinder engine is powerful and smooth running. The car is admittedly very good looking and has comfortable riding qualities. It is economical in operation because of advanced engine design and low car weight. It is the fastest, roomiest and most powerful car we have ever built.

ODE TO SPRING

Been out of doors, neighbor, for a smell of spring-scented air? Tried digging in the garden, to see what's growing there? Have you gone golfing, out where it's clean and bright? Or maybe just plain walking, 'til town was way out of sight?

Been listening to the radio, friend, about spring tonics and such? That's just plain poppycock, your pocket-book's all they'll touch! Clean air from the heavens, from the garden fresh food; that's all you need to feel better than good.

Here's my toast to you, good neighbor friend: the best health in the world, 'till life's very end. You can't buy it, e'en with a doctor's fee. Just proves again: Life's best things are free!—Michigan Tuberculosis Association.

OLD FORT MACKINAC

Judging from reports it appears the first thing the new Mackinac Island state park commission did when it took charge and began to prepare the old fort for reception of visitors this summer, was to provide adequate fire protection. Fire hydrants were extended to serve any part of the fort, new and enough hose purchased to reach any fire, a fire bell was installed, state employees organized into a drilled fire department, and each building was provided with fire extinguishers. Buildings at the old fort are valued at $250,000, but their historic value is priceless. Savings in insurance will pay for the new equipment while the property will be protected from possible losses that could never have been regained.

Elaborate preparations are under way for the official opening of old Fort Michilimackinac stockade at Mackinaw City, which has been restored, on July 1. Governor Comstock and a party of 25 state officials will take part in the ceremonies. In the evening the governor and his party will go to Mackinac Island for a week-end holiday and the official opening of old Fort Mackinac, July 4, with a grand Fourth of July celebration.

RESTORING CONFIDENCE

The bill introduced in the legislature by Rep. Vern J. Brown to abolish the securities commission, which was passed by the house practically without opposition, has a companion measure in the senate by Senator Wilkoski proposing the creation of an entirely new commission.

The question naturally arises why one commission should be abolished and a similar one set up in its place. The explanation is given that with the naming of an entirely new body, faith in the state's ability to safeguard the sale of securities to the public will be restored, something practically needed at a time when investors seem to have put the "thumbs down" sign on all securities because of a general belief that issues designed for the investing public have been too loosely scrutinized in the past.

With the element of fear removed, with new teeth in the law to prevent unloading of worthless stocks on an unsuspecting public, financing of deserving enterprise will once more be possible. It is adequately clear that until industry is properly financed we cannot hope for a general resumption of prosperity, and if the creation of a new securities commission will serve to help bring this about the move will be well justified.

INSULT OR FAVOR?

The order of Secretary of the Interior Ickes dropping the name "Hoover" from the Colorado river dam project and substituting the original designation of Boulder dam appears to be a bit of "peanut" politics, but perhaps it is no more political than Secretary Wilbur's former action in appending President Hoover's name to the development.

Without recognizing the fact, Mr. Ickes may be doing Mr. Hoover a favor. Boulder dam seems to be a white elephant of the first magnitude and there is nothing in view that will change its classification as such. As it nears completion its extravagance becomes more and more evident. The future is not apt to make it less tasteful. If the truth about this project ever is properly impressed upon the American people Mr. Hoover may be pleased that his name is not attached.

This might well be kept in mind in connection with other dream developments which demagogic politicians are foisting upon the government—Muske Shoals, the Columbia basin, etc. They are too much loaded with political dynamite and scandalous economies for presidents or other high officials to lend their names to them.—Grand Rapids Press.

GENERAL ROD LICENSE IS PLACED IN EFFECT

Action by Legislature Makes 50c Fee Compulsory At Once

The Michigan state legislature has given immediate effect to the general rod license. This action, coming after the signing of the law by the governor, was based upon an opinion of the attorney general.

Previously, the department of conservation had been instructed to apply the new license fee of 50 cents only to trout fishermen during the 1933 season. However, under the present ruling every resident of the state over 18 years of age must possess a license to fish for any species in the inland waters.

However, according to Director George R. Hogarth, it will take several days to get the license forms in the hands of the department's 1,800 dealers and it will be some time before the new requirements will become generally known.

The opening of the general fishing season June 25th has been set as the tentative date when strict enforcement of the general rod license provisions will go into effect.

DIPS HELP SHEEP GAIN MORE WEIGHT

Protecting Animals From External Parasites Done Quickly

Sheep should be dipped as soon after shearing as sufficient wool has been grown to hold the dipping solution, which kills external parasites and so enables the animal to make better gains in flesh, according to the animal husbandry department at Michigan State college.

The dipping can be done easily and cheaply if a good type of tank is used and a drain is provided for the dipped sheep to stand on while the excess dip is draining from the wool. Plans for such tanks can be obtained from the agricultural engineering department at the college, and the tank itself can be built as a community enterprise so that the cost to each flock owner is small.

Our Government—How It Operates

By William Bruckart

PASSING A BILL

IT IS an obvious fact that the odds, and they are heavy odds, are always against the passage of the average piece of legislation introduced in the house or senate. The reason is that there are actually thousands of them. In the ordinary session of congress there will be from 3,000 to 5,000 bills offered in the senate, and three or four times that number presented in the house. The number of bills that eventually become law is quite small.

So the fact that a bill receives approval of the committee to which it was referred and that it has been given a place on the calendar of business, assures nothing at all insofar as the average legislative proposal is concerned. There always are certain types of bills that will receive attention on the floor of the house and senate, but they are negligible in number.

To be sure, then, that the bill we will discuss can have final action and will not find its way into a pigeon-hole of a committee room or be allowed to die on the calendar of business with no record of having lived at all, let us take the case of the bill creating the Reconstruction Finance corporation, passed by the last congress. Legislation of that type was recommended by the President. No sooner had congress convened than bills of identical language were introduced in both the house and the senate. This was done to enable rapid consideration, since it was recognized that the legislation was urgently necessary.

It received consideration in the house after this manner: following the committee report, two whole days were given over to a general discussion of the legislation. Expressives were allowed considerable time each in which to talk about it—and other things that came into their minds. At the end of that "general debate," the reading of the bill began.

Although the visitor in the gallery could hardly make out what was going on, the reading clerk was reading every line of the bill that was to set up a gigantic, federal-owned corporation which could make loans to help out banks, railroads, insurance companies, etc., who were sound but whose assets were tied up as a result of the depression. Following that reading the bill was "open to amendment," and it was then that the house membership individually began to exert the power that reposes in them. Eventually, amendments were accepted or rejected until a majority of the members were satisfied with the bill, or at least enough of them were satisfied with it to constitute a controlling group. A roll call was had and the bill was passed.

Attendees of the house scurried around and made a "time copy" of the bill, and one of them carried it over to the north end of the Capitol where the senate sits. This had to be done while the senate was in session. Through the same routine of committee procedure in the senate, it went. It was reported with a recommendation that it be passed but "with amendments," for the senate committee had other ideas. The senate voted to give the bill its immediate attention, and debate began a general talkfest. More amendments were proposed and some of them were accepted by the senate, and in the end the bill as it came from the house was hard to recognize in the language which the senate passed as the shape in which it wanted the law to be.

A senate messenger then had the duty of advising the house that the "reconstruction bill," as it had come to be known, had been passed by the senate but that it had been amended. Of course, the convenience of the house was requested but everybody knew that the house would not concur just that way. Instead, the house requested a "conference" with the senate, and the senate agreed. Each house then named five of its members—they always are from the committee that handled the bill—and in due time these ten individuals tried to reach an accord on the terms of the legislation in a meeting among themselves.

This is where the greatest game of horse trading in the world has its beginning. Each house wanted the bill the way it was passed, but each house obviously could not have it that way. So these ten conferees began swapping. The senate group says, for example, we will give up this amendment if the house will give up that proposition, and they work along, always behind closed doors for that is the only way possible for them to reach an agreement. The whole affair is not unlike the story of the two boys in the cantonment. "You take this one and I'll take that one," began that frightened colored man, who thought the souls of the departed were being divided, is absent from the proceedings.

Ordinarily, these groups of conferees settle things satisfactory to the house and senate which in turn agree to the conference report and the bill goes to the President for his signature. They did agree in the case mentioned, but sometimes they don't and they are ordered back into conference again and again until all of the differences have been reconciled.

Ideas on Mixing of Pastry Flour

Proper Proportions Come First, and the Rest Is Mere Knack.

This article is devoted to the subject of pastry, which has an undeserved reputation for being difficult to make.

First, there is the flour—either bread or pastry flour can be used for plain pastry. For puff pastry a quick puff paste bread flour must be used. Then there is the shortening. Lard or one of the hardened vegetable fats makes pastry tender. Butter, of course, gives more flavor and in some recipes you see a combination of it with the other more bland fats. Whatever fat is used must be hard, and that means cold. The flour and salt are sifted together. All the shortening is added at once, and then it is cut into the flour with two knives. A chopping knife may be used if you have a smooth wooden bowl in which the pastry may be mixed.

The fat should not be cut too fine, as small particles of fat make pastry flaky. You may see some cooks use their hands to mix pastry, but if hands are naturally warm, the fat will not combine with the flour in the right way.

The proportion of flour to fat, which makes a pastry rich enough to be tender, but which at the same time will roll easily, is three to one. After the fat is cut in the water is added. This is the only special point in making pastry. Care must be taken to add just enough, for if the dough gets too wet we cannot add extra flour without making the final product tough. I make a hole in one side of the mixed flour and fat and add one tablespoon of water and stir into that with a stiff knife enough water to make a stiff dough. I do the same at two other places in the dough. This will leave some loose flour, so I then take my fingers and press the balls of dough and the extra flour together. If I need a little more moisture I add a few drops of water at a time. The water used in mixing pastry must, of course, be very cold.

After the mixing is done it is a good idea to chill the dough before rolling, as it will be much easier to handle then. I usually wrap it tightly in a piece of waxed paper. It will keep indefinitely in the refrigerator, so it can be kept on hand. When I am ready to make up my pie, I take the dough out, cut off a piece to roll on a board, or a table top dusted very lightly with flour. Pastry should be rolled gently, starting from the center and rolling in each direction, so as to make the sheet somewhat the shape of the pie pan. The sheet of dough should be lifted during the rolling to prevent its sticking. The rolling should be done gently.

For a pastry shell, the dough should be pressed over the edges and cut off. For a double crust pie it should be allowed to extend over the edge. After the filling is put in, the edge should be moistened before the top crust is put over, and pressed to the lower crust. The edges may be trimmed with the scissors and turned over, or bound with an extra strip of crust. In either case, the edges should be pressed flat with the fingers, or those of a fork. Sifts should be made in the center to let out the steam of the boiling filling.

To prevent the crust of a fruit pie from soaking, use one tablespoon of flour with the same amount of sugar and sprinkle over the bottom of the lined pan before filling. A fruit pie needs a hot oven for ten minutes, after which the temperature should be lowered. A pastry shell should have a hot oven throughout the baking.

Small tarts are prepared in the same way as a large pie, but with a little shorter time for baking. The tart shells can be filled with fresh fruit or berries, or with a crust, and topped either with whipped cream or a meringue to give the finishing touch. When a pie is covered with meringue, it must go back to the oven to set and brown the meringue. A slow oven 300 to 325 degrees F. for ten to fifteen minutes gives the best results.

RAILROAD OFFERS
REDUCED CARFAREPERE MARQUETTE SUMMER
SCHEDULE NOW IN EFFECTSpecial Rates to Chicago for World Fair New Inducement to the Traveling Public

In accordance with their usual custom, the Pere Marquette Railway company, which serves Charlevoix and other Northern Michigan resorts, has placed in operation a scale of reduced passenger rates to stimulate resort travel into this region.

Special rates went into effect about May 15th and will be continued throughout the summer.

From Chicago, a special 30-day round trip ticket is issued for $18.05, a season round trip ticket, good any time during the early spring, summer and early fall months for $21.65, and a week end ticket for $14.90.

On the Detroit division, which this year will be routed through Grand Rapids in-weekly to connect with the Chicago train, instead of operating through Baldwin, the 30-day round trip ticket comes to $15.30, the season ticket at $18.31, and the week end ticket at $12.60. Trains will operate northbound Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and southbound Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday.

These bargain fares are only a trifle higher than the ordinary one-way fare, and give impetus to an increase of tourist traffic into Northern Michigan resorts.

The railroad is also offering special rates to Chicago for the World Fair, good from May 26th to October 29th. A special 30-day ticket is offered for fare and a half for the round trip.

Advance information regarding the regular resort special trains has not been received yet, but it is believed the first train will be around June 10th.

CHURCH

Sunday morning service, 10:45. Subject, "God the Only Cause and Creator."

Wednesday evening at 7:45, first Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mermerism and Hynotism, Denounced" was the subject of the lesson-lesson in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, May 28.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (1 Peter 5:10): "But the God of all grace, who hath called us unto his eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, stablish, strengthen, settle you."

Correlative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p. 218): "What renders both sin and sickness difficult of cure is, that the human mind is the sinner, disinclined to self-correction, and believing that the body can be sick independently of mortal mind and that the divine Mind has no jurisdiction over the body."

Keep the Streets Clean

"People carrying rubbish to the city dumping grounds are asked not to dump their loads along the roadside, but to keep right on down the road to the place provided for this purpose. The city street commissioner has spent several days cleaning and grading the road to the city dump and intends to keep the street clean. If citizens persist in dumping their rubbish along the roadside, they will be apprehended and punished to the fullest extent of the law. A little co-operation will help keep highways about the city clean and presentable. Please remember, take your rubbish to the dumping ground. Charlevoix Street Commissioner—Adv. 2112.

FIFTY-TWO MICHIGAN
PARKS OPEN TO PUBLICFinances May Result in Closing of Several After June 30

Fifty-two Michigan state parks are now under administration and are open to the public.

All of these parks will remain open until June 30 when the parks division of the department of conservation ends its fiscal year. How many parks will be continued open from July 1 to the close of the 1933 season will depend upon the funds that will be available during that time. Present indications point to a 50 per cent closing.

The parks now open to the public are the same parks which were open during the 1932 season and which reported for the year an attendance of almost ten million people.

All of the parks superintendents and employees began preparations for the opening May 22 and practically every park was open May 27 in preparation for the Memorial day crowds.

At a few parks which were under administration through the entire year large early-season crowds have been reported and a number of campers were registered at camp grounds all through May.

Meeting

The members of the Charlevoix County Guernsey Breeders association held their annual meeting last Friday night in the East Jordan library. The election of officers took place, resulting in the selection of Carl Stevens, Walloon Lake, president; Archie Murphy, East Jordan, vice president; Oakley Saunders, Charlevoix, secretary and treasurer, and Ray Loomis, East Jordan, Orville Gundersen, East Jordan, and Clyde Clute, Boyne City, as new directors for a two-year term.

Considerable attention was devoted to making plans for this year's summer show and exhibit. It was felt advisable to hold this event in connection with the county fair. Final details for staging this event were placed in the hands of a committee who will cooperate with the county fair directors at a future date.

Other matters discussed were in reference to cow test association work, proving bulls and advertising the merits of Guernsey cows throughout the section. It is highly gratifying to note the improved quality and type that is so very noticeable on so many farms in the county. If you are interested in dairying, you will want to attend this summer show and see the representative Guernseys of the county. At a somewhat later date the program carried out by the association will be announced.

Jerry O'Hara gave two fine readings in the afternoon. Rev. Paul Boudah gave the address of welcome and spoke of what "achievement" should mean to each one present, especially the mothers of young children.

O. I. Gregg, who has always been a welcome speaker, spoke of "The Home Beautiful" with an illustrated picture. He emphasized the fact that Charlevoix county is one of the most pretty counties in the state, abounding with many desirable native flowers, shrubs and trees which could be so nicely used throughout the county.

Miss Reis presented the features of home makers' week at Michigan State college in July and many are planning on attending.

The result of the election of officers for the ensuing year was as follows: county chairman, Mrs. Verna Hartnell; secretary, Sidney Lumley; executive board members, Mesdames Staley and Kightlinger.

The leaders of the different groups presented Miss Reis with a gift and she in her customary endearing manner, thanked them.

The concluding feature was the presentation of certificates to those who had completed the year's requirements and the introduction of the 28 lenders.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our daughter, Mrs. Homer Brady, who died a year ago, June 4th, 1932:

Were I to carve upon her tomb
One phrase in crystal
What she put in a humble room
This side of Paradise,
I'd write upon the simple stone
That stands where winter brings Chill winds to one who dreams alone:
"She made the best of things!"

She had so little! Yet when we Laughed with her long ago
There was no hint of poverty
In Irish eyes aglow.

With faith and fun and friendliness
That gave the spirit wings!
In spite of secret, dark distress
She made the best of things!

We never knew until she went Alone upon her way
How much her smiling sweetness meant;

How her hand smoothed our day,
Her uncomplaining presence still
To me a lesson brings,
And strengthens my own lagging will.

To make the best of things!
Her loving father and mother, Mr.
and Mrs. William Woods.—Adv. 2211

HAY BUYERS DEMAND
HIGH GRADE FORAGEMethods of Curing Alfalfa To Insure Quality Will Be Shown

The increased insistence of hay buyers upon the importance of curing hay so that it sold as U. S. No. 1 has caused the farm crops department at Michigan State college to plan a schedule of hay curing demonstrations in many Michigan counties this summer.

Alfalfa is the hay crop usually selected for showing how better curing practices can change the grade of hay and increase its worth both to the hay dealer and to the man who finally buys it for feed. Hay that can be bought and sold on grade prevents any argument between the buyer and the seller. U. S. No. 1 means hay of certain quality.

Grades are based upon the amount of leaves left in the hay, the degree of color, amount of foreign material present, the stage of growth of the hay when cut, and the amount of weather or storage damage. Hay which ranks well in those factors has a higher feeding value than forage which rates lower down the scale of quality.

HIGHWAY REPAIR

IT IS TIME TO TAKE THESE BUMPS OUT OF OUR HIGHWAYS!

Seventy per cent of all accidents in America are operated in states which protect their drivers by a Safety Responsibility Law. The American Automobile Association presents such a measure to the Michigan Legislature this session under the sponsorship of the Automobile Club of Michigan and other organizations interested in the prevention of accidents. A Safety Responsibility law keeps the irresponsible driver off the highway until he has proved himself willing and able to pay for the damage which his driving misconduct causes. The law does not work a hardship upon the careful driver.

FIRST TAX COMMISSION ALLOCATION TO STAND

No Change Made in Original Division of 15 Mill Property Tax

Division of the 15 mill property tax in Charlevoix county as originally set by the county tax commission will be made.

This was the decision of the commission following hearings for protest of the allocation held last Tuesday and Wednesday. It was the belief that the original division was a fair one, and that units which might fall short of requirements could raise extra monies needed through a two-thirds vote of their taxpayers, while the county, which received the largest amount, would be unable to raise extra money from any source.

Such widespread changes would have been necessary to meet the demands of the various units, the commission was of the opinion that no final decision would be agreeable to all, and in view of this fact the original division would stand.

The manner in which the 15 mill property tax will be divided is as follows: University of Michigan 0.6 mills; Michigan State college 0.2 mills; county of Charlevoix 8 mills; townships 1.2 mills; school districts 5 mills. Final work of the tax commission must be completed by June 1st.

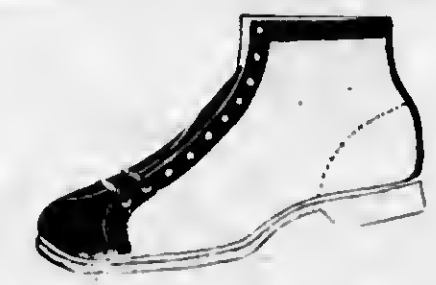

School districts will be aided in their difficulties by recent action of the legislature in making available state funds for aid of the poorer districts.

RELIEF ROAD WORK IS RESUMED AGAIN

Related Loan for Latter Part of May Confirmed—200 Working

Given impetus through the approval of R. F. C. loans to Michigan for the latter part of the month of May, relief work on highways in Charlevoix county and elsewhere is now in full swing.

According to information from the county road commission offices, a total of $5,811.00 has been granted for trunk line work in this county during the month of May. The last authorization of $2,219.00 was tentatively confirmed by the state highway department Saturday noon. Welfare committees began immediately recruiting workmen and around 90 men were put to work Saturday afternoon. This number was increased to approximately two hundred Monday morning.

The last appropriation is for the month of May, and must be worked out before June 1st. No word as to loans for June highway work has been received as yet.

It is expected that cherries will be around four cents this year as about 90 per cent were frozen in New York, and quite a lot in southern Michigan and Wisconsin. If we get off without a frost this spring the cherry crop may pay quite well.

BOOK TELLS MICHIGAN'S ADVANTAGES

"MICHIGAN SCENIC HIGHWAYS" OFF PRESS SOON

Charlevoix to Have Five Page Advertisements to Tie Up With Prominent Descriptive Matter

Charlevoix will receive prominent mention in "Michigan Scenic Highways," a Century of Progress edition, prepared by Fred W. Henshaw, president of the Magazine of Michigan Company, and Mrs. Dorothy Henshaw, 5,000 or more copies of which will be distributed to Chicago World Fair visitors, describing the around Lake Michigan tour.

The book will be attractively printed with a three color panel on the front cover and is of a convenient pocket size. Stock of a very high grade is being used and the art work is better than average.

Arrangements have been made for distribution of the book through the cooperation of the Standard Oil Co., whose stations in southwestern Michigan and northern Indiana will present them to tourists coming into this state. Publication probably will be completed late in June to be ready for the large influx of visitors from the Chicago exposition.

The principal theme of the publication is to be a description of western Michigan highways in the vicinity of Lake Michigan and up to northern Michigan, across the straits and along the northern shore in the upper peninsula. Lakes, streams, parks and other points of interest are to be described. Material for the book has been drawn for the most part from information obtained by Mr. Henshaw through his experiences with the state highway department in photographing and logging the scenic highways of the state, during which he traveled 10,000 miles and took 600 pictures.

The book will comprise 20 pages of pictures and scenic highways and 30 pages of traveling descriptions of the highways designed to assist the tourist to easily find the various points of interest along the routes described.

Charlevoix city and county receive considerable space in the book. The Lake Charlevoix, Thumb lake and Walloon lake drives are prominently mentioned along with the trunk line routes.

Linking up with the descriptive matter, local hotels and the city will be represented in five full page advertisements. The city's two pages include one of photographs and the other a general write-up depicting the city's resort advantages. The Inn and Belvedere hotels have taken full page advertisements and a group page takes in all of the smaller hotels.

The project has been highly endorsed by resort interests and by state and local groups as one which will assist in bringing a large number of tourists into the state from the Chicago exposition and in making their stay in Michigan longer and more enjoyable.

RECORD CATCHES OF MACKINAW TROUT ARE MADE AT SOUTH POINT

Trotting the mackinaw trout off south point is Lake Michigan, starting about a week ago with average success, has assumed commercial proportions as record catches continue to be reported.

Monday's results far eclipsed any recorded in recent years. Bert Ward and George Bergman took a fish weighing 12.2 pounds, and Sam Halvorson, who has topped the list with 13 catches so far this season, brought in fourteen, weighing 147 pounds.

Upwards of twenty boats have been on the trolling grounds each day when the weather was favorable, since the mackinaws started "bitting" shortly before Decoration day. While the bulk of the fish are being caught on deep water wire trolling outfits, many are being taken on light tackle.

NORTHMEN ARE WINNERS OVER BARNARD

Copped 13 to 8 Verdict Sunday — Play Marion Sunday at South Side

The Charlevoix Northmen won from Barnard in an exciting baseball game last Sunday at Barnard. Charlevoix took a four run lead in the opening frame and were never headed, although Barnard made many threats and did manage to tie the score at 6-6 in the first half of the fifth. The final score was 13 to 8.

Botema, Stutzman and Smith were Barnard's battery. Yahr, Dixon, Parsons and Newman acted for Charlevoix. Spayd, Kruhek and Block umpired.

Parsons had a perfect day at bat with three hits out of three. He scored twice, but Dixon led in this latter department with three runs. Helms, Yahr, Byers and Brown were all above the .500 mark. Cummings led Barnard at bat with five safe hits and drove in four runs and scored one himself.

The Northmen engage Marion Center next Sunday on the south side diamond. Fronton is scheduled for June 18. June 25 is open and any team wanting a game should see Morris Dixon or Harold Newman.

SCHOOL DISTRICT WILL ISSUE SCRIP

TAKE STEPS TO RELIEVE TEMPORARY CASH SHORTAGE

Tax Delinquency, "Frozen" Funds Leave District Short of Money for Current Year

Faced with a shortage in finances due to tax delinquency and "frozen" bank deposits, the board of education of Charlevoix school district No. 1, city and township, will issue scrip to meet outstanding operating indebtedness for the balance of the 1932-33 school year.

This action was voted at the last meeting of the school board, and the plan is being put into immediate effect. The issue, totaling $10,000.00, will be in $100, $10 and lesser denominations, bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum and payable on or before the 28th day of September, 1933.

Outstanding indebtedness to be met includes approximately $6,000.00 in teachers' and janitors' salaries and general operating expenses to the amount of around $1,000.00. An item of $3,000.00 recently borrowed from the Charlevoix County bank and due June 30th, is expected to be met with county normal money due from the state and tax payments.

While the school district at the present time is short of funds, the embarrassment is only a temporary one. Approximately $3,000.00 in school taxes paid the county treasurer and $3,802.04 deposited by the school board, is "frozen" in the Charlevoix State Savings bank. The Belvedere Club school tax of $6,000.00 is unpaid, but $4,000.00 of this amount is now available providing the tax may be paid in part, otherwise the entire amount will be available by mid-summer. The total of these amounts, approximately $20,000.00, would meet all outstanding indebtedness and leave the district a balance.

To the above amounts may also be added a portion of the delinquent school tax approximating $25,368.20, which will be met before the deadline for paying taxes without penalty on June 30th. To date, about $32,000.00 of a total levy of $49,368.20 has been paid to the county treasurer, and of this amount the school district has received approximately $21,000.00. The other $8,000.00 is "frozen" and the remainder, $17,368.20, represents the tax delinquency.

The issuance of scrip is merely a method of relieving a temporary financial shortage until funds due the school district have been received, and to meet when school closes all indebtedness of the 1932-33 year.

DAMAGE FROM DOGS HITS HIGH FIGURE

COUNTY PAYS LARGE AMOUNT YEARLY ON THIS ACCOUNT

County Law Enforcement Officials Ask Public Cooperation to Curb Canine Depredations

A plea for public cooperation to curb expense to taxpayers through depredations of dogs has been received in this office from county law enforcement officials.

Prosecuting Attorney Arthur I. Fitch, in the following communication, reveals the tremendous sum expended each year to pay for Sheep damage, etc. His letter follows:

"This office and that of the sheriff need your assistance and active cooperation in a matter of grave public concern.

The records in the office of the county clerk disclose that during the year beginning January 1, 1932, and ending January 1, 1933, this county paid out in claims for damages done to sheep by dogs the sum of $1,013.30.

This is an appalling condition. Coming at a time when every sort of economy is necessary, and being practiced, to relieve the taxpayers from the overburden of taxation; when the people find it almost impossible to pay their taxes; when the available funds to give relief to the indigent poor of the county are exhausted, such a drain upon the treasury of the people is intolerable.

A campaign of education should be begun. The officers are doing their best to handle the situation but it is well nigh impossible. It seems that people must have dogs. They rebel against the license fee. They refuse, or at least neglect, to obey the law requiring all dogs to be kept under the control of the owner. They resent the interference of the officers and insist that they begin on their neighbor's dog, because their own dog is a good dog.

A good, well trained dog is valuable. An untrained, wandering dog is a menace. A survey shows that the county is over run with dogs, a large majority of which are untrained. They are banding together and roaming the woods and swamps. Many of them are hungry and ready to kill their meat. Deer are appearing in many parts of the county and would be more numerous were they not run out by dogs. These deer would be an attraction to tourists in this resort county.

As this is being written we find that eighteen sheep were killed in one township in a single night and (Continued on page 4.)

LAND BANK LOAN INTEREST LOWER

REDUCED BY PROVISIONS OF NEW FARM ACT

Michigan Farmers Saved Quarter Million on Present Loans by Act Passed to Aid Farm Financing

Those 9,827 Michigan farmers who have already obtained farm mortgage loans through the St. Paul Federal Land bank will save $250,000 through a decrease in interest rates made by the farm adjustment act, and the act opens new financial doors to thousands of other state farmers who wish to refinance their present mortgages, according to J. P. Riordan, who has been appointed loan commissioner for this district.

The farm act reduced the interest rate on the old land bank mortgages to 4 1/2 per cent which materially reduces the yearly payments to be made on the $22,473,000 now owed by Michigan farmers to the St. Paul Land bank. New first mortgage loans made by the land bank will bear the low interest rate.

Mr. Riordan points out that the change in interest rates made by the federal land banks does not apply to joint stock land bank loans. Joint stock land banks are private corporations organized for profit and should not be confused with the federal land banks which are under the direct supervision of the federal government. The federal land banks are cooperative organizations whose stock is owned by farmers who borrow from the banks.

The joint stock land banks will make no new loans. They are to be liquidated by the government by loans of federal funds to be secured by the farm mortgages held by the banks.

Henry Morgenthau Jr., governor designate of farm credit administration, says that Michigan farmers who wish to avail themselves of the benefits of the new loan act can do so by making direct application either through their local loan association or direct to the Federal Land Bank at St. Paul, Minnesota. Farmers who can make direct application belong in two groups.

The first group are those farmers whose mortgages are due or which contain a clause permitting their payment at any time. The Federal Land bank will make loans to retire these mortgages, provided that the loan is not more than the amount of a fair loan value as decided by the land bank appraiser. Previous land bank mortgages have been made on a basis of 50 per cent of the value of the land plus 20 per cent of the value of the farm buildings and other permanent improvements.

A Michigan farm of 80 acres which is worth $50 an acre for the bare land and upon which there is a set of buildings which would cost $3,000 to replace would be security for a first mortgage loan of $3,000. A Michigan farmer whose present mortgage is low enough so he can qualify for the first group of loans can make application for the loan through the local loan association or direct to the Federal Land bank. Larger farms or better land would be security for larger loans than the 80-acre farm used as an example.

Federal Land bank loans to Michigan farmers in the second group would be made to those farmers who have had mortgages foreclosed or which are about to be foreclosed. Loans up to $5,000 may be applied for at the Federal land bank. These loans may be secured with a first or second mortgage on the farm and on farm equipment. Loans granted will not exceed 75 per cent of the value of the property offered as security.

In this second class of loans, it may be necessary for the farmer to persuade his creditors to pool their claims and accept their proper proportion of the loan granted by the land bank. The creditors may prefer this method of collecting a part of their claims rather than to take their chances on the amount of money derived from a forced sale of the property owned by the farmer who is indebted to them.

Holders of farm mortgages may act on their own initiative in changing their Michigan mortgages for Federal Land bank bonds issued for refinancing mortgages. These bonds bear four per cent interest and this interest is guaranteed by the U. S. government.

If the unpaid balance of the mortgage offered by its holder is less than the amount which the Federal Land bank would loan directly upon the farm, the bonds will be exchanged for the balance due on the mortgage. In case where the unpaid mortgage balance is greater than the (Continued on page 8.)

GRADUATES HEARD SPLENDID SERMON

BACCALAUREATE HELD AT GYM SUNDAY EVENING

Record Attendance Was Present for Exercises—Commencement Program Wednesday Night

Members of the senior and county normal classes, together with their parents and friends, heard Rev. G. R. Parker, pastor of the Congregational church, deliver a splendid baccalaureate sermon at the gymnasium Sunday evening.

One of the largest attendances on record, estimated to have exceeded one thousand, was present for the five program given.

The senior class, in caps and gowns, and the normal graduates, occupied places reserved for them facing the stage beautifully decorated for the occasion.

The commencement prayer, given by Rev. W. H. Rauch of the Baptist church, was followed by response by the choir and singing of the anthem, "Sweet the Moment," by the mixed chorus. Rev. W. W. Hurd of the Methodist church, gave the scripture lesson.

Rev. Parker's sermon was from the subject, "Unfulfilled Purpose in Life," in which he stressed that the worth while life did not necessarily realize its purpose in this life. Moses did not enter the Promised Land; David did not build the temple; Livingston did not discover the secrets of the Nile. One should not be discouraged if he does not accomplish his life's purpose, but consider that he is just a link in the great Purpose of God. The successful life is the one who catches the vision of the Divine purpose and conformed his life to it. The world is not necessarily looking for the man who can solve problems, but the man of vision.

The prayer of intercession and benediction was given by Rev. I. T. Mark of the Church of God. Music was under the direction of Mrs. A. J. Stelter.

The commencement program will be held at 8 o'clock tonight in the gymnasium, following the program as previously announced.

INDIANS LOST SUNDAY GAME TO EAST JORDAN

Score Only 5 Runs from 19 Hits to Dron 13 to 3 Verdict

Sending only 5 runs from 19 hits, the Charlevoix Indians dropped Sunday's game to East Jordan by a 13 to 5 score at their home on park. The contest was the final one for both teams of the Charlevoix League.

Good pitching by Amos Jann, who struck out eight batters to one for Park, East Jordan hurler, was over come by four fielding supports. The visitors scored seven runs in the first two innings with only one earned.

The rest were the result of Charlevoix errors. That long lean carried the Indians through to victory.

The Indians go out of town for their next game, playing Sunday at Allen. The original league of six teams has been increased to eight with the addition of Mancelona and Alden.

SCHOOL BUDGET IS GREATLY REDUCED

EXPENSE FOR 1933-34 CUT OVER FIFTY PER CENT

Large Savings Realized Through Salary Reductions and Elimination of Departments

That Charlevoix school district No. 1, city and township, will operate on a greatly reduced budget during the 1933-34 year is revealed in a tentative schedule of expenses prepared by the board of education.

That expenses would necessarily have to be reduced due to present economic conditions was a foregone conclusion, but it is doubtful that but a few realize the extent of the reductions necessary.

According to the tentative schedule, the budget for the coming year has been set at $36,993.00, as compared to $73,580.00 for the past year, a reduction of $36,587.00. While the cut has been a general one, covering every item of expense, the instructional service, through salary reduction and elimination of departments, has carried the brunt. This item alone last year was $35,375.00. The 1933-34 figure is $14,150.00, a reduction of $21,225.00.

Following are the comparative budgets:

	1932-33	1933-34
General Control	$8,258.88	$8,695
Instruction	14,150	35,375
Operation of plant	5,016	10,358
Fixed charges	400	570
Maintenance	615	1,975
Auxiliary activities	1,825	3,600
Capital outlay	275	1,300
Debt service	11,500	11,500

Total $26,993 $73,580

The tentative schedule around which the school board has made their plans for next year combines the offices of school superintendent and high school principal, with Oscar P. North succeeding Gerald F. Bush in the former and himself in the latter position. This combination effects a savings of $1,400.00 alone. The high school domestic science department will be eliminated, otherwise the personnel of the teaching staff is as follows: Ray Kipke, mathematics and coach; Stewart Coonman, science; Mrs. Rae Sawyer, languages; Mrs. Ruth David, English; Bea Foreman, history; Agnes Anderson, commercial.

For the present time, at least, the question of retaining the county normal has not been settled. If state and county support is given, this branch will be continued, otherwise it will have to be dropped. Applications for next year number around thirty, as compared to this year's graduating class of 12. Tentative contracts have been offered Miss Pearl Bieze, principal, and Mrs. Gertrude D. K. critic.

The personnel of the junior high school will remain the same providing R. B. Major, band instructor, accepts the contract offered. Harry E. Bing, (Continued on page 8.)

MICHIGAN BELL POLICY REFLECTS OPTIMISM OVER BUSINESS UPTURN

Optimism of the Michigan Bell Telephone company over the recent upturn in business conditions is reflected by an increase of their advertisements in weekly newspapers from 16 to 24 inches, and to run them in their present size, twice instead of once a week in the dailies.

Information contained in a letter to all managers reveals that this action was taken because the company feels in view of the fact that there is a definite improvement in business conditions and general feeling of confidence which would result in increased buying of commodities and services. It is important they take immediate advantage of improved conditions and promote the sale of telephone service.

This increased expenditure is being made in face of the fact that the company income has decreased one-third since 1923, a period during which Michigan Bell advertisement has been carried on without reduction in space or volume.

The letter further states that the company believes it has profited by the use of newspaper advertising and feels that if such expenditure has been good judgment during the past difficult months, it would appear good judgment to increase it now when there is good reason to believe that their business can be stimulated by a concerted sales effort.

WOMEN'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE MOTOR CAR

There is some doubt that people care to hear very much about what goes on under the hoods of their cars.

The driver knows that "driving qualities" are not accidental; they are put there. How the manufacturer creates or evolves those results may not interest him. He judges entirely by the results he gets in driving.

Well, it is not essential to talk "shop"; let us talk Results.

Smoothness. Drive the Ford V-8 and you will find that the engine runs with surpassing smoothness, due to its design and the extra precise methods of its manufacture.

Power. There it is, 75 horsepower (we could say 80) at the drive-shaft for the driver's use. With less weight to pull around, the mettle of this car—its life-like response—is rather remarkable.

Economy. Our V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gasoline than any car we have made. Mileage is partly a matter of individual driving, but under average conditions the Ford V-8 does 17 to 20 miles a gallon. Of course, car economy is not only a matter of fuel. Ford V-8 has that too, but it is also economical in the complete sense—initial cost, operation, maintenance.

Appearance. This is woman's contribution. The motor car must not only be useful, but also good-looking. View the Ford V-8 and you will not need our comment on its fine appearance.

Comfort. This also is woman's concern. In 30 years she changed the motor car from a wagon to a coach. Comfort is a quality made up of numerous ingredients. There is no comfort without a quiet, smooth-running engine. We have all the other ingredients too—color, good taste, quality, ease, safety, roominess and convenience.

GOVERNMENT ACTS TO ASSIST HOME OWNERS

Refinancing Made Possible With Cash Advance for Taxes, Repairs

If you own a $15,000 home with a $10,000 mortgage on it, this is the way you would go about getting relief under the administration bill approved by a senate committee.

Although the bill is still subject to change, the procedure will be about the same in its final form.

You, or the holder of your mortgage, may approach a government agency, to be created under the bill, known as the Home Owners Loan Corporation and ask for refinancing.

If you are paying 6 1/2 per cent interest on your mortgage, but are unable to continue, the holder of it may agree to accept bonds issued by the corporation in exchange for the obligation.

Interest Reduced

He would get only four per cent interest, but it would be guaranteed by the government and would be tax exempt. In return for the interest payments and tax exemption he might agree to accept $9,000 in bonds for the $10,000 mortgage.

In either case, you would agree to repay the government corporation over a fixed period of years at 5 per cent interest.

In addition, the government would advance you cash for taxes and repairs, if necessary, which would be added to your debt, provided the total obligation did not exceed 80 per cent of the appraised value of your home.

If you are out of a job and temporarily unable to pay anything, the corporation could give you a three-year postponement.

Under these circumstances, in addition to any moratorium and any reduction in total agreed to by the holder of your mortgage, your annual interest payments would be reduced from $600 a year to $500.

For Lesser Mortgage

If you own a $15,000 home and have worked the mortgage down to $5,000, but are now out of a job and cannot pay on that, the bill has a further provision to help you.

In this case, the holder of your mortgage probably would not exchange it for bonds because your home is such good security that he would rather foreclose.

To prevent this, the corporation could extend to you cash up to 40 or 50 per cent of the value of your home to pay off your debt. You would turn the mortgage over to the corporation for security.

Instead of foreclosing immediately, the corporation then would give you time to get on your feet.

CHILDHOOD AGONY

The trouble of childhood are neither small nor trivial. They can be both terrible and overwhelming. In a child's sensitive nerve-makeup, a physical agony of a character of agony are commonly caused, so they expose him to mental suffering of a peculiarly acute sort. And while a boy or girl ordinarily gets quickly from pain or shock, this is not always so; and a better understanding of the child mind and heart would often prevent such pitiful tragedies as the death of two-year-old Paul Turcotte, of Menominee, who hanged himself after gaining honors at school, because his poverty-driven parents could not find time to listen to his story of triumph. — Detroit Free Press.

WATCH POISON SPRAY ON UNWASHED FRUIT

Replace 'Dangerous' Materials with Substitutes and Use Other Methods

Stricter regulations made by federal authorities will make it necessary for Michigan orchard owners to modify poison spray schedules or run the risk of having fruit condemned for showing too heavy residues of poisonous substances, according to warnings issued by the entomology department at Michigan State college.

Growers who do not own power washes for fruit will have to change the spraying schedule for the control of codling moth or the market for their fruit will be endangered. Fruit which will not be washed should not receive more than two sprays of lead arsenate. Calcium arsenate may be used in the second cover spray, but any additional sprays should be made with summer oil emulsion.

Three applications of lead arsenate can be used on fruit which will be washed, and calcium arsenate can be used for additional applications.

Timeliness of the spray applications and the use of supplementary measures, such as scraping the trees and banding, will materially aid the control of codling moth and will reduce the need for late arsenical sprays. The destruction of fruit 'thinners' by deep burying or immersion in water is another measure which reduces the moth population.

TAX PENALTY IS OFF OLD TAXES TO JULY 1

No Additional Assessment Made If Paid By That Date

Taxes for 1932 and prior years may be paid without penalty before July 1, either to the county treasurer or auditor general, by special act of the legislature. J. Wm. Flanders, county treasurer, has announced.

The special act permits payment without penalty of not only taxes of 1930, 1931 and 1932, but also payment of any description state bid in May 1932 for taxes of 1929, and taxes on any description held as start-up lands for taxes of any year, by payment of the amount for which the description was returned delinquent without any other charges whatever. The special permit would not apply where sale has already been made for taxes of 1929 and prior years to individuals.

the claim for $75 is now on file, and must be paid.

It is requested that you publish such parts of this letter as your space permits, and that you continue an effort to apprise the people of the conditions prevailing because of their own carelessness. It should be possible to convince them that it is costing them too much to be in the dog business and buying mutton to feed them. Money to feed dogs but none to properly feed and clothe the children.

Now as to what is going to be done about it so far as the officers are concerned. We ask that you use the columns of your paper to inform all owners of dogs that an attempt will be made to enforce the law and prevent the loss of at least a part of this large sum of money.

1. That they must keep their dogs at home or under control.

2. That their failure to do this will be construed by the officers to mean that they will not object if their dog is impounded or killed.

3. That no favors will be shown and that they must not expect the officers to begin on the other fellow's dog.

It will be understood that the officers are fully aware that any action on their part will be unpopular. It is an extremely disagreeable duty to interfere with a man's dog, but it would not be disagreeable if he would be sensible and reasonable and help the officers in doing something for his own good.

A thousand dollars would feed a lot of undernourished and needy children in this county.

Michigan horseshoe pitching champions will be named at a state contest to be held in Traverse City, July 19, 20 and 21, during the National cherry festival, the Chamber of Commerce and Traverse City Shuffleboard and Games club has announced. Michigan's woods have a ratio of one buck to every 2.5 does, according to figures recently compiled by the department of conservation for the last six months of 1932. The report shows that approximately 17,000 deer were seen in Michigan by field men during that period and that there are one doe to every .97 fawns. The ratio in the upper peninsula between bucks and does is greater than that in southern Michigan.

Many locally owned small pleasure craft are being put in the waters these days. Many launches and other similar craft are being overhauled. The new provision in the motor boat law requires that all craft built for and designed to be used with motor propulsion must be registered and documented this year, and includes all so designed outboard boats. The only craft now exempt from this law are canoes and rowboats or boats which are designed for use of oars or paddles as the principal means of power and propulsion.

There was a fine crowd at the contest supper put on by the Sunday school of the Methodist church last Friday. The Bible class won the prize cake, but somehow, at the last minute, from some mysterious source, other cakes appeared, for the other tables! Wayne Belding, John Darlington and Howard Davenport gave an arrangement of popular songs that were much enjoyed, while Frank Toole gave a beautiful haritone solo. A poetic dialogue, "Doubt and Faith," was given by Herman Meyers and Harold Newman, while a juvenile number was given by little Mary Cioekling. Mr. McGhan gave a brief talk on the activities of the school.

Our Government—How It Operates

By William Bruckart

PROBLEM OF RAILROAD RATES

THE Interstate Commerce commission is going to have a tough job on its hands during the next few years. Every one familiar with the problems of the railroads is agreed that the next several years constitute a period of great readjustment, and the companies that own the steam lines are no exception. So, with the railroads clamoring, on the one hand, for more revenue and reduced operating expenses and the shippers demanding lower rates consistent with new values of commodities and organized labor seeking a return to normal wages, the commission's situation is one not to be envied.

This question of rates is one that is especially worrisome. The statutes under which the commission operates requires that the freight and passenger rates be just and reasonable. That means, of course, that both the shippers and the carriers must be considered, and it takes a good umpire to satisfy the players on both teams. The commission has a whole lot of powers to use in its jurisdiction over railroad rates. And as one who is decidedly not a rate expert, I would say it needs all of the powers and a handful of tricks besides. Its own definition of its authority is complicated beyond Elton's theory.

"The commission has jurisdiction," it reads, "upon complaint, or in a proceeding instituted upon its own initiative, and after full hearing, to determine and prescribe reasonable rates, regulations and practices, including minimum, maximum and minimum rates; and also minimum, maximum and minimum, proportional rates to and from ports, and to award reparations to injured shippers. . . . It is authorized to require carriers to establish through routes and joint rates, and it may act summarily in itself, establishing through routes when, in its opinion, an emergency exists."

Many more things could be quoted to show that the commission has power to do the things it thinks best for all of the interests served.

But to get down to cases: a railroad desires to increase a rate which it charges for transporting copolymers from St. Louis to Denver. The law requires that it must file the new schedule of rates with the commission, and if the commission gains an intimation or has an idea about what ought to be charged for hauling copolymers over that distance, it can suspend the schedule filed by the railroad. That means it is inoperative. The purpose is to give the commission a chance to look into the reasonableness of the proposed charge.

Congress, however, did not give permission for an indefinite suspension of the rates in question. It prescribed that the suspension could not be for longer than 150 days, which seems quite long enough for any investigation. Yet many investigations are not completed in that time, and the questioned charge becomes operative. As a counter-balance, the law provides that while the rate may become operative, the commission may require the carriers involved to keep a separate account of money received as a result of the increase until a decision is had. If the commission eventually decides the increase, then the carriers have to refund the money representing the increase that it has collected.

It was back in 1910 that congress expanded the commission's power to give it jurisdiction over every phase of rate-making. The Mann-Elkins act laid down a set of rules governing through routes and rates, switch connections, long and short hauls (providing that there shall be no discrimination against the short hauls in favor of the traffic for long distances), general freight classifications, and a host of other matters. Then, in 1917, and again in 1921 when the transportation act was passed, more power was given. Between these two laws, there was very little left which the railroads could call their own.

For example, if the commission considers that conditions warrant it, an order may be issued causing one carrier to transfer some of its equipment to another for use. Of course, the user pays a rental, but the commission's order can hardly be defeated. It can tell a carrier when it has enough equipment such as locomotives, or it can say its supply of rolling stock is insufficient and it may buy more, and it can and does lay down the rules under which it may sell bonds or other securities with which to obtain funds for financing its requirements.

In addition to all of these, the commission is directed by the transportation act to prepare a plan for consolidation as soon as possible of all railroad properties in the United States into a "limited number of systems." At the same time, the railroads are authorized to accomplish such consolidations notwithstanding the statutes prohibiting formation of "trusts."

The commission has prepared such a plan. It proposes to have only four major rail systems in the eastern half of the country. But the carriers have not rushed in to sign up. They have found a lot of things they do not like about the program.

The Plan That—

By DUFORD JONES

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service

"MY DEAR, you won't do anything like that!" Margery said, smiling tenderly into the flushed face above hers.

"But I am going to marry you, Stanley!"

"Stanley, boy, I'm just as determined to have you, but it is better if when we are married we leave no unpleasantness behind us. I know just how your mother feels about your marrying the daughter of an ordinary factory worker. Your mother has lived all her life among lovely, pleasant, cultured things, and she has a right to feel that I am somewhat crude and—"

He swung her from her feet and kissed her. "No more of that. Mother is obstinate as a—"

Margery faced herself. "Don't you be the same. Listen, my dear, let's think it over; then if we fail, we'll—"

He smiled with relief. "All right, then, honey, but you'll have to do the thinking. But I'll give you just two weeks—and then I'm going to grab you and run away with you—fancily or no fancily."

The plan that had popped into Margery's head while they were talking over the situation looked a bit desperate, but as she told herself, "Desperate cases call for desperate remedies." She talked the plan over with her father. He laughed and then looked serious.

"Little girl, your second name is I've told you is Mischief, but go ahead. I have faith in you. If it doesn't work, nothing will be lost," he agreed.

From that moment Margery worked with speed. Stanley had said in passing that his mother's companion, Miss Knapp, was getting through; so Margery hastened to see her.

"I'll help you. The old lady is a fearful old aristocrat. I had enough of her, and I don't want her; but, anyway, I'll recommend you for my position," Miss Knapp agreed.

So it came about that Margery, late that week, walked into the fine Landon mansion and was interviewed and hired. She then planned to tell Stanley what she had done, but found he had left a hurried word for her that he had been rushed South by his firm on an emergency trip.

Margery's sense of humor came readily to her aid those first days of her service as companion to Mrs. Landon. The old lady was exacting, but Margery met the issue without evasion.

She liked to read, herself, so her duty of reading to Mrs. Landon for two hours each day was not a task. She liked to play with nice dishes, and she found herself, instead of the cook, preparing pet dishes that Mrs. Landon liked. She anticipated her employer's needs as much as she could, and that she was successful was indicated by Mrs. Landon's brief statement, one afternoon:

"Miss Ebler, you are proving very satisfactory, and I would like to make your engagement permanent."

Margery smiled upwardly, although she said "Thanks, but," inwardly. "I am glad to have it permanent," she answered demurely enough.

She wrote to Stanley in care of his firm, and she was sure he knew what was going on; but on that fatal afternoon she discovered otherwise.

She came from the back of the house and stepped into the library where he was talking to his mother. He glanced up and saw her and his eyes opened with astonishment, and his mouth—

Margery, back of Mrs. Landon, put her finger on her lips, and she saw that he had "blundered."

Later, he cornered her in the kitchen. "You witch, this was your game. Gosh! It's a good one," he chuckled. "Mother was priding you just as you came in. But when she finds out—Oh, golly!" he grinned. "It'll be worth it just to have you around here."

Then began a time of doubt for Margery. She discovered that Mrs. Landon's fear about the girl her son wished to marry rose, after all, from her great love for her son. Actually, beneath her cold, aristocratic exterior was something that approached closely a warm heart. Most of the time, however, she seemed right and set in her ways and ideas.

Margery began to be worried. The truth must come out sometime, and the plan she had entered upon began to look a little childish.

The bottom fell out of the plan suddenly. She was going along the upper corridor when Stanley, stepping from his room, caught her, and gathered her in his arms. She gave him a kiss in return for his, then tried to pull away—and saw Mrs. Landon looking at them down the hall. Stanley saw her at the same time, and Margery felt his arms tighten.

"Gosh, mother saw us. Now for an earthquake!" he whispered in her ear. His mother approached, and to Margery's astonishment, she was smiling.

"So I am to lose my companion. My dear, forgive me for deceiving you, but Miss Knapp felt she ought to tell me; so I have known from the beginning. I have enjoyed having you here and I hope you and Stanley will want to stay with me right along," she said a bit wistfully.

Stanley reached out a long arm and drew his mother to him. With the other he encircled Margery's waist. "We accept the invitation—and a kiss all around seals the bargain!" he announced with joyful finality.

MAY BE ANTIDOTE FOR DEADLY GAS

A San Francisco man who attempted suicide by the inhalation of carbon monoxide gas from the exhaust of his automobile in a closed garage and was for half an hour "out of this life," as the doctors solemnly asserted, was almost literally snatched from the grave by injections of methylene blue, administered by his physician in an experimental test of the efficacy of that chemical.

It had been conjectured by chemists that methylene blue might be an antidote for poisonous gas, though its common use is for coloring fabrics. The idea of employing a synthetic dyestuff as a medical agent was scoffed at by some physicians, but in the San Francisco case it worked out, and the effect produced is regarded as something of a scientific wonder.

Carbon monoxide gas poison is produced by burning carbon-containing fuels in a chamber in which there is a deficiency of air. It exerts its extremely dangerous action on the body by displacing its oxygen content, thus preventing it from its combination with hemoglobin, which forms the solid coloring of red blood corpuscles, and destroying bodily tissues. Formerly the treatment of monoxide poisoning was by artificial respiration, the administration of pure oxygen and the stimulation of circulation. But in cases where a person has been under the influence of the gas for as much as thirty minutes' treatment of the latter kind usually has been of no avail.—Los Angeles Times.

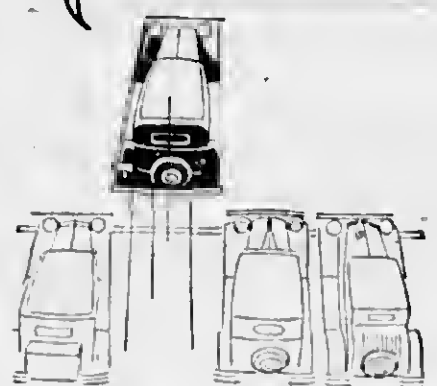

Washing Woollens

To be safe, test new woollens for color fastness before washing, by squeezing a sample or inconspicuous portion in lukewarm water for five minutes or so.

For the washing, briefly, make rich, lukewarm or cool suds with mild, neutral soap flakes. Put in the garment and wash quickly, by gently forcing the suds through and through the material. Never allow colored woollens to soak, even for a few minutes, nor to remain rolled up, or in a heap while wet.

Rinse the garment thoroughly in lukewarm or cool water. Squeeze out the water, or put it through a wringer, adjusted loosely. Don't twist. It is helpful, where practical, to roll woollen garments in a dry turkish towel to absorb the excess moisture. Then ease into shape and dry in moderate temperature.

price movements show that in a progressive society there are no such things as unchanging price relationships between important groups of goods or between individual commodities.

THE LOBBYIST

Invisible government at Lansing seems to be receiving more than the usual amount of attention as the end of the session draws near. During every session of the legislature charges of undue activity is always heard, but rarely ever do they result in legislative inquiry such as that which is now under way. That much in the way of concrete evidence of sinister influence in matters relating to pending legislation will be uncovered is agreed, but the fact that it has gone so far as to bring forth legislative inquiry is indicative that there may be something more than guesswork to the accusations that have been hurled back and forth during the past few weeks.

There are good lobbyists and bad. Reputable Michigan business interests have maintained representatives in Lansing for years. These men should not be confused with some of those who seem to have dropped down on Lansing since January 1. The railroads, the utilities, the automobile, Michigan manufacturers, insurance companies, and others, are represented in Lansing by high-grade men who have been in their employ for years. These men are all known, they are well-informed, they never indulge in any raw stuff, they do not go around staging wild parties and offering bribes, they take their work seriously and are of real assistance whenever help is needed in shaping necessary legislation. You won't find either their public or private activities being investigated and should never be classed with the sort of lobbying that has evidently been going on during the present session.

ANTICIPATION

At present we have no direct money inflation in this country, but we have under way a series of active speculative movements based on the anticipation of inflation. Our formal abandonment of the old gold basis for our currency was proclaimed on April 19, and since that time the market prices of securities and commodities have been actively advancing. Prices of goods may advance because there is a gradually increasing demand for them, or because of the war period.

An entirely different sort of price advance may take place because people may have reason to believe their money will be worth less in the near future, and so they hasten to buy something with it. Then they buy goods that they do not really need now in order to get rid of their shrinking money. It is this second kind of price advance that is now under way in this country. It provides great opportunities for skilled speculators, but if it is long continued it penalizes every form of prudent thrift.

HOME BUILDING

One of the first lines of industry to revive on a large scale when the revival period sets in will be the home building industry. It has practically stood still for about four years. In that time with millions of people cut off from payrolls there has been a doubling up of a lot of families and friends. This has vacated vast numbers of apartment buildings and separate buildings, but when these people get back into payrolls they will want their own homes. The number of homes that existed when this panic began will be nowhere near enough to care for the normal increases in population plus new aspirations. That means that a vast number of new homes will have to be built, and that is one of the very best signs of the time. Building is a basic industry. It employs vast numbers of men, directly and indirectly. The sooner this revival sets in the better for all concerned. — Public Service Magazine.

BURDENING THE FUTURE

Down in Washington they are talking about billion dollar bond issues to finance construction programs for ending unemployment. Mortgaging the future for the sole purpose of soothing "pains" caused by mistakes and miscalculations of the present is not a sound policy. Piling up such tremendous debt burdens will not relieve unemployment of the generations who will have to pay them; rather it will cramp their ability to deal with crises brought on by mistakes and miscalculations of their own day; in other words, issues of such tremendous magnitude will make citizens of the future pay for our own mistakes as well as their own. Such a wastrel attitude is a slovenly solution to a problem that is admittedly acute and difficult. — Hastings Banner.

A GOOD TIME TO PAY

The Michigan legislature very sensibly removed all penalties for the non-payment of taxes, provided the tax is paid on or before July 1. Now that it has been definitely settled that this is about all the relief the delinquent taxpayer can expect during the present session, it will probably result in the payment of many taxes that were being purposely delayed by property owners until this particular bit of legislation became effective. Wise property owners will take advantage of this opportunity to balance their tax indebtedness, knowing that hope for any additional relief is liable to meet with disappointment. And it is not too much to hope that with the payment of taxes held in abeyance for so long will result in the easing of the terrific financial strain which has been placed on all governing bodies for the past three or four years.

FARM EDUCATION

Clear thinking and hard working farm men and women with the aid of scientific and efficient methods, have pushed agriculture progress forward. But we cannot stand still. If we do, our competitors push us back, for agriculture is a highly competitive business and livelihood. We must either move forward or go backward. New times bring changed conditions. Change is a function of time. New conditions will need new knowledge, new methods and new practices. It will require that education of, and for, farming and rural leadership be of the highest possible grade. — Dean Chris L. Christensen, University of Wisconsin.

AT THE MOVIES

Vic McLaglen Too Strong, Says Lowe
Victor McLaglen does not realize his strength as many actors, and even actresses, can testify. Edmund Lowe is the latest victim of McLaglen's powerful muscles.

During the filming of a scene for the Fox picture, "Hot Pepper," coming Saturday and Sunday to the Palace theatre, the former wrestler and prize-winning champion grabbed Lowe and ripped every button off his vest as neatly as shorts could have performed the trick. When the damage had been repaired by a wardrobe woman, the scene was repeated with a similar result, except that this time a part of Lowe's shirt came off with the buttons.

Lowe and McLaglen portray the roles of Quirt and Flagg, the ever-ready Marines, in "Hot Pepper," a hilarious comedy depicting their adventures to rival night club owners after they have left the service. The leading feminine role is portrayed by Lupe Velez, the fiery little Mexican meteor, who sings and dances in a number of night club scenes.

Quirt and Flagg fight for her affections and El Brendel, who enacts a comedy role, makes love to her when Quirt and Flagg have their backs turned.

Movable Walls Speed Filming for Lubitch

One way to get from one room to another without using the door is to tear down the wall. Another way is to lift the wall out of the way.

Emst Lubitch, noted film director, chose the latter way to get rid of wall used in settings for his production "Double in Paradise," force calculated from a play by La-Zo-Madon, Viennese playwright, which comes to the Palace theatre Wednesday and Thursday, with a cast headed by Marjorie Haskins, Kay Francis, and Herbert Marshall, Charlie Ruggles.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Sunday morning service, 10:45.
Subject, "God the Preserver of Man."

Wednesday evening at 7:45, first Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room. "God the Only Cause and Creator" was the subject of the lesson-lesson in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, June 4.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (Ezekiel 18:2): "What mean ye, that ye use this proverb concerning the land of Israel, saying, The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge? As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel."

Correlative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p. 211): "It should no longer be said in Israel that the fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." Sympathy with error should disappear. The transfer of the thoughts of one erring mind to another, Science renders impossible.

PREPARATION STARTED FOR CHERRY FESTIVAL

National Event at Traverse City to Be Held July 19, 20 and 21

Dates have been set, parade floats being built, and queens are being counted for Cherryland's annual celebration, the National Cherry Festival at Traverse City.

The festival will be held this year on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, July 19, 20 and 21.

A month before the festival comes the annual contest among Northern Michigan communities to select Michigan's cherry queen, and this fall on Wednesday, June 21, when three judges from distant cities will make the choice as the candidates parade on the stage of the Lyric theatre in Traverse City. Already several entries from northwestern Michigan towns have been received in Traverse City by Mrs. E. E. Shriver, chairman of the queen's committee. The towns have until Saturday, June 17, to file their entries.

Five cherry festivals have been held. Their queens were: Helen Boughey, of Traverse City, in 1928; Margaret Bachi of Elk Rapids in 1929; Signe Holmer of Manistee in 1930; Maxine Weaver of Traverse City in 1931; and Carolyn Hazzard of Ludington in 1932.

MEDRICK SEYMOUR, NORWOOD PIONEER, IS DEAD

Had Been Resident of This City for 16 Years—Funeral Wednesday

Medrick, Seymour, 89, pioneer of the Norwood district and for the past 16 years a resident of this city, died Sunday at his home on Wood street following an illness of several weeks. Native of New York state, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour came to Michigan from Lincoln county, where they were married May 6, 1883. They took up a homestead near Norwood, clearing up a farm from the virgin timber. They resided there 34 years, coming to this city 16 years ago.

Surviving besides the widow is an adopted son, Obey Trombley of Detroit, and three brothers, Fred of Ellensburg, New York, Joseph Seymour of this city and Adolphus of Norwood.

Funeral services were conducted at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning from St. Mary church.

Silence may be golden, but a good deal of speech is brazen.

PICKERS MAY RUIN BLUEBERRY MARKET

Fully Ripe Fruit May Be Infested with Insect Larvae

The blueberry crop which is depended upon by many Michigan residents for a period of profitable employment in the summer will be a disappointment unless great care is taken in picking to insure that the fruit taken is not infested with the larvae of flies, according to the entomology department at Michigan State college.

Michigan berries examined by federal inspectors last year were condemned for containing these insect larvae, and infested berries which are not discovered by inspectors will ruin the market for all blueberries as soon as consumers find out that some of the fruit is undesirable.

The remedy is simple. The flies which produce the larvae can not deposit eggs in the berries until they are fully ripe, so fruit which is picked before it is soft will not be infested. Hand picking will be necessary to obtain clean fruit. Beating the bushes or the use of rakes or scoops for picking will put wormy berries on the market and eventually ruin the demand for a Michigan product.

CHARLEVOIX GOLF CLUB WILL OPEN ON MONDAY

Course in Best Condition in History—Playing Rates Reduced

The 18-hole course of the Charlevoix Golf club will be opened for the 1933 summer season on Monday, June 12th.

According to William Watson, professional, who has returned to his duties for another season, the course is in the best condition in its history. Abundant spring rains have put the greens and fairways in excellent shape.

Rates for course privileges have been reduced again this year, according to Mr. Watson.

The staff at the golf club this season includes Jeff Novotny, foreman; Elmer Reed, caddy master, and Miss Angie Scott, bookkeeper.

ANNUAL OLD SETTLERS MEETING IS JUNE 21ST

Region's Old-Timers Will Meet This Year at Old Mission

Old settlers of the region will meet at Old Mission this year for the annual meeting of the Old Settlers' association of the Grand Traverse region, on Wednesday, June 21, it has been announced.

L. A. Baldwin of Old Mission is president of the association and Mrs. Baldwin is historian. Old Mission was selected at the 1932 annual session as the meeting place for this year.

Land bank would loan directly upon the property, the holder of the mortgage must agree to reduce his mortgage to a figure which the bank will accept. Bonds would then be exchanged for the reduced value of the mortgage.

The owner of the farm concerned in the mortgage for which bonds were traded would get the benefit of reduced interest rates in cases where bonds and mortgage were traded at face value. Any reduction in the face of the mortgage secured by the land bank in any trades would be passed along to the farmer whose farm was involved. This farmer would obtain a reduction of his indebtedness and a decrease in interest rates.

Applications for loans from the St. Paul Land bank are piling up rapidly. It will be impossible for all loans to be made at once. The law makes provision for making loans on farms against which mortgages have been foreclosed so there should be no hardship involved in the delay needed to perform the necessary work.

Michigan farmers should make applications to the secretary of the local Federal Farm Loan association in their county or to the Federal Land bank if no association is organized in their county. County agricultural agents can give additional information about the new loan service as fast as new regulations are made.

BAPTIST GUILD GIRLS FETED MONDAY NIGHT

Beach Party Enjoyed Following Regular Monthly Meeting

The World Wide Guild girls of the Baptist church held their monthly meeting Monday evening with Mrs. Erna Weller, on Bridge street.

Following the business meeting, Miss Maude Hardy presented a very interesting program for the evening. During the year the girls have been doing a great amount of missionary reading and for their interest in missions the state presented them with the beautiful picture of Christ, "Youth," which was given to Mrs. Rauch in appreciation of her work in organizing the local group of girls. Mrs. Weller and Mrs. Rauch entertained later with a beach party. Mrs. Marie Dahlquist is the present sponsor.

ham, principal, and Miss Florance Miller, have signed for next year.

In the grade school Miss Helen French will return as principal and kindergarten instructor. Others of the staff are: Vera Belding, 1st grade; Miss Little, 2nd grade; vacancy, 3rd grade; Sophia Manson, 4th grade; Clara Dittmer, 5th grade; Elsie Muscott, 6th grade.

Of the special instruction departments, only that of manual arts will be continued, the board having accepted a proposition from Mr. Weisenberger, the instructor. Vocational education and the ungraded room will be dropped with a savings of $4,700.00.

The 1933-34 budget has been determined on the basis of an anticipated tax payment of 60 per cent. If payment drops below that figure, further reductions will be necessary. From the 1932-33 budget may be deducted approximately $5,000.00, representing the voluntary salary reduction accepted by the teaching staff.

The new set-up for local schools has been one of necessity to meet economic conditions, rather than a desire to tear down a most complete and well rounded system of instruction. It has become a matter of what can be afforded under present trying times.

WOODS CAMP OPENED AT SPRINGVALE

CONCENTRATE WORK IN STATE FORESTS OF DISTRICT

Army Officers In Charge of Group Numbering 192 Men from Southwest Michigan Cities

Camp Wolverine, one of the 45 emergency conservation work camps to be established in Michigan, is operating at full speed with 192 members of the citizens' conservation corps at work in the woods.

The camp, commanded by Lieutenant G. B. Leinbach, is located ten miles west of Wolverine and a half mile north of the forestry headquarters, near what is known as Springvale, in Charlevoix county. The campers, recruited from Grand Haven, Holland, Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor, arrived from Camp Custer a week ago and began work in the woods last Thursday.

In addition to Lieutenants Leinbach and Bohn, Lieutenant J. H. Bristow and three regular army enlisted men are stationed at the camp. Lieutenant Bristow is the medical officer. G. E. Marvin is the camp superintendent and is assisted by James Finley, regular conservation employee attached to the Wolverine forestry headquarters.

The campers receive no military training except for elementary commands so that they may be moved in columns. They observe no military courtesies such as the salute.

Work to be done by the corps includes: truck trail and fire lane construction; forest nursery work; state park construction work on buildings and equipment; control of tree insects and diseases; improvement cuttings to remove dead and diseased trees; surveying of boundaries of state reservations; and lake and stream improvement to aid in conservation of fish.

They like the food and the fun. The effect of camp life is shown by the fact that one boy has gained 19 pounds in the 16 days he has been in the corps.

The boys are routed from bed at 6 a. m. and have a half hour to dress, clean up and police their tents. At 6:30 a. m. they are served breakfast and at 7:30 a. m. leave for the woods. At 11:30 a. m. they return to camp for lunch but provisions are being made so that meals may be brought to their work location. Lieutenant Bohn said.

Back in camp around 4 p. m., the campers are free to do as they please. Volley ball, baseball and other games are provided for their amusement and a camp orchestra has been organized.

Substantial meals are served the campers. Lieutenant Bohn said. Breakfast consists of a cereal, milk, coffee, toast and wheatcakes or bacon and eggs or sausage. A typical dinner menu is: roast pork, creamed corn, bread, cold tea, mashed potatoes, apple sauce, butter and ice cream.

Members of the corps volunteered as cooks and were trained at Camp Custer. Kitchen police work is done in rotation by the campers. Of the 192 members of the corps at Camp Wolverine approximately 20 are used daily in preparation of food and maintenance of the camp.

One of the campers is a barber and cuts hair for a dime. Lieutenant Bohn said. Arrangements have been made for laundry work at a cost to the campers of 40 cents a month each. A post exchange, for sale of tobacco and candy at cost, has been set up.

Three miles from Camp Wolverine is Thumb lake where the campers swim. Life guards have been appointed. Installation of shower baths and digging of additional wells will be undertaken immediately, Lieutenant Bohn said.

The boys at Camp Wolverine are organized with similarity to an army company. They are divided into squads of eight with one acting as leader. Over each six squads is a section foreman. Other executives are two platoon foremen and an overseer who corresponds to a top sergeant.

OLD MISSION LIGHT WILL BE ABANDONED

WORLD'S FAIR CONTEST BY THE A. & P. FOR BOYS

Winners Will Receive Free Trip to Exposition at Chicago

When the Great Atlantic & Pacific Ten Company's sales contest held for boys between the ages of 10 to 16 years ends there will be 150 Michigan youngsters made gloriously happy. The contest is of six weeks' duration in which boys will endeavor to gather the greatest number of vote coupons given away with purchases in A. & P. stores in Michigan.

The 150 boys with the highest number of votes will receive free of charge a trip to the World's fair at Chicago. Their escort will be Lieutenant Jack Rohr whose 14 years with the Boy Scouts of America especially fits him for this work. Mr. Rohr will have several aides equally competent.

Charlevoix entrants in the contest are: Ormiston Bergeon, Gerald D. Clark, Robert Herrington, Louis E. Brown, Richard Bergman, Irving Hallett and Bernard McCafferty of St. James.

DRAMATIC CAMP OPENS IN JULY

KNOWN THIS YEAR AS NATIONAL DRAMATIC CAMP

Mrs. Allen G. Miller, Grand Rapids, Well Known Director, Has Taken Over Management

Under new direction and management, the Lake Charlevoix Dramatic camp, to be known this year as the National Dramatic camp, will open for the 1933 summer season the first week in July.

The camp equipment and buildings have been leased by Mrs. Allen G. Miller of Grand Rapids, who is well known in Michigan theatrical circles. This fact alone, will spell success for the project.

Mrs. Miller, who will be director of plays and manager of the camp, is a native of New Orleans, La., and cousin of Sydney Shield, well known actress. A graduate of Northwestern University, post graduate of the School of Speech, she has become eminent as a lecturer, concert recitalist and director of note. Mrs. Miller was the founder and first president of the Civic Players of Grand Rapids.

The opening presentation of the camp will be St. John Ervine's sparkling comedy, "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary," on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, July 5, 6 and 7. The same schedule will be followed during the months of July and August.

The company of players, now in Grand Rapids rehearsing for the opening productions, have been drawn from New York, Chicago, Detroit and Dayton, Ohio. Mrs. Miller expects to extend an invitation to local talent to participate under her direction.

The camp will be placed in readiness for the opening during the remaining weeks in June. New scenery is to be provided and considerable new equipment has been purchased. Mrs. Miller spent last week end in Charlevoix and will return late in June to make final arrangements for the opening.

DIRIGIBLE MACON IS SEEN OFF CHARLEVOIX

Plainly Visible to Naked Eye On Training Flight Tuesday

Many Charlevoix residents had an opportunity to observe the giant navy dirigible Macon in flight over Lake Michigan, Tuesday afternoon.

The big craft, on a training trip out of Chicago, reported mechanical difficulty by wireless to Frankfort, causing quite a flurry of excitement. It was sighted flying north at 3:30 o'clock by local coast guards. In the vicinity of the south end of Beaver Island, the big ship circled and headed back south.

Observers were aware that the ship was having difficulty keeping an even keel. It dipped noseward repeatedly and at times even appeared to be in distress. The last fifteen minutes it was in sight however, it flew steadily.

The Macon was plainly visible to the naked eye for some length of time. Many local residents drove to elevations south of the city to observe the ship.

Officers of Detroit-Charlevoix Club Elected at Annual Party Held Late In May

Announcement has come from William A. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the Charlevoix-Detroit Club, that the annual picnic will be held Saturday, June 24th. As the largest number of members are located in Flint and Detroit, the committee selected Maceady lake, located half way between the two cities.

The Mountain View Country club, a private ground where the picnic will be held, has been reserved for the day. Those attending are requested to bring lunch baskets. Dinner will be between 1:00 and 2:00 p. m. The entertainment program includes dancing, cards, swimming, boating and other sports.

Plans for the picnic were formulated at the 2nd annual party of the Charlevoix-Detroit club, held May 19th. At a business session during the party, the following officers were named: president, Miss Maynard Stacks; vice-president, Allen Arnold; secretary-treasurer, Miss Grace Papineau; board of directors, Robert Burns, Laura Zipp, Mrs. Don Button and W. GET EXCELLENT FOOD AND GOOD TREATMENT

So Report Boys Home from Woods Camp at Fort Brady

Charlevoix boys now stationed at Fort Brady and receiving training for the emergency conservation work camps send back word of good food, treatment and good times by three local boys who received a week-end leave and hitch-hiked home.

Edwin McCann, Glenn Heise and Gordon Bartlett were home Saturday and Sunday. They were due back in camp near Sault Ste. Marie, Monday morning, as the Charlevoix county contingent were expected to be transferred to a woods camp to take up the work for which they have been training for two weeks.

The boys said the food is excellent and that they are very well treated. A comprehensive athletic and sports program is laid out for the boys and they are all reported in excellent health.

LEGISLATURE IS ON FINAL WEEK

ADJOURNMENT HAS BEEN SET FOR JUNE 17TH

Saturday Will See End of Longest Session Ever Held By a Michigan Legislature

(By Elton R. Eaton.)

One more week—probably Saturday, June 17—and the members of the Michigan legislature will go home to tell the folks that voted for them what they have done for the people of Michigan during the longest legislative session in the history of the state.

They will go home to answer questions about legislative inquiries, grand jury investigations, rumors and charges of graft and nescience and other interjections that really should be directed to only a scattering few. Possibly the few might not be entitled to the suspicion that now seems to hang over a fairly large group.

In these closing days of a legislative session that should have written into Michigan history one of its most interesting chapters, it seems that members of both the house and senate are devoting the greater portion of their time either denying some of these ugly rumors or trying to find out the truth about them.

Michigan should not misunderstand—there are many senators and many representatives who are sincerely trying to find out the facts about these rumors. They are trying to find out if money has really been used to buy legislative votes. It is difficult for old time legislative observers to believe that there is a man in the house or senate who would permit himself to be sold for a mess of pottage. There are many, many high type men in the legislature, men that the districts that elected them can be proud of.

But in a legislature that was so completely over-turned by the voters as was done last fall, it is true that possibly some came into the legislature not schooled in the high ethics that have and should prevail in that body. Some point out that possibly they did not have the real conception of the responsibility the voters had placed upon them.

This is true in some cases, without question. A member of the legislature sat at his desk the other day reading letters and telegrams that had come in. One happened to be from a high official of one of the great municipalities of the state. It pertained to important legislation. He barely scanned it before dropping it into his waste basket. To a friend standing close by, he commented that he didn't care to take time to read letters about pending bills.

There are many senators and many representatives who have really and sincerely tried to do something for the good of Michigan—but seemingly it has been impossible for them to get anywhere.

A sales tax bill, the one method left by the state to raise revenue that the state must have, seems satisfactory to no one.

Governor Comstock has let it be known that he is utterly opposed to the action of the senate in having made as a part of the sales tax bill the measure that sets aside $15,000,000 for the education of the boys and girls of Michigan. Originally it was a house bill that provided funds to take place of the primary school fund. The senate thought it best to incorporate it in the revenue producing bill. But the Governor thinks welfare is much more important just now than education and he is fearful that the setting aside of so much money for education might not leave as much as he thinks necessary for welfare.

Rep. Vernon J. Brown the other day warned the legislature when it was considering the creation of a new commission to handle welfare funds that if they didn't look out they would be setting up an organization with the right to spend $12,000,000 or $15,000,000 without a string of any kind tied to the members or the money.

Seemingly the whole session has been more or less of a hodge-podge affair.

Priced time has been given to the discussion of a vicious dog racing bill—and around this thing centers some of the graft talk.

Then there has been a bitter fight made by loan sharks and loan companies to kill a bill that would cut the interest rate on short term loans from three per cent a month to one per cent.

Some members of the legislature (Continued on page 3.)

INDIANS RETURN TO WINNER ROLE

COPPED LEAGUE GAME FROM ALDEN, SUNDAY, 17-4

Play Ellsworth Packers Here Thursday Evening and Alba at South Side Park Next Sunday

Returning to the early sea-on form which won them four consecutive victories, the Charlevoix Indians stepped out to hand Alden a 17 to 4 defeat at Alden, Sunday. The contest was the second for the local team on the Charlevoix-Antrim league schedule.

Charlevoix scored two runs in the first inning which Alden tied with counts in the second and third. From then on the Indians had things pretty much their own way. They counted five runs in the 4th, seven in the 7th and three in the 9th innings. Alden used four hurlers in an attempt to stop the onslaught.

The Indians gave excellent support to their battery composed of Amos John and "Stub" Lord. Alden used Funk, Smith, Day and Titrous, with C. Smith at catch. The game was featured by Denemy's timely hits. He clouted a home run with two on in the 5th inning and a 3-bagger with the bases loaded in the 7th.

Charlevoix plays a mid-week game Thursday evening at south-side diamond against Ellsworth. The contest, to be called at 6:30 o'clock, gives them an opportunity to wipe out a 13 to 1 defeat administered by Ellsworth on Decoration day.

The next contest on the league schedule will be played at south side field next Sunday. With a line-up strengthened by the addition of two returning college players, the Indians take on Alba. The Sunday following they play Boyne City at Boyne.

The management feels the team has snapped out of a slump which cost them three games, and are now on their way to a string of victories in future games.

HALLETT HOTELS OPEN FOR SUMMER SEASON

Report Increase in Inquiries and Advance Reservations

The two Hallett hotels—Hallett's Inn and Hotel Hallett—have opened for the 1933 summer season.

The opening of these two summer places mark the start of the resort season in this city. Preparations for the opening have been in progress for several weeks.

J. J. Hallett, proprietor and manager of Hallett's Inn, reports a marked increase in both inquiries and advance reservations over previous years. This same encouraging information comes from other local hotel managers, indicating a good season for hotel interests, at least.

MICHIGAN PROBATE JUDGES COME HERE SEPTEMBER 5-7

Dates for the annual convention of the Michigan Association of Probate Judges, to be held in Charlevoix, have been set for September 5, 6 and 7, according to an announcement by Probate Judge Ervan A. Ruessegger.

Only three more days of Campbell's Shoe Sale. You'll have to hurry.—Adv. 241.

COUNCIL SESSION WAS A BUSY ONE

MANY PROJECTS WERE APPROVED MONDAY NIGHT

Vincent Madison Hired Superintendent of Electric Light and Water Departments—Change June 15

A grist of regular city business, along with several matters of more than usual importance, was transacted by the council at its regular session Monday night.

A change in the city electric light and water departments, which is expected to result in a revamping of the city's electric distribution system, resulted when Vincent Madison, recent graduate of Columbia University, New York, was employed as acting superintendent of the departments. Mr. Madison assumes his duties June 15th. Dan Soule, who has headed the departments nearly four years, will be transferred in charge of the hydro-electric plant at Bellaire after July 1st. Mr. Madison was not given contract for any definite period and the salary was set at $125.00 per month.

The matter of placing a drainage culvert across the city auto park on Lake Michigan to drain off flood water which covers the grounds during rainy periods, was referred to committee for future action. The auto park now seems to be a drainage basin for a large area to the southwest.

The mayor and city clerk were authorized to advertise for bids for construction of the May street storm sewer project, plans of which were accepted some time ago. Storm sewer will be laid from Garfield avenue north to Round lake. The line may be extended further south in the future if necessary. Cost estimates of the project are in the neighborhood of $1,000.00.

William S. Kibbe was appointed caretaker and special police for the city bathing beach on Lake Michigan for the summer sea-on. He will have charge of playground equipment and policing of the beach.

An appropriation of $25 per month was voted to the city band toward the salary of their director. A previous appropriation of $100 per month was withdrawn by the preceding council, and continuance of the organization was contingent upon further financial support. It is understood the regular summer concert program will now be continued.

The application for beer license of M. H. Turner, managing director of The Inn, was approved, but applications of the A. & P. company and the Charlevoix Fruit Store did not get out of committee due to the fact, it is understood, that a petition had been granted and filed which requested no licenses be approved for grocery stores.

LOW PRICE CARS VS. CHEAP CARS

We do not build a low-price car: the cost to us of building our car is pretty high.

But we do sell a high quality car at a low price. Almost every new Ford V-8 car we have built so far this year, has cost more to manufacture than its selling price was. As you buy them at only $490 to $610, we have to depend on increasing volume to make up the difference.

The reason for this is simple: — a manufacturer who gives good value must expect to lose money on the first cars he sells because he cannot charge all his costs to the people who are first to buy.

But with the purchaser it is different — he cannot afford to lose anything on a car. It must give him full value from the first, and keep on giving him full value for years.

Two things make possible our combination of low prices and high cost quality:

1. Volume Production
2. Taking only one profit

First, we set our price at what would be fair to the public on the basis of economies we enjoy in volume production. Then, in order to justify and maintain our low price we must get volume sales.

Thus it comes that a car which is really high-cost to make, is also low-cost to buy.

There is a difference between a cheap car and a low-priced high quality car.

Ford prices are always fixed at a point which makes it profitable for a customer to buy.

Good and lasting business must produce profit to the buyer as well as to the seller. And of the two, the buyer's profit must be, comparatively, the larger one.

It pays us to sell the Ford V-8 because it pays you to buy it.

* * * MICHIGAN DEPT. OF STATE WEEKLY NEWS * * *

Financial responsibility of automobile drivers is to be one of the main subjects of discussion at the meeting of the Eastern Conference of Motor Vehicle Administrators to be held in Detroit June 27, 28 and 29. The Michigan department of state participates in these meetings under authority of a resolution of the 1929 legislature directing the department to cooperate with other states in securing uniform vehicle and traffic laws.

The three topics of discussion at the Detroit meeting will be the financial responsibility of motor vehicle operators; uniformity of law regarding licensing of vehicle operators; and responsibility between states with regard to enforcement of traffic laws. Michigan will be represented at the meeting by Orville E. Atwood, chief of the motor vehicle division of the department.

More new motor vehicles will be sold in Michigan during the present month than were sold during June, 1932. This prediction is based upon a study of records of the department of state. Sale of new cars in Michigan reached a low ebb in February, 1933, when approximately 175 automobiles a day were registered. Since then there has been a steady increase. During the first week of June, 3,729 new automobiles were registered as compared with 2,891 for the same period in 1932.

Improved business conditions also are credited with the increase in the number of motor vehicle operators. Licenses that are being issued daily from the department. In the past two months the average number of licenses issued daily has increased from 900 to 1,500.

Michigan will not lose one dollar of its gasoline tax because of the bank holiday, according to executives of the department of state. The January gas tax amounting to $1,350,000 was due Feb. 20, six days after the holiday was declared. Dealers at once were asked to mail checks as usual as evidence of indebtedness even though the checks could not be cleared. In the intervening month all of these checks have been paid except $87,850 and arrangements have been made for the complete liquidation of this unpaid balance within the next 90 days. Dealers are to be commended for taking up these checks under adverse business conditions.

LEGISLATURE IS ON FINAL WEEK

feel that 35 per cent interest per year for the last five years is altogether too much. The Democrats had pledged themselves to support a bill cutting the rate to at least one per cent a month. Such a bill passed the house before the lobby could get in its work. In the senate, there was a bitter fight made to keep the interest rate high and here it was that craft changes were first discussed.

One of the new ideas of the lobby was fighting for the 1 per cent rate of interest of being a lobby house.

So bitter a fight has been made, some of the changes made in the senate, that the senate itself voted for a grand jury investigation of the entire legislature. The resolution was passed, with the request that Judge Howard West of the supreme bench act as presiding judge and the prosecuting attorney of Leelanau county conduct the questioning.

Not only has the senate asked for an investigation of the craft changes made involving the disposition in the cutting of the interest in the small loan bill, but the house has had a committee busy during several days trying to find out if there is any truth to these charges.

Rep. Jarvis of Berrien county was a member of the house who had charged that he was sure money had been used in the senate in the small loan bill, but when pressed down to provide any information he said he could not do so.

There was an interesting side-light during a portion of the Jarvis inquiry. There was supposed to have been made an error in transcription

Feeding Goslings

After the goslings are two or three weeks old, if good grass, clover or alfalfa range is available they will need only one light feeding daily of a mash made up of two parts of shorts and one part of fine ground corn or ground oats or barley. After they are six weeks old, if they still need extra feed, chop the mash in equal parts of shorts, ground corn and ground oats, with a per cent of meat scraps added. With good grass range the amount of feed needed will be small.

Crowded Houses Bad

Slow development of feathers on a pullet indicates a poor layer, and one of the chief causes of poor feathering, other than the inheritance of the bird, is overcrowding during the summer months in brooder houses. One way to eliminate crowding is to use summer shelters for housing the young pullets. In crowded brooder houses too frequently the chickens develop the habit of roosting on the floor, then as cold weather comes they crowd, and colds and roup take a heavy toll.

A feeling of superiority is about all the satisfaction some people get out of being good.

INNOCENT VICTIMS

Too many people are back at the old game of speculation.

They lost money when the market went to pieces. They think they will make it all back again when the market rises.

They will make some. But the market will break again. Then it will all be lost.

The stock market is the best thing in the world to let alone. The professionals always take the amateurs for a ride. That is part of the game. It is nearly as safe to bet on a horse race as to try to make money in the market.

The worst feature of speculation is that it takes the mind from the real affairs of business. When men make a little easy money, they dislike to make that which comes harder but lasts longer.

The trouble with the United States is that we had too much speculation and too much easy money a few years past. The victims were not only those who made the easy money but they were those people who worked hard and depended upon a sound financial and industrial system.

LOCAL CHERRY QUEEN CANDIDATE IS NAMED

Miss Murilla Oldham Selected to Represent This City

(By F. V. Tyler.)

The National Cherry festival, which is a regular summer feature of the Grand Traverse region, is close at hand and Charlevoix will again have a representative in the annual contest for queen of the carnival.

Dr. C. J. Winder, president of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce, appointed a committee, last week, to select the local candidate. This committee, composed of Messrs. Shirley B. Henry, Robert Miles and F. V. Tyler and Mesdames C. J. Winder and A. J. Stelter, nominated Miss Murilla Oldham, daughter of the late Harry L. Oldham and the present Mrs. Ray O'Brien of Hayes township, for the honor.

Miss Murilla, who — strangely enough — was named by her parents for the famous English Murilla cherry, is a graduate of the local schools and has of late years received a fine finishing school education and has been a student of vocal music under some of the best eastern teachers. She has traveled extensively and made many excellent social contacts which should enable her to carry on the part she will be expected to play to the greatest advantage. These graces, combined with considerable physical attractiveness, should give her an excellent chance of winning the cherry crown for 1933.

The queen this year it is rumored, in addition to the usual trip to Washington by airplane, hearing the region's toothsome gift to the President of the United States, will reign for one day over the Century of Progress exposition at Chicago and possibly, visit the Atlantic fleet.

DRILL FOR OIL OVER IN JORDAN TOWNSHIP

Eugene Fochtman, Petoskey, Heads Group in New Speculation

The development of natural resources in the East Jordan-Antrim county district was to be given impetus last week when drilling was to be started on the oil and gas well on the Adam Skrocki location in section 15, Jordan township—about eight miles south of East Jordan.

During the past winter a block of acreage in this district has been headed by Eugene Fochtman of Petoskey, and his associate, including H. D. Crider, geologist, and W. A. Hower, field superintendent of the Muskegon Oil corporation, and the process of drilling now climaxes the cooperation had from land owners who have been virtually 100 per cent in giving leased to make this development possible. Others who have not yet leased have assured that their acreage would be included for development in the near future.

The location in Jordan township which has been selected is based on the result of a geophysical survey and several test wells drilled in that vicinity several years ago. The survey and test well indicated a high structure in that area—some of the test having struck gas in the Upper Traverse, which lies at a shallow depth in that vicinity.

If the well now being drilled proves to be a successful producer of gas or oil other wells will be drilled and the benefits to the entire East Jordan community would be far reaching.

EASY PAYMENT BACK TAX PLAN TO GOVERNOR

Allows Delinquent Tax Payments Over a Ten-Year Period

The legislature has written the answer to the state's delinquent tax problem.

In rapid fire order, the two houses Friday accepted their conference committee's report on the Moore-Tolbeck bill which now paves the way for payment of delinquent levies of 1931 and prior years over a period of ten years with payment of only four per cent interest. The first installment is due September 1, 1935.

As approved, it does not affect the taxes of 1932 or 1933. It now goes to the governor for signature.

The bill differs from the original senate bill in that taxes of 1927 and prior years are not cancelled. It departs from the house version in that payment of 1932 and 1933 levies is not required in order to secure the privilege of the ten-year amortization.

E. JORDAN MAN BELIEVED DROWNED SUNDAY

Boat Used by Frank Severance Found Submerged at Dwight's Landing

Charlevoix coast guards Tuesday abandoned efforts to locate the body of Frank Severance, 23, proprietor of the Severance Cabinet shop at East Jordan, who is believed to have drowned Sunday afternoon in Lake Charlevoix.

The man's outboard motor boat was found completely submerged near Dwight's landing. Severance Sunday afternoon set out in his boat and had dinner at the Freiberg cottage on Holly island. Sunday afternoon, during a lull in the severe storm which hit this region, he started back. He frequently remained over night and no anxiety was felt until Monday afternoon, when search was started resulting in finding the boat.

Coast guards gave up their search due to lack of any knowledge concerning location of the tragedy.

MICHIGAN FRUIT CROP TO BE BELOW AVERAGE

Such Are Prospects As Reported by U. S. Statistician

Michigan's fruit production, with the exception of apples and cherries, promises to be far below the crop of 1932 and the average of previous years, Irvin Holmes, U. S. agricultural statistician, Lansing, reported. He said that present indications are for an apple crop which is 21 per cent above that of a year ago, and that the production will be relatively the best of any tree fruits this season. The cherry crop on June 1 was nine points higher than that of a year ago. The outlook on this fruit is best in the Grand Traverse area. The peach crop appears likely to be the lightest since the low production year of 1918.

"I WANT MY TELEPHONE PUT IN AGAIN"

In our business offices throughout Michigan that statement has been heard frequently during the past few weeks. Many of our former subscribers say that it has been hard to get along without a telephone—that they never realized how much they needed it until they were without one.

A telephone in the home has become almost a necessity. Just one telephone call in case of sickness, fire or accident may be worth more than the cost of the service for a lifetime. Order a telephone today. Installation will be made promptly.

You are cordially invited to visit the Bell System exhibit in the Communications Building, Century of Progress Exposition, Chicago, June 1 to October 31.

RELIEF THAT'S NEEDED

Taking out of consideration all of the items of crazy finance of which this country had more than its share in the last fifteen years, there are thousands of small farm mortgages and thousands of small farm mortgages upon any sane basis of worth. It is in this direction that the federal government is moving to relieve a vast burden which affects the buying power of a most important section of the population of the United States.

If banks, insurance companies and other holders of farm mortgages may realize a fair return on their holdings, it will release needed funds in thousands of communities now paralyzed for want of ready cash. The same condition exists in towns and cities where reasonable loans have been made on moderate priced homes. People should remember, however, that the government alone never can and never will solve all their troubles. If America makes its comeback—it will and it must—it will be the result of individual effort, than paternal assistance. We feel too many rocking chair prophets are at

PRESERVE THIS ASSET

One of Michigan's greatest assets is its reputation as a healthful and disease-free state. Nothing would so thoroughly kill our tourist business as a epidemic of diphtheria, typhoid fever, or an attack of tuberculosis.

The reason Michigan has never had its health record sullied lies to a great extent in the work of local health officers, who are charged with responsibility of curbing the communicable diseases. It is not an accident that smallpox, typhoid fever, and diphtheria have been controlled until they are almost vanishing diseases, and that extensive inroads have been made on tuberculosis. Health officers have aided mightily in these outstanding conquests.

Notwithstanding this record, and in spite of the eminent capability Michigan's responsible health officials have shown over a period of years in doing their job—protecting the public health—two companion bills, senate 219 and senate 220, have been introduced in the legislature with the purpose of taking away responsibility for tuberculosis patients from health officers and physicians and giving it to persons fitted neither by position or training to be guardians of the public health.

If these bills are passed, their effect in the vast majority of Michigan counties will be to place the care of people sick with tuberculosis in the hands of the superintendent of the poor. No one will deny that the poor superintendent fills a vitally important place in dealing with these members of the community who are financially sick. But his ability to deal wisely with those sick with tuberculosis is an entirely different matter. That is the province of the health officer and the trained medical man, a person who has had personal experience with this disease can attest.

It will not be by measure such as this that Michigan will increase her appeal to outside visitors, and to action giving reasonable protection against disease to her own citizens. These bills should be considered to the death they mean for helpless victims of tuberculosis.

POINTING THE WAY

Upon no class of people can the thanks of the public be conferred more deservedly than upon the makers of automobiles.

For they are leading the way out of the depression.

Throughout the dark months of the past when business was stagnant and money scarce the automobile men never let down. They went forward with plans for cars of beauty and quality to an extent never before realized. These marvelous creations were placed upon the market at amazing prices.

Now the up-turn has come. The old "buggy" is worn out. The owner is looking for a chance to dispose of it and purchase one of the new and up-to-date products of the maker's originality and skill.

Here again, the automobile makers are on the job. They have renewed their advertising campaigns with vigor. Realizing that the columns of the newspapers are the best, cheapest and most effective method of getting their messages before the people, they are launching campaigns of optimism as well as of salesmanship.

Let us direct your attention to the automobile advertising that is appearing in the newspapers. Not this particular week, but every week. It is the best possible indication of the marvelous "comeback" of a tremendous, dynamic force in modern life—the automobile!

DON'T GET STUNG

If you are approached by a white-clothed bootlegger who offers to let you in on the ground floor of a Michigan Speakeasy, don't take the bait. The Speakeasy is a dangerous place. It is the best possible indication of the marvelous "comeback" of a tremendous, dynamic force in modern life—the automobile!

The sale of Muscle Shoals red clay has been going on intermittently for two years and already thousands of investors have been defrauded by these unscrupulous promoters. This new imposture gives this region, through proposed governmental activity in the Tennessee river basin, a new lease on life.

There is no one to object because these elements are joining in to see that the law is enforced. It is too bad that they did not manifest some desire for obedience to the statute long ago. The real difficulty with prohibition has not been prohibition but failure of officials to enforce it. — Storm Lake (Iowa) Pilot-Tribune.

BUYING ON TIME

Again referring to the matter of cash and credit—the installment buying plan has held up remarkably well during the recent crisis.

Many have defaulted on payments on cars and other items. But so many have paid. Those who predicted that the installment plan would break down will probably need to predict a while longer.

The recent and present depression is not so much financial as it is industrial. There seems to be plenty of money in the larger centers, even only when we want necessities, but custom gives the name of poverty to the want of superfluities. It is the great privilege of poverty to be happy unenvied, to be healthy without physic, secure without a guard, and to obtain from the bounty of nature what the great and wealthy are compelled to procure by the help of art. Adversity has ever been considered as the state in which a man most easily becomes acquainted with himself, particularly being free from flatterers. Prosperity is too apt to prevent us from examining our conduct, but as adversity leads us to think properly of our state, it is most beneficial to us. — Samuel Johnson.

TOUGH ON BOOTLEGGERS

Official throughout the country are showing commendable energy in prosecuting bootleggers. Since the advent of beer, a more determined effort seems to be under way to stamp out the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors. It is not difficult to find between the lines. The beer and whisky manufacturers and the wets have begun to co-operate in the enforcement of the liquor laws instead of acting as deterrent impediments. It's all part of the big scheme to put over the repeal of the 18th amendment.

If it can be shown that the arrival of three-two brew has made bootlegging in no way unprofitable, it is an argument in favor of repeal, the wets agree. In other words, the brewers and bootleggers are now anxious to stop the sale of illegal bootleggers because of the psychological effect upon the voters.

No one is going to object because these elements are joining in to see that the law is enforced. It is too bad that they did not manifest some desire for obedience to the statute long ago. The real difficulty with prohibition has not been prohibition but failure of officials to enforce it. — Storm Lake (Iowa) Pilot-Tribune.

while industry gasps for orders and idle men walk the streets.

Those who have financed the companies who, in turn, lend the money to those who buy goods on the time payment plan, have had enough resources to meet the demand for even more credit. In-tillment purchasing has been financed from very substantial sources. When those sources are weakened there will be a curtailment of the amount available. Whether that will come at about the time that the public wishes to buy, is a question.

Right now people are making their cars and washing machines last a little longer. Hard times are the times when the public pays its debts.

ALL GOD'S CHILL'UN GOT SHOES

When the first lady of the land said it was proposed to "put shoes on the hill folks" of the Southland, it was an altogether wise voice to a disposition that has been growing in the mind of the people — that the scheme of development of a great inland empire will put shoes on the feet of the people in that region at the expense of the rest of the nation.

It has always seemed a sensible idea, that before you begin to buy neckties for the neighbor's children, it is only a matter of prudent caution to see to it that your own kids are properly clothed. To question the feasibility of this inland development in the Tennessee river basin at this time is far from touching a popular chord, but in spite of its unpopularity it will be well to remember that Michigan alone will pay seven times as much towards the cost as the two states of Alabama and Tennessee, who are going to get all the benefit.

"Once I had composed Massenet was compelled to listen to a youthful prodigy and give his opinion. 'You have talent,' he said to the little dandy, 'and with proper diligence and perseverance you ought to be able to—'

"'Oh I would love to compose, too,' interrupted the prodigy. 'how shall I set about it?'

"'You will have to learn a great deal more and become older.'

"'But you composed when you were thirteen.'

"'Yes,' acknowledged Massenet, 'but I ask you one more question: how did you feel about it?'

ARMY OFFICERS ARE INSPECTING CAMPS

Forty-Three Sites Promised Michigan Now Under Scrutiny

Possible sites for the establishment of 43 emergency conservation work camps in Michigan are now being inspected by ten U. S. army officers working under Colonel Wm. K. Moore, U. S. A., in charge of the selection of camp locations.

The 43 camps to be established were recently approved by the director of emergency conservation work and will be located in areas easily accessible to the work to be done on state forests, game refuges, parks and other projects of the Michigan department of conservation.

In selecting exact locations for the various camps, Colonel Moore is giving first consideration to sanitation and water conditions and to recreational advantages.

The first of the 43 camps has been established at the National Guard camp site near Grayling. It is officially known as the "Higgins" camp. It is expected that occupation of other camps will occur as rapidly as sites have been approved and workers have been "conditioned" at the army camps.

In the meantime L. R. Schoenmann, in charge of the conservation department's activities so far as it is concerned in the camps, is compiling work projects submitted by the various divisions of the department, so that the camp superintendents may put their crews to work as soon as the camps have been established.

POTATOES ARE SHORT AS PRICES JUMP

Warehouse Stock Here About Gone So Few Benefit by Raise

Just when the local crop of potatoes is about cleaned up the price jumps skyward. Of course, the reason why the price jump is because the old potatoes are about gone.

Buyers said that by the middle of latter part of next week will see the local market bare of the 1933 crop and they are offering 40 cents per hundred for the very few spuds left.

Many of the buyers have quit buying altogether and those who had any left in their warehouses are loading out this week. The scarcity of the old potatoes and rather poor quality of this year's southern crop of new potatoes combined to force the market upward. However, the higher prices brought little comfort or financial assistance to local growers who sold during the winter at from 25 cents to 30 cents per hundred.

CHARLEVOIX INVITED TO BE A PARTICIPANT

Asked to Take Part in Old Fort Michilimackinac Dedication

This city has been invited to participate in the ceremonies dedicating Old Fort Michilimackinac stockade at Mackinaw City on July 1.

This blockade is an historical reproduction of the old British fort which was captured by the Indians in the Pontiac uprising 170 years ago. Gov. William Comstock and 43 state officials have promised to be present for the dedication services and one of the features of the day will be the parade and Indian pageant.

An invitation has been extended to Charlevoix to enter a float in the dedication parade.

SUMMER OUTING OF EDITORS JUNE 22, 23, 24

Frankfort and Leelanau Peninsula to Be Visited by Publishers

For three days, June 22, 23 and 24, Michigan weekly editors and their families are going to enjoy their annual summer outing at Frankfort, one of the beautiful little northern Michigan communities that lies on the shore of Lake Michigan. Not only are they going to enjoy the hospitality of this ideal little community but the Leelanau peninsula and its interesting places are to be visited by the editors.

Andrew Peterson, publisher of the Benzie County Patriot, the Rotary club of Frankfort and other citizens of that community, have made plans for a most interesting time for their visitors.

"RESORT SPECIAL" BRINGS FOURTEEN TO CHARLEVOIX

Genial Joe Glasgow, veteran Pullman porter, made his first trip of the summer season, arriving on the first Resort Special of the Pere Marquette Saturday morning.

This first resort train of the season brought 42 persons to this region, 14 of whom stopped at Charlevoix. All of them were summer property owners who have come north for the season.

The next Resort Special will arrive June 17.

Junior church, 5:30.
Senior C. E., 6:30.
Ladies' Aid society, first Wednesday.

Circle days, second and fourth Wednesdays.

Sunday will be an important day, in the opinion of the pastor. We wish to bring a special message to the church before the summer takes all of our attention. We appreciate the splendid cooperation and attendance thus far this year. Any pastor could be justly proud of such a church. But we want this last opportunity of calling our membership together for the season. The day will be known as "Membership day." Can we come 100 per cent? That is a challenge to every member.

The subject for the morning address will be "True Estimates of Life."

Please note the change in our Sunday school hour. Beginning Sunday, June 18, and continuing until fall our Sunday school will begin at 10 o'clock a. m. and will continue to 10:45. David Coulter will be superintendent during the summer.

Sunday, June 25, will be Father's day in the Charlevoix and Ironton churches. At Ironton a Father and Son banquet will be held on the Friday evening previous. A special feature of the occasion Sunday morning will be the presence of the Kendall ladies' quartette. These young ladies have sang in Charlevoix before. This same group of singers will render a concert in the Congregational church Sunday evening, June 25th.

Wednesday evening at 7:45, first Wednesday of month only.

"God the Preserver of Man" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, June 11.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (John 11:41, 42): "And Jesus lifted up his eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me. And I knew that thou hearest me always; but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me."

BAPTIST CHURCH

Morning worship, 10:30. Prof. Jordan of Detroit, who, with his family, are spending the summer in this locality, will favor us with a vocal solo at this service.

Vacation bible school opened for the fifth consecutive season at the Baptist church Monday with the largest enrollment for any season. While the results of the school do not depend upon the large number in attendance, we are pleased to have so many boys and girls taking advantage of this opportunity to receive instruction in the holy scriptures. We urge parents to cooperate by giving their children every inducement possible to get them to come.

LEGISLATURE ENDS 5-MONTH SESSION

CHAOS FEARED AS RESULT OF FINANCIAL SHORTAGE

No Money Is Provided for Public Schools, While Food and Clothing Are Heavily Taxed

(By Elton R. Eaton.)

The regular session of the state legislature is at an end. The members have returned to their homes to condemn, praise or explain the administration in power. They have gone home to face the boys and girls of their neighborhood whose educational opportunities have been snatched from them. They have gone home to tell the fathers and mothers of these boys and girls that the state government from now on is going to demand a tax on the food they are required to eat to maintain life; that the state government is going to tax even the clothing they wear to protect themselves from the elements and to maintain some sort of decency.

Michigan—Michigan the mighty—Michigan the beautiful—has for the first time since its discovery in 1610—turned its face backward. Its educational system has been wrecked. While legislation has been passed that provides care for the crooked, the insane and the idle hands of the shiftless and unemployed, not one penny has been raised or provided for the public schools of Michigan.

Down through all the days of statehood Michigan has maintained a jealous, watchful attitude over its public schools. It has fostered them and pampered them as its most sacred asset.

Almost over night it has junked the whole system. One of the inconsistencies of the whole mess is the fact that appropriations have been made to support and maintain the normal schools of the state where young men and women are trained to be school teachers—but unless the people interested in the public school system of Michigan can devise some way to keep the schools open, there will be no schools for these instructors to conduct.

A last minute desperate effort by Senator Leon Case of Watervliet to save the schools was made. He caused to be written into the sales tax bill a clause appropriating $15,000,000 for the primary school fund, the money to be paid out of the general fund. But this, it is feared, means little, as the schools can have only what is left out of the $31,000,000 the sales tax is expected to raise after all the state departments and institutions have taken their dip into the fund. If the sales tax does not raise this amount of money, there will be no funds for the public schools. By chance if the amount secured from the sales tax should be more, then of course the schools will profit. But the schools have had each year from the state anywhere from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000. Even the most hopeful can see little in sight during the next year.

There is some talk that Governor William Comstock will call a special session of the legislature during the next few weeks to provide support for the public schools, but unless he does, hundreds of the little district school houses that dot the hillside of the state, the grade schools and the high schools will be unable to open next fall. If they do, possibly through some local taxation support, they will be able to run but a few months of the year.

It was the vote of the people last fall, the vote that wrote into the state constitution an amendment which took away from the state a right to tax real estate, coupled with the failure of the legislature to provide new revenues for the support of the schools that has led to the collapse of the public school system of Michigan.

Condemned by members of the legislature as a bad piece of legislation, legislation that "shifted the tax burden from the rich man to the back of the poor man," as Rep. Wm. Connelly declared, nevertheless the sales tax bill has passed and Governor Comstock is going to approve it. It is effective immediately and from now on the people of Michigan are going to pay a three per cent tax on everything they buy. The bill was condemned by both the senate and house as being entirely unfit for passage, but it was necessary that the state be provided with some revenues to maintain some semblance of an organized government, therefore dozens of representatives and senators voted for a bill they knew to be unfair and declared to be bad in many of its features. The bill is expected to raise some $31,000,000 for the support of the state. An exemption was placed in the bill that provides a bit of aid for the farmers. There will be no sales tax collected on gross sales of less than $500 per year. This will make it possible for farmers who conduct little roadside stands to sell the products of their orchards and gardens without the payment of a tax. The sales tax bill creates scores of new jobs and the bill carries an original appropriation of $100,000 for the boys to play with.

Taxpayers of Michigan who thought they might expect from the present legislature a cut in state expenses will find when the final account of the work of the present administration, the highest at their time in all state history, have been exceeded. But administration leaders point out that the present high appropriations are due to a deficit of between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000 left by the old administration and the (Continued on page 8.)

GENERAL FISHING WILL OPEN JUNE 25

BAN LIFTED NEXT SUNDAY ON ALL INLAND WATERS

Provisions of 50c General Rod License, Passed by Legislature,
Will Be Enforced Then

With the opening of the general fishing season in Michigan, Sunday, June 25, the department of conservation will begin enforcing the general rod license law.

The new license law, adopted and given immediate effect by the 1933 legislature has not been rigidly enforced so far this spring, the department felt that everyone should have an opportunity to learn of its requirements.

However, all of the department's 1,800 license dealers have now been supplied with the new license blanks and beginning the morning of June 25 every person over 18 years of age will be required to have a license in his or her possession to fish for any species in season in any of the inland waters.

However, according to the department, the wife of a licensed resident fisherman may fish on her husband's license. A stub is issued with the license when requested on which is written a description of the wife, for purposes of identification. This stub must be carried by her when fishing, while her husband carries the license.

The non-resident fee for an annual license is $2.00. The wife of such a resident can obtain a similar license for 50c. The non-resident, however, may obtain for $1 a license to fish in Michigan for 10 days. His wife may obtain a similar license for 50c.

Neither residents or non-residents are required to have a license to fish in any of the Great Lakes waters.

All fishing licenses will expire December 31.

Those who purchased trout fishing licenses last spring may use that license in lieu of a general rod license, the conservation department announced. If the wife of the holder of a resident trout license will make a notation of the number of her husband's license, she may use that for identification and fish without obtaining any other license or paying any fee.

Decrease of the non-resident fishing license fee from $4.00 to $2.00 has resulted in a greatly increased sale, according to the license office of the department. Most of the licenses sold have been seasonal rather than for the ten days period.

LIQUOR PRESCRIPTION ACT GIVEN COMSTOCK O. K.

Doctors, dentists and osteopaths may now legally prescribe whiskey and other liquor in any amounts they deem necessary for the restoration of health to their patients.

The Voorhies bill permitting the use of liquor for medical purposes for members of the three professions was signed late Friday by Governor Comstock. Osteopaths were given the same privilege in the senate, doctors and dentists being included in its provisions by the house.

EAST END COMMISSIONERS SEEK RESIGNATION OF R. T.
DAVIS, MAINTENANCE SUPERINTENDENT

ACTION DECLARED TO BE UNWARRANTED

Viewed as Continuance of Policy of Eastern Supervisors to "Hog" Everything in Sight While Western Townships Carry Majority of Tax Burden

Hopes of Charlevoix county taxpayers that affairs of the county road commission would settle to normalcy after several thousand dollars had been spent to dust LaVern C. Rouse, former commissioner, as the aftermath of a political grudge fight, appear to have been blasted.

Rumblings which started some months ago have gathered thunderous proportions—in fact, enlarged to an extent where Frank Wageman and S. E. Rogers, east end members of the commission, are ready to sacrifice efficiency and able management for personal, political or other reasons. They have asked the resignation of R. T. Davis, maintenance superintendent. The request has so far been refused, and the move, we understand, is strenuously opposed by William Straw, Charlevoix member of the commission.

Some observers are of the opinion Mr. Rogers covets the position for himself. Others have advanced the theory that a Boyne City group have a candidate for the job. Regardless of these theories, Davis is slated to go unless sufficient opposition is aroused to head off the movement.

The trouble has been brewing for some time. Davis' attempts to maintain efficiency in road work have been balked. We have been informed that Rogers and Wageman have gone beyond their authority as executives to countermand orders given by the superintendent. Just recently, we understand, as an economy measure, Mr. Davis recommended release of the district foremen at Boyne City, East Jordan and Charlevoix.

Charlevoix's man was released, but Yokely at Boyne City, and Wageman's son, Lyle, at East Jordan, are still on the job. And this, in face of the fact money for road purposes is at its lowest. These same foremen, it is understood, have ordered purchases of supplies, superceding their authority, and at other times have taken their orders from Rogers and Wageman instead of Davis, the proper authority. There is also, we understand, the matter of rental of a road shovel at $325 a month, opposed as unneeded by Mr. Davis, and directly opposing the policy of the state highway commission on relief highway work supposed to be done by hand labor; also the purchase on a rental basis of a new gravel screen, which it is claimed is not necessary at present in view of stressing financial conditions.

To expect the maintenance superintendent to carry on in an efficient manner under such trying conditions would hardly seem possible. As far as Mr. Davis' qualifications are concerned and his efficiency as a county employee, we do not hesitate to state he is outstanding in Northern Michigan. Trained for the work for many years and with an abundance of practical experience, Mr. Davis' record with Charlevoix county has been the envy of this district. We have learned, from authoritative sources, that regardless of his politics, he is slated to remain in this county as state highway maintenance superintendent under the Democratic administration after July 1. It hardly seems that the opinions of such men as Wageman and Rogers should be regarded in view of such a recommendation.

The Courier takes a stand in the Davis matter for several reasons, foremost of which is the fact we believe that eastern county officials have given the western portion a rotten deal throughout and we have figures to prove our contention.

In this respect we refer to expenditures of the county poor commission during the past year. The eastern portion of the county received in temporary poor relief all but $2,466.26 of a total of $28,490.82. Boyne City got $10,151.36 of this amount and East Jordan $10,461.57. The Charlevoix district, comprising the city of Charlevoix, Hayes, Marion, Norwood, Charlevoix, St. James and Poudre township, representing $1,678,313.00 of a total county valuation of $9,582,608.00, over half, if you please, received about one-thirtieth of the money spent for poor relief. In other words, this western district, with stupendous problems of its own to solve, is digging into its jeans to carry the burden of the rest of the county, which is no worse off than we are.

Charlevoix cut its valuation this year in answer to pleas of its citizens, whom, for the reason incomes had been reduced, resort property rentals cut, etc., were no longer able to stand the burden. What happens? The eastern district, which has cut its own valuation year after year with no opposition from this district, put up a terrible wall.

It all goes to show that the eastern townships have no regard for the west only to give them a beautiful trimming. They would "hog" everything in sight. We do not believe they would be satisfied if the whole county administration was moved over to them while Charlevoix and surrounding townships paid the "shot."

In our estimation, it is time supervisors of the western precincts "showed their teeth." We need concerted representation if our rights are to be preserved. Every citizen should get behind them in their efforts by taking a more active interest in county affairs. If Charlevoix is to pay the load, it certainly is entitled to its share. The eastern townships cannot "eat their cake and have it, too."

ART VAN ALLSBURG DIED AT HOSPITAL SATURDAY

Succumbed From Injuries Received in Accident—Funeral Tuesday

Art VanAllsburg, 64, prominent local business man the past thirty-seven years, died at 6:30 o'clock last Saturday evening at Charlevoix hospital from injuries received in an automobile accident the evening of June 11 on US-31 south of this city.

Mr. VanAllsburg was born November 5, 1869, at Coopersville, the son of Englebert and Lyncha VanAllsburg. He was married to Rebecca Mary DeWitt, now deceased. To this union were born two children, Engle and Helen. The latter died in 1913. Surviving in addition to the son and two granddaughters, Marielle and Phyllis, are four sisters, Mrs. John Kraai and Mrs. George Wult of Spring Lake, Mrs. Russell Smith of Muskegon, and Mrs. Hugh Jennings of Lansing; also four brothers, Garrett of Muskegon, Neil and Burt of Hart and John of Northport, Pa.

Rev. G. R. Parker officiated at funeral services held Tuesday afternoon at Brookside chapel. The large attendance at the service testified to the esteem in which Mr. VanAllsburg was held by his many friends.

LARGER HOTELS ARE OPENING NEXT WEEK

THE INN ADVANCES DATE FROM JULY 1 TO JUNE 25

The Belvedere Opens Tuesday Under Management of Mr. and Mrs. Carl
C. Steiner—Prospects Good

Contrary to earlier expectations, The Inn, Charlevoix's largest summer hotel, will open Monday, June 26th, for the 1933 summer season. The opening date was advanced from July 1, due to the large number of requests for early accommodations.

The Inn will this year be under the management and direction of M. H. Turner, owner of the Highland Pines Inn at Southern Pines, N. C.

Associated with him in the management are William E. Flynn, Lee McDonald, Leon M. York and James T. Flynn, all members of the staff of the Highland Pines Inn.

William E. Flynn will act as resident manager; Mr. McDonald in charge of accounting; Don Wister night auditor; Leon M. York will again be steward; James T. Flynn, maître d-hôtel and Jules Desrick chef de cuisine. Mrs. William E. Flynn returns as housekeeper; Mrs. Florence McDonald will have charge of the beauty parlor; Maurice Schmidt the barber shop and billiard room; Emerson Hull in charge of the garage and G. Y. Marshall maintenance of grounds. Charles Evans of Southern Pines, returns as chief engineer.

The hotel with its vast acreage is being put in the usual excellent condition for the opening. The Pere Marquette Railway company, owners of the property, have a carpenter crew on the grounds making necessary repairs to the buildings, and a large staff of painters and other workmen are rushing the usual preparatory work to completion.

The 1933 season will mark the first June opening of the hotel since the convention of the Michigan Bankers' association several years ago. Advance bookings are in excess of previous years, resulting in the plan to advance the opening date. All indications point to a season far more successful than the past two years.

The Belvedere hotel will open for the 1933 season on Tuesday, June 27th, under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Steiner, who manage The Clarendon hotel, Daytona Beach, Fla., during the winter season.

Many improvements have been made throughout the hotel which will add to the comfort of the guests. All of the corridors have been redecorated, as well as many of the rooms. The present outlook is very promising for good business at The Belvedere this season.

Roy E. Sapp, who was clerk last season, will return as chief clerk, and Miss Rae A. Graver will again be secretary-bookkeeper. Both were at The Clarendon hotel the past winter. Sanford E. Nelson will be clerk-rashier and E. Staplin night clerk. Wyatt Wilson returns as porter. Mrs. John Durzin as housekeeper. Robert H. Hartley will act as head waiter, and Chef Ed. Yates will again be at The Belvedere.

Edward J. Edwards, warden of the Belvedere Club, reports very favorably on cottage rentals. Practically all of the summer homes will be occupied within a short time.

CHILDREN'S DAY WAS OBSERVED ON SUNDAY

Varied Program of Recitations and Music at M. E. Church

A very interesting program was presented last Sunday morning at the M. E. church in observance of Children's day. A varied assortment of recitations, interspersed with piano, saxophone and other musical selections, proved to be much appreciated by those in attendance.

In the absence of Rev. Hurd, the pastor's place during the opening worship was filled by L. E. McElhan, Sunday school superintendent. The above mentioned program formed the second part of the service. Credit for the capable management of the entire program and for the tastefully decorated platform should be given to the committee in charge which consisted of Mrs. Clarence Arnold and the Misses Marguerite Bogart and Iva Howe.

DRAMATIC CAMP OPENING JULY 5

DIRECTOR AND TECHNICAL STAFF COME THIS WEEK

National Dramatic Camp, a New Feature in Middle West, Creating a Wide Interest

Final preparations for the opening of the National Dramatic camp at Ironton are being completed.

The cast, which is already in rehearsal, and the director will arrive about July 1st, but Mrs. Allen G. Miller, the director and manager of the camp, together with some of the technical staff, will arrive the end of this week to set up living quarters and prepare the stage for the opening performance of "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary" on July 5th.

The National Dramatic camp is organized along the lines followed by the recently popular eastern training camps and summer theatres that have become a feature of the theatre in the past three years. Most of Broadway's successful plays and new actors have been discovered through these summer theatres. Though Broadway is a far cry from Michigan, the National Dramatic camp has already received many indications of interest among eastern managers and writers.

The camp plans to offer to the people of northern Michigan high class sophisticated entertainment in the matter of plays produced, and will also bring here the first laboratory experimental camp.

Mrs. Miller says that casual investigation has revealed great interest in Charlevoix and surrounding territory, that the season at Ironton promises to be widely attended and that the summer theatre camp idea has found great response. She says that many new plays will be produced, and that in addition to the carefully chosen resident cast many playwrights and actors of note will visit the camp this summer to take part in the plays or to see their own plays produced, so that the influence of the camp will spread far beyond the environs of Michigan. Playwrights are interested in this middle western camp—an entirely new departure—as a laboratory for the production of their new plays. It will be remembered that such authors as Eugene O'Neill, Susan Glaspell and Ben Hecht are the products of laboratory theatres.

A last minute announcement of great interest is that Charles Barker, author of "The Man On Stilt" and "Dirty Hands" has been secured to act as resident production director.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Subject, "Christian Science."

"The Universe, including Man, evolved by Atomic Force?" was the subject of the lecture-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, June 18.

Wednesday evening at 7:45, first Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (Ps. 95: 5-6): "The sea is his, and he made it; and his hands formed the dry land. O come; let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the Lord our Maker. For he is our God; and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep in his hand."

Correlative passages read from "The Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p. 518): "Nothing is new to Spirit. Nothing can be novel to eternal Mind, the author of all things, who from all eternity knoweth His own ideas. Heity was satisfied with His work. How could He be otherwise, since the spiritual creation was the outgrowth, the emanation, of His infinite self-containment and immortal wisdom?"

Dying—Probably the Richest. Certainly the Most Mysterious Man in Europe

An article, revealing astounding events in the strange life of Sir Basil Zaharoff who is reputed to have built his enormous fortune on death, destruction and misery, stirring wars and revolutions, so he might sell shot and shell from his munition factories—yet still hiding his real name and nationality, will appear in The American Weekly, with next Sunday's edition.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS SUBSCRIBE FOUR MILLION FOR PUBLISHING HOME

Word that no further contribution to the fund for the building of the new $4,000,000 home now being erected for The Christian Science Publishing society need be made after July 1, was announced at the annual meeting of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist.

Members from many lands—more than 5,000 in all—heard the message from the directors, which hailed the "sacrifice and unselfish efforts" of those "who have made possible the completion of the new publishing house without delay and without debt," an achievement described as a silent but none the less impressive witness to the unity, stability and resourcefulness of Christian Scientists.

Report was made to the meeting of new branch churches at Kenya, Africa; at Cairo, Egypt; in Brazil; and of five additional branches in Australia; besides 21 new branches in Europe and 42 in North America. The Mother Church now has 2,639 branch churches and societies and 47 collect organizations. Public lectures on Christian Science drew an attendance of 3,000,000 during the year. The president of The Mother Church for the coming year is Miss Mary G. Ewing, of Brookline, Mass.

Funds were provided by The Mother Church for relief work among flood sufferers in England and in West Virginia; for aid to hurricane victims in Puerto Rico; and for help in California following the recent earthquake. Unemployment and other charitable relief work was also carried on in Boston and other parts of the United States, and in Germany, Holland, Estonia, Austria, Poland, Finland and Canada.

In spite of reduced advertising revenue from The Christian Science Monitor, The Christian Science Publishing society reported an increase in net profits over the previous year. No general reduction in the working force was made.

A COMPANY THIRTY YEARS OLD

Last Friday the Ford Motor Company completed 30 years of automobile making.

It is also my fortieth year at the same job. I made my first engine in 1893, and it still runs. This is the engine that won the Selden Patent Suit—which took the motor car out of the exclusive class, and opened the automobile industry to hundreds of manufacturers who started during the last 30 years.

Some of the men who began with me that June day in 1903, are working here yet. All of the principles we laid down then, are still operative; we find that they have great survival value for the future. To date they have produced and sold over 21,000,000 Ford cars.

Although we created the automobile market we have never thought it was good for anyone to monopolize it. We have always believed that before business could be good for one, it must be good for all. Our discoveries and improvements have always been open to other manufacturers without patent restrictions.

Of course, there is one thing we cannot share—everyone must get it for himself—and that is experience. Money could duplicate our buildings and machines, but it cannot duplicate 40 years of experience. And it is experience that makes a motor car.

But the past does not especially concern me; it has all been a preparation for the future. For myself, I feel that I have just been gathering the tools to do something worth while, and that my real task is still ahead.

Great changes are upon the world. False ideas of every kind are vanishing in the general upheaval. Those who built truly on principle will survive—their service will carry over. Business integrity and commodity honor will be fully justified. And newer and better ways of living will appear.

That is the outlook for this young thirty-year old Company of ours.

Fur Has Played Stellar Role in World History

Demand That Never Ceased Throughout Centuries.

Washington.—What is described in press dispatches as the first full time fur exchange in the world was recently opened in London. Its address, aptly enough, is "Beaver House."

This event emphasizes the stellar role fur has played on the stage of Europe and North America, according to a bulletin from the National Geographic society, which points out that the world's demand for furs, throughout the centuries, has never ceased.

"Valued first for warmth, then as adornment," says the bulletin, "fur became a luxury, to be enjoyed only by the wealthy few. Kings and emperors exchanged furs as gifts; royal captives redeemed themselves with furs; and only kings and nobles and the highest clergy were permitted to wear certain kinds of fur. Some kinds, like the ermine of a judge, became almost a badge of office for state officials. A man's social importance could be gauged by the amount and kind of fur he wore.

Affects Map of World.

"Like gold and spices, fur helped unroll the map of the world and affected its political and economic history; for fur traders, prospectors, and explorers were frequently pioneers and explorers as well. Russians, seeking furs, stretched their power over Siberia. In North America, French, English and Dutch raised the lakes and woods for pelts, and battled for possession of this rich fur storehouse. Men like La Salle, Champlain and Joliet, Daniel Boone, Kit Carson and Jim Bridger, and Alexander Mackenzie, pushed back frontiers and cleared up blind spots on our map.

"Quest of furs changed American and Canadian trading posts like New York, Albany, Detroit and St. Louis, Winnipeg, Montreal, and Edmonton, into prosperous cities; founded powerful trading firms like the Hudson's Bay company; built up fortunes like those of John Jacob Astor and Lord Strathcona; from furs Canada derived its early prosperity; even its present-day boundaries roughly coincide with its early fur-trading areas. From furs originated much of the foreign commerce of the United States.

"Beaver," as fur back as Chaucer's day, was practically synonymous with 'fur.' And because Charles I ruled that no fur except beaver could be used in the manufacture of hats, demand for beaver pelts increased to such an extent that new sources of supply were sought and found in North America. So important did the beaver become that it found a place on the seal of New Netherlands and of New York city, and on Canada's coat of arms.

"A beaver pelt became not only an article of trade, but a medium of exchange and a standard of value. One skin bought a pound of tobacco or four pounds of shot; five skins was the price for a plain red coat. Brass tokens for one, one-half, one-quarter, and one-eighth beaver were issued by the Hudson's Bay company, and known as 'beaver money.' Beaver fur, however, the recently opened fur exchange in London, commemorates the historic and commercial prominence of this little animal.

Fur Has "Gone Democratic."

"Beaver continues popular, but other furs now rival or exceed it in number and value. An aristocratic luxury for centuries, fur has gone democratic. Although steam-heated houses put an end to the need for heavy underclothing, windproof coats and rugs became all the more necessary for outdoor wear. And high wages of World War days and post-war prosperity changed increasing numbers of housewives and stenographers from cloth to fur coats.

'Living Pebbles' Found on Islands

Samples Are Brought Back by Smithsonian Scientist.

Washington.—"Living pebbles" are among the curiosities of nature secured by Dr. Waldo L. Schmitt, curator of marine invertebrates of the Smithsonian Institution, along the shores of the Galapagos Islands.

Dr. Schmitt has just returned after taking part in the Galapagos expedition of Capt. G. Allen Hancock of Los Angeles. He collected for the Smithsonian the crabs and shrimps of these isolated islands, securing hundreds of specimens of some species hitherto known to science by only one or two individuals.

The "living pebbles"—otherwise known as limonite crabs—were among the special objectives of the expedition. They are tiny animals with rough shells of the same color as the beach sand in which they live. They look exactly like coral pebbles. About the only way to detect them is to see them move. They represent one of the most effective concealment devices in nature, Smithsonian biologists say.

Dr. Schmitt also collected numerous fresh water crustaceans on islands practically devoid of fresh water, whose life cycle illustrates another remarkable biological phenomenon. They appear at the beginning of the rainy season in mud puddles and rain filled depressions in the lava crust. Here they lay their eggs. The rainy season is brief and the burning tropical sun soon dries up the puddles. The adults, unable to exist without water, perish.

But, curiously enough, the eggs will

Cabinet Members Are Given Soaking

By WILLIAM L. BRUCKART
Washington.—White House attaches are laughing these days at the soaking received by two members of the cabinet whose identity they refuse to disclose but who seem to have been the victims of the Roosevelt open-door policy.

There is a great fountain and pool filled with lily-pads at the east entrance to the Executive mansion. This entrance is used only occasionally by the cabinet members, but evidently the two members in question were in a hurry and took a short cut. Their arrival at the east gate coincided with the time a stray dog chose to disport himself in the pool, and they watched the fun. The dog seemed to feel perfectly at home on the White House grounds and no one molested him. But after he had had his play he leaped from the pool to the side of the two apparently new-found friends. Then, he did exactly what every dog does. He shook that water off. Striped trousers and spats were well soaked, but the cabinet members went on to the meeting with the President.

ing, windproof coats and rugs became all the more necessary for outdoor wear. And high wages of World War days and post-war prosperity changed increasing numbers of housewives and stenographers from cloth to fur coats.

"As a result of this latter development, there is now less call for salutes and other expensive furs, and more for cheaper grades like muskrat and rabbit, that can be dressed and dyed to resemble costly kinds. The muskrat frequently masquerades under the trade name of Hudson seal; the rabbit once hid behind some seventy-five different aliases, from 'Arctic seal' to 'Russian leopard.' To obviate confusion, manufacturers now use more exact descriptive terms.

"For 200 years Canada and the United States have supplied a large proportion of the raw furs—beaver, fox, lynx, marten, mink, muskrat, skunk, raccoon, weasel, and numerous others—that pour into various European centers to be dressed and manufactured into finished articles. The United States today is still the world's largest producer of raw furs."

The rainy season is brief and the burning tropical sun soon dries up the puddles. The adults, unable to exist without water, perish.

But, curiously enough, the eggs will not hatch unless they are dried out and again dampened. They are baked into the mud. Life remains dormant in them until the next rainy season. This dormancy may last for several years. But as soon as rain falls they hatch and the strange life story is repeated.

The animals of this kind collected on the Galapagos may throw light on the past history of the islands. If they are closely related to the species found on the American continent they may afford evidence of an ancient land connection.

"For 200 years Canada and the United States have supplied a large proportion of the raw furs—beaver, fox, lynx, marten, mink, muskrat, skunk, raccoon, weasel, and numerous others—that pour into various European centers to be dressed and manufactured into finished articles. Simple Cake Baking Rules

Fundamentals With Tested and Easily Followed Formulas.

Here are some minor questions about cakes (says a recognized expert on the subject). Here is the letter and here are my answers, which may interest some of you in spite of the fact that I have told you now and again much about cake:

"Because you taught me how to make cream puffs, to my everlasting pride, you may now, if you will, tell me some other things I don't know."

"I make chocolate roll frequently—the kind with nothing but eggs, chocolate and sugar—but I always stick to the pan and I have to scoop it out—rolling is out of the question. What should the pan be greased with, and does anyone ever get it out whole?"

"I want to make gingerbread but I want to make the kind that is a little moist and quite flaky—not either dry, hard or soggy. Have you a good recipe? I want the kind southern cooks make. It makes me sick but it's worth it."

"One more thing: I cannot learn to make good butter cake—I stick to angel, sponge and the like. Creaming butter, eggs and sugar and I don't know how long to keep it up. Someone told me once just when butter and sugar are creamed but I forget. My cakes—like tea cakes or sweet muffins—are always very loose in texture with crisp crusts—not firm and evenly grained. How can I do it? Isn't it wrong to stir a batter? Shouldn't it always be beaten, except when egg whites are folded in? Do help me, because I adore plain cake and cannot make it."

"This is primer stuff for most cooks, I know, but I do want to make some really delicious little dough buns."

I find that the kind of pan has much to do with the success of a thin layer such as we use for a chocolate or a jelly-roll. If you have a smooth light-colored tin pan, 15 by 10 inches, which is kept especially for this purpose, you may not find it necessary to line it with paper, but if your pan is not in good condition, or of dark tin, you will do well to use greased paper to line it. If you are using a new pan, it must be lined or else "tempered" by greasing slightly and heating before it is used. A butter oven that is used for other things, cake is necessary. If you use a double-action baking powder instead of a phosphate or a tartaric powder, you should use about one-third less than is demanded by the usual recipe.

I will answer the third question next, because this thing about baking powders applies to all butter cakes. The only thing I can do is to give my standard recipe for butter cake, which never fails me. Measurements must of course be made carefully. Butter must be creamed well. If it is to be used, it will soften at room temperature and will cream quite easily. If a little of the beaten egg yolk or whole egg is added while the sugar is being blended, it is easier to cream it.

Cookies may be beaten one or two minutes after mixing, but not too long. I do not think it makes much difference whether the batter is beaten or stirred. If, when either milk or flour is added, alternately, each one is thoroughly mixed before more of the other is added.

Now about gingerbread. There are so many different standards for this cake, I am only giving you my favorite recipe for it and will say that I think they are wonderful! One is a "cake" gingerbread which can be served hot as is, or with butter, or whipped cream, or cream or cottage cheese for a satisfying dessert. The other is "crust" gingerbread which is a cross between a cookie and a cake.

Standard Butter Cake.

2 cups cake or pastry flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Mix sifted flour with baking powder and salt and sift together. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until fluffy. Beat eggs well and add. Beat 1 minute. Add sifted flour alternately with milk. Add vanilla. Beat after each addition. Fill 2 greased, 9-inch layer pans or 2 sets of muffin pans. Bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees Fahrenheit, 25 to 30 minutes. For a layer cake made from half the mixture, use oblong pan and after baking, cut in halves and put together with frosting.

Card Gingerbread.

2 cups molasses
1 cup shortening
1 1/2 cups brown sugar
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup salt
1/2 cup flour
Beat molasses and shortening together, do not let boil. When cool, add other ingredients, using enough flour to make a stiff dough. Roll in 2 sheets 1/2 to 1/4 inch thick, as preferred. Score the top with fork lines so that it will be corrugated. Bake in a moderate oven, 375 degrees Fahrenheit, 15 minutes. Cut in long strips or squares. Serve hot or cold.

Ginger Cake.

4 tablespoons shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg
1/2 cup sweet or sour milk
2 cups cake or pastry flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1/2 teaspoon soda
Cream shortening, add the sugar gradually. Beat the egg well and add. Mix sifted flour with soda and spices and salt. Sift dry ingredients into first mixture alternately with the liquid. Bake in a greased shallow pan or in muffin pans in a moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, 20 minutes.

Knitted Things Demand Extra Care in Washing

Have you succumbed to the knitting or crocheting fever? Whether or not, you certainly have sweaters, knitted suits, etc., for who can be without them these days? They're so attractive, and almost indispensable for sport and everyday wear, and it's so easy to keep them clean. Before washing a new sweater, test it to be sure the colors are fast, by squeezing a inconspicuous portion in clear, lukewarm water for five minutes or so.

Knitted things often get out of shape when wet, so to insure restoring them to the correct proportions just draw an outline on clean, wrapping paper before wetting. Incidentally, the ideal time to draw this outline is when the sweater is new, before you have stretched the elbows, etc. Then this outline may be used each time you wash the sweater.

Remove unwashable buttons, buckles, etc., and turn the sweater wrong side out. Make rich suds with mild, neutral soap flakes; always have the suds and rinse waters like-warm or cool. Put in the sweater and wash by squeezing the suds through and through the material. Never rub. Wash quickly. Do not soak colored garments.

When the sweater is dry remove it from the outline, turn it right-side out and press it lightly, using a damp cloth to remove wrinkles and pin marks.

Money Gets Bath After Fish Dealers Handle It

London.—London's dirtiest money circulates in the Billingsgate fish market.

Once used there, so contaminated does metal money become that it has to be boiled before it is suitable for release by banks.

Several banks near the market have been compelled to set up kitchen cupboards, where the coins are cleaned in boiling water before they are issued to other customers.

In the case of paper money, the notes are used only once—they circulate in the market and are then exchanged at the bank for fresh issues. Notes once used in Billingsgate market never lose the peculiar odor.

Sometimes the coins go black, but more generally green. One bank reports a customer opened a bag containing $300 in silver and found many of the coins corroded together in lumps.

The "money laundry" in most of the banks consists of a steep pan, washing soda, sacks of drying dust and sieves—in case fish scales get mistaken for the smaller coins.

Pardoned, He Stays in Penitentiary by Choice

Michigan City, Ind.—Although granted his freedom three years ago through pardon, Fred Kettlelake, seventy-two years old, remains satisfied to be an inmate of the state prison here.

Kettlelake came to the prison 23 years ago. Six years later he became ill and was confined to the prison hospital, where he has remained. Later he could walk a little, but was finally placed him to a wheel chair.

After 30 years, the pardon he had longed for as a young man, came. There were no friends waiting outside, however, no job for an invalid, and no hope for care, so Kettlelake stayed.

NORTHMEN LOST SUNDAY
CONTEST WITH IRONTONPlay Wednesday Night With Marion and Barnard Next Sunday

The Northmen lost an interesting and exciting game to Ironton last Sunday at Whiting park. The final score was 10 to 7.

Due to the absence of Yahr, who pitched the team to a 13-8 victory over Barnard and a 4-4 tie with the Indians in a three inning game, the locals were forced to experiment with some untried men on the mound. Cunningham started and lasted for three innings. He was hit fairly hard, but the main reason for the seven runs Ironton scored off him was the fact that he received poor support in the pinches. Ironton made five in the second and two in the third. Parsons pitched for three innings, allowing only two scores. McRoberts finished the game, permitting only two men to reach first, and only one scored. He struck out six batters.

Charlevoix scored four runs off Thompson in the opening round. Thomas allowed only two runs in five innings. Boyer one more in the seventh and Johnson pitched scoreless ball in the last two.

Wednesday evening at 6:30 p. m. the locals will play the game with Marion Center that was postponed from June 11. They will play on the Legion field. Next Sunday, Barnard will furnish the opposition on the north side diamond. The team would appreciate some local support. The game will be called at 1:30 p. m.

INDIANS LOST TO ELLS-WORTH, WIN FROM ALBA

The Charlevoix Indians broke even again last week end on a series of two games.

Due largely to errors they dropped another decision to the Ellsworth Packers, 16 to 9. Despite the fact Denemy struck out seven of the first nine batters and Charlevoix out-hit the visitors, poor support proved their downfall.

The Indians won their second Charlevoix-Antrim league contest Sunday afternoon, defeating Alba by a 15 to 6 count. Denemy was on the mound the first four innings, and Colby pitched the last five. Charlevoix had four errors marked against them.

A third contest with the Ellsworth Packers, a winner-take-all proposition, has been scheduled for Thursday evening at 6 o'clock sharp.

BARNARD ALL-STARS WIN
FROM PENINSULA TEAM

The Barnard All Stars were victorious over the Peninsula baseball team by a 4 to 3 score in a game played last Sunday at Barnard's diamond. Both teams played an excellent brand of ball as the score indicates.

Allen Cummings and Kenneth Ager formed Barnard's battery. H. Shepherd, V. Shepherd and Houtman were the losing battery. Scoring for Barnard were Cummings, Warner, Ager and B. Cummings, and for Peninsula, V. Shepherd, Kramradt and Levi.

Barnard plays the Charlevoix Northmen next Sunday and meet Atwood, July 4th.

SPENT IN MICHIGAN

Annually, thousands of visitors come to Michigan for their vacations. They spend a great deal of money in our state each summer.

The concerted effort of Michigan residents can bring many more vacationists to Michigan. We can tell our out-of-state relatives and friends of the advantages of Michigan and persuade them to spend their vacations here. No state can offer them more... few so much. They will find no disposition in Michigan to "soak the tourist." They will find vacation costs moderate and accommodations to fit every pocketbook.

In Michigan, they will find a delightful summer climate; enchanting and varied scenery; historic points of great interest; unlimited opportunity for all summer sports; the best of highway and other transportation facilities; comfortable and reasonable hotels, tourist homes, and camps; modern and progressive stores, newspapers, and theaters.

And is this not a good year for Michigan people to spend their vacations in Michigan? Few of us really know our own state well. A tour of both peninsulas would be pleasant and instructive. Many points along the way would be of great interest both to children and adults. Let us spend our vacation money in Michigan this summer. We would all profit by it.

SALT'S HIGH PLACE
IN WORLD TRADEMedium of Exchange Long Before Gold.

Less than a century ago a good fusian wife in the East Indies could be purchased for a handful of salt; many slaves which were brought to the United States from Africa were bought and paid for, not with gold, but salt, reports the Worcester Salt Institute in outlining the many interesting activities carried on by man in seeking to satisfy his need for salt, remarking that the salt standard in the history of commerce antedated the gold standard.

As a medium of exchange salt was widely used in many ancient countries. "The Mogul conquerors of India made decrees thousands of years ago regulating the standard of salt that was used for money. In Asia and Africa cakes of salt were frequently employed as money. Up until comparatively recent times salt was used as a medium of exchange in the Shan markets in Indo-China. Besides being used as money, salt in days gone by was a powerful developer of commerce. Being essential to life, and unavailable to tribes remote from the sea, from which the substance was obtained by evaporation, trade routes were early developed to provide the transportation of salt. For hundreds of years a caravan route was maintained between Palmyra and Syrian ports. Even today much of the caravan traffic in the Sahara is largely in this precious commodity. The oldest road in Italy is not the Apennine way, but the "Via Salina," the salt road along which salt was anciently carried from the evaporating pits at Ostia to the Sabine territory.

Indeed, according to historians, the largest city in the world, London, was first founded because of the salt trade, continues the Worcester Salt Institute. During the earliest days of European history salt was sent from England to the continent. Cheshire and Worcestershire provided salt for Britain and Gaul, and the route for its transportation crossed the country in a southeasterly direction, crossing the Thames, then very shallow, at a ford where Westminster now stands. An inn was built to accommodate salt haulers when the river was too swollen to ford. From this humble beginning as a resting place for salt traders the great city of London resulted.

Our Government
—How It Operates

By William Bruckart

BUREAU OF THE BUDGET

AN EFFORT has been made throughout these discussions of the functions of government to show where each agency has a point of contact with Mr. and Mrs. Public, that is, you and me. But there is one bureau which almost never touches any of us; it does not deal with any of us, and does not concern itself about individual citizens, except that it considers the welfare of all collectively as taxpayers. I refer to the bureau of the budget.

This little known agency is the focal point, however, of all plans and programs for expenditures of public funds. Every government department, bureau or commission is a spending agency, and every one of them has to have the approval of the bureau of the budget before they can even go before a committee of congress to defend the plans they have made.

Along about the first of August each year, the director of the budget notifies the heads of all governmental establishments that he will receive "estimates" of expenditures for the fiscal year that is to begin in July of the following year. The government budget, you will remember, goes to congress when it convenes each December, and upon it all of the appropriations for the succeeding fiscal year are based. So the budget director begins work about August 1.

Although each of the spending agencies have had general plans mapped out, they do not translate them into dollars and cents until they get the advice from the budget director to submit estimates. The first step, therefore, in any establishment is to fill out the skillfully arranged forms with the figures necessary to show how much money is needed or desired, and where it is to go.

Once these figures are in the hands of the budget director and his assistants, they invite a committee from each establishment for "hearings" which are designed to supply the budget bureau with all information about every item and whether, for example, it is desirable or necessary to increase the sum available for airplanes for the army or whether conditions warrant the employing of one additional stenographer in the office of the "third assistant to the chief of section X" or somewhere equally well down the line of importance. It need not be stated that when these hearings are completed, the budget officials have about all of the data available concerning the next year's plans.

While the budget bureau is making up its lists, however, it has to keep in mind that the President previously has made an announcement that the total of government expenses shall not exceed a specific amount. The budget bureau starts work paring down the individual items in order that the President's command shall be obeyed. And what a job it is! Every establishment wants to spend as much money as it can get, obviously. It is natural that the individual wants to make his agency as important and as valuable as he can. All of which causes the heads of the spending agencies to defend their estimates vigorously, to bring all pressure to bear that they can legitimately accomplish. The budget bureau has to get independently, because ordinarily the budget amount is approximately the total which congress will appropriate, and it is necessary to hold down federal expenditures in the interest of the taxpayers.

The director of the budget confers each week with the President as the process of paring the estimate goes along.

By and by, the director announces that the budget is complete, and one look at it is quite convincing as to the truth of his statement for it is usually a volume of about 1,200 pages of closely set type. On the one column is a list of the purposes for which it is proposed to spend money; on the opposite column of the page is the amount, and every item has its corresponding figure, so you can see whether there is a provision to buy a greater or less number of airplanes for the army in the succeeding year than was purchased in the last year, or whether one department is going to use more paper clips or less.

It is at this point, therefore, that the bureau of budget attracts public attention for the one time of each year, for the budget is ready to be transmitted to congress by the President. And when that happens, the great appropriations committee of the house of representatives gets into action. It holds another set of hearings to which the representatives of the spending agencies are invited that they can speak for themselves. That is, they can speak for themselves up to the point which the budget bureau fixed. There is a law making it a criminal offense to ask for more.

Passage of appropriation bills is an annual job in congress, and the representatives and senators assigned to the committees handling them have plenty of troubles for outside interests can and do get in their work, urging and even hounding members for increases in sums or for additional items. Yet it has gone on year after year with reasonably satisfactory results, and the proof is that a President has not refused to sign an appropriation bill in years.

NOT MUCH JOY IN BEING "BIG BOSS"

(Mrs. Walter Ferguson, in the New York World-Telegram.)

A custom that never goes out of style is the habit of telling women in what their whole duty consists. Children being our main business, it is not strange that advice about raising them should come from every quarter. It speaks very badly for us, I suppose, that we seem to have put all these excellent suggestions to such poor use. It may be that we have grown impatient to the children and through sheer weariness close our ears to wisdom.

Anyway, such important remarks as are contained in a letter from a gentleman with tendencies toward feminine reform, move me not at all. He wonders why we have so little authority over our children. "I can't see," he goes on, "why you women won't learn to do at least one thing well. Is it because you are utterly incapable or merely fatuous that not one of you seems able to make her own youngsters mind?"

The explanation of this apparent shortcoming is simple. Let us concentrate for the moment.

Women fail to regulate their homes for exactly the same reason that men fail to regulate their world—it's too much trouble. It takes strenuous efforts to keep people on their best behavior and even more to make children obey. Therefore, it's always pleasant for a man to play golf than to study municipal affairs so that his pockets won't be picked, just as it's easier for a mother to be lenient with the children and thus get in a few bridge games.

The woman who sets her head to exact implicit obedience from the family won't have time for anything else—and I doubt whether she'll have a great deal to show for her efforts in the long run. Raising a family and running a government are equally discouraging. You get all worn down from trying to have your own way.

Taking everything into consideration, there's hardly little difference between the home and the office. The person who sets out to be the Big Boss in either place is generally cordially disliked.

United in Pretty Ceremony

At a pretty wedding solemnized at 7 o'clock last Thursday evening, Miss Margaret Fitch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Fitch, and Carl Erber, son of Mrs. Julius Erber of Boyne City, were united in marriage.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents on Michigan avenue by Rev. G. R. Parker, pastor of the Congregational church. Attending the couple were Miss Katherine Fitch, sister of the bride, and William Erber, brother of the groom. Mrs. Joe Smith played the wedding march with violin accompaniment by Edward Birdsell, 9, of Fowlerville.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple left on a honeymoon trip to the World Fair in Chicago. Mrs. Erber is a graduate of local school and the U. of M. She has been a grade instructor here several years. Mr. Erber has been in charge of the Kahler & Friend service station for an extended period. Both are popular members of the younger social set and have the best wishes of a host of friends.

Extensive Improvements Being Made
Prior to Opening July 1

Chickawago Lodge, a $35,000.00 resort at Twin lakes, four miles south of this city on the Charlevoix-Ellsworth road, has been purchased by Miss Edith Blair, former operator of The Tea Gardens on Clinton street.

The development, abandoned since its completion during the 1929 resort boom by Seeley & Linton, Pontiac realtors, is probably the most ideally situated in this district. From a hill top location it overlooks seven lakes. The lodge is of log construction, beautifully finished.

Miss Blair, who has set the opening date for July 1, has contracted extensive repairs, including decorating, furnishing, installation of a Delco lighting plant, modern plumbing, etc. The lodge has a septic tank system and a deep, driven well. Considerable landscaping has been done on the grounds.

The new owner, already well known to Charlevoix summer residents, will specialize in dinner parties, luncheons, etc. Twelve rooms are available for those desiring accommodations.

criticism and condemnation of the work of the legislature, there are those old time legislative observers who are frank to declare that the failure is in no way due to the legislature itself. There has not been a single state official with knowledge enough or interest enough, except in the bi-monthly payroll checks, to try and work out a legislative program of any kind for troubled Michigan. Early in the session it was apparent that the governor and the attorney general were hostile to each other. Then came a break between the governor and some of the senate leaders. So it has gone from worse to worse, with no one looking out for the taxpayer back home.

A financial chart has been prepared that shows that Michigan for six years has been running in the "red." It was soon after Governor Green assumed office that the state's finances, according to this chart, plunged below the red line, to remain there to this very day. Not once during all of these six years has the state been out of the "red." Each year it has sunk lower and lower until the present administration was faced with a deficit of something like $12,000,000. Even the sinking funds that were created during the Sleeper, Groesbeck administrations have evaporated.

The taxpayers' program for a reduction of governmental expense and a decent tax of some kind has been forgotten. The demand for political jobs has had to be met. To pay office holders takes money, and to get the money taxes and licenses are necessary. The political jobs are being filled and now tax laws have been enacted, with open charges that legislative votes have been swapped for paroles and job promises, in order to get the votes necessary to put over the program of the politicians. The session is ended. Some say maybe it would have been better if it had never been started.

DISPOSAL BEER AND POLICE MATTERS START FUSS

Application of A. & P. Tea Co. Resulted in Controversy, As Did Approval of Summer Police

Approval of several applications for beer licenses and bonds, passing of the semi-monthly payroll and hiring of special summer police constituted the major business disposed of by the city council Monday evening.

The beer and police matters found the council at a variance in opinion. Considerable wrangling accompanied disposition of both problems and in neither case was the confirmation by unanimous vote.

Approval to sell beer for consumption off the premises was given applications of Prescott Adams, representing L. P. Adams & Son, and Oscar Nelson, who will establish new quarters for his retail business. The application of O. Gatti, connected with the Colonial Club, to sell beer for consumption on the premises, was approved.

Application of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. for license to sell beer for consumption off the premises was refused. This matter proved to be one of the controversial subjects of the evening. Several weeks ago a petition signed by fifty local citizens requesting that no license be approved for food stores was accepted by the council. Monday night in resolution, citing the petition as reason for refusing the A. & P. application, was brought up for vote and turned down by a 4 and 2 margin. It looked as if the application would be approved by a similar margin, but when the motion for approval finally came to vote after much argument, dodging and disregard of any semblance of parliamentary procedure, a negative vote of 4 and 2 resulted. Then to bind their action, the council voted 5 and 1 to grant the petition, thus obligating themselves to refuse any further requests from food stores. It is doubtful if the action will stand before the state liquor commission.

The mayor's appointment of Joe Moore, Clarence Heise and Clarence Cohlentz as special summer police was confirmed. Moore's appointment was approved unanimously. Heise's by a 5 and 1 vote. Cohlentz's appointment resulted in a tie. Mayor See casting the deciding vote in his favor.

Several Thousand Persons To Attend Celebration at Mackinaw City on July 1

Several thousand persons are expected to witness the spectacular reenactment of the massacre of the British garrison at old Fort Michilimackinac at Mackinaw City in 1763 which will be staged by Ottawa Indians in full regalia July 1 at the official opening of the old stockade now being restored on its original lines.

A detachment from the Second United States Infantry stationed at Fort Brady, Sault Ste. Marie, will take part in the drilling demonstration of the historical event.

Besides the stellar attraction of the Indians reenacting the massacre there will be several historical pageants that will turn back the pages of history, 170 years and revive memories of the important fur trading post that flourished under the British and French flags.

Other big attractions will be the Boys Military band from the Menominee high school band, and alumni players, and the Cheboygan city band and the American Legion bugle and drum corps.

INDIANS WIN OVER ELLSWORTH, LOSE TO BOYNE

League Leading Central Lake Team Comes for Contest Here Sunday

The old adage that persistence always wins was proven last Thursday evening when the Charlevoix Indians defeated the Ellsworth Packers by a 9 to 5 count in their third attempt so far this season.

The game, played at south side diamond before the largest crowd ever to witness a local contest, provided an excellent exhibition. The Indians out-hit the Packers consistently as in previous games, and completed two nice double plays. They did not fare so well at Boyne City in a league contest, Sunday, however. After leading until the 6th inning, Boyne, aided by two hits, an error and questionable referee's decision, made two runs. The final count was 8 to 6. It was just another one of those games in which the locals out-played and out-hit their opponents, only to lose by bad "breaks."

The Indians have an opportunity to upset the league standing Sunday afternoon when they meet Central Lake at the south side diamond. Central Lake is undefeated in league competition so far. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

MORELLA OLDHAM CHOSEN AT TRAVERSE CITY JUDGING

Charlevoix Paid Homage at Formal Dancing Party Tuesday Evening—Official Duties Start Soon

Miss Morella Oldham, brunette and charming, is Charlevoix's contribution to the National Cherry Festival this year.

Miss Morella, whose father named her after his native British cherry, was elected queen of the 1933 festival at Traverse City last Wednesday evening, marking the first time in the history of the event this city has been so honored. She was selected from a group of seven candidates, representing as many Northern Michigan cities.

Within a very few days private life for the national cherry queen will cease and she will commence her duties as official herald of the Grand Traverse cherry region, to other sections of the country. That she will carry on in a manner befitting her rank is felt very confidently by Charlevoixans.

Miss Oldham, 19, is the daughter of the late Harry L. Oldham and Mrs. Ray O'Brien of this city. She was educated in the local public schools, and then went east to the Edgewood school at Greenwich, Conn. She attended a Shakespearian summer school at Arden camp. (Continued on page 8.)

MUCH NEEDED WELFARE RELIEF PLAN IS OUTLINED

SUPERVISORS, IN JUNE SESSION, HEAR PLANS OF FEDERAL EMERGENCY RELIEF COMMISSION

PROJECTS TO GIVE WORK COMING SOON

Supervisors Suspend Mothers' Pensions, Cut County Valuation Half Million, Direct Sheriff to Collect Delinquent Dog Taxes, Make Minor Appropriations

Winding up the business of their annual June meeting, at an early hour Tuesday evening, the Charlevoix county board of supervisors adjourned following a two-day session. Curtailment of temporary poor relief because of a shortage in funds, suspension of mother's pensions, a considerable cut in county valuation and minor appropriations constituted the major problems discussed and disposed of.

Relief on the difficult problem of welfare aid, a matter of stupendous importance in view of the fast diminishing finances, was brought to the county solons by F. A. Regan, Lansing field representative of the newly formed Federal Emergency Relief commission.

Mr. Regan explained the workings of the commission whose duties is to direct the expenditure of a $500,000,000 federal fund created for welfare work. According to Mr. Regan, Michigan has been divided into six districts. Charlevoix county is grouped with 23 others as one of the units. Michigan, it is understood, has been allotted $175,000 monthly, and upon that basis it is estimated Charlevoix county will receive approximately $7,000 each month, although the basis of distribution will depend upon proof of actual need and has not as yet been determined.

Direction of the work will be under a three-man state commission. They will pass upon the merits of welfare projects to be undertaken in each county, approving or rejecting the same. A welfare committee of three members will be appointed in each county to direct the work of the smaller unit, also a clerk or director, who will check all applications for aid, determine the amount, pass all payrolls, before submission to the county clerk and treasurer for payment. The system is outlined to care for all indigents.

The present welfare committee, headed by H. A. Craig as county chairman and representative from all county districts, will act until the new state and county commissions are appointed.

Mr. Regan pointed out that it is up to the counties to furnish projects upon which men may be given work, otherwise aid will be given direct. Projects must be of county-wide benefit, cannot be of aid to private interests, and cover a wide range of activities. Unlike the former R. F. C. system of expending welfare funds only on state trunk lines, the new set-up provides for work on county roads, and this method of expenditure will probably be given first attention in Charlevoix county. Cities may present projects such as sewage disposal works, etc. However, funds are only supplied for labor, and costs of administration, materials, equipment, etc., must be met by the local units.

In regard to county poor administration, the new relief funds may not be used for infirmary operation, hospitalization, mothers' pensions, etc. Mr. Regan has been quoted as stating, however, that June temporary relief expenses may be met with a fund of over $2,100, representing one-third of the county's June allotment, now in the hands of the county treasurer. If this is the case, a portion of the poor fund present overdraft of $2,200 will be met.

Establishment of the Federal Emergency Relief fund with its aid in this county will take many off the welfare list and has provided a solution which the board of supervisors were unable to solve in face of the present financial shortage. It is anticipated the county poor committee will be able to carry on the department, which did not come under federal aid with funds which will be available.

Will Collect Dog Tax
By resolution, the supervisors authorized and instructed the sheriff and deputies to collect all dog taxes delinquent since January 1st. The tax will be collected on the animals diagnosed. The sheriff's department is to receive one-half of the fees for their work.

Due to depletion of fund, all mothers' pensions were ordered discontinued from the date of June 15. It is understood that while state law provides for mothers' pensions, payment is mandatory with the counties, and, therefore, as well as Charlevoix county payment has been stopped.

The poor committee report recommending all temporary relief be suspended except in the most dire cases, was adopted. New federal funds, however, should make this drastic action unnecessary.

An appropriation of $50 to cover transportation of 4-H club exhibits to the county fair and payment of premiums was allowed, also $25 toward expense of the annual county labor day picnic at Whiting park.

Turn Down Pay Cut
After voting 12 to 11 in favor of reducing supervisors' pay to $4 instead of $5 per day, the board went on record in favor of $5 for the present session. In case legislative action has made the cut mandatory, the extra $1 will be deducted from their pay for the October session.

Report of the committee on equalization, looking over a half million from the county valuation, was adopted. The 1933 figure is $9,049,145.00, as compared to $9,582,603.00 last year, a cut of $533,458.00. The reduction was a general one, affecting all precincts except Hudson, which raised $36,000.00 and St. James, raised $1,000.00.

The Church of God ladies will hold a Baked Goods sale Saturday at 309 Bridge street.—Adv. 2611.

SET UP MACHINERY COLLECT SALES TAX

State Officials Compose Board to Direct Collection Work

Agencies through which the state will collect its three per cent sales tax will be set up by the middle of this week, Governor Comstock has announced.

The governor said that the board of tax administration, composed of the secretary of state, state treasurer and auditor general, will probably make its decision as to the appointment of a "managing director" by the end of this week.

George R. Thompson, state budget director, has been mentioned to assume the director job but members of the board would not comment on the possibility of his appointment. If Thompson accepted the new position, created under an act of the 1933 legislature, he would combine his budget and tax work.

Auditor General John K. Stack, Jr., said that probably a force of more than 100 inspectors would be employed to supervise retail sales in the various counties and assure the state that it would receive all the money it is entitled to.

Governor Comstock estimated that the tax would be collected from between 100,000 and 125,000 retail business establishments.

STATE PAYROLLS TO BE CUT JULY 1

THIRTY-FIVE PER CENT REDUCTION ORDERED

Every Department Making New Payroll Schedule to Care for Slash—Conservation Dept. Hit

Faced with salary budgets that are 25 per cent below that of 1932, heads of all state departments are preparing payroll adjustments which must become effective on July 1.

The legislature's running knife carved something like $1,674,000 from the salary schedules of all state departments combined, leaving them $2,976,429, compared with $4,650,660 which was appropriated by the solons in special session a year ago. Announcement by Oscar G. Olsen, commissioner of public safety, that it will be necessary to reduce his unit's forces by 25 troopers in addition to the closing of three posts and dismissal of 21 other employees was the first step in the reduction program.

George R. Hogarth, director of conservation, has asked his division heads to study their personnel lists to determine what slashes can be made.

ACTIVITY EVIDENT AT DRAMATIC CAMP

PREPARING FOR OPENING PRODUCTION NEXT WEEK

Ervine's "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary" to Be Presented on July 5th, 6th and 7th

"Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary" by St. John Ervine, the famous English author, will be the first production of the National Dramatic camp, and will be produced the nights of July 5, 6 and 7, at 8:30 o'clock at the playhouse by the lake.

A visitor to the camp will now find a great deal of energetic bustle and rush, for members of the stage and electrical staff are busy at work preparing the playhouse for the season.

Albert Barker, the well known playwright, is proving an excellent technician, and the plays promise to be the best ever seen in these environs. Mr. Barker has a fine sense of comedy, and is getting every bit of fun there is out of the coming production.

Elvera Woolner Baker, who plays the part of Mary, is a graduate of the Northwestern School of Speech, and has had a great deal of experience in the legitimate theatre, where she appeared in sophisticated high comedy leads, at which type of acting she is particularly adept.

Dorothy Fritz, who had her training at the University of Michigan, has specialized in scenic design and lighting. She has appeared in many interesting engagements including the Wright Players, Jane Cowl in "Camille," and has just returned from the company of the Ann Arbor Dramatic festival.

Mary Morrison, who will play ingenue parts, had her training with the Moscow Art theatre, was a privileged student last year with Madame O'Connell. Miss Morrison has appeared with Jacob Ben Ami, and last season was with Edith Evans in "Evensong."

Grace Ryerson is a native of Chicago, where she has appeared in many amateur productions and has been a leading woman in the Civic Players of Grand Rapids.

Elie Shields is a cousin of Sydney Shields, who was for many years the leading woman for Walker White, until her recent retirement from the stage. Miss Shields has appeared in amateur companies throughout the middle west.

Harry Young is a young actor of remarkable ability who appeared with Maude Adams and Otis Skinner in their recent revival of "The Merchant of Venice," was also a member of the cast of "Gay Paree." (Continued on page 4.)

Bridge School Here; Expert to Teach Beginners And Experienced Players

Here's good news for contract bridge players of Charlevoix and vicinity—beginners and players of long experience alike.

A school of contract bridge, sponsored jointly by The Courier and The Inn, for the patronage of readers of this paper and summer guests of Charlevoix and nearby resorts, opens this coming Friday, June 30, in the bridge salon of The Inn.

Through special arrangements with Harold Sharpsteen, widely known Culbertson associate and considered Michigan's outstanding bridge authority, readers of The Courier and summer residents of Charlevoix interested in learning to play contract will be given the opportunity to study the technique of the game and then play hands under the personal supervision and coaching of Mr. Sharpsteen.

Classes will be in session at The Inn all day Friday, the first starting at 10:30 a. m., the second at 1:30 p. m., and an evening class at 8:00 p. m. Classes will be held at these same hours each Friday following in The Inn.

The course of instruction will consist of a 30-minute lecture followed by a period of supervised play during which hands will be dealt illustrating various points brought out during the opening discussion by Mr. Sharpsteen.

For the benefit of readers of The Courier a coupon will be found in today's issue entitling the bearer to attend any one of the class periods Friday for 50 cents. Without The Courier coupon the regular instruction fee is $1.

The Courier is sponsoring this school of bridge for the sole purpose of making it possible for any of its readers interested in learning the game to receive personal instruction from a recognized authority at a nominal cost. The Courier and The Inn also offer this series of instructions in contract as one of their contributions toward the entertainment of Charlevoix's summer guests.

The Courier joins with leading Northern Michigan dailies in bringing Mr. Sharpsteen to the North this summer. During the past winter he has conducted similar schools for newspapers in Grand Rapids, Lansing, Battle Creek, Kalamazoo, and other southern Michigan cities where his class enrollments are upwards of 3,500 players. He is vice-president of the Michigan Bridge association and is unquestionably the best known bridge teacher in this state.

Clip The Courier coupon and enter in the school Friday. A special bridge school coupon will appear in The Courier each subsequent week for readers of this paper and their friends.

HOME OWNERS LOAN ACT IS EXPLAINED

CONTACT FOR INQUIRIES FROM LOCAL POSTMASTER

U. S. Senator A. H. Vandenberg Reveals Details to Aid Michigan Home Owners

The following explanation of the new Home Owners' Loan act, recently passed by congress, is made by U. S. Senator A. H. Vandenberg for the convenience of Michigan residents:

"The Michigan home owner presents his case to an agency of the Home Owners' Loan corporation. These agencies will be established at convenient points in Michigan. Their location can be learned from any postmaster or from the newspapers. Information will be furnished by these agencies upon application. None of these transactions are handled at Washington.

"These agencies, acting for the corporation, may exchange bonds of the corporation for first mortgages on home and pay in cash accrued taxes, assessments, necessary repairs and incidentals, provided the mortgagee will accept the bonds for his mortgage. These bonds bear 4 per cent interest, mature in not more than 15 years, and are tax exempt. The federal government guarantees the interest on the bonds but not the principal.

"When the corporation acquires the mortgage, the corporation becomes the mortgagee. Fifteen years is given the home owner to pay the government. The rate of interest is 5 per cent. During the first three years no payment on the principal need be made. Extensions for the payment of principal or interest may be made if the corporation feels the circumstances justify.

"The exchange of bonds for mortgage may not be made in an amount higher than 80 per cent of the property's value, or total more than $11,000, whichever is the smaller. Homes must not be valued at more than $20,000 and must not have been built for more than four families. Borrowers must be residing in their home or only temporarily residing elsewhere.

"The corporation is authorized to make cash loans on property up to 50 per cent of its value for payment of taxes and assessments, and necessary maintenance and repairs.

"If the mortgagee will not accept bonds for his mortgage—and this is entirely up to him—the corporation may loan the home owner cash up to 40 per cent of the property's value so that the mortgage can be taken up in cash. The interest rate on these cash loans is 6 per cent. The amortization plan is otherwise the same as that used when bonds are accepted.

"The corporation is able under conditions which will be explained by the agency, to provide a charge of bonds and cash advances to persons who have lost their homes through foreclosure to enable such persons to redeem their homes. The loss must have occurred within two years prior to such exchange of advance by the corporation.

"It should be remembered that this relief is intended only for those who actually need it. The holder of the mortgage must be pressing for payment and threatening to foreclose and the applicant for a loan must be unable to raise the money elsewhere. The merits of each case will be individually considered and investigated as to these considerations by the agency to which application is made."

* MICHIGAN DEPT. OF STATE WEEKLY NEWS *

The three per cent sales tax, adopted by the legislature just before the session adjourned, provides that the law, if signed by the governor, shall be administered by the auditor general, the state treasurer, the secretary of state and a fourth to be chosen by the three elective state officials. It is estimated that the sales tax will produce approximately $32,000,000 annually.

As finally adopted by the legislature, the sales tax bill makes no provision for extending additional state aid to Michigan's school system although it contains a direct appropriation of $15,000,000. Veteran members of the legislature asserted that there was no organization to fight the battles of the unemployed while school officials were well organized and would be able to fight successfully for state aid in event the school were unable to function efficiently under present revenues.

One of the closing acts of the legislature was the restoration of publication in delinquent tax descriptions. Under the new bill, publication of descriptions of property to be sold for delinquent taxes will be resumed in 1935. Newspapers are to be paid in graduated scale which will make no change in the rate previously paid to the majority of weekly publications.

The complicated Raymond bill which would permit automobile owners to "pay as you drive," is now before the governor for his approval or veto. The bill contains provisions for paying the full weight tax or for paying portions of the tax according to whether an automobile is placed in use in January, March, June or September. The measure might result in decreasing the gasoline tax receipts.

Old age pension, to be financed by a $2 head tax on all Michigan citizens, will become effective in Michigan, if the measure adopted by the legislature is approved by the governor. Under certain restrictions the bill provides for allowances of $30 per month for aged persons who have no other means of support.

Fewer Varieties of Apples Help

Growers Urged to Improve Practices for Better Fruit.

There are more than 800 standard varieties of apples in orchards in the United States. In the Cumberland-Shenandoah states there are 300 or more varieties. Only a few of these hundreds of varieties are, or probably ever will be, of real commercial importance, according to United States Department of Agriculture and state economists, who emphasize that producers need to satisfy the exacting demands of consumers for high quality fruit.

Crop Goes to Europe.
A survey of apple marketings from the Cumberland-Shenandoah states, made by department economists in cooperation with the agricultural colleges in Virginia, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania, shows that in some years 60 per cent of the commercial crop from this region goes to Europe, principally to England. The export market is the mainstay of the Cumberland-Shenandoah producers, but they are encountering increasing competition from northwestern apple growers.

To satisfy both domestic and foreign markets the growers in the Cumberland-Shenandoah region are urged to improve orchard practices so as to produce a larger volume of unblemished fruit, and to practice strict and uniform grading and packing methods. It is suggested, also, that extension of the marketing season through storage, and the development of home markets by catering to the customary preferences of the trade, promise some enhancement in net returns to growers.

The investigators report that a large part of the apple production of the Cumberland-Shenandoah region is of varieties that are of generally recognized worth. More than 50 per cent of the trees in commercial orchards in the region are of the varieties York Imperial, Stayman Winesap, Winesap, and Delicious. Ten varieties constitute 70 per cent of the trees. The York Imperial is the variety most commonly grown, and approximately 50 per cent of the trees are less than nineteen years old and only about 7 per cent are less than nine years old, so that there is no present problem, in the opinion of the economists, of any increase in the market supplies of this variety.

Supplies of Delicious.

If plantings of the last eight to ten years can be taken as a guide, there is every indication, they point out, that market supplies of the Delicious will increase markedly as the trees of this variety, which are planted in the region and in nearly every other major apple state from coast to coast, come into bearing and approach full bearing capacity. In 1928 probably 80 per cent of the Delicious trees of the country were less than nineteen years old, and more than 50 per cent were less than nine years old.

How Should Peas Be Sold
When $2.25 Quits Laying

Every month in the year is the best time to cut the peas because a hen should be sold whenever she quits laying, says C. F. Amin, poultry specialist at the University of Wisconsin. "Cutting is very simple," he states, "and with a few pointers anyone can do the work satisfactorily. The first point in cutting is the yellow color in the shank, skin, or hock, and heels of the bird. There are a few varieties such as Minors and Orpingtons

As soon as the pullet starts to lay, all the yellow coloring material she eats goes to the yolk of the egg and this makes the yellow parts of the body bleach and turn white, says Amin. "The eye ring is the first to turn white, then the ear lobes, then the beak and thick scales on the shank. Thus they have lost their yellow color usually are very good layers. Amin points out.

Deposit 'Guarantee' Fails of Purpose

LOS ANGELES.—While the idea of the guarantee of bank deposits by some legally enforced plan seems to appeal to many people who give it casual thought, the fact is that it has not only failed in every instance in the eight states where the experiment was tried, but actually produced sound banking and increased the number of failures. It was declared by the recent convention of the American Bankers Association held here.

"Guaranty of bank deposits carries an idea that naturally appeals to people in general on casual consideration," the declaration said. "However, in principle it is unsound and in practice it is unworkable. It has been tried in eight states and it has not only failed in every case, but it has resulted in increasing the number of bank failures. Taxing properly managed banks to make up losses of failed banks is not only unfair and unreasonable, but it weakens the whole banking structure. Again, guaranty of deposits places the incompetent and reckless banker on an equal footing with the able and conservative banker, which encourages bad banking at the expense of sound banking. We are therefore opposed to the passage of any law carrying a guaranty of bank deposits and believe that it is against the interest of the people of the United States to develop any such system."

Make Power Sprayer Do More Work Around Farm

Too many farmers use their power sprayer only six or eight days per year, thus making the interest and depreciation costs per day quite high. By a little study and ingenuity its use can be increased several times over. It can be used for potatoes and for fruits and berries; for whitewashing and disinfecting sprays for poultry houses, hog houses, and stables; for pumping water for garden and truck irrigation and for poultry and for hose under the water system. Now if the owner will work up some custom work along each of these lines, either for hire or for exchange, he will greatly increase his season's total days.

DAIRY HINTS

There is always a demand for moved dross.

Cows need from three to four quarts of water for each pound of milk they give.

The price of a pound of grain is about the same as the price of a pound of milk. If a city and rural or two of grain makes a cow give an additional two or four pounds of milk, feed the grain.

BODY EAST JORDAN MAN FOUND SUNDAY

Lake Charlevoix Gives Up Body of Frank Severance

The body of Frank Severance, 23, son of Mrs. Jennie Severance of East Jordan, has been found in Lake Charlevoix near the spot where he is believed to have been drowned two weeks ago.

The body was discovered Sunday by Will Howe and was floating near the spot where Severance's boat was first discovered.

Surviving him are his mother, two sisters, Helen and Elizabeth, both of East Jordan. Burial was held at Sunset cemetery with Rev. C. W. Sidebotham, pastor of the East Jordan Presbyterian church, in charge of the services.

CITY MAIL RATE LOWERED AFTER JULY FIRST

New Federal Regulations Go Into Effect on That Date

While the federal government is not getting "big-hearted," it is carrying out "new deal" campaign pledges, and one of them, fulfillment of which will make itself immediately felt locally, will be reduction of certain postage rates.

Announcement is made today by Postmaster C. B. Meggison that, beginning July first, postage on letters to be delivered in the city in which they are mailed will be reduced to two cents an ounce.

At the same time, postage on letters to or from rural routes will also be reduced to two cents an ounce whenever the point of delivery is within the district served by the postoffice in which the route originates.

In view of the fact the bulk of outgoing mail from the average Charlevoix place of business is for local delivery, the saving on carrying charges will be no small item.

ACCEPTED SALARY CUT—NOW DEMANDING MONEY

Six Former Members Teaching Staff Sign Written Demand

Six former local school instructors, whose contracts have not been renewed, including former Superintendent Gerald P. Bush, have served written demand on the Charlevoix board of education for $1,097.50, which amount represents a voluntary 30 per cent salary reduction for the last three months of the 1932-33 school year.

Signing the demand were G. F. Bush, Mrs. Carl Erher (Margaret Fitch), Esther Mary Atkinson, Elizabeth Farago, Jeanne Dasef and Miss Koch.

No legal steps have been taken as yet, it is understood, and the school board has so far ignored the demand.

ALL MUST HAVE GENERAL FISH LICENSES

Attorney General Rules Legislative Action Was O.K.

Based on the latest ruling of the attorney general, instructions were sent out to conservation officers governing the issuing of the general rod license for the opening of the bass season at midnight last Saturday.

District Supervisor McClure was advised by telegram Friday morning that every person over 18 years of age must have a rod license before fishing in any inland water. The only exception will be married women who can fish on their husband's license.

The license this year is 50 cents but those who have already purchased trout licenses do not need additional license to fish the inland lake.

The licenses are on sale at the regular stores and other business places of the region which usually sell hunting and fishing licenses.

DEM. LEGISLATURE 'BATS' BUT 25.4 IN FULFILLING PLEDGES

The 57th legislature, dominated by democrats, was about 25.4 per cent efficient, so far as carrying out the promises of Gov. William A. Comstock and the democratic state platform are concerned. There were 10 chief points in the address of Governor Comstock to the legislature, January 5; there are seven others in the state platform. On a basis of 100 percent for complete realization of all pledges, each point is worth 5.8 per cent, if they be valued equally.

The points, and the record:

Welfare relief—Met by passage of the Kulp bill and appropriation of $12,000,000 from sales tax, which permit further R. F. C. loans. This brings 5.8 per cent.

Unemployment aid—Bill providing for commission of inquiry died, 0 per cent.

Old age pension—Republicans forced real bill through over meaningless democratic bill, but democratic vote for it, so credit is given for 5.8 per cent.

Primary school fund supplemental aid—An appropriation of $15,000,000 from excess of sales tax and from general fund means little, save on paper. Thus, 0 per cent for this one.

Delinquent tax aid—Moore-Holbeck (republican) law for 10-year moratorium brings in 5.8 per cent.

Pre-primary convention system—Bill fails; 0 per cent.

Workmen's compensation extension to cover occupational diseases—bill fails; 0 per cent.

General revision of constitution—0.

Repeal of 18th amendment and kindred wet law—almost a hull's eye here, but the beer costs twice what Governor Comstock promised. The thirsty are not getting "nickle beer," thus, 5.0 per cent.

Revision of the corrupt practices act; "publicity for campaign expenses and receipts"—Governor Comstock was the first to refuse to file a statement of expenses. Therefore, another zero.

The state platform:

Cooperation—The governor and the legislature, and latterly even several democratic leaders, have been at cross purposes all session. Another zero.

Reduction of small loan rates—New law reduces it from 3 1/2 to 1 1/2 per cent a month; slash of one-half, thus, 3 per cent.

Abolition of tax-exempt bonds—Legislature can't do anything about this; resolution seeking reform from congress turned down on day of adjournment. Another zero.

Establishment of a fair trade commission—Bill dies in committee, 0.

Centralization of authority—Legislature passes two score bills taking authority from administrative board and tries to abolish the board itself, 0.

Uniform text books for public schools—Bill fails, 0.

Economy in government—$23,000,000 property tax abandoned, governor asks for $10,000,000 tax program and gets one of about $10,000,000; a bill to reduce number of employees of legislature went into limbo early in session; special licenses and privilege fees enacted, 0.

Total score, 25.4 per cent.

SECURITIES

A new securities measure has been signed by the president, and it is now law. It requires the absolute truth in connection with the sale of securities, and it makes the unscrupulous and credulous less easily gulled. As prosperity ascends, opportunities to invest in the stocks of numerous new ventures may be invited as they were when the business was at high tide before. Doubtless there will be sound as well as worthless investments offered in the future as in the past, but with lessons learned, extraordinary precautions will be taken to avoid the unnecessary risk and many possible losses. The best and surest investment is in property, especially in land, in one's own neighborhood. It is surest because its value is best known and its future is most easily watched. Stick to home investments and play safe.

SIGNS OF IMPROVEMENT

Real signs of substantial improvement in economic conditions comes from the watch tower at old Fort Mackinac on Mackinac Island, where a plain view is had of the straits and main channel for lake traffic. It is reported that more freight carriers have passed through the straits and channel so far this year than the entire season last year. This unmistakably indicates improvement in "heavy industry" to which we must look for a return of prosperity.

Noting these signs of dependable import there is more pep about the Island than in the past two years. Hotels and resort keepers and business men in general are making preparations for a brisk season, not expected until after the big freighters started on a surprising parade. Cottagers also are arriving ahead of their schedule during the past two or three years, and some that have been closed for the past two seasons will be opened by the owners or tenants.

Inquiries also are coming into old Fort Mackinac, which has a number of buildings about the ramparts for rent to summer recreation seekers, which is accepted as another unmistakable sign for improvement and confidence that we are again on the upgrade to stay.

EDITORIAL DIFFICULTIES

Keeping up with the editorial procession these days is about the hardest task the weekly newspaper scrivener has faced in 10, these many years.

In previous sessions of congress, a measure would be introduced in plenty of time to enable the editor to form an intelligent idea of what it was all about and what it was aiming to do. He would then have several weeks in which to offer to congress his best advice as to what should be done with the measure looking toward the best interests of the republic. If his editorial advice was omitted one week, it would do just as well the next. For congress would debate and deliberate a couple of months or more before taking any sort of final action.

But things have changed. Nowadays, under the new deal, measures are shot through congress so fast even the daily scribes find it difficult to keep abreast of them. An editorial written one day may be as far out of date the next day as a last year's bird's nest. And the weekly editor, well, it's just another of the trials and tribulations that befall this purveyor of information and advice when things are going at top speed at Washington?

BLOCKING PROGRESS

Presidential opposition to the Vandenberg amendment of the Glass-Steagall bill, which would provide for immediate guarantee of bank deposits up to $2,500, smacks very much of political jealousy on the part of our national leader, who evidently is not desirous of having a Republican senator appearing in any of the pictures coming out of Washington.

The Vandenberg bank deposit guarantee amendment would provide an important section needed in our next national banking act. It has been carefully thought out, is consistent with safe banking policies and is drastically needed at this time to coax money out of hiding and into the banks where it can be used to stimulate industry.

And if there was ever a time when industry needed financial assistance to get the drive wheels off dead center it is now. Long years of inactivity has so dissipated industrial reserves that hundreds of thousands of workers are being denied jobs' right now because industrialists faced with the rummy of watching orders pile up by leaps and bounds are unable to finance the purchase of raw materials, pay labor and give their customers the usual term, because of lack of capital. The bank deposit guarantee would help to bring much of the money needed for this out of hiding. We have been told that without vision the people perish. Or is it because so much of our national life is influenced by a desire to bask in the limelight of political glory?

WHY WORRY?

Worrying has been defined as imagining a lot of things that are not so about something that probably will never happen.

It's a fashionable sport—almost as popular as criticizing one's neighbor—and most of us might as well admit that we indulge in it. On cross-examination, we could quite properly and with a great show of furrows in our foreheads explain that if it had not been for some high-pressure worrying, we might not be where we are (or are not) today.

Or perhaps we might first differentiate between worrying and thinking. In that event we probably would discover that our accomplishments have not been won by mindless worrying, but rather by concentrated thinking. The two are as different as chaff and wheat and as comparable in their value to our bodily well being.

Worrying is worse than wasted energy. It is a bad mental habit that, just like the bad physical habits whose practice the Michigan Tobacco Association points out often leads to tuberculosis, invites one of the mental or nervous ailments whose prevalence is all too common these days. Most of us would be just as well off, and far happier, if we put the business of worrying high on our list of "don'ts."

MICHIGAN DEPT. OF STATE WEEKLY NEWS

The total tax on gasoline you pay for your car after July 1, will be about 4 1/2 cents a gallon. The office of the secretary of state will collect the three cent state specific tax; the federal government will collect 1 1/2 cents (the last half-cent being effective June 16), and the state board of tax administrators will collect its 3 per cent sales tax, which will equal about 1/4 of a cent a gallon. In many states of the union, the total state and national tax on gasoline will exceed the price of the fluid itself.

While the state may spend money in huge sums, it collects it almost penny by penny. The three-cent sales tax, effective July 1, is a sterling example. If retail business of the state is only half as large as it was in 1929, the state government will gather in, at the rate of three cents on each dollar and every one passes over retail counters, a total of $92,000,000 a year.

On July 1, next Saturday, Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state, will be the only republican elective department head left in the capital. On that date, two important departments will change commands. Murray D. Van Wageningen will take over the huge state highway department, and Dr. Paul F. Voelker will become superintendent of public instruction. They will succeed Grover C. Dillman and Webster H. Pearce, respectively. Mr. Fitzgerald is the only republican elective official to survive after two elections, those of Nov. 8 and April 3.

Payment by every resident of the state, an annual tax of $2, for the financing of the estimated $6,000,000 old age pension payments, will reach one class of people heretofore not reached by any direct taxes. Even those not citizens, and not thus even entitled to vote in this state or nation, will be assessed.

The term "poll" tax, often misunderstood, refers not to a voting "poll" but to the somewhat literary term "poll," meaning a head. Thus the poll tax is a head tax. This bill may or may not be approved by the governor.

Vitamins in Milks

Comparisons of Jersey and Friesian milks with goat milk made in the United States showed that in nutritive properties, including vitamin content, no one milk showed marked superiority over the other two. Jersey milk was found to contain somewhat more vitamin A and goat milk contained more of vitamins B and C. The vitamin C content of all three milks, produced in both winter and summer, was found to be low. The vitamin D content of all three milks was approx. exactly the same. Goat and Friesian milks were found to be somewhat similar in content of protein, fat and total nutrients, and Jersey milk was higher than either in those constituents.

Canada's Butter Production

Final statistics of the dairy factory industry in Canada in 1932 show the production of creamery butter in that year to have been 185,751,061 pounds, which constitutes the largest output recorded so far by the Dominion, and exceeds the previous high year, 1929, by over 800,000 pounds. The production of farm butter in 1932 is estimated at $4,337,000 pounds, bringing the total butter production for the year to a record output of over 270,000,000 pounds.

Summer Club Program Announced for Charlevoix County

The summer club program is rapidly being developed. At the present time, approximately fifty girls are actively engaged in home canning. The first year members are preserving fruits and vegetables, the second year members, jellies, jams and marmalades. In addition and the more advanced members are canning meats, fish and fowl as well as fruit and vegetables. You will want to see their exhibit this fall.

The following communities have canning clubs with the following leaders: Clark district, Mrs. Anna Warner; Murray district, Mrs. Ruth Blair; Bay Shore, Miss Ruth Zipp; Ironton, leader not selected yet; Peninsula, Mrs. Belle Gandy; East Jordan, Mr. Loden Brintnall; Bayne River, Mrs. Robert Russell.

Of special interest to the boys are two dairy clubs, one crops club and one home club. These clubs are scattered quite generally throughout the county. The two dairy clubs are located at Barnard with Carleton Smith as leader and Chandler Hill with William Hughes as leader. The one crops club in the county is located at East Jordan with Gwendon Holt as leader and the home club at Ironton under the leadership of George Hanson.

With this splendid group of leaders, a very successful summer program is now in progress. Many are already planning on attending the club camp which is held the first week in August at Gaylord. Plans are being made for the county exhibit which will be announced later.

County Dairymen Join Cow-Test Association

After two months of effort in securing membership for a new district cow-test association and making preparations for its organization, the Northern Michigan association is now a reality. It was impossible to secure sufficient membership for a local association but by including Emmet, Oshtemo, Charlevoix, Antrim and Grand Traverse counties, 25 members have now joined and will get their first test the first week in July.

Charlevoix county is represented by five dairymen with approximately 80 cows as follows: Marion Center Dairy, Charlevoix; George Meggion, Charlevoix; Edward Patter, Charlevoix; L. D. Welshimer, Charlevoix; and Bayne Point Farm, East Jordan.

It is a well known fact that it is very difficult to develop a highly productive herd of cows without the aid of a cow-test association to increase interest, to prove cows, to determine relative milkiness between animals, to make a wise selection of offspring and to determine feed tests. It is hoped that other dairymen will be interested in this service in the near future.

The county champions made appropriate remarks concerning his or her project which made a deep impression on the grange members. More than one grange member made the statement that if 4-H club work was instrumental in the development and progress of such fine young folks, they certainly would donate their best efforts in making a successful 4-H club program possible.

The following members were selected as the outstanding club members in their respective projects and were awarded with very attractive medals: Robert Fainton, Bayne City; Ellen Johnson, Bay Shore; Lillian Carleton Smith, Charlevoix; Margaret Bohling, Bayne City; clothing and styles; Gwendon Holt, East Jordan; crops; Douglas Ross, Bay Shore; handicraft.

With so many club members in the county doing exceptional work, it was indeed very difficult to select those who it was felt were deserving of this recognition. The club program has made remarkable headway. Back in 1925 we only had six clubs with seventy members in the county while in 1932 we had forty-three clubs with 343 members enrolled of which 322 finished for a per cent of 93.9 finishers in the county. It has been highly gratifying in the last eight or nine years to note the large number of past club members who are now taking active interest in their own communities and assuming today's responsibilities.

NORTHMEN BREAK EVEN IN LAST TWO CONTESTS

Lost Sunday to Barnard Team, But Win One from Marion Center

With such a capable hurler as Al Cummings pitching for Barnard, Sunday, it was in the cards that the local Northmen were going to lose the game.

But it would not have been a rout had the locals given Glenn Gill the support he deserved in the infield. Only eight men reached first, so effectively did Cummings pitch. Gill did just as well, but his support crumbled and Barnard got four runs in three innings, none of them earned. Parsons and Dixon finished for the locals. The final score was 14 to 2. Gregory and H. Cunningham led Barnard with three runs apiece. Newman and Shores were the only locals to score.

Last Wednesday evening, the locals defeated Marion Center by a 12 to 4 score. McRoberts and Sterritt pitched well for the Northmen. Handy and Larocke hurled for Marion Center, but errors behind them decided the game. Parsons, Brow and Shores led the field in hitting, with three hits apiece.

Next Sunday the Northmen go to Marion Center for another game, and then they will make ready to have their strongest team on the field and play some team on the Legion diamond at 2:00 p. m. on July 4th.

COMMERCIAL BROOK TROUT POND OPENED

William Healey Opens Trout Lake 4 Miles Southeast of East Jordan

The first commercial brook trout fishing venture ever attempted in Northern Michigan has been opened to the public.

This new innovation for trout anglers, in the making for three years by its owner, William Healey, is located about four miles southeast of East Jordan on the Deer Lake road.

A pond, with 12-foot head, has been formed with a dam on a small, spring-fed feeder stream to Deer creek. The pond has been heavily stocked and contains thousands of trout from below the recognized legal length of 7 inches to fish 18 inches long and tipping the scales at around four pounds.

A charge is made for the fish caught, and one may take as many as they desire providing they pay the price. The only restriction demanded is that the angler keep everything over 7 inches in length.

STATE PAYROLLS TO BE CUT JULY 1

is no question but that we will have at the present time," he said, "there to reduce our field force."

The conservation division ranked among the departments most severely treated by the legislature in its economy drive. In addition to payroll cuts, Hozarth is of the belief that it may be necessary to close a number of state parks.

Samuel T. Metzger, commissioner of agriculture, said that salary reductions already in effect may make it possible for his department to operate on his restricted budget during the next two years without discharging employees. Metzger's payroll funds were cut from $226,000 a year to $159,000.

Some reductions probably will be necessary in his department, according to Secretary of State, Frank D. Fitzgerald, although his cut was only about $50,000 a year.

Substantial reductions in salary funds given other departments include: department of health, $95,000; labor and industry, $50,000; and banking, $36,000.

Institutions which likewise will curtail their payrolls are also preparing their new budgets, the state board of education taking the lead in outlining future expenditures of the four state normal colleges.

KAMP KAIRPHREE OPENS 1933 SUMMER SEASON

Enrollment Is Double That of a Year Ago—Opened Tuesday

Kamp Kairphree, the popular camp for girls on the north shore of Lake Charlevoix, opened Tuesday, June 27th, for the 1933 summer session.

Mr. and Mrs. George Swain, owners and directors of the camp, have been supervising preparations for the opening several weeks. The enrollment of campers for the present season is nearly double that of a year ago, according to Mr. and Mrs. Swain.

The usual efficient staff of counselors are with the camp again this year, and the program of activities will follow closely that of previous summers.

BELVEDERE COURSE IS OPENED TO THE PUBLIC

Official Inauguration of 1933 Season
Was Saturday, June 24

The Belvedere 18-hole golf course opened officially for the 1933 summer season on Saturday, June 24th.

Formerly a semi-private course, the Belvedere opened this season to the general public. The fairways and greens are in their usual excellent condition, aided by continuous upkeep operations and an abundance of early summer rains.

The same efficient staff has returned again this season, including Milton Converse, professional; Ray S. Kipke, caddy master; Mrs. Clarence Hanshaw, bookkeeper, and Frank Supernaw, grounds keeper.

CHANGE BOATS ON CHAR- LEVOIX-BEAVERS ROUTE

Marold II, Formerly Operated Here
Replaces Str. James E. Sanford

Through an arrangement between Capt. John Chambers of the Str. James E. Sanford, and Capt. Hill of the steel passenger boat Marold II, the latter vessel has replaced the former on the Charlevoix-Beaver Island run.

The Sanford, which took over the route when the Str. Oskan Bjell was transferred to Chicago, has been docked here and the other boat put on the run. It is understood the change, a mutual one between the two boat owners, was made for the reason the Marold II has better accommodations to carry automobiles to the island.

Capt. Chamber has gone on the Marold II for the navigation season.

MISS CHARLEVOIX IS CHERRY QUEEN

Battleboro, Vt. Her mother has had a career as a pipe organist, and Morella has studied dramatics and voice culture.

Charlevoix Pays Homage
Charlevoix paid homage to Queen Morella at a formal dancing party given in her honor at the Belvedere casino Tuesday evening. The event, sponsored by the younger local social set, and the association of commerce, was a colorful affair. In addition to Miss Oldham, other honored guests included members of her court and officials of the cherry festival.

While this event unofficially opened Miss Morella's reign as national cherry queen, she will soon be called upon for more official duties. Within a few days her private life will cease, for the festival committee are rapidly arranging a program of entertainment, tours and public appearances for Miss Oldham that will occupy her full time until after the coronation.

The Courier joins other Charlevoixians in extending congratulations to Miss Oldham.

CLAIM SCHOOL BOOK STORE FUND MISUSE

BOARD MAY TAKE LEGAL ACTION AGAINST GERALD BUSH

Absence of Accounting and Holding of Funds for Unpaid Salary Claimed to Be Illegal

Probability of legal action against Gerald F. Bush, former superintendent of local schools, to recover funds allegedly misappropriated from the book store account, has been made known by the board of education.

At the last meeting of the board, Mr. Bush presented a statement of the account, which had been under his personal supervision two years. Assets were listed as follows: Inventory, June 22, 1933, $718.94; cash in bank, $5.59; "cash on hand as represented by amount due me under contract," $350.00, a total of $1,069.43. Liabilities listed were: Inventory, Sept. 1931, $349.51; unpaid bills, $583.83, a total of $933.34. Mr. Bush claimed there was due him the difference in the amounts, $136.09, less $36.93, representing 10 per cent of the difference in the two inventories, or $99.16.

The inventory of Sept. 1931, included $56.66 cash in the bank. While the inventory of June 22, 1933, is correct as to items listed, the amount is questionable, due to the fact pencils are included at 2 1/2c and 5c each, retail instead of wholesale price, it is claimed.

The statement shows unpaid bills of $583.83, some dating back to 1932, despite the fact the book store shows $1,372.66 was deposited in the book store account during the 1932-33 school year. The item of $350.00, which Mr. Bush calls the amount due him on contract, represents a salary reduction of 30 per cent enforced upon and voluntarily accepted by the entire teaching staff for the last three months of school. The book store account, it is claimed, has no connection with salary payment by the board of education, thus the holding of funds to cover the salary reduction was illegal.

The book store is maintained for the convenience of pupils. New books are carried and sold, second-hand books, pencils, typing paper and other accessories. Following the methods of other schools, the board of education turned the book store over to Mr. Bush in 1931 to handle personally, with the understanding he was to sell supplies at cost, plus 10 per cent to cover expenses of operation; also that he pay all bills and that he turn the account back to the board at the expiration of his term, giving a complete inventory and record of transactions. No record of transactions during the past two years has been returned with the statement. He returned no cancelled checks or check stubs to show expenditures. The school board has no way of checking. All they have is the statement mentioned, a bunch of unpaid bills and a file of correspondence, which it is claimed, indicates the former superintendent has been planning on "cleaning up" to cover salary reduction, for some time back.

It appears that the school board is "hooked" insofar as unpaid bills are concerned. All consignments of supplies were to Mr. Bush, personally, but the statements for same are made to the board of education, thus making them responsible. It is understood, however, that the board will take legal action to force an accounting and recover amount withheld for unpaid salary.

MANY COUNTY ROADS RECEIVE DUST LAYER

Re-treading 1 1/2 Miles on Charlevoix-Ellsworth Road Finished

The work of dust-proofing Charlevoix county trunk lines and highways has been practically completed under the direction of R. T. Davis, maintenance superintendent.

Mr. Davis spent a considerable portion of last week with a crew of men at Beaver Island. Over two miles of roads were treated there. While trunk lines have been completely covered, the policy this year includes oiling portions of road in front of farm dwellings on county highways. The Marion Center, Barnard and Norwood roads have received such attention.

Re-treading of about 1 1/2 miles on the Charlevoix-Ellsworth road has also been completed, furnished a much needed improvement.

TAKE PENALTIES FROM 1932 PROPERTY TAXES

Deadline Is Moved Ahead Until November 1st—Other Relief

Taxes for 1932 will be accepted until September 1, by County Treasurer Joseph Wm. Flanders without penalties or interest charges, according to word he received from the auditor general's office.

The legislature first set the deadline for paying 1932 taxes without interest charges or penalties at July 1. Later when it was seen that because of money tied up in banks many property owners would not be able to pay by that time, a resolution was adopted extending the time until November 1.

The Moore-Holbeck bill provides for payment of taxes for 1931 and preceding years without penalties and interest charges. Under this bill the total delinquent tax may be divided into ten equal installments. The first payment is to be made by September 1, 1935, and each payment is due on September 1, in each year thereafter until the whole amount is retired.

RESORT SEASON IN FULL SWING

ARRIVALS LAST WEEK END ECLIPSE FORMER YEARS

All Local Hotels, Clubs and Camps Report Guest Lists Exceeding Those of Previous Summers

With the opening of all Charlevoix hotels, boys' and girls' camps, clubs and many summer places, the 1933 resort season is now in full swing.

Last week end saw the heaviest influx of vacationists in any recent year, Saturday's Resort Special over the Pere Marquette Railway Company lines came in three sections, two coming as far north as Bay View. All rail accommodations were completely sold out. Charlevoix, it is understood, was the destination for a larger number than any other point in this region. In addition to those coming by rail, automobile parties swelled the total of arrivals to a number in excess of all previous expectations.

Under these circumstances it is needless to say that Charlevoix hotels enjoyed a liberal patronage. Of the larger hotels—The Inn, Belvedere and Charlevoix Beach Hotel reported more guests than on the same date in recent years. The management at The Inn reported an increase of 150 per cent over the previous Fourth of July week end. The Chicago Club had the largest July 1 registry in the past two or three years. Smaller hotels, rooming houses and restaurants received liberal patronage.

While cottage rentals have been lagging somewhat the latter part of June, a brisk demand had been apparent in the past week and the cottage colonies are rapidly filling. Intensely hot weather in southern cities is sending families to the Charlevoix area, where they are greeted with relief.

Improvement of business throughout the country is bringing a favorable reaction in the resort region and a feeling of general optimism prevails among the owners of both local and summer business institutions.

CHICKAWAGO LODGE OPENED FOR SEASON

Visitors Lavish in Praise of Location and Amenities

Chickawago Club, this year available to Charlevoix summer residents as an entertainment center, opened July 1st for the 1933 season.

Miss Edith Blair, who recently purchased the property, reports visitors were delighted with the beautiful location, splendid appointments and service offered.

STOP PAYMENT MOTHERS' PENSIONS ON JULY 15TH

Contrary to earlier reports, mothers' pensions, ordered discontinued by action of the board of supervisors in June session, will be continued until July 15th. Previous reports set the time as June 15th, which was erroneous. One more payment will be made before the order for discontinuance takes effect.

Resorters and Others—Motor Inn, Eastport, is now serving fine meals. Everybody come. Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Milford of Petoskey.—Adv. 2761 pd.

SUMMER CONCERTS START SATURDAY

CITY BAND TO GIVE PROGRAM AT MEMORIAL PARK

Members of Organization Giving Services Gratis to Provide Popular Entertainment Feature

The Charlevoix city band will open a series of summer concerts Saturday evening, July 8th, at 8 o'clock. The programs will be given at Memorial park.

For a time it appeared there would be no hand concerts this summer, but financial assistance from the city council has provided funds to compensate the director and the concert schedule has been completed. The band has several new members and it is anticipated several more will join the organization soon.

In the past it has been the policy to pay band members two dollars for each concert during the summer, but this year, through a cooperative arrangement with the city council, the members are playing the concerts without remuneration in order to keep the organization together. With this fine spirit the band is receiving cooperation from everyone. Businessmen are giving time to employees for rehearsals and concerts, and the park commissioners are taking care of lights, etc.

The annual election of officers was held just recently and the following were elected: president, Ilo Helms; vice-president and business men's representative, William Bellinger; secretary, Rex McGowan; treasurer, Albert Novotny; property man, Clarence Arnold; librarian, Herman Meyer.

The summer concerts have been an annual feature of entertainment here for several years. Summer visitors and local residents alike have attended the Saturday evening programs in large numbers, and the fine spirit shown by members of the organization in order to continue this feature is very commendable and worthy of praise.

PROBATE JUDGES TO MEET AT BELVEDERE

Annual Convention Will Be Held Here September 5, 6 and 7

The Belvedere hotel will be headquarters for the annual convention of the Michigan Association of Probate Judges, according to a communication received last week by Mrs. Carl Steiner, manager, from Judge E. Quinlan of Newberry, secretary-treasurer of the Association.

A committee of the association visited Charlevoix late last week, inspecting the several hotels which bid for the convention.

The annual meeting will be held September 5, 6 and 7. Approximately fifty probate judges and their wives are expected.

DATES ANNOUNCED FOR TRI-COUNTY FAIR

Dates for the second annual Tri-county Fair at Petoskey have been set as August 29, 30, 31 and September 1, by the fair board of which John Roy is president. Cheboygan and Charlevoix counties will join with Emmet county sponsoring the fair again this year.

Buy View Summer School will open Monday, July 9th. College credit classes in many lines are offered in the College of Liberal Arts. Special tutors for any subject, high school or college.—Adv. 2761 pd.

MANY CHANGES IN FISHING LAWS

ACTS OF 1933 LEGISLATURE ARE REVIEWED

Extension of Open Fishing Season One of Most Important Changes—Others Listed

Extension of the open fishing season in Michigan's inland lakes for one month; restoration of the minimum size limit for perch, rock bass and calico bass; removal of white bass from the list of game fish and extension of the spring spearing season, were among the changes in inland fishing regulations adopted by the 1933 session of the legislature.

Fishing for certain species in designated "pike lakes" is now permitted the year around. The legislature extended the open season for fishing in inland lakes through the month of April. Until now all lakes have been closed March 31. They are open now until April 30, so that grass pike, walleyed pike, muskellunge, and yellow perch are not subject to a closed season in "pike lakes."

A minimum size limit of ten inches has been placed on landlocked salmon, a species now included on the list of game fish. A five day possession limit is also included. The new law restores a minimum size limit of six inches for yellow perch, rock bass and calico bass. The limit was restored, according to the fish division of the conservation department because of waste discovered. It was found that small fish were left in boats or on the ice in the winter.

Removal of white bass from the list of designated game fish permits the sale of this species. Commercialization of grass pike, which has been placed on the list of game fish is now prohibited when taken from inland waters.

Two lines or two rods and lines with a total of not more than four hooks on all lines is legalized and ice fishing is limited, to not more than five lines with one hook only on each line except one line with any number of hooks may be used for taking smelt in recognized smelt waters.

The spearing season in the lower peninsula is extended to include March 1, to May 15, making it uniform for the entire state. The director of conservation is empowered to designate the counties, streams or portions of streams in which artificial lights may be used with spears in season, and to designate the trout streams in which spears, without lights, may be used in season for taking carp, suckers, redbreast, mullet, dogfish and carp.

While the old law limited setting of ice lines to one hour, lines may now set for two hours. Persons fishing in this manner are restricted to one hook to a line, not exceeding five lines.

The director of conservation has been authorized to designate trout streams or portions of trout streams in which dip nets may be used in season for taking suckers. He is also authorized to designate lakes in which suckers may be taken from March 15 to May 15 with set over nets not exceeding five feet in diameter.

Use of trammel nets not over 12 feet long in parts of the Tittabawassee river.

CHARLEVOIX INDIANS BEAT CENTRAL LAKE

Play Keganic Thursday Evening—Mancelona Here Sunday

Turning in one of their most impressive victories of the season, the Charlevoix Indians defeated Central Lake at south side hall park Sunday afternoon.

A. John and "Stuh" Lord were the Charlevoix battery. John gave a creditable performance, striking out eight men and allowing only seven scattered hits. Corpe, hurling for the losers, was nicked for twelve hits and struck out three.

The Indians will have a chance to even matters with Keganic this week. A game with the Emmet county team has been scheduled for Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock. Keganic won by a single score in the previous encounter.

The Indians play at home again next Sunday. Mancelona, leader in the Charlevoix-Antrim league, will furnish the opposition. They come here undefeated. A general admission of ten and fifteen cents will be charged.

SCHOOL VOTERS TO MEET MONDAY NITE

ANNUAL SESSION BOARD OF EDUCATION AT 8 O'CLOCK

Elect Two Board Members—Plans of Financing School for 1933-34 Will Be Explained

Voters of Charlevoix school district No. 1, city and township, are to meet Monday evening, July 10th, at the high school assembly room for the annual meeting of the board of education.

The session is called for the election of two members and hearing of the board's plans for operating the schools for the 1933-34 year under a greatly reduced budget. The meeting will convene at 8 o'clock.

Ernest L. Dawson, long time president of the board, and William P. Hicken, secretary and member three years, are up for re-election. It is understood the local American Legion is again in the field with a candidate from their membership and, whether or not others are seeking office is not known at this time.

Mr. Dawson has announced that the financial set-up for the coming school year will be explained fully at the meeting. The board has pared figures far below those of other years and levied drastic salary cuts on all teachers and employees. Failure of the state legislature to provide financial aid for the schools, however, leaves the Charlevoix system far short of the amount estimated as necessary. The legislature has provided that the schools should receive all residue from the sales tax after $19,000,000 for state expenses and $12,000,000 for welfare purposes has been raised. Indefiniteness of the proceeds from the sales tax leaves the fate of the schools uncertain.

PRINT DELINQUENT TAX DESCRIPTIONS IN 1935

Final Act of Legislature Restored Publication of List

The taking of a man's money without giving something in return is a form of theft.

The great state of Michigan has been guilty of charging a fee for uncompleted work or for work it at no time desired to complete. That will be changed in 1935.

One of the closing acts of the legislature was the restoration of publication in delinquent tax descriptions. Under the new bill, publication of descriptions of property to be sold for delinquent taxes will be resumed in 1935. Newspapers are to be paid under a graduated scale which will make no change in the rate previously paid to the majority of weekly publications.

LOWER MICHIGAN PRODUCES MORE SUCCESSFUL HUNTERS

Records of the department of conservation show that lower Michigan hunters are better marksmen than those up-state. In 1931 51 per cent of the lower peninsula hunters who went north of the Straits carried home with a buck. Only 47 per cent of the hunters who live in the upper peninsula and sought their deer near home were successful.

Confidence is seldom lost, but it is often sadly misplaced.

CAMP CHARLEVOIX SEASON UNDER WAY

OFFICIAL OPENING FOR 1933 SEASON LAST FRIDAY

New Features Have Been Added to Regular Camp Program This Year—Enrollment 1445

(By Camp Correspondent.) Camp Charlevoix officially opened its seventh season last Friday, June 30, with an enrollment of approximately 45 boys and a veteran staff of about twenty.

Three new men have been added to the experienced staff this year. Dr. John Law of Detroit replaced Dr. Clare N. Bittershoffer, who served for the past two years as the camp physician. Dr. Law is a graduate of Michigan, and was a member of the varsity wrestling team there. He is a Red Cross life saving examiner and an expert sailor.

Harvard Braden of Flint, is also a Michigan graduate, having received his degree in the physical education department there. He will assist in the athletic program of the camp. Dudley Mattson, a sophomore at Hillsdale college, will be the instructor in riding, as well as assisting in riding.

Oldham Back

Aquatics are to be handled by Earle S. (Oke) Oldham, a University of Michigan graduate and a sophomore at the Detroit School of Medicine and Surgery. "Oke" has been with Camp Charlevoix ever since its beginning, the only counsellor to have served that long in the capacity of a leader.

Colonel E. Gillespie will have charge of all athletics, including baseball, tennis, basketball, volleyball, etc. He is a graduate of Michigan State Normal college, and former director of athletics at Dearborn high school. Canoeing, camping and woodcraft will be taken care of by Jack Hogan, another graduate of Ann Arbor. This is his fifth season at the camp.

Handicraft Program Extensive

The handicraft program is to be headed by Orville Heft of Mackenzie high school, Detroit. It includes such features as leather work, bronze work, archery and some work in silver. Wendell Gates, a senior at Adelbert College of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio, and also a senior in the art school there, assumed the duties of art and dramatics director. He carried out some notable work in marionettes last year, as well as in the production of several fine masks.

Riding is under the supervision of Tim Neal another "seven-year man." He has been with the camp every season, the first four as a camper.

COURIER-INN BRIDGE CLASS OF INTEREST—CONTINUES THIS WEEK

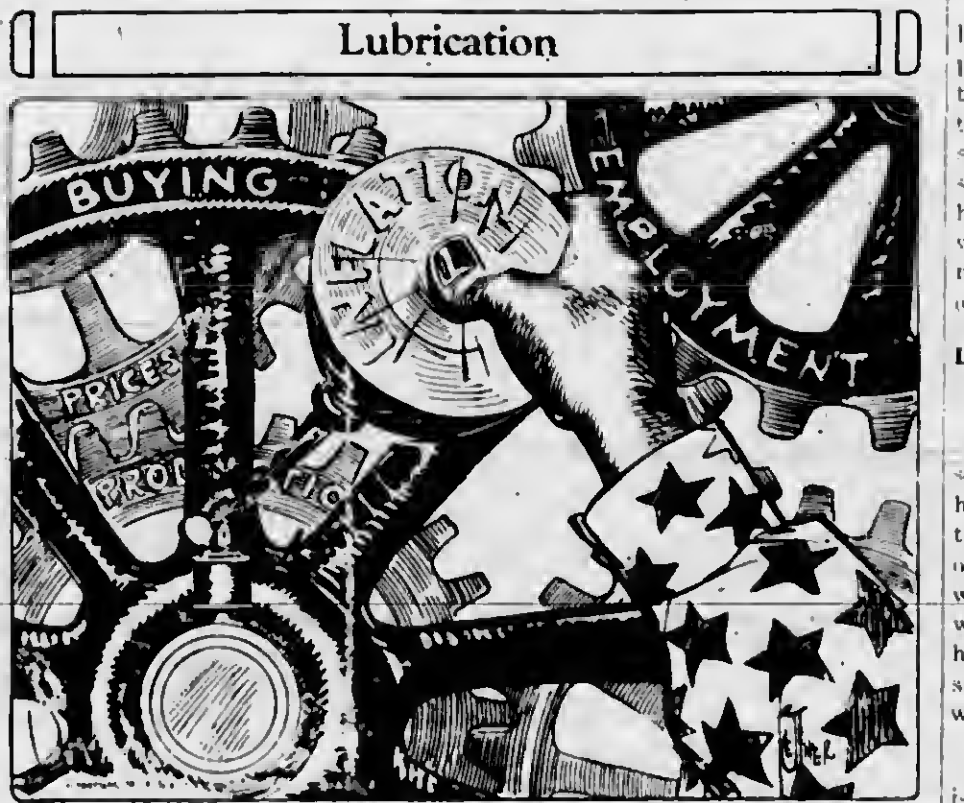

Announcement by The Courier last week of the opening of a school of contract bridge in The Inn for the readers of this paper and summer guests of the Charlevoix resort region, has created keen interest among bridge enthusiasts of this vicinity. Inquiries regarding enrollment in the school, which is being sponsored jointly by The Courier and The Inn, are coming into The Courier office from all sections of the wide area covered by this paper.

Classes will be held this coming Friday in The Inn. There will be three groups, the first at 10:30 a. m., the second at 2:00 p. m., and an evening class at 8 o'clock. The school is under the direction of Harold Sharpsteen, well known Culbertson associate and vice-president of the Michigan Bridge association. He is considered Michigan's foremost bridge instructor.

For the benefit of readers of this paper and their friends a special bridge school coupon appears in today's issue entitling the bearer to attend any one of the three classes Friday for 50 cents. Without The Courier coupon the lesson fee is $1.

Contract players of long standing, as well as those just learning the game, will find The Courier-Inn course unusually helpful as Mr. Sharpsteen not only teaches the technique of bidding, leads, suit follows and discards, but the play of the hand as well. He will be at The Inn each Friday to conduct this summer series of lessons.

Clip The Courier coupon and enroll in the class Friday.

BARNARD

See "Vashti" at the church Friday night.

Joe Bottema of Grand Rapids, spent a few days at home with his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Smith of near East Jordan, spent Sunday with their niece, Mrs. Clyde Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hayes of Grafting, spent the Fourth with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Hayes.

We are glad to note that Mrs. Louis Shapton is able to be out a little after her long, severe illness at the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Couze and daughter, Barbara June, of Chicago, are spending a couple of weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Shapton.

The glorious Fourth is over and Barnard's celebration was attended by a fine crowd, the weather being ideal. The ball game between Atwood and Barnard was enjoyed by all, although the score was 15 to 7 in favor of Atwood.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sands and Mrs. E. Shapton of Flint, visited relatives in Barnard, Charlevoix and Mackinaw City over Sunday. Mary Smith accompanied them home Tuesday to visit relatives in Flint and Detroit for a few weeks.

With Al Cummings doing good work on the mound and with good support, Barnard beat Ironton on Sunday by a score of 18 to 8.

Joe Stutzman and "Dip" Cummings led the scoring with four runs each. Thompson and Jamie Block were high for the losers, with two runs each. Bob Cummings made a home run in the seventh with bases loaded. Thompson, Johnson, Thomas and Block formed the battery for Ironton. A. Cummings and Ager for Barnard; Cummings striking out 13 men. Umpires Henly and Chantil.

Atwood won with a score of 15 to 7 on the Fourth. They have one of the strongest teams around and with the help of three "Indian" players it was against the odds for Barnard to win. Brown, Hoffman, Lord battery for Atwood, and Cummings and Ager for Barnard; Brown striking out 13 men and Cummings 14. Poor support in the first inning gave Atwood a 7-point lead.

Barnard will have a chance to even up with them on Saturday, July 15, at Atwood. Course and Rice handled the game in a satisfactory manner. A collection of $13.75 was taken for the playing teams.

ROCK ELM

Norman Jensen went to Ann Arbor last week.

Mrs. Mable Holland of Lansing, called on Mrs. Jessie Metz Monday afternoon.

Looks like the greater part of the beet and sales taxes will go into the pockets of the army of collectors, who in reality, are just political jobholders.

Mr. Porter brought Prof. Fairman out last Friday to inspect the cherry trees to try to determine the cause of so many yellow leaves in spite of frequent spraying.

Lawrence Jensen's team ran away with the mowing machine one day last week. Aside from breaking the tongue and some parts of the harness no serious damage was done.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Wednesday evening at 7:45, first Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

"God" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, July 2.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (Joel 2:25): "And ye shall eat in plenty, and be satisfied, and make the name of the Lord your God, that hath dealt wondrously with you; and my people shall never be ashamed."

Just the Way You See It in the Movies

Mixes Sounds

The "mixer" on a Hollywood movie stage has plenty to mix, Freddie March has discovered.

March, winner of the award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for the best performance of the year, got to talking things over with Martin M. Paget, "mixer" whose recording of the music and dialogue of Maurice Chevalier's "One Hour With You" helped the Paramount Studios win the Academy's award for the best sound recording of the year.

It occurred during the filming of "Tonight Is Ours," a new comedy-romance by Noel Coward, author of "Private Lives," directed by Stuart Walker, in which March is starred with Claudette Colbert, and which comes to the Palace theatre Sunday and Monday, July 9 and 10. Paget "mixed" the sound for that picture too.

MICHIGAN HAS A HUGE RESERVE OF "DRY" GAS

Michigan's proved "dry" gas producing areas have a reserve in excess of 21,000,000,000 cubic feet it is indicated by the geoscientific survey division of the Department of conservation.

The reserve is included in four fields that now include 44 wells which had an aggregate estimated original daily open flow of 115,000,000 cubic feet.

The proved acreage has been conservatively placed at 5,800 acres but the geoscientific survey division believes that this estimate is too small.

Dossy's Brew Above Limit, Owner Finds

Geneva, Ohio—Capt. I. D. Howard, North Geneva farmer, still hopes he will not find Molly, his favorite cow, wearing four government piglocks some morning.

Several days ago, Molly got hold of some damp wheat that had soured.

"Molly is a food cow, like all money cows," said Captain Howard. "So, of course, she ate all the wheat she could hold. The next morning when I milked, the foam overran the bucket and soaked my knees. Molly had turned herself into a brewery and far exceeded the legal 3.2 beer."

Forests Influence Our Market Basket

Wood Is Indispensable in "Metal Civilization."

Washington.—Articles ranging from telephone poles to clothespins are among the millions of objects made of wood which the present "metal civilization" finds indispensable. Even before the institution of the President's forestry camps, lumbering, measured by the number of persons engaged in it, was one of the largest industries in the United States, according to a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Lumbering and forestry, as they are at present practiced, vary widely in their aims although the cutting of wood is a factor in both," says the bulletin. "Lumbering is the term used for the cutting of timber for an immediate gain, while forestry carries the conception of long-time planning for continuous income. If trees are stripped endlessly from land, it is frequently left open to alternate floods and droughts. Much of it becomes worthless for agriculture or recreation and can support little animal life.

Many National Forests.
"When white men came to America, it is estimated that there were 1,061,523 square miles of forest between the Atlantic ocean and the prairies. In what is now the West of the United States there were 280,062 square miles. This million and a quarter square miles of forests had been reduced to 733,554 square miles in 1923. Over half of this remainder had been selectively cut over, leaving the smaller trees for future growth. Of the original forests 126,875 square miles were cut so ruthlessly that the land is now practically useless.

"To discourage further devastation of the country by thoughtless lumbering methods, the government organized the forest service. The areas under the supervision of this service are the tree-covered public lands in the West, which were not taken up by homesteaders, and forests purchased from private owners in the East. At present there are national forests in 31 states. Plans have been made for camps for the unemployed in the national forests of all these states. In states having no national forests, similar camps will be established in state forests or on private land.

"During the past quarter century, the government has emphasized the value of forests for the whole country.

For the farmer—and the 1930 census showed over 50 per cent of the population living in rural areas—there are two great problems that are affected by forestry practice. One is erosion, or the washing away of the valuable top soil; the other is the distribution of rain water. If there are no trees or cover crops to slow up the rain water as it runs down the slopes, erosion is unavoidable. Thus water which should seep down to the valleys through a period of weeks, rushes in torrents down the stream beds, causing floods in the valleys followed by long periods of drought.

"Aside from the protection of farm lands and conservation of moisture, national forests bring the government a direct revenue in various ways. Full grown timber and cord wood are sold; grazing lands are rented; water power concessions are leased; drinking water is furnished large cities; and irrigating systems are provided. These projects have proved so remunerative that even with the expense of seedling new seedlings, and pruning, thinning, and clearing undergrowth in the older growths, many of the national forests have been put on a self-supporting basis. From their income some national forests contribute to the treasuries of counties and states in which they are situated.

Fire Prevention.
"Perhaps the largest single expenditure for forestry is for fire prevention. The toll of life is not ordinarily great, deaths from forest fires rarely running over 50 persons a year; but the damage to forests and the dependent water districts has been found to amount to millions of dollars. To avoid this loss lookouts are placed on high points of national forests and constant watch is kept for the telltale smoke. Forest rangers now frequently are successful in beating out fires before they have passed the possibility of control. Public education has done much to limit the horror and waste of these fires; but one unavoidable cause, lightning, accounts for more than 25 per cent of the fires.

"The forest service has been quick to see the recreational possibilities of the forests, and roads have been built, hiking clubs encouraged, lake shores cleared, trails broken, and camping grounds established, so that tourists, climbing enthusiasts, fishermen, and hunters may have an opportunity to indulge in their favorite avocations. Summer home sites have been leased in a number of the forests for those who wish to live in more settled life in the woods. Botanists and zoologists have keenly supported the forestry movement, so that rare plants and animals might be preserved.

"The forest service has taken with it roads, telephones, radio, and other instruments of civilization and has brought prospering occupations to formerly isolated spots, many of them of striking scenic beauty. It has given a new vision to many lumbermen, persuading them that ultimate good for the country can be achieved and great harm averted by substituting the ideal of forestry for that of lumbering."

Transients Increasing Fast, Survey Reveals

St. Louis.—America's transient population is increasing at an alarming rate, a survey by G. M. Gwiner, director of the St. Louis bureau of homeless men, indicates.

Gwiner estimates that there are more than 200,000 men and boys drifting about the country. Of these, more than 200,000 are boys under twenty years of age, he believes.

Trains coming into St. Louis daily bring between 2,000 and 3,000 uninvited guests, the survey, made in co-operation with railroad officials showed. Most of these move on in a day or two, Gwiner said.

Bridal Veils in Versatile Mood

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

OF COURSE every bride is supposed to look her loveliest at her own wedding. Which is a perfectly good reason why the right choice of the right veil and headpiece is so very important, for they can make or mar the picture.

The fact that designers, when it comes to bridal veils, are in a particularly direct-theoretical mood this season is a good omen. It means that modern brides are being veiled to type rather than following proscribed rules.

The group pictured shows how very versatile present-day brides are being veiled. The exquisite ensemble on the seated figure at the top depicts a regulation fitted lace or tulle cap versions. The circular flare of tulle about the face and at the back is perfectly charming. The lace-bordered three-quarter veil with its rounded silhouette is an innovation.

Not only are these heret arrangements in vogue, but some of the most fashionable brides of the season are wearing the most ravishing little hats of tulle with visorlike brims, also of tulle, a wreathlet of orange blossoms encircling the shallow crown, the veil draped with consummate art to fall over the shoulders on train.

Then, too, in tune with this new theme of tulle hats with a brim, little "sets" are offered at smart shops, which cater to brides, which include enchanting flower toques, either of roses and petals or of orange blossoms and buds, with muffs made of the same, the newest idea being for the muffs to be heart-shaped. The voluminous veil is worked to fall in graceful billowy masses over this flower headpiece and the long train of the gown.

The inspiring thought about these lovely flower ensembles is that one need not take the responsibility and burden of working out these beguiling fantasies at home, for they are available at most any milliner shop or stores which make a specialty of outfitting brides with veils and headpieces. Flower hats and muffs in different colors for the bridesmaids complete the picture.

The alluring fitted lace cap and lace-trimmed veil posed on the seated figure below in the picture is just such a bride-to-be dream of when they plan their trousseaus. The distinguishing feature about this veil is that the rarely beautiful lace is inset, instead of the usual border arrangement.

There is something very interesting to tell about the veil on the bride standing to the left. The veil is made in two sections, so that after the ceremony the bride can remove the lace-bordered long train, if she so desires, without interfering with the youthful caplike portion which so becomingly envelops her shoulders in a mist of tulle. Thus she can move among her guests after the ceremony with perfect freedom. The better shops are showing these two-veils this season.

For the bride who dotes on the unusual, the veil on the standing figure centered to the right should prove an attraction. It is novel because of the high Modiel pleated collar which so handsomely defines the neckline.

JERSEY GOLF FROCK

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

There is a new Jersey which has all the appearance of being hand-knitted. The very good-looking dress pictured is made of this Jersey, in bright blue. It has been given a very attractive styling. It is adroitly tucked about the hips so as to achieve slenderizing lines. The draw-string neckline is an outstanding touch. The little rope strands form the giraffe which is fastened with a wooden huckle.

Lines Suits in Vogue

Linen suits are going to have an important place in summer wardrobes this year. You now can buy linen suiting that is uncrushable and it comes in dark, practical colors, including black.

Designers Now Are Using Plain and Printed Linen

There already has been discussion about the importance of the printed crepe jacket, worn with the monotone crepe dress, and of the printed crepe accent. Breveting this idea, but giving it a fresher appeal, designers are now using printed linen.

The dress in solid color that introduces printed linen as a trimming is also in summery mood, the linen light and bright, the dress in crepe or heavy sheer. These are practical as well as smart fashions, since the linen is washable and the trimmings are usually detachable.

Chicken Foot Weave Used in All Parts of Costume

Of course you are, or ought to be, thoroughly familiar with that material bit of the season called Le Plied-Pontie. In all of its variations. This chicken foot weave, be it in wool, silk or what not, works up into costumes for everything from the top coat to the bottom layer of lingerie next to the skin.

Finding the "Why" of Child's Action

Possibly Condemnation Is Decided Upon Too Hurriedly.

By RILDA RICHMOND.
National Kindergarten Association, New York.
"I didn't think you knew he brought it to school," said the teacher over the telephone to the startled mother of a seven-year-old, "much less that he gave it to a little schoolmate to wear."

"My pearl ring!" gasped the mother. "I hadn't missed it, but how glad I am you have it safe."

"The other child's mother saw the initials inside and returned it to me with an explanation," continued the teacher. "That, oh, I do hope you will not punish him. He's only seven, you know, and had no idea of the seriousness of his act from an adult viewpoint. We always see those things as if the offender were grown up—when he isn't."

"I don't know what to do," sighed the mother to herself. "But when I think—how are we going to help him keep his fingers out of mischief? I've emphasized that ever since he could toddle and what good has it done? To go to my jewel case like that?"

Much thought—no solution.
The child made honest confession with a bewildered look at his mother's concerned face. "Just gave it to June to wear. It was pretty. I like June."

Prayers were said. Lights turned out. Still no thought. Then it came. Loving arms hugged a small boy close and there, "Do you think if daddy and I were to buy a nice shiny gold ring with your initial on it for you to wear all the time, you would like it?"

Would he? The little chap was fascinated by jewelry!

"And do you think if you wore that nice shiny ring all the time it would help you to keep those fingers out of places where they should not go without permission?"

"Oh yes!"

"Well, that is what we will do, dear."

And that was what we did. And it did help the little lad in his struggle to keep his eager fingers out of places where they had no business.

This illustrates the idea of walking not only the "one mile" but also "the twin" in a sturdy little traveler who needs understanding, not condemnation. We mothers and fathers need to see beyond the result of the thought and get at the thought which caused the child to do a certain thing. It takes patience and a lot of self-control. But it is so well worth it! And the adult gets many a surprise when he takes the trouble to find out the real reason why the child acted as he did. Not what the child did but why he did it is the thing to concentrate upon.

Remember Gloves Must Always Be Immaculate

Light gloves, especially, must be clean to give one that "well-groomed" appearance. This is easy if the gloves are washable. Just squeeze them out every night or so when you do your stockings. Try this way:

Make rich suds with mild, neutral soap flakes, always keeping the water lukewarm or cool. Put on the gloves and wash just as if you were washing your hands. If there are stubborn spots of soil, gently work dry soap flakes into the leather and continue washing. If the suds get dirty use a fresh lot of suds. (Chamois and doeklin gloves need not be put on the hands, just squeeze them around in the suds as you would a blanket).

Remove the gloves by gently rolling them from the wrists and rinse in clear water, lukewarm or cool, to remove particles of dirt. Then work them around in light suds of mild soap flakes. Leaving a little mild soap in the gloves helps to keep the leather pliable.

Squeeze out the moisture. Don't twist, and roll in a dry turkish towel to remove excess moisture. Unroll at once, blow into shape and dry at moderate temperature. Don't freeze or put near excessive heat. While slightly damp soften the gloves by gently stretching and working the leather between the fingers. Then finish the drying.

Homemade Money Builds Factory

Town in Kentucky Secures an Important Industry.

Padenah, Ky.—Construction of a factory to employ 1,000 to 1,500 persons is being financed here with homemade money.

Recently a large firm handling shirts previously made in the state penitentiary, announced its products would be made outside the prison and that it was seeking location for a factory.

Padenah business men got busy. They found the factory could be brought here if they financed a building costing $65,000. They gave cash and signed notes aggregating that amount.

Former "Goose King," 81, Says He Shod His Flock

Mansfield, Ill.—William H. Firke, eighty-one years old, one-time "goose king," whose name has graced menu cards of some of the nation's best hotels, is living quietly on his farm a half mile northwest of here.

In 1917 Firke culled his little flock he fattened 50,000 geese and sold them to fancy poultry markets of the East. On one Sunday $3,000 visitors called at his farm to see his army of geese.

He is famous for his many stories of exploits, the best being that about the time he provided a dock with shoes in order to march them overland from his farm in Tennessee to a railroad 67 miles away. To protect their feet, he conceived the idea of "shoeing" them.

Accordingly, he poured a quantity of pitch tar, heated into a semi-liquid state, onto the floor of his poultry house.

Then he drove his geese into the houses, where they waddled about in the mixture for a few minutes, and then emerged properly "shod" for their long journey.

Hitching Posts, Blocks Ordered Out in Denver

Denver.—A two-fold campaign directed against carriage blocks and hitching posts is announced by Police Chief Albert T. Clark.

Both blocks and posts are a nuisance to the present-day motorists, Chief Clark declared. In addition to damaging machine doors and fenders, the carriage blocks have been the cause of several accidents to persons alighting from their cars, Chief Clark said.

The blocks and posts will be removed without charge by city employees, Chief Clark told his officers. The patrolmen were instructed to obtain the permission for removal from the property owners.

NORTHERN BASEBALL "9" WIN ANOTHER VICTORY

Defeated Marion Center Last Sunday—Play Two Games July 9

The Northern baseball team gave pitcher Jack Parsons poor support on the defense in the game last Sunday with Marion Center, but they made up for it with their bats and the local emerged from the contest on the top end of the 24 to 20 score.

The locals were behind, 14 to 9, at the end of the fifth and then they steadied on defense and finally won. Marion Center used Handy and Laroque both on the mound, but they looked alike to the locals.

Every man on each team reached first at least once and some were quite consistent, but Byers led the locals with a home run in the sixth with two on. Laroque did the same with empty bases in his next time up.

Next Sunday, the Northernmen plan a double header. At one o'clock p. m. they will meet Barnard. This will be a good game as each team has won from the other once. When this is finished, Charlevoix will make a few changes in the line-up and Maple Grove will furnish the opposition for the nightcap. Both games will be played on the American Legion diamond.
